The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

From the beginning Antony had seen this answer coming and had drawn back from it. For, if Mark had been killed, it seemed such a cold-blooded killing. Was Cayley equal to it?

Bill would have said "No," because Bill wouldn't have killed anybody in cold blood himself, and because he took it for granted that other people behaved pretty much as he did. But Antony had no such illusions. Murders were done; murder had actually been done here, for there was Robert's dead body. Why not another murder?

Had Mark been in the office at all that afternoon? The only evidence (other than Cayley's, which obviously did not count) was Elsie's. Elsie was quite certain that she had heard his voice. But then Bill had said that it was a very characteristic voice—an easy voice, therefore, to imitate. If Bill could imitate it so successfully, why not Cayley?

But perhaps it had not been such a cold-blooded killing, after all. Suppose Cayley had had a quarrel with his cousin that afternoon over the girl whom they were both wooing. Suppose Cayley had killed Mark, either purposely, in sudden passion, or accidentally, meaning only to knock him down. Suppose that this had happened in the passage, say about two o'clock. Suppose Cayley there, with the body at his feet, feeling already the rope round his neck; his mind darting this way and that in frantic search for a way of escape; and suppose that suddenly and irrelevantly he remembers that Robert is coming to the house at three o'clock that afternoon—automatically he looks at his watch—in half an hour's time. . . .

Antony pictured to himself Cayley in the passage, standing over the dead body of his cousin, and working it out. How could Robert be made to seem the murderer, if Robert were alive to deny it? But suppose Robert were dead, too?

He looks at his watch again. (Only twenty-five minutes now.) Suppose Robert were dead, too? Robert dead in the office, and Mark dead in the passage—how does that help? Madness! But if the bodies were brought together somehow . . . And Robert's death looked like suicide? . . . Was it possible?

Madness again. Too difficult. (Only twenty minutes now.) Too difficult to arrange in twenty minutes. Can't arrange a suicide. Too difficult . . . Only nineteen minutes. . . .

And then the sudden inspiration! Robert dead in the office, Mark's body hidden in the passage—impossible to make Robert seem the murderer, but how easy to make Mark Robert dead and Mark missing; why, it jumped to the eye at once. Mark had killed Robert accidentally; yes, that would be more likely—and then had run away. Sudden panic. . . . (He looks at his watch again. Fifteen minutes, but plenty of time now. The thing arranges itself.)

Was that the solution, Antony wondered. It seemed to fit in with the facts as they knew them; but then, so did that other theory which he had suggested to Bill in the morning.

"Which one?" said Bill.

They were sitting in the copse above the pond, from which the Inspector and his fishermen had now withdrawn. Bill had listened with open mouth to Antony's theory, and save for an occasional "By Jove!" had listened in silence. "Smart man, Cayley," had been his only comment at the end.

"That Mark had killed Robert accidentally and had gone to Cayley for help, and that Cayley, having hidden him in the passage, locked the office door from the outside and hammered on it."

"Yes, but you were so dashed mysterious about that. I asked you what the point of it was, and you wouldn't say anything." He thought for a little, and then went on, "I suppose you meant that Cayley deliberately betrayed Mark, and tried to make him look like a murderer?"

"I wanted to warn you that we should probably find Mark in the passage, alive or dead."

"And now you don't think so?"

"Now I think that his dead body is there."

"Meaning that Cayley went down and killed him afterward—after you had come, after the police had come?"

"SEE ANYTHING?" SAID ANTONY AT LAST.

"Well, that's what I shrink from, Bill. It's so horribly cold-blooded. Cayley may be capable of it, but I hate to think of it."

"But, dash it all, your other way is cold-blooded enough. According to you, he goes up to the office and deliberately shoots a man with whom he has no quarrel, whom he hasn't seen for fifteen years!"

"Yes, but to save his own neck. That makes a difference. And I think that Mark's dead body is in the passage now, and has been there since, say, half-past two yesterday afternoon. And tonight Cayley is going to hide it in the pond."

Bill pulled at the moss on the ground beside him, threw away a handful or two, and said slowly, "You may be right, but it's all guess-work, you know."

Antony laughed.

"Good Lord, of course it is," he said. "And tonight we shall know if it's a good guess or a bad one."

Bill brightened up suddenly.

"Tonight," he said. "I say, tonight's going to be rather fun. How do we work it?"

Antony was silent for a little.

"Let's put ourselves in Cayley's place," said Antony, puffing slowly at his pipe. "He's got the body, or whatever it is, in the passage. What will he do next?"

"Come out again," said Bill helpfully.

"Yes; but which end?"

Bill sat up with a start.

"By Jove, you mean that he will go out at the far end by the bowling-green?"

"Don't you think so? Just imagine him walking across the lawn in full view of the house, at midnight, with a body in his arms. He can get out by the bowling green, and then come to the pond without ever being in sight of the house at all."

"You're right. Now, what's the next thing?"

"The next thing is to mark the exact place in the pond where he drops—whatever he drops."

"So that we can fish it out again."

"If we can see what it is, we shan't want to. The police can have a go at it tomorrow. But if it's something we can't identify from a distance, then we must try and get it out. To see whether it's worth telling the police about."

"I—yes," said Bill, wrinkling his forehead. "Of course, the trouble with water is that one bit of it looks pretty much like the next bit. I don't know if that had occurred to you."

"It had," smiled Antony. "Let's come and have a look at it."

They walked to the edge of the copse, and lay down there in silence, looking at the pond beneath them.

"See anything?" said Antony at last.

"What?"

"The fence on the other side."

"What about it?"

"Well, it's rather useful, that's all."

"Said Sherlock Holmes enigmatically," added Bill. "A moment later, his friend Watson had hurled him into the pond."

Antony laughed.

"I love being Sherlocky," he said. "It's very unfair of you not to play up to me."

"Why is that fence useful, my dear Holmes?" said Bill obediently.

"Because you can take a bearing on it. You see—".

"Yes, you needn't stop to explain to me what a bearing is."

"I wasn't going to. But you're lying here"—he looked up—"underneath this pine-tree. Cayley comes out in the old boat and drops his parcel in. You take a line from here on to the boat, and mark it off on the fence there. Say it's the fifth post from the end. Well, then I take a line from my tree—we'll find one for me directly—and it comes on to the twentieth post, say. And where the two lines meet, there shall the eagles be gathered together. Q. E. D. And there, I almost forgot to remark, will the taller eagle, Beverley by name, do his famous diving act. As performed nightly at the Hippodrome."

Bill looked at him uneasily.

"I say, really? It's beastly dirty water, you know."

"I'm afraid so, Bill. So it is written in the book of Jasher."

"Of course I knew that one of us would have to, but I hoped—oh, well, it's a warm night."

"Just the night for a bathe," agreed Antony, getting up. "Well now, let's have a look for my tree."

They walked down to the margin of the pond and then looked back. Bill's tree stood up and took the evening, tall and unmistakable, fifty feet nearer to heaven than its neighbors. But it had its fellow at the other end of the copse, not quite so tall, perhaps, but equally conspicuous.

"That's where I shall be," said Antony, pointing to it. "Now, for the Lord's sake, count your posts accurately."

"Thanks very much, but I shall do it for my own sake," said Bill with feeling. "I don't want to spend the whole night diving."

"Fix on the post in a straight line with you and the splash, and then count backward to the beginning of the fence."

"Right, old boy. Leave it to me. I can do this on my head."

"Well, that's how you will have to do the last part of it," said Antony with a smile.

He looked at his watch. It was nearly time to change for dinner. They started to walk back to the house together.

At midnight the pond was waiting for them, more solemn in the moonlight. The trees which crowned the sloping bank on the far side of it were mysteriously silent. It seemed that they had the world very much to themselves.

Almost unconsciously Antony spoke in a whisper.

"There's your tree, there's mine. As long as you don't move, there's no chance of his seeing you. After he's gone, don't come out till I do. He won't be here for a quarter of an hour or so, so don't be impatient."

"Righto," whispered Bill.

Antony gave him a nod and a smile, and they walked off to their posts.

RUM-RUNNING BY AIRPLANES PAYS

Profitable Business Between Montreal and Long Island, N.Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(By Canadian Press).—Liquor running by airplanes from Montreal to Long Island points has become so profitable that many aviators, including one of the foremost fliers on the continent, have entered the bootlegging game, according to Frank J. Hale and James L. Kerrigan, Federal dry agents investigating liquor law violations in New York and New Jersey coastal counties.

Aviators inclined toward the adventure of liquor running, said Kerrigan in a recent interview, are experiencing no difficulty in getting financial backing. With the demand for liquor exceeding the supply, he declared, "responsible business men are underwriting the purchase of flying machines."

"We know of one instance," asserted Kerrigan, "where a Wall Street broker made arrangements for an aviator to obtain cargoes of liquor in Montreal. The liquor was purchased by the broker. The full story of his operations has been told us by this particular aviator, but we cannot make an arrest until we have absolute evidence on which to build a case.

"The aviator who conspired with the broker to bring liquor over the border went into the bootlegging game, he told us, more on a dare than as a money-making scheme. The profits were so large, however, that he continued to make trips to Montreal. Forty-five trips between Montreal and a Long Island landing field netted this aviator alone $30,000 for a summer's work. The round trip from Montreal to his Long Island landing field, he said, was made in a day.

"This man was under a verbal contract, according to his story, to supply liquor to a group of wealthy men associated with the broker who had underwritten the flights. On each one of his trips he brought over the border thirty-five cases of whisky, for which he received $20 a case as a transportation fee. The liquor previously had been purchased by the broker. After he had discharged his cargo without being apprehended there was no danger in his admitting that he had brought the stuff in because the evidence was well hidden.

"Rutland, Vt., is the stopping place of the air fleet engaged in bringing in the liquor. A field has been fixed up there so that the fliers can get fuel and other supplies.

"My route was from Lond Island obliquely across Manhattan Island," the aviator is alleged to have told Hale and Kerrigan, "and then paralleling the Hudson to Albany, where I veered easterly to Rutland. From Rutland I flew northwest to the northern edge of Lake Champlain. A few minutes later broughter me to the airdrome, outside of Montreal. While this was a semi-government field I was able to arrange for landings there.

"The Canadian inspectors whom I frequently met at the airdrome," the aviator is quoted as saying, "treated me cordially enough. Once in a while they would snoop around when I landed. They were watching for aviators who tried to "double up"—to smuggle a load of silks and other merchandise into Canada on the return trip.

"Through airdrome gossip, which I heard at Montreal while waiting for my plane to be loaded I learned of various schemes employed by pilots to preclude the possibility of getting evidence against them in the event of capture.

"I heard of one chap who had installed a trap door to the floor of his liquor compartment. In the event of threatened capture he could pull a string and dump his cargo. The liquor would be ruined, of course, but there would be no evidence of bootlegging. Another flier, I hear, always camouflages his machine by changing various markings before each trip and he always leaves Canada by a different route from which he entered.

"The game of transporting wet goods from Canada to Long Island is safe enough. There seems only a remote possibility of arrest. In my neighborhood in Long Island there are many planes in the air throughout the day and the police would have a merry time singling out one as being suspicious. I imagine the army fliers if overtaken and ordered to descend probably would flip a sneering wing at the sky cop and zoom elsewhere.

"The transportation of liquor by airplane is safe also, because there are few restrictions for airmen. No registration of machines is necessary, and here it is that the air smuggler has a decided advantage over his associates who travel overland. They must apply much 'grease' on trips from Canada and constantly are being double-crossed, highjacked and defrauded by employees.

"Even if overhauled in the air there has always been for me the possibility of escape in my fast plane. But to reduce the chances of detection to the minimum I made a slight alteration in my machine. By inserting a sliding panel painted the color of my fusilage over the aperture of the rear cockpit I made my ship look like a one seater. It required knowledge of that panel to scrutinize the inside of my fusilage without tearing it to pieces.

"At an expense of about $50 to myself I have made forty-five trips to Montreal, bringing back with me each time thirty-five cases of whisky, for which I was paid $700 in transportation fees."

Congress will be asked by the Prohibition Enforcement Department, Mr. Hale said, to pass laws restricting flights and promulgating regulations that will lessen the possibility of flycrafts having such liberties as they now enjoy.

WONDERFUL THE WAY IT HELPED HER

So Writes Mrs. Lemery Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brockville, Ontario, — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and female disorders. I was so weak at times that I could not stand up. I had been this way for nearly three years and the different medicines I had taken had not done me any good. I found one of your little books in my door one day and thought I would give it a trial. I am now on my fifth bottle and it is wonderful the way it has helped me. I am feeling much better, have no weak spells and can do all my work now. I am recommending your Vegetable Compound to all I know and you can use my testimonial to help other women."—Mrs. Casey Lemery, 176 Abbott St., Brockville, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women's ailments, and has a record of nearly fifty years behind it.

RADIO A HUGE INDUSTRY

The immensity of the ardio industy is shown by the fact that one plant alone, where radio sets and parts are manufactured, employs 3000 persons and expects ultimately to have 5000 on the job. Another large plant employs 1000 persons and ships out an average of 1200 receiveing sets a day.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with coated tongue, foul breath or a dull headache; or if your meals sour and ferment, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to headaches, backaches, bilious attacks, constipation or stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying the morning inside bath.

Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

TEACH WOMEN ART OF SHOPPING

ELIZABETH DYER

Most husbands and fathers would agree that women are natural born shoppers and that they don't need to be taught—it's a gift.

The point is, however, that many of them do need to be taught intelligent buying so they can get the vaue of the dollars they spend.

For this reason, New York University has adde a course in buying, and Miss Elizabeth Dyer has been made the instructor.

Miss Dyer is a Vassar graduate, whose desire to do social service took her to a department store. Her educational work among the girl clerks and her experiences there gave her such a wide knowledge of selling that she decided to make retailing her career.

One of her tasks is to arrange for actual store experience in the big New York department stores for students of the university.

Movie News

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—"Hungry Hearts," as cinema plays go, is rather drab except for the dramatic characterization of Rosa Rosanova in mother role. However, it lends itself to synchronization with stirring music and the ear can thus bring stimulation not sensed by the eye.

I watched S. L. Rothafel, director of the Capitol, the world's largest theater, score "Hungry Hearts." Erno Rapee, musical director, and a piano player were with him in the small projection room.

Several bars of the "Volga Boat Song" were played as introduction, the tempo of the music being varied with the tempo of the film's action. The opening scenes are in Russia. A letter arrives from America. "Now 'Hail Columbia,'" Rothafel shouted. "Play it slowly." That incident over, a Russian folk dance was ordered by Rothafel, projection of the film being stopped until a suitable air was hit upon.

Then the boat bringing the immigrants was shown passsing the Statue of Liberty. Rothafel was on his feet, shouting out the notes of "Hail Columbia," the pianist playing fortissimo.

Rothafel seemed in a mad frenzy of patriotism. He could easily have imagined himself chorus leader in the steerage of the boat, swinging his arms in rhythm with the music However, he was in no frenzy. He was simply letting his imagination have full sway, magnifying the reaction of the song on himself in proportion to the 3,400 people who would be sitting in the theater when the orchestra would play it as accompaniment to the picture.

Sitting in the theater later he changes from one theme to the other were hardly perceptible. Unless one is given to analysis, to minute examination of his entertainment, one is not aware whether it is the picture or the musical accompaniment which plays upon its emotions.

My enthusiasm for "Hungry Hearts" seems somewhat diminished since I previewed the film five months ago. This diminution may be due to the fact that I have seen the picture three times. As in the case of books, plays and pictures, only the great photoplays bear repetition.

Mrs. E. J. Worth writes from Edson, Alberta, Canada, to ask what opportunity the screen holds for historical plays.

"Robin Hood," "Orphans of the Storm," "When Knighthoood Was in Flower," "Passion" and "Deception" have demonstrated the worth of European history as material for screen drama. American history offers even more interesting material. The surface was scratched by "To-Have and To Hold" and "In the Days of Buffalo Bill." Paramount is now filming a story of the western pioneer days in "The Covered Wagon." Charles Ray is filming "The Courtship of Miles Standish." The romance of the whaling schooners is shown in Elmer Clifton's "Down to the Seas in Ships" which will be reviewed in these colums. And "The Birth of a Nation" is one of the greatest pictures ever made.

This seems to be sufficient premise to assert that American historical romances offer a wider field than an other source for the immediate future of the photoplay.

* * * *

Turning to the London Saturday Review, it is pleasant to read and fense of the photoplay so adequately, expressed as in the following excerpt, written by James Agate:

"The implication that the film cannot be considered a form of art I am sure, utterly wrong. Art is not an immutable thing, rigidly contained within fixed laws. The principle of beauty may be unalterable; its expression must keep pace with mechanical invention. Those who wilfully deny the esthetic possibilities of the film seem to be to belong to the slightly demented order of beings who would go back to printing in black letter, hand loom weaving the viol da gamba and the toga. Art stopped short neither with the Empress Josephine nor with Mr. Edison. What a mess of it serious composers would have made if they had stopped resolutely at the harpsichord and ignored the piano! The piano was bound to come, and the artist could best defend it from the vulgar by using it himself. So, too, the cinema had to come, and our dramatists can best preserve this new medium of drama from the clowns by utilizing it themselves. Synchronization is in the air, and I am persuaded that the operatic composer will do well to consider the screen scenario as the peg upon which he must, sooner or later, hang his score."

Rumor. Straight from my Hollywood Listening Post. Jobyna Ralston, 17, is to succeed Mildred Davis as leading lady in Harold Lloyd's comedies. Mildred, after several years with Lloyd is to be starred. Bebe Daniels started to stardom that way. Jobyna has been acting in Hal Roach comedies.

GIRL MISSING, YOUTH JAILED.

Police Suspect She Was Slain or Took Own Life After His Refusal to Marry.

BAY CITY, Mich., Dec. 15.—Albert Mutart, 18 years old, is in jail while police and Bay County autdorities are searching for Eleanor Irving, 14-year-old schoolgirl, who has been missing since she went on an automobile ride with Mutart, her sweetheart, Sunday evening.

The girl's father, Charles Irving, believes the girl was slain, or has taken her own life. Search is being made along the shore of Saginaw Bay, at Waterworks Park, on the theory that she may have thrown herself into the bay, and an alarm has been broadcast throughout Northeastern Michigan.

Mutart has admitted, police say, that the girl threatened to kill herself unless he married her at once. He said that he drove her out to the park, deserted at this time of the year, that they had a quarrel there, and that he later drove her back to the city. She left his car, he said, at Thirteenth and Water streets about 8 p. m. and he denies he has seen her since.

The police are not certain, however, that Mutart has told all that he knows. They point to the finding of a hair ribbon and a part of the girl's coat belt, in Mutart's car, as possible evidence of a struggle. They say also that Mutart has not accounted satisfactorily for his movements between the time that he says the girl left him and 10 p.m., when he joined a boy friend.

The parents doubt that the girl is in hiding, as Mutart has suggested. She had never before absented herself from home without an explanation, and they believe, from their knowledge of her nature and habits, that she would return home if she could.

When the girl was last seen she wore a dark brown coat, brown satin skirt, brown oxfords, and blue velvet hat with a velvet crown. She weighs about 112 pounds, has light brown hair and is fair of complexion. She was a seventh-grade pupil at the Farragut Public School.

An uncle of the girl has gone to investigate a report that the girl was with friends there.

No charge has been placed against Mutart.

Up-to-date criminologist s agree that, while the hereditary criminal does exist, criminality produced by social and economic causes is far commoner an of much greater significance.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

RETURNED SOLDIERS' INSURANCE EXPIRY DATE

An amendment to the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act provides that insurance may not be granted on the lives of Returned Soldiers with or without dependents, in a serious condition of health from causes other than war service, or those without dependents, even when impairment is due to service. The amendment, however, contains the following proviso:

"Provided that applicants with or without pensionable disability who are so seriously ill that they have no expectancy of life, and who have dependents who are entitled to become beneficiaries under the contract as provided under the Act, shall be insurable under the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, up to, and inclusive of, 1st January, 1923."

Insurance may be granted in all cases where the impairment is due to service and the returned soldier has dependents.

Application may be made at any local office of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, or by mail to Soldiers' Insurance Division, Daly Building, Ottawa.

Applications not affected by the above will be accepted until September 1st, 1923. 24-20-15

SPEED DEMONSTRATION LINER EMPRESS OF ASIA.

Women's Benefit Society Going to Banff Next June—Christmas Trees on Board.

VANCOUVER, December 15. — The liner Empress of Asia outbound on her last voyage made an effective speed demonstration. The liner President Jackson of the Admiral Oriental service, left Victoria 9.10 p.m., on the evening of November 29th. The Asia left Victoria at 6.45 p.m., November 30th, more than 21 hours behind the American Express Liner.

The Canadian ship arrived at Yokohama at 8 a.m., December 11, seven hours and 30 minutes ahead of the Jackson, which reached there at 3.30 p.m., on that date.

Over 225 members of the Women's Benefit Association of the Maccabees, the largest fraternal organization in the world, organized exclusively for women, will spend four days at Banff next June in the course of a progressive convention opening in Los Angeles on May 29. Mrs. M. W. Aydelotte of Oakland, Cal., Deputy Supreme Commander of the order, is now in Vancouver, and the convention delegation will comprise members from every state in the union and from all parts of Canada.

Christmas on board of a Canadian Pacific liner will be the theme of many a letter written by passengers who sailed to-day for the Orient on board the S.S. Empress of Canada, for Christmas day should find this palatial ship a day out from Yokahama, and everything has been arranged to provide all the comforts of the Yuletide season on that occasion. Two large Christmas trees were taken on board. The ship's purser will impersonate Santa Claus and every passenger on the ship will receive gifts on Christmas morning.

THE UNITED FARMERS CONCLUDE CONFERENCE.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Opposition to military training in schools, and a request to the Dominion government that the new excise tax on sugar beets be removed, were two of the most important matters contained in resolutions adopted by the closing session of the United Farmers of Ontario here to-day.

The Hydro-Electric Commission was scored for alleged inequality between service offered large municipalities and that available for the farmer.

WOMAN PAWNS FOR $20 RING VALUED AT $1,500.

Is Arrested, Charged With Stealing Bag of Mrs. Edgar Speyer at Pennsylvania Station.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.— A woman who said she was Mrs. Emily Armstrong, 35 years of age, a stenographer, was arrested last night after she had pawned for $20 a pearl necklace with a diamond pendant, said to be worth at least $1,500, and believed to be the property of Mrs. Edgar Speyer.

The woman was arrested by Detective Sergeant Guinta, who followed her into a pawnshop at Thirty-fourth Street and Third Avenue and saw her take the necklace out of an over-night bag which she carried. She asked the pawnbroker how much he would lend her on the necklace. Later he said he would have given her $500 if everything had seemed all right. But he recognized the detective and saw that something was wrong, so he winked at Guinta and said $20 was all he would give. The woman asked for $25, but the pawnbroker refused it. Then she accepted his offer and left.

Detective Guinta followed her to her home at 307 Yexington Avenue, where he questioned her about the bag and necklace. She first insisted they were her property, but finally, according to the police, admitted that she had stolen the bag, which contained the necklace, in the ladies' waiting room at Pennsylvania Station, at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Detective Guinta found in the bag cards with the inscription, "Mrs. Edgar Speyer, 22 Washington Square North." The police telephoned her home, but were informed that she was out and that Mr. Speyer was in Washington.

Mrs. Armstrong was locked up in Clinton Street Prison on a charge of grand larceny and will be arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court today.

Penniless Royalty Is Solving the Servant Problem in Constantinople

By Marian Hale.

Fancy having your morning grapefruit brought to you by a real princess, or having your frocks made by a young and lovely countess—would it seem queer

Not if you lived in Constantinople, says Mathilde Vossler, Y. W. C. A. worker, who just returned from there and who not only did receive such attentions, but was also instrumental in finding positions for Russian royalty who had fled to Constantinople.

As head of the association's employment bureau for refugees she placed hundreds of men and women in jobs they would have scorned, as suitable only for an inferior class, a few years ago.

Titled Servants

"Domestic service is practically the only sort open in Constantinople to refugees," Miss Vossler said, "consequently it is easier to place women than men, and many titled women there support their titled husbands washing dishes or making pastry.

"Most of our requests come for maids and cooks, but these were hard to fill because royal refugees have not always been trained for domestic service.

"There was also a demand for children's nurses, but reliable ones were hard to find. Practically every Russian woman had nursed sometime during the war and aspired to become a regular nurse, but it was difficult to standardize their training.

"Many noblewomen sought positions as governesses, and others desired to become interpreters, but outside American and British military organizations there were few demands for them It is hard to find trained stenographers, as the art of typing is almost unknown among Russian women of the leisure class.

"Many women could do nothing but needlework, and this was highly desirable as it could be taken home by mothers of small children.

Many Waitresses

"The occupation of waitress appealed to the largest number of women and girls because it did not require any previous training. However, we could not fill these positions as there was no way of cooperating with the managers and we could not sanction the conditions under which the girls worked.

"They received no salary, depending entirely upon tips and the large commission given on all liquor. The system put a premium upon a girl's attractiveness. The hours of service often continued from 3 in the afternoon to 3 the next morning."

MATHILDE VOSSLER

Miss Vossler is at present travelling and lecturing in behalf of the people of the Near East in co-operation with the national campaign of the Y. W. C. A. to raise $550,000 to insure its worldwide program.

Later she expects to return to Constantinople and continue her work with the employment bureau.

CANADA'S EXPORT

domestic trade yesterday afternoon, Mr. James Matthews pointed out that the animals bred must be of the long, lean type and well balanced, which will offer product that can be cut to a profit. He also emphasized care in the handling and shipping of hogs, as bruises on bacon sides will degrade them, for export especially. Unfortunately this year, he said, the number of bruised animals sent to packers had been excessive, and he had known as many as 30 to 40% of shipments from some districts to have depreciated $3 a bacon side from this cause. Explaining and demonstrating from carcasses the various gradings of Wiltshires, Mr. Mathews said: "What an Englishman wants and must have if he trades with us, is a well proportioned side, no country in the world is better able to produce that than Canada, and to the Englishman's standard set our own government's grading conforms.

Breeding Types

Following an interesting talk from Mr. Jack Wylde, superintendent of the C. P. C's Brantford plant, Mr. Brether of Hamilton, demonstrated how the conformation or type of an animal enters into the grading of its side for bacon and hams; and he declared that Canada can produce the same type of hog as Denmark, which just now has the preference in the English market. "No country in the world can surpass us," he said. "We have the climate, the right kind of food, and it is only up to the Canadian farmer to raise the right class of hog from a proper selection of breeding stock to hold and increase Canada's British export trade. From good bred hogs the farmer can, by correct feeding and proper care, reach the ideal standard of animal for bacon production."

Domestic Trade

Mr. Reginald Stratton, of the C. P. C's Toronto plant, lectured on the domestic trade angle of hog breeding, for which the same type of animal is needed as for the Wiltshire sides' trade. And with the aid of a butcher cutting up carcasses he convincingly demonstrated the advantages of the Wiltshire type for the everyday cuts in demand by local housewives, including a saving in waste to the retailer. The ideal hog, he explained and demonstrated, has a neat head, light neck and shoulder, deep heart and well-sprung ribs, thick loins, stout thighs, short legs, and a long side of moderate depth with thick flank.

Inspected Dead and Alive

Dr. Lowery gave a very interesting and illuminating lecture on the precautions taken under the Federal act to safeguard consumers against disease contamination from pork. He is a representative from the Health of Animals Branch, Ottawa, and is in control of this district. There are three meat inspectors in the C. P. C's local plant—two vets. and one layman—and all hogs examined, first when alive and then after killed, for signs of tuberculosis or other contagious diseases they are subject to. Thus, the public are adequately protected from contagion, and all products from this local factory bear the "Canada approved" stamp, a positive guarantee that they are free from contagious affection and prepared under clean, wholesome and sanitary conditions.

In the course of his talk Dr. Lowrey found occasion to congratulate Canada upon its freedom from foot and mouth disease in hogs and cattle, which ailments have cost the United States millions of dollars. He also warned the class against overcrowding hogs in a car, he having seen fifty hogs come to a consignee dead in one car. He also cautioned them against the foolish practice of throwing cold water on a hog overcome by heat, for such a procedure engenders pneumonia. Other points well worth knowing gleaned from his address were that tuberculosis in poultry is too prevalent and is transmitible to hogs and cattle, and that it is generally conceded now that with proper precautions both, hog cholera and tuberculosis may be unknown in Canada 50 years hence. In conclusion, the doctor significantly warned his hearers that a large proportion of tuberculosis in humans has been traced to bovine origin. As to tuberculosis in poultry, he had seen 70 hens out of 300 condemned at Montreal in one day as affected by this disease.

Grading Alive

The class here enjoyed an instructive lecture and demonstration on selected classes of live hogs and on grades and grading by Mr. R. G. Knox, O. A. C., Guelph.

At 1.30 today there will be a trip of inspection through the C. P. C's big local plant, which is credited with being, without exception, the best equipped and most modern of the company's factories—in fact, the last word in modernity throughout.

POST OFFICE

sons about to mail a gift has a privilege of writing "not to be opened until Christmas" across the face of the parcel, and that therefore a few day advance in mailing really doesn't make any difference to the public, while it does relieve the congestion.

Letters Not Addressed.

A special postal prayer has to do with the little matter of the public being thoughtful enough to write addresses on letters, greeting cards and packages. Unfortunately when the public forget, and they often do, the letter goes to the dead letter office there to remain.

Then the public has another little fault in the matter of not reading up on the stamp regulations. Insufficient stamps is generally a source of continual annoyance to most people. The post office department shows that the practice not only slows up the service but creates embarrassment to those having to pay excess. The department makes really extensive endeavors to handle the Christmas rush on time and in good condition .

Extra men are engaged for nearly every branch and in the larger cities a separate service is provided. During Christmas week is no uncommon sight to see a postman leaving his headquarters as officer commanding a near transport train of wagons, containing parcels to say nothing of bundles of letters and greeting cards. In many cities the postal delivery work is decentralized and school buildings used as sub-offices. Christmas is no holiday for the postman.

Some idea of the Christmas rush in the post office may be gleaned from the fact that during December last year total stamp sales amounting to $3,400,000 as compared with approximately $2,000,000 during July of the same year. $1,400,000 being the difference.

"UNCONSCIOUS"

morning, at midday, and in the evening, at the usual meal times, you will feel hungry, that is to say, you will experience the agreeable sensation which makes you think and say: "Oh! how nice it will be to have something to eat! You will then eat and enjoy your food, without, of course, overeating.

"You will assimilate what you ingest it properly so as to transform it into a sort of soft paste before swallowing it .

"In these conditions you will digest it properly, and sofeel no discomfort, inconvenience, or pain of any kind either in the stomach or intestines.

"You will essimilate what you eat and your organism will make use of it to make blood, muscle, strength and energy, in a word: Life.

"Since you will have digested your food properly, the function of excretion will be normal, and every morning, on rising, you will feel the need of evacuating the bowels, and without ever being obliged to take medicine or to use any artifice, you will obtain a normal and satisfactory result.

Cease Worrying.

"Further, every night from the time you wish to go to sleep till the time you wish to wake next morning, you will sleep deeply, calmly, and quietly, without nightmares, and on waking you will feel perfectly well, cheerful, and active.

"Likewise, if you occasionally suffer from depression, if you are gloomy and prone to worry and look on the dark side of things; from now onwards you will cease to do so, and, instead of worrying and being depressed and looking on the dark side of things, you are going to feel perfectly cheerful—possibly without any special reason for it, just as you used to feel depressed for no particular reason.

"I say further still, that even if you have real reason to be worried and depressed you are not going to be so!

"If you are also subject to occasional fits of impatience or ill-temper you will cease to have them; on the contrary you will be always patient and master of yourself, and the things which worried, annoyed, or irritated you, will henceforth leave you absolutely indifferent and perfectly calm.

"If you are sometimes attacked, pursued, haunted, by bad and unwholesome ideas; by apprehensions, fears, aversions, temptations; or by grudges against other people; all that will be gradually lost sight of by your imagination. It will melt away and lose itself as though in a distant cloud where it will finally disappear completely.

"As a dream vanishes when we wake, so will all these vain images disappear.

"To this I add that all your organs are performing their functions properly. The heart beats in a normal way and the circulation of the blood takes place as it should; the lungs are carrying out their functions, as also the stomach, the intestines, the liver, the biliary duct, the kidneys and the bladder.

"If at the present moment any of them is acting abnormally, that abnormality is becoming less every day, so that quite soon it will have vanished completely, and the organ will have recovered its normal function.

"Further, if there should be any lesions in any of these organs they will get better from day to day and will soon be entirely HEALED."

(With regard to this, I may say that it is not necessary to know which organ is affected for it to be cured. Under the influence of the autosuggestion: "Every day, in every way, I am getting better and better," the Unconscious acts upon the organ which it can pick out itself.)

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Liberal-Conservative Association Elect Officers — Submit By-Law For School Addition.

MILLBROOK, Decembe 15. — The following officers for the Millbrook Liberal-Conservative Association were elected at their annual meeting held here:

President—J. J. Clarke.
1st Vice-president—W. Lang.
2nd Vice-president—I. M. Nattrass.
Secretary—L. C. Russell.
Treasurer—J. R. Eakins.
Delegates: J. N. McGill, J. Eastcott, T. H. Bradley, P. Stinson, J. S. Vance, G. W. Sayles, W. S. Given, T. Ingram, R. J. Doak.

Submit a By-law.

That the Council at their next meeting on Friday, 15th December, will pass a by-law authorising the School Board to raise debentures amounting to $30,000, to be spread over a period of 30 years, and will have the approval of the majority of the ratepayers in so doing, seems to be assured as the outcome of the public meeting on Tuesday evening, especially as the Reeve stated that several who signed the counter-petition have since told him that they did so under a misapprehension as to its meaning. Mr. Smith gave assurance that as far as possible the money would be raised locally, and at a rate of interest not exceeding five and a half per cent.

Municipal nominations will take place on Friday, 22nd December, this year at the usual hour, because of the last Monday falling on Christmas Day.

Annual Meeting.

The Millbrook Royal Black Preceptory, No. 945, held their annual meeting on Monday evening, Wor. Sir Knight J. H. Paul occupying the chair. After the usual routine business had been disposed of, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W.P.—Wor. Sir Knight J. H. Paul.
D.P.—Sir Knight L. C. Russell.

2nd Lectureman—Sir Knight H. Ryley.
1st Censor—Sir Knight P. Stinson.
2nd Censor—Sir Knight I. M. Nattrass.
Pursuivant — Sir Knight L. C. Morton.
O.T.—ir Knight A. Lunn.
Committeemen—J. W. Hamilton, A. J. Henderson, Milton Fallis, Wm. Lynn, Roy Hunter, William Gray, and M. H. Bingham.

Mr. George Porter, of Peterborough, Deputy-Grand Master for Ontario East, was present, and delivered the address of the evening.

At the conclusion of the meeting a hot supper was served, and a social good time enjoyed.

Now at Bowmanville

Many here who remember Rev. S. C. Moore, B.A., B.D., when he was pastr of the Cavan South circuit several years ago, and who have listened with pleasure and profit to his sermons when, on several occasions, he has since preached in the Methodist church here, will be interested in knowing that he is enjoying a most successful pastorate in the Methodist Church, Bowmanville. On a recent anniversary Sunday when a thankoffering of $2000 was asked for to pay on the church debt , the Trustee Board was greatly gratified at the response to the appeal when the congregation contributed $2,910 The Ladies' Aid placed $1000 on the plate. The pastor was assisted for the day by Hev. A. E. Crews, of Toronto, editor of the Methodist S. S. publications, and congregations were large both morning and evening, special music being provided by the choir.

The next G.W.V.A. dance will be held on Tuesday, December 26th in the Armouries; music by Follis' four piece orchestra. Dancing to begin at 9 p.m. Captain J. N. McGill is chairman of the committee, and G. F. Harrington, secretary.

Special Services

The second in the series of song services which Rev. S. T. Tucker is holding one Sunday evening each month throughout the winter will be conducted on Sunday, December 17th, the life and hymns of Charles Wesley being the subject of the evening's discourse. Last month much interesting information was gained when the pastor considered the hymns and life- work of Dr. Isaac Watts.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson of Franklin, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Blanche Alda, to Mr. Delbert W. Armstrong, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Armstrong, Bailieboro, Ont., the marriage to take place quietly the latter part of December.

The engagement is announced of Gertrude J. Dewell, only child of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Dewell, of Bethany, to Mr. William L. Rowan of Bethany, the marriage to take place the latter part of December.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

A wag says: "We know what happened to Lot's wife when she looked back; she was crystallized into salt. Lot didn't look back; he just went ahead and looked for another wife."

Looking backward is dangerous. To progress, we must keep our eyes turned forward, not backward. If we would succeed ,we must be pliable to the changing conditions of life, always alert for the new ideas, the new opportunity, responsive to the forward movement. The habit of living in the past, of regretting what has gone by, shuts out the new chances, the new advantages that change brings. It sets up within us a hardening process which strangles growth and renders further development impossible.

A great many people go through life looking backward most of the time; they are good illustrations of the thing that befell Lot's wife. They never go forward, they are never among the progressive or up-to-date. They stand still, because rutty and narrow, cases of arrested development.

Stir Well.

Always remember that proper mixing ensures uniform texture when baking a cake.

AT HOME OF AGED COUPLE, HASTINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Stickles Celebrate 50th Anniversary of Wedding—News Nuggets.

HASTINGS, Dec. 15. — A very pleasant function took place yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Stickles, when the happy young couple of fifty years ago, were again "at home' 'to their friends.

A large number of friends and neighbors called during the afternoon to extend their congratulations and to join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Stickles many more years of happy wedded life.

During the course of the afternoon the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Stickles was a valued member, met in a body and presented her with an address and a gold life membership pin. Following is the address:

"Dear Mrs. Stickles,—The members of the W.M.S., of whom you have the honor of being president, wish to congratulate Mr. Stickles and yourself on having reached the fiftieth anniversary of your wedding day. Fifty years is a long time to spend totgether, but they have been years of happiness and prosperity. The Lord hath been with you and prospered you, and He will be with you and prosper you to the end. The members of our society, being mindful of these things, would add to their congratulations this small token of appreciation and the high esteem in which you are held. It is the golden rule of life membership which serves to bind us into close fellowship and will keep you in mind of our happy meetings together and pleasant intercourse at all times.

(Signed on behalf of the Hastings Presbyterian W. M. S.)—Mrs. W. Hill, Mrs. W. Fleming, Mrs. C. B. Plant."

Relief Work Still.

The ladies of the different churches are still busy packing clothing and fruit for the relief of the fire sufferers of Northern Ontario.

MAY KILL THE LABOR COURT.

Kansas Industrial Organization is Now Facing Its Greatest Fight.

TOPEKA, Kas., Dec. 15.—The Kansas Industrial Court, long a source of capital-labor warfare, now faces its greatest fight.

Jonathan M. Davis, newly elected Democratic governor, has pledged the full force of office and personlity to wipe from the statutes the law creating the court, when he takes office January 1.

Opposing him stands a united Republican Legislature, pledged by party platform to battle for, the court to the uttermost.

Who will win is a toss-up.

Davis, who had incorporated into his platform an attack on the court, won the last election by a plurality of 18,400 over his Republican opponent—and this despite the strong Republican sentinment of Kansas. Labor cast a solid vote for Davis However, this is not considered clear indication, as other issues of equal importance entered the campaign.

But labor will lend its solid support toward abolishment of the hated Industrial Court. The American Federation of Labor and other labor organizations throughout the country repeatedly have attacked it as an effort to enslave labor, and a revulsion from modern labor principles.

Faults Admitted

Employers are divided on the court question. Many brand it as an attempt to give state control over private propety. Other employers endorse it heartily, as do many eminent jurists of the state. But even among its closest friends are found those who admit its efficiency is lowered by its intertwining with politics.

The court grew out of the great coal strike of 1919. In 1920, Governor Henry J. Allen called a special session of the Legislature to pass upon a plan advocated by W. L. Huggins, Emporia, Kas., lawyer. This plan was pronounced one to create an industrial code similar to the criminal and civil codes, that is to bring differences before a court as is done in the case of private individuals. From which came the Industrial Court. Huggins became its presiding judge, and two others were appointed.

The law provided that controversies between employers and employees regarding wages and working conditions should be brought before the court, and authorized the court to make orders in such cases.

Labor Provision

It further provided that a refusal to obey orders, or to call a strike or lockout without first submitting the case to court, should subject a man to trial on a felony charge. Also that workmen who strike in defiance of a court order may be found guilty of misdemeanor.

A storm of criticism, now culminating in Davis' fight, was born simultaneously with the court.

Open warfare came in October of 1921, when Alexander Howat, a district president of the United Mine Workers of America defied the court and was sent to jail.

Coal miners throughout the state walked out in sympathy, and remained idle for months, causing untold loss to Kansas and necessitating the use of troops. Finally the international president of the miners expelled Howat, reorganized the district and brought peace.

This case, and scores of other real or fancied grievances of employers and employees against the court, assure Davis widespread support in his coming attack.

And the eyes of all American industry is watching.

SENSATIONAL ESCAPE POPULAR CUBAN BANDIT

With 250 Troops At His Heels Cuba's Jesse James at Large.

HAVANA, Cuba., Dec. 14.—(Associated Press.)—With sentences to talling 200 years in prison hanging over his head and 250 troops and rural guards at his heels, Ramon Arroyito, Cuba's modern Jesse James, is still at large. His latest feat of escaping from the jail at Matanzas through a hole blown in the thick walls at mid-day has again made him a popular hero and added to the difficulties of the authorities, for they claim nobody will help them follow his trail.

Arroyito took to the high road about three years ago and, if the holdups, kidnappings and other unlawful acts attributed to him are well founded, he operated in every part of the island before he went into retirement after two years of hectic endeavor and with a fortune variously estimated at from $50,000 to $200,000. But last spring, while very prosaically travelling from Matanzas to a nearby village to attend a cock fight, he was captured by two rural guards, acting as a train escort, who held him first for carrying arms without a license, but loaded him with chains when they discovered he was the notorious outlaw.

Brought to Havana, Arroyito was greeted by thousands at the railway station and his trip to the city jail resembled a triumphal procession. While being tried and convicted on numerous counts, he perfected his plans for breaking loose from jail and only the accidental presence of a mounted policeman on the harbor side of the jail prevented a clean get away three months ago.

His escape from the Matanzas jail where he was lodged last week to await trial for kidnapping, is credited to a former pal, Julio Ramirez, whom Arroyito once rescued from jail at Jaruco by holding up the Warden and turkeys single handed in broad daylight.

NOTHING NEW.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Asked last evening regarding a rumor that a prominent member of the Cabinet would shortly be appointed Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary at Washington, Premier Mackenzie King remarked that the Government had no intention of parting with any of its Ministers. There was nothing to announce in regard to the Washington post, he said.

EXPANSION OF A.Y.P.A. DISTRICT

Anglican Young People Discuss Plan to Include Whole Deanery in One District.

At the regular meeting of the Peterborough District Council held last evening in the Parish Hall of St. Luke's Church, the matter of extending the bounds of the present district to include the whole deanery was discussed. The plan, as proposed, would mean the establishment of a northern and southern district, and these districts would hold joint meetings once or twice a year. The great distance between the northern and southern boundaries of the Deanery of Peterborough make it impracticable to combine the whole under one district. Millbrook and Omemee, though not within the Deanery of Peterborough, would be included in the northern district. This northern district would be virtually the same as what is now known as the Peterborough district, while the southern district would be composed of the branches at Norwood, Hastings, Campbellford and neighboring parishes.

The matter was left in the hands of the executive committee for discussian and examination, and will be reported on at the next regular meeting, when it is expected the final action will be taken.

NEW ENGLAND STILL ABOUNDING IN GAME

Wild Life in the Forests is Far From Exterminated.

BOSTON, Dec. 15.—(Associated Press)—"About this time," as the old farmers' almanacs used to say, a frequently occurring paragraph in New England country newspapers reads somewhat as follows:—

"The annual game supper was held last night. There was a large attendance and the hunters provided a bounteous repast."

Although the wild turkey which set the style for Thanksgiving Day on the occasion of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving Day 300 years ago disappeared from New England woods, three centuries of hunting with firearms has far from exterminated the wild life of the forests in this section. Even in the immediate vicinity of Boston, deer and ruffed grouse are seen occasionally, and squirrels, hare and foxes are regular inhabitants of suburban woodland. The pheasant, not a native game bird but introduced some years ago, has flourished in Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire. Geese and an abundance of waterfowl pause on New England lakes and streams in their migrations.

Only in Maine does the moose persist, but bears, common in that state, are still found also in the remote sections of the mountain country in New Hampshire, Vermont and western Massachusetts. Wildcats are shot or trapped in considerable numbers every season. In the fur-bearing category racoons, skunks and muskrats are still plentiful, and in the wilder districts mink and otter are not infrequently found. The wolves are gone; it is only rarely that a panther is reported, and then with doubtful authenticity, and the dam-building beavers now are few.

That the rapidly increasing number of hunters has not more seriously depleted the supply of game in New England is due largely to conservation measures. For many years all the states in this section have enforced as strictly as possible the closed season provisions of the game laws; and in recent open seasons the bag limits on various classes of game birds and animals have been made increasingly smaller. Licenses also are required of all hunters, and in the case of non-residents high fees are demanded.

The game supper nowadays is often the sharing by an individual or a group of hunters of the results of a day's sport. But in a few villages in the heart of the woods it takes on a greater importance. Teams of villagers, fifty to a hundred on a side, are pitted against each other in a hunt from daybreak to dark. The men go into the woods singly, each to his favorite hunting ground. When all have returned at night the spoils of each team are counted, and the one having the smaller amount of game pays all the expenses incidental to serving an elaborate meal in which the meat courses range from squirrel pie to venison steak.

Big U.F.O. Meeting Thursday — I.O.D.E. Arrange For Events in Public Interest--News of Interest

COBOURG, Dec. 15.—(Special).—West Northumberland U.F.O. is arranging for a big meeting in the Town Hall here next Thursday, to be addressed by Hon. Mr. Biggs and others.

The Late Mrs. Simmons.

The funeral of Mrs. Simmons, widow of Henry Simmons, took place here yesterday from the residence of her son-in-law, A. R. Dundas. Services were conducted by Rev. Canon Sawyers, rector of St. Peter's Church. Mrs. Simmons' death occurred only about three weeks after the sudden death of her daughter, making the second recent sore bereavement in the home. She was only seriously ill for two or three days. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. H. Dundas, and by a brother and sister, John Shearer and Miss Elizabeth Shearer, Preston.

"In Sunny France."

The Cobourg Primary Chapter of the I.O.D.E. realized about $475 out of the play, "In Sunny France," which was held here under their auspices. The Chapter has made a donation of $50 towards the fund for an open-air rink, and at the next meeting will discuss the question of erecting a new public library and community hall in Cobourg.

The Cobourg Rotary Club is arranging for an open-air rink on the Armoury grounds in order to furnish a suitable place for sport for boys and girls.

Three Candidates.

Cobourg had three candidates for the boys' parliament to be held in Toronto the last of the month. They were Donald McCullough, Ronald Harris and George Walker. Donald McCullough has the honor of being elected to attend.

Encouraging Story.

Dr. Frank F. Allen, a returned medical missionary from Chengtu, China, spent a few days in town the guest of his uncle, Mr. T. B. Lappe, and gave an address in the Methodist Church here on Sunday. Dr. Allen had an encouraging story to tell of the progress of medical work in China. He is supported by the young people's societies of the Brampton Methodist District.

The Fuel Problem.

Messrs. Morton Bros., Port Hope Road, have disposed of four acres of wood at Perrytown, the sales bringing $703. It is mostly beech and maple. Cutting has already began in order to help out the fuel problem.

The Mayoralty.

Lieut.-Col. F. D. Boggs has announced himself as a candidate for the mayoralty of Cobourg at the coming municipal contest in January. Major W. J. Maher, who has held the office for the past year, will also be a candidate. Col. Boggs has served for several years as councillor. Owing to recent municipal developments here, it is expected that there will be a hot contest for all municipal honors.

Trade is Fair.

Local merchants are enjoying a fair Christmas trade, but as yet it has not quite measured up to other seasons. A rush of custom is expected next week. The present cold spell is adding an impetus to the buying along general seasonable lines.

Won Six Prizes.

Wm. Jenkins has returned from Guelph, where he won six prizes on his choice Red Caps. These birds will now have made the rounds of all the fairs excepting Ottawa, to which place they go next and then on to New York. Mr. Jenkins has won a large number of prizes.

Appeal Judgment.

Mr. H. A. Allan, merchant, of this town, has entered an appeal in the Appellate Division at Osgoode Hall against the judgment of the jury in the libel action, Jackson vs. Allan, heard at the Supreme Court sittings here in November before Mr. Justice Latchford. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for $1.00 and costs.

The funeral takes place to-morrow to the Cobourg Union Cemetery of Mrs. Lindsay, wife of Mr. Daniel Lindsay, of Hamilton Township. About four months ago she was taken to the hospital with typhoid fever. Other complications set in, and she passed away at the age of 54. Her husband, three sons, Norman of Campbellford, George and Marney of Hamilton Township, and one daughter, Miss Edith, at home, survive. Also two brothers, Henry Sinclair of Tweed, and Ernest of Peterborough, and three sisters, Mrs. Whatman of Peterborough, Mrs. Reid of Rossmount, and Mrs. Rogers of Tweed.

FORTUNE TOLD BY RADIO NOW

RADIO FORTUNE TELLER

"La-aidies 'n' gen'men, step right up 'n' meet Zaza, the one and only Indian princess who can tell your past, phesent and future by radio. Don't be bashful, girls. Talk right into the telephone and Princess Zaza will answer.

"It's free, ladies an' gen'men. Not a cent to pay."

That's the unique feature about this radio princess. The fact that she can tell your fortune "by radio" is only secondary.

Princess Zaza has her stand at the radio fair in New York. She's the attraction of the show.

All the visitor does is talk into the transmitter in front of her and she will answer. How she does it is the mystery, and no one who may be on the inside—literally!—would tell.

So, for the duration of the radio fair the princess will entertain and mystify her visitor—by radio.

FOR DINNER WEAR

The object of this hat is not to provide ventilation but to make an interesting setting for a pretty face.

It achieved what it started out to do, you'll note.

To a crown of black velvet is joined a brim of fashionable width composed of a coarse mesh of chenille.

It is designed for restaurant or dinner wear, and is the ideal accompaniment for a sleeveless frock of black velvet.

SPECTACULAR HISTORY OF FORGER WHOSE CAREER EMBRACED CANADA BUT ENDS IN CELL IN KANSAS CITY

Glorified Story of Hectic Life of "Royal La Chance O'Conner" Runs From Calgary to Hollywood Movie Colony, With War Adventures in Between, But as William Gill He is Desired at Regina and Toronto and Has Home in Kitchener

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 15.—A tale of a career that runs the gamut of adventure more colorful than those chronicled in the pages of a best seller was unfolded by Royale La Chance O'Connor, 32-year-old confessed forger, just returned by the police from Los Angeles, where he was arrested last week.

It was a tale of excitement that began on a field of athletic glory, leaped through four years of thrilling war experiences, touched a love affair here and there, left a trail of worthless checks to mark its course, and finally went on the rocks in picturesque Hollywood, and all of it was untrue.

And as the central figure in the epilogue of the story here, is a forsaken "bride," whose love has vanished in the fantasy of blasted dreams, and who today turned scornful eyes and deaf ears to her erring husband's tearful plea for aid and forgiveness. The "bride" is Mrs. Polly Tyner O'Connor, 34 years old, who lost her adventuresome mate only a few months after she acquired him.

The specific charge which brought O'Connor's self-chronicled thrilling career to an end in a cell at police headquarters is forging three checks, totaling $710, drawn on his employer, the Kansas Flour Mills, and passed at the Commerce Trust Company. It was that money, which he admits taking, the police say, that carried him to the colorful haunts of Hollywood and led to his downfall.

His Glorification

According to prisoner's own story, his life of vivid excitement began in Calgary, Canada, where he was born, he said. Later he attended the University of Toronto, where he learned to become an expert accountant, but won greater fame and success as a hockey player, he declared. O'Connor he admitted, was not his right name, but that of a "buddy" who was killed in the world war. His own name is William R. Gill, but he adopted the other when he left Canada following the war, because of charges of forgery against him there.

"I enlisted in the Canadian army August 5, 1914, immediately after war was declared," he said. "I entered a training camp and became an officer, serving with the 24th Mounted Rifles. At Ypres, in 1916, my 'buddy,' O'Connor, was killed. I was later out with a raiding squad when we were captured and placed in the prison at Leipzig-Collar-Hausen. Another prisoner and myself tunneled our way out one night and escaped. We stole a motor truck and started for the Swiss border. When within a mile and a half of it we came upon some German troops. I was shot in the leg. We were overpowered and taken back to prison, remained there until the armistice and then were released. I returned to Canada and was discharged and went to Calgary. I got into some trouble over forged checks there and adopted the name of O'Connor and came to the United States.

"I landed in Kansas City and was introduced to Mrs. Tyner. We were married six weeks later. I obtained a position as accountant with the Kansas Flour Mills. One day I wrote the three checks and cashed them. When they were returned, cancelled, I got them and destroyed them before anyone at the office saw them.

"I don't know why I did it. I seemed to become mentally deficient suddenly. I seemed to forget about my wife, and yet I love her dearly. I wandered down to the union station and bought a ticket for Los Angeles, because that was the first city that came into my mind.

Into the Movie Colony

"On the train I got into a poker game and lost $100. I then went back to a Pullman, and became acquainted with a young and pretty woman. I found that she was Mrs. Sarah Rae, a Georgian beauty, and that she was going to Hollywood to Mae Murray, the movie star. She had a small brown jug filled with liquor. We drank it and became warm friends. She insisted that I come to her home and live with her and her husband at Hollywood. This I did. I spent all my money and was still with the Rae's bumming around with the movie folk, when I was arrested."

George Lawson, Kansas City detective, who brought O'Connor back here, said the latter also passed several checks during his sojourn in the movie colony.

The spectacular career which Royale La Chance O'Connor, painted for himself, is all "bunk," according to Charles Milton, chief special agent for the American Bankers Indemnity Alliance, who caused his arrest.

O'Connor, or rather Gill, couldn't play hockey and never had been in the Canadian army, Milton said.

"He has a wife and three children in Kitchener, Ont., Canada," Milton declared. "The third child, a baby girl, was born last Friday. O'Connor father, W. R. Gill, lives at 25 Romford road, Essex, England."

He said the prisoner was wanted in Regina and Toronto, Canada, on forgery charges.

The custom of hanging up a horseshoe as a supposed means of bringing good luck is said to have originated from the shoe's resemblance to te halo pictured in representations of the Virgin Mary and the Christ Child.

BIG SISTERHOOD DOES GOOD WORK

Reports of Operations During the Past Year Are a Revelation.

The Big Sisterhood Association of Peterborough, after its first year of work, finds itself developing into a general vigilant society for the protection of girls and women in every department of our complicated social order of to-day.

They make a systematic profession of friendship that heals wounds and fosters courage and happiness. The following reports and figures show plainly the direction and extent of their efforts, but there is no method of tabulating or putting into words the happy results accomplished by the small staff of workers, when one considers the fabric of the characters who need assistance and care.

One should hear the history of every case they have handled to learn how often in the heart of some distressed sister hope has replaced despair when homes were reconstructed and harmful conditions removed, and the whole channel changed for the better.

These are the tangible harvests they hope to gather in the lives of hundreds of neglected and underprivileged girls who are the rising mothers of Peterborough and township. The Sisterhood feel it is indeed time that the pulpit and the press awakened to the imperative need of aggressive action against the entrenched evils of to-day.

The following is a full statement of the receipts and expenditures for the year ending November 19, 1922:

Gillespie for room free, Press for free publishing, Mr. Louis Yeotes for provisions, Quaker Oats for their assistance, City Relief Officer for co-operation, dishes, cooking utensils and a sewing machine.

At the recent meeting special thanks were given to the Red Cross for their excellent support and to the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D. E. and also to a large number of private people. The gifts from Monaghan people consisted of clothing, hats, caps, shoes, stockings and underwear, Christmas cheer, provisions, meat, vegetables, money, quilts and pillows. Also special thanks are extended to the following people and societies who were so generous in their donations: The ladies of Knox, St. Andrew's and Trinity churches for their untiring efforts in helping with the making of quilts and clothing; Fairmount Sunday school of Springville, and the Cavan Women's Institute; North Monaghan Council for their most willing co-operation, who donated wood, coal and provisions; Dawson Bros. for such splendid donations of buns, cakes, pies and etc. at different times; Harold Dunsford and Mr. J. Foster for free delivery of parcels from time to time; creamery (G. A. Gillespie and staff.) And lastly, the citizens who make generous responses from time to time to the great needy work.

The visiting committee visited 134 families during the year and have dressed and sent to school about 280 children. The convenor of this committee is Mrs. Maybee.

The officers of the Association deserve a great deal of credit for the good work that they have done and are doing. The following are responsible for such great achievements: Mrs. J. Knox, president; Mrs. J. H. Fanning, secretary; Mrs. A. A. Perrin, treasurer; Mrs. B. McClelland, corresponding secretary.

BIBLE GIVES THEM THE RIGHT TO DRINK

Say Rochester Citizens, Who Have Organized A New Sect.

ROCHESTER, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Claiming that the Bible gives them the right to drink wine in spite of the Volstead law, a number of Rochester citizens have organized a new sect known as the "Joy Christians." The announced purpose of the "Joy Christians" is to distribute wine among its members and follow the example of the Lord, "especially remembering Him as a man of joy among men. A drinker of the wine of His day."

"Christ drank wine in his day, and no one has yet branded Him as criminal," said A. Stanley Copeland, chief organizer of the new sect. "Our Christian religion tells us to follow His example, and we are going to do so."

Mr. Cope and said that an effort would be made to secure the permission of the Federal Government to serve wine to members of the cult.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN ROUNTREE CASE

Liquid Carbonic Company, Limited vs. Rountree. John R. Corkery, Esq., for plaintiff, C. R. Widdifield for defendant.

An action for the recovery of a certain machine sold by the plaintiff to one Fawcett and Grey, and claimed by the defendant as owner of the premises and as mortgagee of the goods and chattels of the Knox Soda Water Works. The plaintiff sold the machine on a conditional sale agreement but did not register their lien. The case was tried and argued this morning before His Honour Judge Huycke, but on account of the numerous cases, cited, judgment was reserved. His Honour intimated also that he might take a view of the machine in question in order to decide how the chattel was attached to the building.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

March is called by the Bulgarians Baba Mart of "Mother March", and one of the old customes is that during this period the woman may assert a kind of temporary supremacy over their husbands and be as idle as they choose.

They may abstain from washing, weaving and spinning and even from "pipe claying" the floors of their houses, a task usually performed once a week.

The legend has it that were they to perform any of these duties the goddess would give no rain the rest of the year.

HOKUM MOVIES SAY GOOD BYE

Picture Producers Now Hold a Higher Regard For the Public—Future of Industry.

By JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Henceforth only good movies will be made. That, because the tawdry, the hokum-filled film will no longer prove profitable to the producer. This is the belief of Frank Lloyd, one of the screen's most successful directors.

We were chatting about the future development of the photoplay.

"The producer now holds a higher regard for his public," Lloyd said. "The success of films that have been sincerely done has brought him to the conclusion that sincerity is a profitable pursuit."

There is much logic in Lloyd's reasoning. The promise of better pictures is more firmly predicated on the idea that producers want to make money than on the desire, often attributed to them, that they want to do finer things for the sake of art.

The men who really strive to do finer things for the sake of art are the directors and players—and by no means all of them.

Lloyd took issue with my published statement that pictures in natural colors would never be achieved and that they would not improve the photoplay.

"Many years of time and many fortunes have been spent in the attempt to perfect the colored photoplay," Lloyd said. "I don't think we ought to say that these people will never accomplish what they are striving for. That is hardly fair. The photoplay itself would not have been invented if nobody thought it could be invented.

"However, I think there's little room left for improvement on the technical side of picture-making. Lighting and photography have been developed to a point where pictures are no longer flat objects upon the screen."

I have called Lloyd one of the most successful directors. His record substantiates the claim. Among the pictures he has directed are "The Tale of Two Cities," "Les Miserables," "Madame X," "The Woman in Room 13," "The Grim Comedian," "The Invisible Power," "The Sin Flood," "The Man From Lost River," "When a Man Sees Red," "The Eternal Flame," "The Voice From the Minaret" and "Oliver Twist." I consider "Madame X," starring Pauline Frederick, the best melodrama ever projected on the screen.

The big moment of "Oliver Twist" comes when Noah Claypole speaks disparagingly of Oliver's mother. Jackie Coogan, as Oliver, is scrubbing the floor and when he looks up at Noah Claypole the tears stream from his eyes.

In reviewing the picture I said Jackie's grief was so real that he must have imagined the taunt directed at his own dear mother.

Lloyd told me how that scene was shot.

"I explained the story to Jackie and told him that he must feel very sad, that what Noah Claypole was saying to him was very nasty. Jackie said to me, 'Mr. Lloyd, does it make any difference if I think of my dog instead of my make-believe mother?' I told him that it wouldn't, if that would make him feel sad. His dog had been crippled a week before. And that's the way Jackie put the pathos into that scene."

Perhaps to a little boy a dog is dearer than any human, after all.

RICH FRUIT CAKE

1-2 pound butter; 1-2 pound brown sugar; 1-2 pound flour; 6 eggs; 3 pounds raisins (seeded); 1 pound citron; 1 1-2 pounds currants, 1 pound candied apricots; 1 pound candied pineapple; 1 pound candied cherries; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1 teaspoon cloves; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1 nutmeg, granted. 1-2 cup strong black coffee.

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually then the eggs, and beat thoroughly.

Sift flour with baking powder and spices, and add half of it to the butter, sugar and egg mixture.

Chop raisins, wash and dry the currants, and cut the citron into thin small slices. Cut the apricots and pineapple into small thin slices, and the cherries into halves. Mix fruit with the other half of the flour and add to the first mixture with the coffee, horoughly mix and put into tins lined with buttered paper. Cover tops of tins with cheesecloth and paper and steam four hours. Place the cakes after they are taken from the steamer into a warm oven and let them dry for an hour or two.

PREMIER POINCARE IS READY TO WITHDRAW IF BETTER MAN SHOWS UP.

PARIS, Dec.) 15. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Poincare told the Chamber of Deputies to-day that the general situation had grown better instead of worse and he expressed surprise at feeling of fear and anxiety in French political circles on his return from the Premiers' conferenc. He offered to withdraw "gracefully" if the Chamber thought it had another cabinet better qualified than his own to work for France.

Referring to the question of inter-allied debts, M. Poincaire said:

"Claims between allies for money expended during the war was for a common victory and cannot be compared with France's claim against Germany for reparations.

"We cannot one month before hand, tell the German debt, or what are the specific intentions of the French government," he added.

"We should be deeply concerned, if we are obliged to take those measures alone, but no matter what happens on January 2 (the resumption of the allied premiers' conference) I can assure you that the entente cordial will not be broken.

TO YOU

It isn't the man who smiles that counts,
When everything goes dead wrong;
Nor is it the man who meets defeat,
Singing a gay little song;
The song and the smile are well worth while,
Provided they aren't a bluff,
But here's to the man who smiles and sings,
And then —produces the stuff.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN ADDRESSED A MEETING.

Has Evidence That There Is Political Interference on the Canadian National Railway.

HAMILTON, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press.)— Addressing a gathering under the auspices of the Young Men's Liberal-Conservative Club here last night, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen emphasized the obligation which rested upon Canada in its relation to Britain and importance of loyalty at all times and in all causes to the Motherland. He criticized the King administration on several matters since coming into power but promised that he would not offer criticism against the government unless he was sure of his facts.

Referring to the National Railroad system he declared that he had evidence that there had been political interference already in the management of the lines.

HERRING CATCH IN THE NORTH SEA ROAR

Change in Atlantic Currents Given as the Cause.

LONDON, Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press).—The herring catch in the North Sea in 1921 was not up to the ordinary catch, though there was not an actual scarcity, but the herrings were of a very poor quality. An explanation for this is supposed to have been found in the change in the Atlantic currents, which change has been exercising the minds of scientists. This has not yet been established as a definite fact, but it is the belief of some eminent authorities. However, an international enquiry is now being held into the cause of the herring failure, the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries being particularly interested in the question.

J. Nelson, scientific superintendent of the Fishery Board for Scotland, states that as far as the tides are concerned in the summer of 1920, and again in 1921, there was an abnormal influx of Atlantic water into the North Sea, coming in by way of the Orkney-Shetland passage. "The water," says Mr. Nelson, "is more salt, has a higher temperature, and contains a distinct fauna. One of the most easily recognized animals is a 'jelly-fish-like organism called a 'salp.' These are found abundantly in Atlantic water, but never in the true waters of the North Sea."

Further, Mr. Nelson says: "We know that the herring feeds on small crustacea, and the Atlantic water is found to be very deficient in these crustacea. Thus one can see at once a reason for the very poor quality of the herrings caught last year.

"Research this past summer as to the position of the Atlantic water showed that it was normal, and there were no signs of it penetrating into the North Sea. This may be correlated with the successful herring fishing of this summer. The herrings were in extremely good condition.

"It is impossible to say what actually was the cause of this until we have made further investigations. The previous influx of Atlantic water into the North Sea took place as long ago as 1905, so that it will be seen that the investigations are necessarily laborious and extend over a long period of time."

HOUSE OF COMMONS PROROGUED IN SPITE OF LABOUR'S EFFORT.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—British Parliament was prorogued to-day until February 13th. The program for adjournment went through without a hitch despite the efforts of a small body of the left wing of labor members to prevent the rising of the House of Commons until a remedy was found for the employment situation.

George Lansbury, leader of the Labor "Die Hards" attempted to block the proceedings but the move proved weak. It resulted in opponents of Prorogatin being so completely bowled over by the learned and humorously delivered ruling by speaker that Mr. Lansbury speedily submitted and even thanked speaker for manner in which latter had dealt with the point. In his prorogation speech, King George stressed the need for economic rehabilitation of Europe and asserted that task of restoring conditions could only be over come by co-operation among the nations affected. Question of unemployment received special consideration in the speech, the King stating that the government would do all in its power to alleviate conditions.

TURKISH BEAUTIES

Boy, page George M. Cohan and tell him we know where he can get a chorus of the 150 most beautiful women in Turkey.

No, you'd better wait—go to Avery Hopwood and tell him we have the plot for a novel bedroom farce.

You see, boy, the sultan of Turkey left home in a hurry and now his 150 odalisks don't know what to do. He——

What's that? No, no! Not obelisks. Odalisks! O-d-a-l-i-s-k-s!

Why, an odalisk is one of the sultan's —well an odalisk belongs in the sultan's harem.

The new Turkish government has ruled only the odalisks who find new husbands can remain in Constantinople. The rest will have to go back to the hick towns whence they came.

Now, if you won't interrupt with more questions we'll tell you about the bedroom farce ideas.

Let's see—we'd have a man go from office to office soliciting orders for Turkish trophies, or something of the kind, and then casually remark he knows where he can get a Turkish wife or two, the real article y'understand. He'd handle them like a fellow with a sideline of hooch.

He could picture to the prospective customer the comfort of several Turkish wives, one to light up his narghile, one to brew his Turkish coffee, several to dance.

As you know, boy, these Turkish women always wear veils, some of them wear seven veils. And that's where the bedroom farce comes in.

A man buys half a case of Turkish wives. And after the honeymoon he peeks behind the veil of one and finds that it's his little half-sister Nell that he hadn't seen since he left Circassia for Constantinople ten years before.

And here's the best part of the farce, boy. He finds that the five other veiled wives are his half-sisters too.

Now, run along, boy, and tell Avery Hopwood to call me up.

EXAMINER

NOTICE TO FARMERS PETERBOROUGH DISTRICT.

Feed for Stock Yet Needed by Northern Ontario Fire Sufferers.

It is now two months since the terrible fire swept over the Timiskaming district and the burned over land is now covered with snow. To credit of humanity may it be said little suffering has been experienced, great discomfiture has been endured, but the evidences of sympathy from those outside world and the natural buoyancy and enthusiasm of the settlers have made light of the situation and gloom has been swept aside. Still, springtime and new growth is a long way off in the north country and the reservoir of aid must not dry up too soon lest a good record be spoiled

Feed for stock-hay, oats, straw, are yet needed, and will be needed for at least six months Potatoes, vegetables and apples for those in want are needed in large quantities. Free transportation will soon cease probably by Christmas or the New Year. This will add greatly to the cost of providing supplies as freight charges will eat up much of the value of shipments Therefore, we are again, even though you have responded nobly to all requests, asking for donations of these more bulky products.

Farmers can give in the way outlined above, which will be just as valuable and much less felt than if they were called to donate money.) We want to prove our dignity as self respecting, generous and benevolently disposed citizens anxious to stand by the unfortunate in our industry, that no suffering be endured.

The committee that was appointed by the Peterborough U.F.O. Club, some time ago, to make arrangements for getting a car of oats for the Northern Relief, will be prepared to receive contributions of oats or mixed grain in sacks, delivered at G. A. Gillespie's store house, at the rear of Perkins Ince wholesale house on Charlotte street, on December 15 and 16.

Some of the committee will be there from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

Money contributions will also be thankfully received, and used to purchase grain with, by the committee in charge. Possibly by contributting to the fire suffers relief, we might enjoy our Christmas festivities all the better.

The following men compose the committee—W. R. Shield, W. Garbutt, J. Thompson and B. Savigny.

Shun Relatives and Rent Warning to Newly Weds

Do Not Harp on Hubby Number One When You Go to Make a Second Plunge.

DETROIT, December 15. — "Young people, when you get married start life right by making your home at least a mile distant from your nearest relative—and don't do it in a rented apartment."

"Wives, don't start laying out your husband's clothes for him on Saturday nights or Sunday mornings. Here lies the root of all unhappiness.

"The wife should run the home on her own bank account, and the husband should tend to business."

From 100 Letters.

These are some of the bits of advice offered by the congregation of the West Grand Boulevard M. E. Church, through its pastor, the Rev. George Edgar Gullen, who on Sunday night gave a resume of 100 letters on the subject, "If I Should Marry Again," to men and women, young or old, who plan to marry. Each letter confessed mistakes and told Dr. Gullen what its writer would do if he had another chance.

One woman expressed great faith in the character-building abilities of her sex. "A man can be made over after marriage," she wrote. "After twelve years of re-modelling I have made my husband 100 per cent. perfect. He brings home flowers, he remembers all the anniversaries, and he tells me at least once every 24 hours that he loves me."

But another says that "you can't reform him afterward," and advocates marrying no one but a Christian man.

Harping On No. 1.

The evils of talking too much about husband No. 1 were pointed out by another correspondent to those contemplating a second plunge. "Husband No. 2 is always jealous, and anyway, he can't compete with an angel," said the writer. "Let the first husband lie in his grave if you want to be happy with the second."

The home should come first, and parties and automobiles second, declared a couple married a year and a half.

The men who offered advice were self-condemnatory. "If I could start again I would find opportunity today to make my wife happy instead of putting it off until next year," said one. "I would do better by not wasting so much on personal and foolish things," wrote a second. A third declared that if the man is kind in little things the bigger ones will take care of themselves.

Poetic License.

One woman, waxing poetic, declared, "We'd all be wearing wings to-day like birds that pierce the blue, if all of us would do the things our husbands want us to do."

"The great American sense of humour is the safeguard of our homes," declared Dr. Gullen. "One thing we must do is to protect motherhood. Mothers to-day don't have enough privacy. They should lock the children in the basement and give themselves over to their own thoughts every now and then. They won't survive if they continually have a flock of offspring hanging on to their apron strings seven days a week.

"Men, too, should have their right to privacy. But privacy is not for loafing; it's for loading — loading for service to mankind."

DISEASES GAIN ENTRANCE ABOVE THE COLLARLINE

Meeting of the Peterboro Dental Society--Inspection in Schools.

The members of the Peterborough Dental Society held their regular monthly meet in the Empress Hotel. The president of the Society, Dr. J. J. Craig, presided.

The matter of the half-holiday was brought up and after a lengthy discussion the Society passed a proposal that Thursday would still remain the half-holiday day in the week. All the offices will be closed except one, which will be open for one Thursday afternoon; the different offices taking regular turns. It was also decided that if a Public Holiday comes during the week, the dental offices will remain open on Thursday afternoon and the office that was to be open will miss its turn by remaining open.

Membership Fee

The Society decided to have the membership fee for the year to remain the same.

The president then outlined a plan where by different members of the Royal Dental College in Toronto, could be obtained by the Society to address them on different subjects at their regular meetings. Among the number that were mentioned were,—Dr. E. Cummer, Professor of Prosthetic; Dr. Ante, Professor, of Crown Bridge Work, Dr. Telford on Pyorrhea work and Dr. Risdon, a lecturer on oral surgery.

Invite Medical Men

A proposal was then passed by the Society to invite the local medical men to a little banquet at their next regular meeting in January.

Regarding the inspection of the pupils of the Public and Private School, the Society voiced its opinion that a dental surgeon should make such inspections. The Society appointed a committee to visit the School Board and present to them a scheme to help the younger generation to retain better health. The need of a dental report of the condition of the teeth of a child is looked upon as a necessity. If received favorably by the Board of Education the local dentists are willing to take half a day a month each and make an inspection of each child in Public and Private school free of charge.

The following are on the committee, Dr. M. A. Morrison, Dr. R. A. Sheehy, Dr. J. F. O'Brien and Dr. J. E. Middleton.

The necessity for this work was emphasized by the president, Dr. J. J. Craig, in the following figures. There are approximately 4,000 children attending the Public and Private schools in Peterboro, to-day. Out of that total there are 90 per cent. or about 3,600 who require dental treatment, and there 10 per cent. or about 400 who are unable to afford dental treatment. On the ther hand there are only about 20 per cent. or 800 who pay any attention to dental treatment, and lastly there are about 80 per cent. or 3,200 who do not receive the required dental treatment. Dr. Charles Mayo of Rochester, Minnesota, made the statement, stated Dr. Craig, that 90 per cent. of all diseases gain entrance to the body above the collar. He also made the statement, that the next great step towards better health must come from the dental profession.

ALL SING SING PAYS FOR ESCAPE OF ONE.

Cells Close on 1,200 Convicts For a Day to Teach a Community Lesson.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. — Because Patrick Dealey, a Sing Sing amateur actor and long-term prisoner, escaped early on Saturday morning, prison officials took all recreation privileges away from the 1,200 inmates of the Ossining institution for a day. They were locked in their cells for twenty-four hours, it was announced when the period of unusual confinement ended.

The cell doors closed early on Saturday afternoon. The customary picture show for the convicts on Saturday night was omitted and not a man emerged until the next afternoon except to go to meals and to church services.

"Was that done to punish them?" was asked of Warden Lawes.

"No," he replied, and Charles F. Rattigan, State Superintendent of Prisons, added, "It was for discipline."

"This is a community," added the Warden. "We wish the inmates to understand that recreation is a privilege and not a right. We wish to impress upon them that the system here is based upon community-interest, and that there must be group responsibility."

Superintendent Rattigan predicted that, if there is another show for outside public such as the musical comedy at the close of which Dealey escaped, that there would not be another escape in Warden Lawes' time. He did not explain what new precautions had been devised.

Search for Dealey was pressed without success. Visiting records were investigated to find out who had called on Dealey in prison. His brother, Hugh Dealey, was one visitor and Miss Helen McAndrews, of 2,241 Eighth Avenue, Manhattan, was the other. Miss McAndrews, according to prison attendants, attended the prison show on two nights. Prison officials and guards declare that so far as they had observed, she did not get near Dealey. Officials corrected two misstatements that have been made. At regular visits keepers hear the conversations between inmates and callers, who do not come into actual contact.

"We doubt very much if a woman helped Dealey to get away," said Warden Lawes. The Warden said he was inclined to the opinion that two young men, friends of Dealey, who attended the performance, aided him if he had outside assistance. These two young men have not been eliminated as possibly having helped Dealey to get an overcoat to cover his gray uniform and to get away once he had walked out the front door with departing patrons.

Circulars with pictures and a pedigree of Dealey, offering the customary $50 reward, were sent broadcast. Officials are hopeful of Dealey's recapture because the left side of his face sags conspicuously due to an injury.

Hello! Mrs. Smith

Have you heard of the wonderful bargains they're offering in Christmas gift merchandise down at HALL'S? I've spent several hours every day this week down at the Great Christmas Store, taken my Xmas list right with me and found so many interesting things to select from that buying this season has been pleasure instead of the usual worry; and just a word of advise, Mrs. Smith: You've heard how busy they are every day. Well, I tried making selection in the afternoons and they were so crowded and so busy that I decided I'd go right down in the mornings, and you can't imagine how much more pleasant it is and how much more satisfactory than going during the rush hours. You know they open at 8.30, and there's one thing I like about HALL'S—the whole staff is right there promptly at the opening hour, bright and pleasant and courteous, ready to give you efficient service right from the ring of the gong that starts the cash carriers flying and business going full swing.

Do you know I've tried all over town and I find I can do so much better at HALL'S that I've decided to make it my shopping place in the future.

If you'll take my advise you'll buy your Xmas gifts where I do. You'll be surprised how much further your money will go and what a wonderful stock of high-class Xmas goods they are showing.

I've heard so many women say that they are now doing the greater part of their buying at HALL'S Store. If you once try making your purchases there I know you'll be just as enthusiastic as I am.

I'm certainly going down early tomorrow morning so as to avoid the Saturday rush and to make sure of getting first choice of the Saturday specials they offer. I'll likely see you there. Sorry to have kept you so long on the 'phone. See you in the morning.

PLEASE NOTE

Mainly About People

A MALE CARRIE NATION IS JOHN H. ROBERTS

As Editor of the Axe He Is a Salamander Who Likes Fire and Draws Rations.

JOHN H. ROBERTS, formerly eastern secretary of the Dominion Alliance, now editor in exile of the Axe and "guest" of the Taschereau administration, was born in Wales, like Lloyd George. Though never elected to parliament or crowned bard at an eisteddfod, he has some of Ll. G.'s share of the national Celtic fire and has also drawn fire, including sticks, stones and eggs.

He is also a Baptist, and has published revelations. His, however, are quite different from Lloyd George's. They have mostly to do with the family life of Quebec; the B-- premier's with the public life of Europe.

John H. Roberts

The editor of the Axe came to Canada in 1910 as a temperance lecturer. He was the livest thing in that line that had ever struc these shores; a little too speedy even for Ben Spence; so much so that they never let him operate in Toronto. He scorned to deliver platitudes in perfectly safe packed halls. He was a male Carrie Nation, a front trench bomber. When he hit a town he always organized a parade into the saloon district. He spoke best with infuriated bartenders hurling kegs of beer at him.

He soon made himself, in certain, not quite the most select, circles, the best hated man in Montreal. When he set out to raid a place he had the N.W.M.P. habit of bringing in his man. Twice inside a fortnight he was blackjacked by the gangsters and it took a squad of police to get his inanimate body off the field of combat to the nearest drug store.

Once in Sherbrooke he had, if not as rough, at least a wetter, passage, for he was ducked in the Magog river.

By these tribulations he acquired a reputation as a battling Siki who fought booze with both hands and never consented to a frame-up. In 1913 he was accused of accepting $300 for illegal protection. His accuser was arrested for perjury, and Roberts was vindicated, but his temperance activities suddenly and considerably slackened. After a period of comparative inaction he blossomed out into an editor and his present brand of fame.

A recent portrait depicts him as short in stature, grey haired with a fifty-cent piece bald spot, also a small, wiry black moustache. He has been at all times a salamander whose natural habitat is fire. Even as Premier Taschereau's "guest" he was ventured to rebuke his host. In a recent edition of the Axe, he said: "All the talk about dignity is poppycock, and Messrs. Taschereau and Lanctot know it. I have wounded their vanity and exposed their political humbug."

It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good. His incarceration has trebled the circulation of the Axe to 60,000, and brought his counsel, Armand Lavergne, once more into the political limelight.

Woodrow Wilson's Altered Name

FEW people know the full name of ex-President Wilson. It is Thomas Woodrow Wilson, and this is the story of how he discarded the "Thomas". About thirty years ago Mr. Wilson was a professor at Wesleyan College, and one evening he started a discussion with a fellow-professor on names and their effect on success in life.

The future president of the United States held that the effect of a name was due entirely to whether it was composed of long or short syllables. "Thomas," he declared, "is quite the wrong kind of name to have. 'Woodrow Wilson,' on the other hand, is sure to bring success."

So he dropped the Thomas, and as Woodrow Wilson he achieved world fame.

LOUIS' CROSS-EYE

ANATOLE FRANCE, the famous French writer, has been telling some of his adventures after curios in London.

"I once entered a shop near Wardour street," he said, "in order to ask the price of an antique chair.

"The proprietor was away for the moment, and the only person in charge was a callow youth of about sixteen.

"'That chair, sir,' he said impressively, in answer to my query, 'is priced at two hundred guineas. It formerly belonged to Louis Cross-Eye, King of France.'

"'Impossible' I told him. 'There certainly was never a King of France so named.'

"Oh, yes, there was, sir," he replied with a pitying smile at what he deemed my ignorance; and, bending down, he pointed to a ticket marked 'Louis XI.'"

A Blinkin' Beaver

A COCKNEY passenger in a big liner was in need of a shave. He asked a steward the whereabouts of the barber's saloon.

"Port side," replied that harassed official abruptly.

"Port Said," echoed the Cockney, "why, that's hundreds of miles away, and I shall be a blinkin' beaver before we get there."—Tit-Bits.

A SNAPPY JUDGMENT

FRANK HUNT, county magistrate in Elgin, is about 82 years of age. He has been "squire" longer than the present generation can remember, and a book of memoirs based upon his judicial experiences would be interesting indeed. At the warden's banquet in St. Thomas the other night, Hugh C. McKillop, M.P., West Elgin, told a story about what he described as the first case ever tried by Squire Hunt.

The case was one in which the court had to unravel the intricacies in connection with the alleged theft of an eight-day clock. On conclusion of the hearing, the squire announced it as his decision that the crown attorney might have the clock.

"Where do I come in?" enquired the astounded defendant.

"You [illegible] days," said his worship.

Sir Robert Decided Rules Can Be Broken

The Audience Laughed to See the Fun and Stirred Their Tea With Their Knives.

TRIVIAL unexpected incidents often summarize the little indescribable colorings and humanities of a public man's nature. Those present not long ago at a banquet of Sir Robt Borden's remember him vividly by a humorous, unconventional thing.

Sir Robt. Borden

About twelve to fifteen guests were seated at a large oval-shaped table, with Sir Robert at the head, when one of the party suddenly noticed that the teaspoons had been forgotten.

No, to be outdone, Sir Robert turned his knife handle downwards and proceeded to stir his tea. Amidst laughter, each of the guests followed suit.

The little gathering which had promised to be reserved and glacial continued in a merry, expansive mood.

The War Lord Celebrates

THIS is Paul Von Hindenburg photographed on his 75th birthday on the steps of his estate, looking just as all-powerful as ever. In spite of his looks, he is often good-natured, it is said. He is a big man—Von Hindenburg. He has a bull-like bellow. He has a big appetite, and a ham fist, with which he whangs the table sometimes until the steins dance over the edges and his friends have shivers up their spines, and the chess board is upset when he is losing the game.

DEPUTED SO MASTERFULLEE, NOW HE'S DEAN AT U.B.C.

AN item not on the program added decidedly to the interest displayed in the recent convention at Vancouver of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, when Dean Brock, of the University of British Columbia and well known in the east, as a wit broke forth into the well-known railway classic: "Drill ye Terriers, Drill."

Dean R. W. Brock

And just to observe the occasion, the mock program prepared for the convention contained the following sketch of the dean which undoubtedly will be of interest to his many friends in eastern centres. It was sung to an air from Pinafore:

When I was a Prof. I served, you see,
At Kingston in Queen's Universitee.
I collected specimens from all about the land,
And wrote out all my lectures in a nice round hand.
I wrote out all my lectures so carefullee
That now I'm a Dean at the U. B. C.

From Queen's to the survey in Ottawa I went,
Fulfilling predilection for a geologic bent.
Geology was not enough, and soon I had my way;
They made me the director of the whole survey.
I directed the survey so successfullee
That now I'm a Dean at the U. B. C.

The direction of geologists, it soon began to pall,
And to a higher billet I felt I had a call—
The Premier of Canada one day he said to me,
"It's the Deputy Minister of Mines you ought to be."

I deputed the department so masterfullee
That now I'm a Dean at the U. B. C.

Seniority Rights

"WHY can't I marry your youngest daughter?"

"The eldest must not forfeit her seniority rights."—Judge.

May be the First Labor Prime Minister of England.

A LABOR government in England is not an improbable speculatioon since Labor's phenomenal gains in the recent election. Here is Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the parliamentary Labor party and His Majesty's Opposition in the House of Commons, photographed with his family at his modest home at Hampstead. Mr. MacDonald is shown with his three daughters, (left to right), Sheila, Joan and Ishbel.

For More Than Forty Years, Timothy Healy Has Held "The Portfolio of Cap and Bells"

No One Has Said Such Insulting, Exasperating, and Vituperative Things as the New Governor of the Irish Free State—Will He Add Diplomacy to Wit and Resourcefulness?

IN appointing, "Tiger Tim" Healy as governor-general of the Irish Free State, the British government will have a representative whose courage, at least, is as great as his experience is wide. This is as it should be, for the position promises to be both dangerous and difficult.

But Mr. Healy is probably equal to anything that may happen. His sarcasm is vitriolic, his grasp of an opponent's weakness as swift as it is cruel. If, as has been said of him, he is not heavy artillery, but only a sniper; he is, admittedly, an effective one. With the deadliest suavity, beaming mildly upon his victim through gold-rimmed glasses amidst a fluffy aureole of hair and beard, he has probably discomfited more men, representing, collectively, a greater variety of opinion, than anyone else in Parliament.

Tim Healy

Healy represents the old guard of the Irish Parliamentary Party; but the said I. P. P. has found in him one of the most exasperating of its opponents. For while, as he himself has said, he is of those "whose whole lives are pledged to Ireland," he claims the privilege of interpreting the phrase in his own way. Perhaps no description of his parliamentary methods could be more effective than his own words "There are," said Healy, "two united parties in this House, and I am one of them."

Parnell started him by making the struggling journalist of the Dublin Nation his secretary. In this capacity he wrote most of his chief's public letters in the famous Freeman's Journal controversy. Later he was assisted to a seat in the House, and treated with a genuine, if somewhat contemptuous confidence. When, however, Parnell made his great mistake; and, as Healy considered, endangered the Irish cause, he found no bitterer foe than his former supporter. With Redmond, whom Healy looked upon as possessing Parnell's despotism without Parnell's strength, he seldom agreed; and he finally left, or, if you will, was expelled from the Nationalist Party. He was more than once assisted by Cardinal Logue in his opposition to Redmond; and, for some time supported O'Brien and the All-for-Ireland Party, always, however, with his own peculiarly independent attitude. In 1918 he declined a candidature as a protest against the Irish policy of the government.

For over forty years he has held "the portfolio of the cap and bells," pouring out a steady stream of wit, sarcasm, and vituperation on all and sundry. One Irish Bill he described as "the offspring of a headache in the Irish office." Another was "like feeding a dog on a bit of its own tail." Campbell-Bannerman's appointment as chief secretary was, he said, "an attempt to govern Ireland by Scotch jokes."

On one occasion, when he was opposing Professor "Tom" Kettle, it was found that the village green, where they were to speak, was not large enough for a joint meeting. They accordingly, tossed a coin for it and Healy won.

"The Kettle," remarked Tim, "has lost its spout."

It throws a curious light upon his abilities that he has scarcely ever, in his most biting speeches, come into conflict with the speaker. As one English journalist has put it, writing in 1913, on Healy's retirement:

"Speaker Lowther has, on various occasions, rebuked Herbert Asquith and Lloyd George. He has compelled ministers of state to withdraw phrases, and has invited some of the most powerful parliamentary leaders to 'remain within the bounds of decent speech.' Yet....he has never once had occasion to pull up Tim Healy, although there is no one who has said such insulting, exasperating and vituperative things as the outgoing member for Cork."

In addition to his political work Mr. Healy is a K. C., and has built up a large and valuable law practice. He is said to excel rather as a persuasive pleader than as a great lawyer; but the opinion seems general if he could have kept a firmer grip on his temper, he might have equaled that famous lawyer, Sir Edward Carson, with whom he has had many a tussle, legal as well as political. As usual, one can best comment on his work by quoting witticisms. For example, when, during a divorce case, the opposing counsel was apparently overcome with emotion, Healy described it as "the greatest miracle since Moses struck water from a rock."

Redoubtable as he is in public life, he is the centre of an adoring circle of intimates, and is most happy in his home. This "wild Irishman" is a scholar of French and German, and learned in such diverse subjects as music, ornithology, art and ecclesiastical matters.

All his life he has been a fighter, witty, resourceful, implacable. And he has been given a position which will test these qualities to the uttermost. Whether he can add to them those of the diplomat, who can say? Perhaps his love for that Ireland to whom he has given his life will answer the question.

Father's Illogical

"YOU mustn't neglect your studies for athletics."

'That's what father says," replied the young man. "But father never gets up and cheers when he hears me quoting Latin in the way he does when he sees me playing football."—Tit-Bits.

The Big Three in a Happy Mood

HERE are the three dictators of the United States. From left to right are shown Will Hays, the director of the motion picture industry; Judge Landis, director of baseball; and Augustus Thomas, director of the theatrical industry. For the first time these kings of rare tact and persuasiveness were caught together at a dinner given to the Friars recently held in New York.

Respectable Always, Says Hon. R, H. Grant

The Ontario Minister of Education Preserves a Poise That Would Make the Sphinx Jealous.

THERE are few sights, in the Ontario legislature, more impressive than the calmness of Hon. R. H. Grant.

In his office, in the corridors, and in the House, the minister of education preserves a poise and a silence, which would make the Sphinx seem excitable and loquacious, and the common or garden oyster a garrulous gossip, by comparison.

Hon. R. H. Grant

Mr. Grant says little, but his silence speaks volumes. He is Hon. Manning Doherty's closest rival as the Beau Brummell of the cabinet. A year or so ago, the minister of education laid out two armed footpads, who attacked him in Queen's Park, without batting an eye-lash. In fact, the encounter did not come so near to ruffling his equanimity, as did another occasion, on which someone inquired casually whether the minister had not been a newspaperman in his youth.

"No sir," exclaimed Mr. Grant, in a tone approximating more closely to emotion than is his wont. "I have led a respectable life all my days."

Grim Mussolini, Dictator of Italy.

MUSSOLINI, head of the Fascisti, who has made himself premier of Italy by force, is hypnotized by his idol, Napoleon. He thinks he looks like Napoleon, he cultivates the eagle eye and devastating pose. The son of a penniless blacksmith, he is premier at the age of 38. He works 18 hours a day. The winner of a hundred duels and a Socialist himself in his youth, Mussolini was expelled from the Socialist party when, seeing the benefits Italy would obtain, he decided in favor at last of entering the war. Leader now of the super-nationalists, he announces a great hatred of England, of British policy in the Near East and Egypt. Accompanied by his secretary, he is shown waiting on the steps of the Hotel Savoia to receive the King of Italy on the occasion of his formal visit to the new premier.

THE KING TIPPED HIS SON TO BUY WESTERN RANCH

Canny Balmoral Highlanders Respect the Practical, Up-to-date Farmer in King George.

KING GEORGE is a versatile monarch. It isn't generally known, for instance, that he is a practical farmer, versed in the arts of modern agriculture and quick to demonstrate what may be accomplished by up-to-date methods of cultivation.

The canny Highlanders up around Balmoral, Scotland, where the royal family has one of its largest estates, opined a long time ago that if King George could persuade anything to grow on the royal barren soil of Balmoral they'd—well, they'd guarantee to nurture a flourish crop of golfballs from a heather bush. The King showed them.

King George

For years he has studied agriculture and stock-raising from all their angles, and has carefully followed the methods employed in other countries. The monumental farm undertakings of the Western United States and Canada are said to hold special interest for him.

It was largely because of his father's encouragement that the Prince of Wales bought a ranch in Alberta, Canada, when he toured the dominion three years ago. Father's tip was a good one and the Prince is already drawing a tidy sum of money from the earnings of his Canadian ranch.

The Sweeping Skirt

"THE long skirt seems to be coming into favor again."

"Yes, and soon it will be sweeping the entire country."—New York Sun.

WAVED A MONKEY WRENCH BUT BRAKED HIS WRATH

With a Mighty Effort, Hon. Frank Oliver Controlled Himself Before a Parson.

IN the East, of course, he is the Hon. Frank Oliver, but out west we claim the right to cut it down to mere "Frank." He is one man success never spoiled.

Frank Oliver is a fighter. He can't help it. Quarter is not a word he is on very familiar terms with. It is not surprising that men who know him naturally divide into two classes—uncompromising foes and loving admirers.

Hon. Frank. Oliver

His friends like to think of him as the strong man that threw a sack of type, an old Washington hand press and his rifle into a Red River cart and started from Winnipeg over a thousand miles of wild plains land to the banks of the North Saskatchewan. This trek was the conception of the Edmonton "Bulletin" His oxen made the journey in three months. He crossed the great river on the ice when it was firm, and, when the ice went out, he swam 'longside of his team in such turbulent torrents as would terrify all but bold hearts.

Oliver had been publishing the Bulletin for some time when a young missionary arrived from the east. Ultimately, he concluded to call on the editor—a sort of social call at the office in the middle of the afternoon. It just so happened that it was Frank's press day.

The young minister wandered into the old room which did duty for all purposes, hesitatingly. He could see no one. He looked around curiously. There were many things to interest him. Among others a queer thing leaning against the wall. It was a chase "locked up" ready for the press. He turned the "face" around to see better. It crashed to the floor and Oliver's week's work was a mass of "pi."

Frank was down under an old Washdale press, tightening up a nut. He heard the crash and understood. Suddenly a weird figure crawled out into the gaze of the half smiling young minister. The apparition resembled nothing human. It was smeared with ink, and sweat was dripping to the floor. It waved a monkey-wrench aloft threateningly. There was a cyclonic burst of words; "ministering angels of the devil, what—." Then he recognized the cloth. With a mighty effort he controlled himself, concluding, "just please go out."

JAMES SEVERIN, the youthful vice-president of the Erickson Iron Works, put his car into the garage and opened the rear door leading to his apartment. The hallway light was lit and a fire spluttered and crackled in the grate of his well-appointed living-room.

His old janitor, thinking that the master would be out until late, left for home early, as the rheumatism had been causing him much pain that autumn.

Severin switched on the light, lit a cigaret, and looked to see if any mail had come—nothing only a few advertisements, and he picked up a magazine, pulled up his chair to the fire, and tried to get absorbed in the periodical. He soon put it aside and gazed into the cheery blaze of the grate.

Should a stranger have looked into the room where Severin sat he would have been arrested by the well-filled bookshelves, the artistic drapings and selections of pictures that adorned the walls.

It was redolent of a man of refinement, a discriminating reader, and a patron of the arts, and this would have been substantiated by the patrician features and thoughtful expression of its owner. But why was there no evidence of family life, no womanly touch or presence around the hearth, or a misplaced toy forgotten by a little one, now lost in slumber? It had the warmth of firelight and the color of iridescent vases, rich draperies, scenes of Oriental beauty, gorgeous sunsets, mountain tops bathed in morning mist, in gilded frames. Why was it so and what was James Severin thinking about so intently? He was thinking that it was time to go to bed.

BIRDS THAT USE COMBS

FEW people are aware that there are a number of birds who possess a natural supply of toilet requisites.

The duck, for example, obtains the wonderfully glossy appearance of its feathers by means of a private store of "brilliantine" which it possesses. This curious oily liquid is stored in a small gland under the roots of its tail, and when, as so often happens, a duck rubs its head under its tail it is really just giving itself a thorough treatment with its own special hair oil.

There are some birds, also, who are provided with a comb. Barn-owls are among the British birds that have this appliance. It is situated on the inner edge of one of their claws, and they use it, principally, to rid their feathers of some of the parasites with which they are so often infected.

Then there are birds who have their own powder puffs. The English pigeons and the hawks are examples of these. The powder is made by certain small feathers which, as they grow in size, tend to become brittle and to crumble into a fine white powder, which the birds use to obtain a gloss on their feathers.—Tit-Bits.

BANDIT WOLF AT LAST PAYS PRICE.

Roamed Mesa County and Caused Huge Losses.

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., Dec. 15.—(United Press).—The giant gray wolf that for years roamed Mesa County and caused hundreds of dollars in losses to stockmen, has made its last kill.

Luke Hummel of the Dolores section is financially much better off as the slayer of the great wolf for he collected a score of rewards.

The wolf leader of a bold pack measured seven and one-half feet from tip to tip and weighed 150 pounds. Veteran trappers and hunters say it is one of the largest ever killed on the western slope of Colorado. Scores of hunters have tried vainly for years to run down the giant lobo but he always avoided their baited traps and kept out of range of their rifles.

Hummel set a large trap and attached a heavy log to it. The next morning the trap and log were gone and a trail led through the forest. Hummel started in pursuit.

For three days he followed the windings of the furrowed path left by the log as the wolf sought to escape. At the end of the third day, fifty miles from the place where he set the trap, Hummel came upon the animal, exhausted but showing fight. A shot from his 30-30 ended the wolf's long career.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press.)— Renewed general buying carried wheat, corn and oats yesterday to a fresh top record prices for the season. Sleet in Kansas and prediction of a cold wave had more or less to do with stimulating demand in the wheat market. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as Wednesday's finish to 7-8c. higher; May $1.23 7-8 to $1.24 and July $1.14 5-8 to $1.14 3-4. Corn gained 1-2 and 5-8c. to 2c. and oats 3-8 to 7-8c. In provisions, the outcome ranged from two cents decline to 10c. advance.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—A report has been received regarding the car of British Columbia fresh eggs firsts that arrived in Toronto two or three days ago. They cost 72 cents delivered. The freight charges from Vancouver to Toronto was about 9 cents per dozen. The eggs gave entire satisfaction, one important feature being their uniformity. United States eggs continue to arrive freely. It is reported that one order for dressed turkeys has been filled by a Toronto firm for Newfoundland. It would seem that such orders might well be filled by the Maritime Provinces.

Toronto jobbing specials 80, extras 75, pullet extras 55, storage extras 44 to 45, firsts 38 to 39, seconds 35.

Montreal specials 75 to 85, storage extras 45 to 47, firsts 40 to 41, seconds 36. Dressed turkeys jobbing 45 to 48, chickens 20 to 30, ducks 30 to 32, geese 23 to 25.

Winnipeg eggs unchanged. Poultry weak, quotations, dressed delivered chicken 15 to 22, fowl 11 to 19, cocks 11, ducks and geese 21, turkeyes 25. Receipts reported heavy.

Saskatoon poultry markets weak dressed delivered chickens 10 to 13, fowl 7to 12, cocks 7, ducks 14, geese 12, turkeys 17 to 23.

Calgary car of British Columbia pullet and firsts reported rolling this market, pullets $15.00 per case, firsts $16 per case. Storage extras jobbing $10 to $11 per case, firsts $8 to $9.50 per case, seconds $5 to $7 per case. One pooled car rolling east on consignment.

RHODESIA NOW VERY BRITISH

Loyalty to Empire, First Thing That Strikes Visitors These Days.

LONDON, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press).—The first thing that strikes a new arrival in Rhodesia, according to a correspondent of the London Times, is how intensely British are its people. This probably accounts, in a large measure, for the Rhodesians' refusal to cast in their lot with the people of the Union of South Africa and voting by a majority of 2,785 against joining the Union and in favor of adopting responsible government.

The terms of union offered by the Smuts Government were admittedly generous, but the Rhodesian electorate preferred to try independence. These fervent British people of Rhodesia, who refer to England as 'Home' though comparatively few of them have ever seen England, seemed to see in incorporartion with the Union of South Africa the dangers of national and racial strife. They expressed a frank and not unnatural objection to the prospect of the introduction of Dutch laws and the Dutch language, and the recognition of which has been one of the inevitable results of the Alliance of Briton and Boer across the border.

Whether or not Rhodesia's decision not to link up with the South African Union is final is for the future to determine. At present their path lies parallel to that of the people of the Union. Their interests are the same, their markets are the same, they share the same responsibilities as to the destiny of the white race in Africa. Some day the two paths may converge.

Rhodesia, which has heretofore been governed by the British South Africa Company, is now to have a constitution of its own and administer its own affairs. It is to have a Legislative Assembly consisting of one House, but ultimately it will establish a second Chamber. It will preserve the existing system of native administration, though managing its affairs to suit itself. It has a formidable task before it, for its population is only 33,500, but it possesses courage and plenty of it.

Rhodesia is a wonderful country, both for what has been done since its foundation thirty years ago, and for its possibilities. Some day it will be a great country; at present it is a very young country. It has underground mineral wealth, including gold, which has so far only been scratched. Above ground Rhodesia grows a large quantity of mealies (maize) and with irrigation could do still more successfully. In districts with a good water supply, such as the Mazoe Valley the most fertile part of Rhodesia, there is practically no limit to what may be grown. On the Chartered Company Estate of some 60,000 acres in that district, irrigated by the Mazoe River and the Mazoe Dam, there are enormous citrus groves, oranges, lemons, grape-fruit, almonds, bananas, rye, wheat, all flourish. Maize, however, remains the staple crop of the country.

Rhodesia, in its natural conditions, is a country of extremes. The rainy season extends from November to April, the South African summer. In the winter no rain at all can be expected. In the summer there rarely seems middle way between a torrential rain, which causes floods and washes away roads, railways and growing crops, and an extremely severe drought which, with irrigation in its present elementary state, endangers both the success of the whole season's harvest and the existence of the cattle—the latter being one of Rhodesia's growing industries. However, the prosperity of one good season usually atones for the depression of more than one bad one.

Development, and consequently capital, is what is needed in Rhodesia today. Irrigation schemes, land settlement, railway construction must be pushed forward if Rhodesia is to become as prosperous as the country deserves. Population is also needed, but it must be population of the right kind.

Closely bound up with the question of land settlements in that of railway development. At present two schemes of railway construction are under discussion, and it is hoped that in the near future large tracts of the country may be opened up and the journey between Rhodesia and her great market, the Rand, may be thereby considerably shortened.

Yes, It Takes a Long Skirt To Make a Grown-up Lady

DETROIT, Dec. 13.—Among 82 girls of the Highland Park High School senior class there is weeping and wailing and much lengthening of skirts and recoiffing of hair. "I look every bit as old as anybody else in school," declares each of the 82, surveying herself in her boudoir mirror and assuming an air of dignity.

But among 18 others there is an attitude of marked superiority. "Yes, we are in the same class as the 82, as far as rank in school is concerned," they say. "But as compared to us they are mere children. Are you waited on, madam?"

Last Thursday 100 girls of the senior class appeared at the office of the employment manager of a downtown department store, bent on working on the sales force during the holiday rush and adding their share to the $15,000 fund which is to be raised to send the 280 members of the class on their annual pilgrimage to the national capital to view senators, the White House and the Washington monument. Tentative arrangements had been made by a faculty member for the store to put the girls to work, and they had been excused from school for the two-week pre-Christmas season.

But what a rude shock they received "Who are you, little girls?" asked the employment manager. "Lost and found department second aisle to your right. Maybe your mamas are waiting there."

Then he was informed that they were the new sales force. "Sorry, girls," he said. "I guess we did not know just how old most of you are when we made the arrangements. Or if you are old enough, you will have to learn to look your age."

Closer scrutiny showed that 18 of the girls have the necessary qualifications, including the appearance of having attained years sufficient to join the sales force. Some of the rest were taken on as inspectors and in other non-sales positions. But most were adjudged too young.

So the 82 are casting dark glances at the 18, and there is great demand on the dress-making teacher for knowledge of the proper mode for lengthened dresses.

THEATRES

GRAND — Lillian and Dorothy Gish in "Sisters," a sweet and poignant story. Also N. V. E. high class vaudeville.

CAPITOL — Mae Murray in "Broadway Rose, showing night life in New York. Also No. 2 adventure of Sherlock Holmes, "The Devil's Foot," and Comedy.

ROYAL—Seventh episode of Buffalo Bill. Also "The Child Thou Gavest Me." "The Kicking Pool" and Wit and Jokes from the Press.

Capitol Entertainment

"The Broadway Rose" was originally an artless country girl who had a talent for dancing and who finally drifted to Broadway, the natural goal of all such artists, to find the proper field for her gifts. The star part in the photoplay now running at the Capitol is taken by Mae Murray, who finds trials as well as triumphs, sombre as well as adulation, in the new world into which she moves. There is told on the screen an interesting story of society in New York. The idle and rather spineless son of one of the oldest families, whose matrimonial fate has been settled by his parents, falls in love with the dancing girl. His father threatens to cast him off unless he abandons the theatrical star. The son persuades the dancer into a secret marriage in the hope that his father may eventually relent, but the affairs of the young couple go from bad to worse and the climax is reached when the young wife renounces her partner and returns to the home of her youth and to her first lover.

There are some splendid pictures shown throughout the presentation. These include a spirited polo game, horse races on a training track, rural scenes, glimpses of society life and life like presentation of the dancing of the star, not only on the stage, but in the drawing room of the parents of her husband, who invite her to their home as a guest, she believes, but humiliate her by treating her as an entertainer hired for the occasion.

The Devil's Foot, an account of another of the detective exploits of Sherlock Holmes, is one of the features of the programme which will be given for the remainder of the week at the Capitol. It is one of those affairs upon which the great detective stumbles, a mystery which he solves while the local police are unable to find even a shadow of a clue. For once at least in his career Holmes tampers with justice. After solving a triple murder and finding that a fourth was committed in vengeance, he lets the latter crime go into the criminal records as a suicide and permits the perpetrator to depart unsuspected.

AT THE GRAND.

ANOTHER SPLENDID PROGRAMME NOW SHOWING.

Last night's double programme of pictures and vaudeville at the Grand proved to be a really fine show indeed, with plenty of variety throughout. The famous Gish Sisters, Lillian and Dorothy, are featured in a pretty little photo-drama called "The Sisters," and the work of these two pretty, clever artists is shown to big advantage. The story is something out of the ordinary, and will appeal to all classes of the movie fans.

The big sensational feature picture, "Partners of the Tide," 7 reels, proves to be one of the best sea stories ever adapted to the screen, and holds the audience spellbound to the end. A wonderful under-water struggle between two divers furnishes one of the big incidents of the play, and also shows something a little unusual in photography. Another big screen is an explosion on board a large ship, and the heroic work of all the principals in the all-star cast. In fact no more thrilling production has been seen in Peterborough for some time than "Partners of the Tide."

A splendid Harold Lloyd comedy, entitled "Look Out Below," together with a very interesting story of the lives of the squirrel, form the balance of a really great picture programme.

The vaudeville acts this week-end are both very clever and entertaining. The eccentric acrobatic work of the team of "Black and Lynn," is well done, and some hard falls are taken by the older member, but he always comes up smiling. The comedian "Georgee," billed as "one of the Idle Class," proves to be a really good entertainer, getting many laughs with his original talk, and his entire act is clean and clever. The entire programme is far above the general run.

WAR HAS STARTED IN WESTERN HOCKEY

WINNIPEG, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Action which promises to start one of the greatest hockey wars ever staged in the West, was taken yesterday when Fred Law, advised the Manitoba Senior Hockey League that Eddie Stephenson, of the Falcons, and Charlie Tupper, of the Winnipegs, would not be eligible to compete in the league owing to being members of the Inter-Collegiate League.

Mr. Law stated that these athletes became ineligible when the Western Canada Inter-Collegiate Union affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, which does not permit any college boys to play outside of their own union.

Varsity has a team in the Winnipeg League, and both the Winnipeg and Manitoba Leagues have been at loggerheads for some time.

TO SPEND MILLIONS IN OL DLONDON ON TUBES

Authority Will Be Sought to Develop Underground Railways.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—While £3,500,000 is now being spent on the tube railway system of London, chiefly on the widening and modernization of the City and South London Railway in order that the system may be able to carry a great deal more traffic than it has hitherto done, it is planned to spend £6,000,000 on tube schemes. Authority is to be sought at the next session of Parliament for the development of the underground railways, the companies applying there for being the London Electric Railway, the City and South London Railway and the Wimbledon and Sutton Railway.

As a result of the scheme of new works facilities will be provided for the relief of the traffic at Waterloo Station which is growing rapidly by reason of the electrification of the London and South-Western Railway. Train services will be provided to both the City and the West End in the territory beyond Tooting as far as Sutton, which should lead to the development of this open country.

The large increases in traffic brought into the centre of London necessitate developments to the important central stations, such as Piccadilly Circus and Leicester Square. Included in the bill of the London Electric Railway are schemes for the building of a new station at Piccadilly Circus under the roadway with staircases giving access to all points in the Circus, and having escalators proceeding direct to the Bakerloo and Piccadilly lines. At Leicester Square the station will be doubled in capacity, and a new set of lift shafts sunk to deal with the expected growth of traffic.

The new work will be begun immediately the sanction of Parliament has been obtained. When the £6,000,000 is spent on the work just outlined the total expenditure on the underground railway system of London since the war will have been nearly £17,000,000.

ROYAL

FOUR ACTUAL STARS UNDER STAHL'S DIRECTION IN THE CHILD THOU GAVEST ME.

"The Child Thou Gavest Me," which started a three day engagement at the Royal Theatre yesterday contains a story so human in quality and the situations are so natural and so smoothly developed that the entire production seems to be an interesting period lifted right out of life. It is a John M. Stahl production and released by the Associated First National Pictures, Inc.

The story is based on a highly dramatic and very exciting episode which supposedly transpires in Belgium. Without drawing upon either the spectacular or the sex element Mr. Stahl in his picture has given the screen a subject that exceeds even the high dramatic standard set by "Sowing the Wind."

Mr. Stahl apparently exercised painstaking care in his selection of the cast for this picture, which contains an assemblage of players who are suited perfectly to their roles, and are of all star calibre. Lewis Stone, Barbara Castleton, William Desmond and Richard ("Itchie") Headrick head the list with such well known figures as Adele Farrington, Winter Hall, Helen Howard, Mayra Hall and Ruby McCoy in their support.

"The Child Thou Gavest Me" contains every element necessary to a perfect picture in which category we are compelled to place it. The suspense holds the interest from the start to the climax which is one of the most novel ever seen on the silver screen.

Also the 7th Episode of Buffalo Bill serial, Louis B. Mayer presents "The Child Thou Gavest Me," A First National Attraction, with an All-Starcast—6 reels; Universal High Class Comedy, "The Kicking Pool," (2 reels); Best Wit and Jokes from the Press, 1 reel; First National Very Laughable Comedy, with Mack Sennett: "Bow-Wow," 2 reels. Admission 10 and 15c. Evenings 15 and 25. War Tax included.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CHAMPS OF LOCAL SOFT BALL LEAGUE

Defeated Raybestos in the Final Game at Armoury Last Evening — Good and Bad Playing.

SCORE WAS 15 TO 12.

When Dick Sheehy reached up and grabbed Ervin's liner last evening he brought the local soft ball schedule to a close and made the Knights of Columbus city champions for 1922. The Raybestos put up a good battle for the honours and when the final score was totalled up it stood at 15 to 12 for the Knights.

While the game had some wonderfully good plays in it, it was also marred by some atrociously bad breaks, many of the runs in the early part of the game resulting from errors.

Wolff's one-handed catch was one of the best plays made during the whole schedule, Ervin's play to retire the side in the eighth was also a good one, while Dick Sheehy's catch to finish the game was not to be sneezed at.

The champions started off strong with five runs in the opening session followed by three more in the second. They had another good inning in the fifth when they again collected five tallies. The Raybestos nine duplicated the five-run feat in the eighth frame, but the only other occasions on which they made any effective show of strength were in the first and fourth innings, securing three runs on each occasion.

They attempted a rally in the closing frame but though they scored one run and got a man to third, that was the best they could do, the side being retired before they got too dangerous.

Murphy did the mound work for the Knights and though he was touched for sixteen hits they were sufficiently scattered to prevent them being too effective in the matter of run getting. He had seven strike-outs to his credit and walked but two.

Tommy Holyman did the twirling for the Raybestos game and allowed but seven hits. His support, however, fell down at the critical moments and bad errors let the runs in. He had three strike-outs and walked four.

The winning team will be entertained with a dinner on the evening of December 19, when the Taylor Cup will be presented.

The players were:

Raybestos—Ranger, c.; J. Russell, 2b.; Holyman, p.; Coursey, 1b.; Ervin, s.s.; Abbott, r.f.; Wolfe, s.s.; Lyers, 2b.; J. Russell, l.f.

Knights—Primeau, s.s.; M. Sheely, 1b.; O'Hearn, c.; Rose, s.s.; Murphy, p.; R. Sheehy, 3b.; Corkery, 2b.; Rutherford, l.f.; Cronin, r.f.

GIRLS' HOCKEY TEAM, WARSAW ENTERTAINED

Very Pleasant Evening in Which Good Dance Program Figured—Church and Personal News.

JOHN LLOYD DEAD.

WARSAW, Dec. 15.—The "At Home" given by the Girls' Hockey team on Friday evening was a great success. The proceeds were $91.00. The hall was full. The Warsaw orchestra surpassed themselves for that evening. The floor was in excellent condition, dancing never lagged and many new and pretty gowns were in evidence. Dainty refreshments were provided by the girls. Wm. Bell made a capital floor manager, while Mesdames H. G. E. Choate, Wm. Selkirk and Rufus Payne, were patronesses. The gathering broke up about 2 a.m. The hall was very prettily decorated with evergreens, crossed hockey sticks and the team's colors black and yellow. The attendance included visitors from Port Hope, Norwood, Lakefield and Peterborough.

The Grave.

On Friday afternoon John Lloyd passed away at the home of his nephew, Gordon Lloyd. The late Mr. Lloyd had been ailing for some time and came to his nephew's on Tuesday. He was unmarried and had resided all his life in Dummer, living for many years alone on an island in Stoney Lake, where at times a sister kept house for him. Of his family he was the last of his generation, though a brother's widow still lives near Gilchrist's Bay. Mr. MacDonald of Norwood conducted the funeral services at the house and cemetery. Interment took place at Warsaw on Sunday afternoon. The pall-bearers were: John Drain, Walter Crowe, Gordon Crowe and three of his four nephews, Percy Lloyd, John Lloyd and Robert Lloyd.

Church News.

Rev. Mr. Hughes conducted the regular fortnightly service in the Anglican church, Sunday.

In the Baptist Church Rev. Chorley preached from "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me." Mr. Chorley and his daughter sang.

Rev. Gerard Graham conducted the Presbyterian services, Sunday.

Rev. G. F. Weir conducted the service in the Methodist church, taking for his subject the story of the young lawyer in Luke 10th, verses 25, 37.

Mr. Weir announced that if, as is likely, Mr. Graham will be preaching his farewell sermon on Sunday evening, the Methodist service will be withdrawn.

The parsonage committee met at the Methodist parsonage on Friday afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held in the Methodist basement on Thursday afternoon.

The postponed guild meeting, which was due last Wednesday will be held at the home of Mrs. Mac Ilvena today.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. George Taylor is in Lakefield on account of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Joseph Payne.

Percy Lloyd spent several days last week at the Lake with his uncle, during his last illness.

Mrs. LeRush who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Wm. Henry Bell, leaves for home this week.

Archie Crowe is progressing nicely since his return.

Miss Florence Bowen from Port Hope was in the village on Friday.

Miss M. Armstrong has resigned as teacher in School Section No. 5, Douro.

TILDEN LOSES FINGER.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—William T. Tilden, II., U.S. tennis champion, had another inch removed from the middle finger of his right hand yesterday, it became known yesterday. This second operation brings the champion' finger down to just about the second joint. The finger became infected first from a scratch.

BARBARE SOLD TO TOLEDO.

TOLEDO, Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press.) — Walter Barbare, Boston National shortstop, has been purchased by the Toledo Club of the American Association, Secretary William Wicka, of the local club, announced yesterday. President Breenahen of the Toledo Club, closed the deal with Manager Mitchell of the Braves in New York this week. The consideration is reported to have been $7,500.

Here and There in Sportdom

Dick Bates and Johnny Ward, who finished first and second respectively in the Examiner senior race on Thanksgiving Day, will compete in the Bloor-Bathurst modified marathon at Toronto Saturday afternoon. This race is an annual affair, under the auspices of the business men of the district. There are twenty-six prizes and a bronze medal will be given to every runner over this number to finish. Forty-seven entries have been received.

The loael runners are being sent to Toronto by the athletic association.

There will be no boxing classes to-night, but the classes will be resumed on Monday night. Instructor Jones would like to meet more youngsters, who are interested in boxing and who would like to receive instructions in the manly art.

Cobourg will probably use Punch Derry, of baseball fame, on their Intermediate O.H.A. team this winter. The Lakeshore town heaver is said to be a pretty fair hockey player.

Belleville High school will have a strong team in the Interscholastic hockey league. The students have the majority of last winter's team and some new ones. The Bellevillians were defeated in the finals last season by Bowmanville.

The local ice makers are having a tough session, and the weather man will have to put on a burst of speed to provide ice for Christmas. All is in readiness for flooding at Brock street rink, and the water has been turned on at the Rangers open-air rink. Ice-making is also being attempted at the municipal rink at the Riverside Park property, and good progress has been made at the Raybestos rink.

Big Banquet for Baseball Champs

The members of the Canadian General baseball team, Intermediate champions of Ontario, and the Maple Leafs, Midget champions of Ontario, will be tendered a complimentary banquet at the Empress Hotel next Thursday evening, commencing at seven o'clock. The teams will be banqueted by the Peterborough A.A.A. A committee from the Association, assisted by officers of the sporting organizations of the city, form the reception committee. Dr. A. W. McPherson, president of the P.A.A.A. A. will be chairman at the banquet.

Invitations will be sent to the President and Secretary of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association to attend the function. Tickets may be had at Bond's drug store, the Empress Hotel, Lew LeBarr's news agency and Ed. Wright's shop.

Baseball Writers Object to Ruling

NEW YORK, December 15 (Canadian Press). — The Baseball Writers' Association of America yesterday endorsed the action of its New York chapter in refusing to recognise Ty Cobb's 1922 batting average as .401, because of alleged arbitrary action by Ban Johnson, president of the American League, in crediting the Detroit manager with a hit in the game here on 15th May, although the play was recorded as an error by the official scorer.

The baseball writers also committed themselves to an effort to have Cobb's mark put in the official baseball guides as .399.

Copies of the resolution endorsed were sent to Commissioner Landis, President Johnson, and John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

WINNIPEG OFFERED THE CHAMPIONSHIPS

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Winnipeg has been offered the 1923 championship tournament of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, R. C. S. Bruce, President of the Mantioba Association announced yesterday afternoon. Negotiations will immediately be entered into with the parent body and the matter will be brought before the provincial association for ratification.

Mr. Bruce is confident Winnipeg will welcome the tournament which carries with it the Canadian championship title, with the bringing together of America's most foremost golfers, both professional and amateur.

MOGULS WOULD STOP TEAMS FROM "BUYING THE PENNANT"

Cannot Buy Players Without Waiver Process After June 15th — May Carry Forty Players.

DRAFT QUESTION.

NEW YORK, December 15. — Canadian Press. — Major League baseball magnates in joint session yesterday jammed the brakes on late season sales and deals and thus checked, at least for a time, the outcry against the "buying of pennants."

This was accomplished by the passing of a rule which prevents the transferring of players from one club to other in the major leagues without waiver process after June 15. Heretofore such deals were possible up to August 1. Under the new regulation the manager of a team which by June 15 is not a strong pennant contender cannot increase the playing strength of his club except by purchase of players from the minor leagues.

To offset this rule the clubs next season will be permitted to carry a roster of 40 players up to June 15 in place of May 15 and the additional months will enable them to experiment and ascertain the value of younger players who heretofore have been shunted back to the minors unless they flashed sterling form during the first month of the pennant race. An effort to increase the maximum number of players permitted any one club previous to June 15 from 40 to 50 was lost after the National League had voted in favor of it, and the American against it, when Commissioner Landis voted in the negative. However major league clubs hereafter will be permitted to have fifteen players out under option in place of eight, but the proposal to permit a player being held under option for three years in place of two was defeated.

These were the outstanding changes in the code governing the regulation of the National and American Leagues from the standpoint of the fan in that they affect the distribution of playing strength once the pennant races are straightened out, and the real battle for the flags begun. Several other alterations were made in the code but they had more to do with the technical and legislative side of the game.

No Change in Dates.

There was no discussion of the suggested return to nine games in place of the present seven in the world series and no agreement was reached between the two leagues to open upon the same day next season. As the situation stands at present, the National is down to begin the 1923 play on Tuesday, April 17, and the American League on Wednesday, April 18. It appeared to be the general opinion however that when the schedule committees meet in February this confusion of dates will be rectified. The so-called lively ball and the superabundance of home runs did not figure in the magnates' conference, acording to the offical announcement.

I was decided that the draft rules should be amended to permit the drafting season to commence the first day of the world's series each year and that the draft meeting shall be held in the city where the first world series game is played. The waiver rules were changed to provide that a club asking waivers on a player and then withdrawing such waiver request must do so within 48 hours after notice of claim or forfeit right to such player.

It was also resolved that the major and minor league meetings for next year should be held in Chicago the second week of December. Commissioner Landis was empowered in case of emergency, to call for a mail vote on any matter, thus expediting legislation.

The code was changed to provide that on the vote of three quarters of the clubs of the two leagues any proposition or legislation might be submitted to a mail vote in place of a joint meeting of the two leagues. Where a joint meeting is called the clubs that respond shall constitute a quorum but absent clubs may be represented by proxy.

The so-called barnstorming situation which resulted in the suspension of Babe Ruth and other players early last season was remedied by the adoption of a rule that no player shall participate in expedition games after October 31, and that all future contracts between players and clubs shall contain this provision.

World series regulations came in for considerable discussion and it was provided that in future Commissioner Landis and the President or some other official of the home club, should decide when weather and grounds were suitable for a game.

Once the game was started however right to suspend, postpone or call such game would rest entirely with the umpires.

The compensation to umpires in such world series games was changed from a percentage of the players share to a flat sum of $2000 each per series. Last fall under the percentage plan the umpires received about $1800 each. The sum for umpiring in a city series was fixed at $500.

A proposal that the draft price be increased from $4000 to $5000 was defeated but it was decided that hereafter a club securing a player by draft should pay immediately and in full the draft price in place of the 50 per cent. now stipulated.

Players returned to minor leagues by the majors, regardless of whether such leagues are within the draft or non-draft class, shall be subject to draft.

The club owners unanimously approved Commissioner Landis' plan to distribute the gate receipts of the second game of the 1922 world series among charity associations.

BOLEY WITH BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Joe Boley, star shortstop of the International League, for whose services several major league clubs have been dickering, has signed a contract continuing with the Baltimore Club for another year, it was announced yesterday. His salary, it was said, will be $6,000.

YANKS REFUSE TO PART WITH HOYT

Deal By Which New York Hoped to Get Eddie Collins From Chicago Has Fallen Through.

NEW YORK, December 15 (Canadian Press). — Major league club owners closed their 1923 comerences yesterday. Three deals involving acquisition of highly-touted minor league stars were the next results of practically continuous bartering efforts. No inter-league deals figured in the limelight.

Outstanding yesterday was the intimation by officials of both New York and Chicago American League Clubs that the deal by which the Yankees sought to acquire Eddie Collins, star second baeman of the White Sox, had practically fallen through. It was learned definitely, however, that Dick Kerr, White Sox southpaw, who is under suspension for failure to report last year and playing with ineligibles, must remain another year before obtaining reinstatement.

From other sources, it was reported that the Yankees objected to including Waite Hoyt, along with Aaron Ward, second baseman, and Bob Meusel, outfielder, in a deal for Collins and Bob Folk, White Sox outfielder. The Yankees were said to be ready to part with either Carl Mays or Sam Jones, but Chicago insisted upon Hoyt.

Meanwhile reports circulated that the Yankees, as an alternative, or possibly an adjunct to a Chicago deal, had offered the unprecedented sum of $175,000 for Shortstop Joe Boley, of the Baltimore International League Club.

Manager Miller Huggins, of the Yankees, denied any deal for Boley and reports that he would be disposed of at all for at least a year were put at rest by the announcement in Baltimore that the infielder had signed a 1923 contract with the Orioles.

Jack Dunn, Baltimore owner, who is understood to have agreed to sell two more of his stars to equalise the playing strength among International League clubs, declared emphatically before leaving for Baltimore earlier to-day that he would, under no consideration, part with Boley now. He is known to have refused an offer of $100,000 for his star.

Dunn intimated that the choice of players from whom two would be disposed of rested among Merwin Jacobson, outfielder; Jim McAvoy, catcher; and Max Bishop, second baseman.

The three deals of importance consummated during the week, all announced on Wednesday, brought three more Pacific Coast League stars to the majors. Pittsburgh acquired Pitcher Earl Kunz, from the Sacramento, Calif., Club, for four players and $7,500 in cash; Philadelphia Nationals obtained Shortstop Heinie Sand from the Salt Lake City Club for four players; and the St. Louis Browns paid $15,000 for Pitcher Hollis Thurston, also from the Salt Lake City Club.

Frank Chance declared yesterday he had signed Duffy Lewis, manager of Salt Lake City, as scout for the Red Sox on the Pacific Coast.

Peterboro Boy Won His Bout With Ease

Word was received last night that Millard, one of the Peterboro boys who wen up to Toronto to take part in the City Championship bouts, made a great hit with the Toronto fans. He had everything his own way with Volt, his oppenent last night and will box the semi-finals and the finals this evening. Coombs the other Peterboro boy to make the trip lost the decision to Newton but went the whole distance and put up a great battle. Both the local boys are fighting under the P.A.A.A. colors while Volt is a member of St. Helens A.C. of Toronto.

MILLER TO COACH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press.)— Otto Miller, former star catcher of the Brooklyn National League Club, will act as coach of the Kansas City American Association Club next season. He signed a contract yesterday and received a bonus of $3,000, it was said.

COL. HUSTON WILL RETIRE FOR A YEAR.

NE WYORK, Dec. 15.—Canadian Press.)—Colonel T. L. Huston declared yesterday that if the pending transaction for the sale of his half interests in the New York Yankees to his partner ,Colonel Jacob Ruppert, is completed, he would retire from all active baseball business for at least a year. This statement was regarded as setting at rest, temporarily, reports that he might, after disposing of his Yankee interests, become connected with the ownership of either the Brooklyn Nationals or the Boston Nationals. Colonel Huston has not represented the Yankees at any of the owners' meetings held this week.

PITY THE POOR OLD B. B. MAGNATES!

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (United Press).—After their usual session of gas and oratory, the major league club owners can dig back in for the rest of the season and tune their ears for the music of the 1923 turnstile.

The magnates take themselves and their heavy sessions and conferences very seriously and it's well they do. Very few others are interested. As long as they leave the game alone, they can't damage it very much.

* * * * * * * * *

Charles Ebbets, owner of the Brooklyn ball club, is to sail for Europe shortly and he won't be back until it is time to go to Florida for the late winter season. Tough life Ebbets says the ball players are being paid so much money that the club owners cannot profit.

The only ball players away from home soil that can be recalled off-hand are the major leaguers touring the Orient and the Japanese government is paying their expenses.

Because of some dispute over the European middleweight and bantamweight championships, the British Board of Boxing Control has withdrawn from the International Boxing Union.

France resented the withdrawal on the grounds that even with the support of the United States the Union could not function without the British.

America's entry into the union could not help the international body, according to one of the London papers, which added—"The United States cannot govern boxing in her own land. How could she then be expected to introduce order and harmony into the continental sphere?"

* * * * * * * * *

While the United States might not be able to produce harmony in Europe, yet it's a cinch that Uncle Sam could produce some order in any disputes about championships. All the trusty Uncle would have to do would be to send some good boy over and let him knock out both of the debaters and restore order.

* * * * * * * * *

Some cold night this winter, figure this out:

Syracuse beat Nebraska, Nebraska beat Notre Dame, Notre Dame beat Georgia Tech, Navy beat Georgia Tech, Pennsylvania beat the Navy, Pittsburgh beat Pennsylvania, Lafayette beat Pittsburgh, Washington and Jefferson beat Lafayette, Detroit beat Washington and Jefferson, Springfield beat Detroit, West Point beat Springfield, Notre Dame tied the Army, the Army tied Yale, Yale lost to Iowa, Princeton and Harvard. What does that make Columbia and who won the series?

* * * * * * * * *

Gene Tunney, former American light heavyweight title holder and the champion of the A. E. F., seems to be developing a fighting spirit. That's all he needs to reach the top. While his courage was never questioned, in the early part of his career he did not seem to possess the instinct or the desire to finish any opponent. Tunney probably will never get any heavier than a cruiser, or he would be a dangerous man for Dempsey some day in the future.

* * * * * * * * *

Notre Dame went through a schedule this year that was arranged last year when the South Bend university expected to have one of the greatest teams of all times this season. Most of the stars went out on an "outlaw" expedition and Notre Dame came out of it with a whale of a schedule and a minnow of a team.

Considering the material he had and the short time to develop it, Knute Rockne did wonders in putting out an eleven that lost only one game to the champion team of the Missouri Valley conference, held the gretest Army team of years to a scoreless tie, beat Georgia Tech, Indiana, Butler and Carnegie Tech and had its goal line crossed only once.

That team was composed almost entirely of sophomores. It might be a good team in 1924 with two more years under the belts of the youngsters.

TYSON AT OSHAWA

Tyson, catcher of Cobourg's Central League team for the last two years, is now a resident of Oshawa, where he is playing indoor ball with the Motor team. In four times up recently he had three hits, one being a bower.

Evidently Cobourg, the horse shoe or horse show town had no ties on Tyson, and furthermore it appears as though the Motor car town is "looking into the future far as human eye can see."—Belleville Intelligencer.

BOO-HOO STILL UP

Shows No Signs of Retiring For The Winter

Boo-Hoo, the cub bear mascot of Queen's University rugby team, has not gone to bed yet and in fact is showing no signs of retiring for the winter at all. This morning she was out on the ice at the rink having a big time sliding over the smooth surface. Billie Hughes is getting worried about the little mascot's behavior and he has written to the Zoological Park authorities in Toronto for information regarding the winter care of bears. From all indications at present Boo-Hoo will be out to bring good luck to the hockey teams as he did to the football players.

HOW THE OWNERS OF WAR STAMPS CAN SECURE CASH

The 1918 Series Will Become Eligible to Cash in on January First.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(United Press). — Owners of War Savings Stamps of the 1918 series will become eligible January 1 to "cash in" their stamps or certificates at full value, $5.

Treasury officials are preparing to wipe $625,000,000 from the debit side of Uncle Sam's ledger, or transfer a part of it to another account.

Two methods of redemption are offered by the Treasury, cash redemption or exchange for Treasury certificates, similar to the stamp certificates.

The prerequisite to either method of redemption is the filling out of "Form P. D. 750," copies of which may be obtained at any postoffice, from Federal Reserve Banks, from the Treasury, and possibly from local banks.

Holders of stamps who desire cash must follow the following rules:

If their certificates are registered, they must be presented to the postoffice where registered, accompanied by Form P. D. 750, as they are payable nowhere else.

If their certificates are unregistered, they may be presented at any money-order postoffice in the country, at any local bank, at any Federal Reserve Bank or at the Treasury in Washington, accompanied by the necessary form. Unregistered certificates are payable at any of these places.

Immediate cash redemption at banks, however, is at the option of the banks. Some institutions may desire to receive them for collection, the cash to be paid the holder after the bank obtains it from its nearest federal reserve bank.

The Other Plan

Thrifty persons who desire to keep their money in government investments may exchange their stamps for the new issue of Treasury certificates. Government financiers urge this exchange to afford relief to the strain on the Treasury's cash assets.

These certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $100, and $1,000. Holders of stamps may exchange them for these certificates at $20.50 for the $25 certificate, $82 for the $100, and $820 for the $1,000. The difference between the old and new securities will be paid in cash. Five years from date of purchase, the certificates are payable at face value. Owners of the certificates may obtain at any time prior to maturity full principal, plus interest at 3 per cent, up to that date. All these certificates will be registered in Washington and will thus be practically theft-proof.

Exchange of stamp certificates for Treasury certificates may be made, in the case of registered certificates, at postoffices where registered and in the case of unregistered certificates, at money-order post offices, Federal Reserve Banks and branches. Arrangements may be made with local banks for this exchange, but the places mentioned above are the only ones recognized by the government as official.

Treasury officials hope that at least half of the $625,000,000 of outstanding war savings stamp certificates will be exchanged for the new certificates. The exchange will greatly aid the refunding activities of the Treasury and will obviate the immediate laying-out of cash, which it is desired to avoid until the war time humps in public debt are smoothed out.

MOST DIVORCED MAN IN STATES.

Former Pugilist to Join Movement For Uniform Divorce Law.

ROSTER OF WIVES OF NORMAN SELBY

1—Lottie Piehler, of Middletown, O., married, 1893; divorced 1897.

2—Julia Woodruff, of Newark N.J.; married, 1898; divorced, 1899.

3—Julia Woodruff, remarried in Boston, 1899; divorced, 1900.

4—Julia Woodruff, third time married, 1900; divorced, 1902.

5—Indiola Arnold, of Providence, R.I., married, 1903; divorced, 1904.

6—Mrs. Lillian Earl, divorced wife of Edward C. Ellis; married 1906; divorced, 1910.

7—Edna Valentine, daughter of W. S. Valentine, known as 'Boss of Honduras", married in New York, 1911; divorced, 1916.

8—Dagmar Dalgren, one of Isadora Duncan's dancing girls; married in Los Angeles, 1921; divorced two weeks later.

LOS ANGELES, Dec 15.—Kid McCoy, former pugilist and most divorced man in the United States, has decided to join the movement for a national uniform divorce law, which will come up before Congress.

Says McCoy, whose name is Norman Selby outside the ring:

"Marquis of Queensbury rules govern boxing the world over. Why not have Queensbury rules for divorce?

"A national divorce law, defining universal foul blows in the game of love, would greatly swell Cupid's gate receipts and increase the popularity of matrimonial matches in America.

Love Sport Declining

"If we continue in the present chaos of different laws in every state we must expect a decline in this greatest of all sports."

The Kid speaks as an expert. He has been married and divorced eight times—and he had Wife No. 9 picked out but the match fell through. He says he lost only four of 170 ring battles—but as a husband he suffered eight knockouts via the divorce courts.

"I lost every one of my matrimonial contests. My wives—bless 'em all!—divorced me. I must admit I was at fault—not considerate enough, too hot-tempered, too roving by disposition, too ready to break off the old for the new because it was so easy.

Recommends Two Causes

"My matrimony career has taught me to believe that only two causes for divorce should be recognized—infidelity and bona fide desertion. These other set-ups of 'incompatability' and 'cruelty' are ruining the sport of marriage. It's seldom that a divorce case nowadays is worth atttending. Too common to draw a gate."

McCoy says he's going to wed again if he can find somebody like Edna Valentine, Wife No. 7. She was his favorite wife, he says, although he twice remarried Wife No. 2.

"I've learned enough to succeed this time" he added. "I hold a man doesn't know his own mind until he's 40. I'm pretty near 50."

THE LAUSANNE FASHION SHOW DOOMS FLAPPER

Short Hair and Short Skirts Win But Little Favor.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 15.—(Associated Press)—Short hair and short skirts won little favor in the fashion conference which Paul Poiret, the Paris artist conducted at the Grand Theatre for the fashionable crowds gathered in Lausanne for the Near Eastern Conference.

The Parisian mannikins displayed more than 100 costumes before the exclusive audience, which registered its approval by loud applause or was deadly silent when a mannikin moved across the stage in a costume which did not meet the fancy of the audience.

It soon became apparent that the girls counted more than the costumes. It was difficult for a short-haired girl to call forth much applause from the young diplomats who constituted a greater part of the male section of the audience.

There were mannikins with bobbed hair which was curled, and bobbed hair which was plastered down straight. There were both blondes and brunettes with short hair, but they attracted little attention.

All eyes were on the girls with long hair, regardless of whether it was red, golden or black. They got the applause. And the more modest and demure the mannikin was, the greater her popularity with the spectators.

The snappy flapper was clearly in the discard, in the opinion of the international crowd gathered at Lausanne, and the willowly girl in extremely long skirts and with plainly dressed hair was in favour. The prime favorite among the mannikins was a gray-eyed little Quakeress, with brown hair parted in the middle, and simply dressed. Her suits and gowns were all gray or blue, and whenever she appeared on the stage the applause was deafening, while the more flashy mannikins, walking with great affection and dressed in complexions red and yellow gowns, were greeted with little enthusiasm.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM GRAY.

The death of William Gray occurred suddenly Thursday morning at his home, 693 Harvey Street. He had been an esteemed resident of the city for many years, and leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife, three daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Weldon, Mrs. (Dr.) Preston and Mrs. Arthur Joobitt, and three sons, Herman H. of Hamilton, Harry C. of Toronto, and Albert C. of East City.

The funeral will take place from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Weldon, 600 Stewart Street, on Saturday, December 16. Service at the house at 2 p.m., funeral to Little Lake Cemetery at 2.30.

NOBLES PRESENT FROM ALL PARTS OF ONTARIO AT TORONTO GATHERING

TORONTO, December 15. — Officers were elected at the annual ceremonial session, held in the Central Masonic Temple. It was a record gathering of the Nobility, some 600 votes being cast in the election.

Nobles were present from almost every point in the jurisdiction, which includes all of Ontario east of Guelph.

Offices Well Distributed.

Many of the principal offices went to Nobles out of town. H. L. Glendenning, Toronto, was elected Chief Rabban, and Gus. L. Hay, of Peterborough, Assistant Rabban; L. E. Bowerman, Toronto, High Priest and Prophet, and E. J. C. Walker, Guelph, Oriental Guide. A. Macoomb as Recorder, and J. Webber Payne as Treasurer, both of Toronto, were re-elected.

Representatives were also chosen to attend the Imperial Council of the Shrine in Washington in June of next year.

The sum of $1.000 was voted for Christmas cheer for the children in the Northern Ontario fire zone.

Noble W. H. Glendenning, Manager of the Northern Ontario Fire Relief, in acknowledging the grant, said it would be "a slim Christmas" in the North this year."

The usual charitable grants to the various institutions were also made.

Distinguished Officers Attend.

Assisting in the ceremonial were: Past Potentates James Glanville, W. H. Shaw, W. G. Gallow, and A. J. Brown. Noble Ernest Bowles was in charge of the musical side of the reception of the 62 candidates. Ald. MacGregor, Mayor Maguire, Ald. Burgess, and Joseph E. Thompson, M.P.P., all well-known members of the Temple, were also in attendance.

DEATH.

GRAY.—On Thursday, Dec. 14th, William Gray, aged 75, at his late residence, 698 Harvey Street. Suddenly.

Funeral arrangements later.

Prepare For Winter.

Now is the time for the chimneys to be cleaned, the furnace overhauled and the roofs of gutters examined.

ASSASSINATED PRESIDENT OF POLAND TODAY

Gabriel Narutowicz Died at the Hands of a Young Painter — Had a Short But Stormy Career.

ASSASSIN ARRESTED

PARIS, Dec. 16.— (Special).— President Gabriel Narutowicz of Poland, was assassinated this morning according to advices from Warsaw.

Narutowicz took office December eleventh.

Rioting marked his inauguration. Twenty thousand Nationalists, who opposed his election, threw missiles at him as he went to the inaugural ceremony.

When he took the oath, the Nationalist members of the Assembly absented themselves from the ceremony.

Narutowicz formerly was minister of foreign affairs. He succeeded Marshal Pilsuduski as President. In politics he was a strong radicat. Before becoming chief of the state, he was Poland's representative at a number of important international conferences, including the Baltic disarmament conference, the parley between Poland and the little entente at Marienbad and the Genoa meeting of allied statesmen.

He was elected President by the National assembly on the 5th ballot, December 25, with 289 votes, this constituting a majority. Two days later the House of Deputies ratified the election. Then the Nationalists manifested their displeasure at his selection with riots and disturbances He was heavily guarded by troops when he went to the Government buildings to be sworn and after this ceremony he was delayed in the diet building while soldiers fought with the mob demonstrating at the gate, clearing a path for him to depart.

Street meetings to denounce the new president were held on the corners, high officers of the army addressing some of them.

President Narutowicz was assassinated by a young painter in a despatch from Warsaw. The assassin was arrested the despatch said.

WAS FOUND IN A DYING CONDITION

John Bradbury Died in Nicholls Hospital Early This Morning — Police Seek Relatives.

John Bradbury who lived alone over the Toronto Savings and Loan Company's office, George street, was found in a critical condition in his room as the result of a paralytic stroke last night and was removed to Nicholls Hospital where he passed away early this morning.

Bradbury was ill when seen by a visitor to the building yesterday morning but refused to have a doctor called in. Lst night he was found helpless in a chair and Dr. J. A. Morgan ordered his removal to the hospital. The police were notified and endeavoured to secure from the unfortunate man, some information as to his relatives but were unable to learn anything save that he had a son John Henry Bradbury, who is supposed to be working at Simpsons, Montreal.

Citizens who know anything about Bradbury's family are asked to communicate with the police department A wire was sent to the Montreal chief of police this morning asking him to endeavour to locate the son.

Bradbury had been living in the quarters where he was found last night for some five years and had worked as a labourer around the city He originally came from England, where it is thought a number of relatives reside. He was 57 years old.

The body is being held at Belleghem's until information is received in regard to the family.

MR. R. R. HALL STATES PETERBORO IS KNOWN AS ONE OF BIG FISH

City is Being Called Upon to Contribute to the Upkeep of the "Ontario White Elephant"--Declares Taxpayers Must Stop, Look and Listen

I read with pleasure His Worship Mayor Taylor's letter in last evening's Examiner, wherein he says that the Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council did not seek to sidetrack the power question. I most unreservedly accept his statement, but the wisdom of the course the committee took is the main question.

The following is the resolution that was passed:

"That the Utilities Commission communicate or confer with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Ontario Government for the purpose of ascertaining whether Peterborough could acquire the power rights at Dams Nos. 4 and 5 and Burleigh Falls, and also what would be the cost of developing power at these dams if they can be acquired."

That resolution is as innocent as a frog on a fisherman's hook and line. Let us get at the facts. The Ontario Government have $11,000,000 invested in Central Ontario power enterprises. They are being run at a loss. They want to unload them on the "FISH" living in Central Ontario, and Peterborough is marked out as one of the big "FISH."

The manager of this big enterprise is the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and the owner of the WHITE ELEPHANT is the Ontario Government, and the City of Peterborough is being called upon to contribute to this "WHITE ELEPHANT'S" keep.

Again let us examine the resolution in question. Would you in your own private affairs consult a real estate agent who wants to sell you property that is proving a loss to him? But that is what our Manufacturers' Committee is doing. With very great respect, I would have suggested to the Committee to consult and obtain independent advice.

The better course would have been for our City Council to have consulted independent advisers. Say, Mr. Henry Holgate, Mr. W. J. Francis, Mr. R. A. Ross, Mr. Brown, all of Montreal, every one of whom have lived in Peterborough, are familiar with local conditions, and stand in the forefront of engineering knowledge and skill, and are well known on this continent.

Again I repeat, I have no axe to grind, no power property to sell, and no office to seek. But I shall not, as one of the large taxpayers of this city, be a member of "dumb, driven cattle" and a follower of Sir Adam Beck pay and see $50,000 per annum, under my eyes, run to waste.

A public meeting will do good. It will show the elders of our city that the taxpayers of this city know that in 1905 they paid $114,611.27, that they paid in 1912 $229,513.73, and that now we are paying the enormous sum of $701,344.04 per annum. Our annual tax bill is four times more than it was in 1905. It is increasing. The taxpayers must "stop, look, and listen."

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH TO-MORROW NIGHT

Subject of Address by Pastor "The Quest Magnificent."

There should be another large audience to hear to-morrow evening's sermon by Rev. James Rollins, the subject of which is "The Quest Magnificent." Each one of these special addresses are being heard by appreciative audiences and are proving extremely helpful to the work in St. Andrew's this winter.

Special Music.

The choir has prepared the following music specially for the evening service:

Anthem, The Silent Sea, Neidlinger.
Solo, Repent Ye, Scott.
Mrs. H. M. Park.
Duet, Selected.
Mrs. Ford Turner and Mr. Park.

Production of 1922 is 10 per cent higher than that of 1920.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS TO BE UNVEILED TO-MORROW

War Veterans Will Parade to the Salvation Army Temple for the Dedication Service.

The beautiful stained glass windows which have been presented to the Salvation Army Temple by the Great War Veterans Association will be unveiled at a special ceremony tomorrow afternoon. These windows were presented to commemorate the names of those members of the Salvation Army who fell during the Great War.

All veterans in the city, whether members of the G.W.V.A. or not are invited to parade to the Temple and take part in the ceremonies. Those who can are requested to be at the G.W.V.A. hall at 2 o'clock At the hall they will fall in and be led by the band of the 57th Rangers to the Temple for the service of dedication.

The windows presented by the association are five in number, and a sixth has been procured by the Army. They have been installed in the main auditorium of the reconstructed building where they form a fitting tribute to the memory of the fallen.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., will be the chairman of the meeting tomorrow and prominent veterans will be included on the list of speakers.

GARNEAU CASE AND ISSUE AT THE ELECTION

Girl's Murder Arouses Hostile Factions in the Province of Quebec-Commission Still Sitting.

EXPECT HOT FIGHT

MONTREAL, Dec. 16—The mysterious and unavenged murder at Quebec of Blanche Garneau, beautiful young French-Canadian girl is on every tongue throughout this section of the Dominion.

ROBERTS

It has fanned into new flame the old discord between British and French in the Province of Quebec.

It has been debated hours in Parliament.

It has cost the province more than $100,000.

It will very probably be the issue at a coming provincial election!

Meanwhile a royal commission, headed by the chief justice of the superior court, is probing the strange case.

More than two years ago the body of the Garneau girl, assaulted and strangled to death, was found. Police were baffled. No solution could be found.

John H. Roberts editor of a Montreal weekly, charged the authorities with laxness, declared rumors had coupled the names of two legislators with the murder, and offered a reward for a solution of the case.

Roberts was seized. The legislature passed a special act sentencing him to serve a year in jail. Since that the "Axe" which he published jumped to a circulation of 60,000.

Public feeling ran high. Appointment of a royal commission to probe the whole matter was demanded and granted. The commission now is sitting.

Just before the commission sat, Armand Lavergne, leading French politician, delivered a fiery speech, lauding the British and denouncing his own compatriots as "servile" and "cowards."

With that the Blanche Garneau case definitely was thrown into politics. Both British and French politicians look for a hot fight over the case in the campaign preceding the coming election.

Premier Tashereau of the Quebec Legislature declares that five members of the Opposition are responsible for the Garneau case becoming a political issue. The Premier believes the public will uphold his action in connection with the case. Sauve, the opposition leader, says the Premier took the position of a potentate.

SALESMANSHIP COURSE STARTS AT THE Y.M.C.A.

There Is Still Room for a Few More Students — Work Illustrated.

The Course in Salesmanship was launched last night at the Y.M.C.A. under the able leadership of Mr. Bolton, District Manager of the Confederation Life Co., the class met for its first session. The lesson itself was in the nature of an introduction and outline of the course that is to be followed. Mr. Bolton promises to make the course intensly practical and will introduce novel methods from time to time. Charts and diagrams will be used to illustrate the lectures and actual sales demonstration will be put during the class period.

Those in attendance realized the need for expert training in Salesmanship and are keen for that training which will make them expert in the theory of selling and will have laid the foundation upon which to build a successful career.

There is still room for more students in this course and it is not too late to enroll. Ambitious young men would do well to come to a decision in the matter at once and avail themselves of a course which if taken by correspondence would cost them many times the modest cost of the local course.

The Class was organized at the conclusion of the session. G. H. Roper was appointed President and W. K. McGee, Secretary.

ROYAL SCARLET CHAPTER, Peterboro District.

A SPECIAL MEETING WILL BE HELD TO-MORROW (SUNDAY) AFTERNOON AT 2.30 P.M. ALL MEMBERS PLEASE ATTEND. SIGNED, GEO. McCULLOCH, 1d142726

Irish Republican Bond Suit Being Heard in United States.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Irish Free State has been ordered by Justice Mullan to show cause next Tuesday why the place of imprisonment of Stephen O'Mara, Irish Republican, should not be revealed to the attorney for O'Mara and De-Valera. An effort is being made to have commission take O'Mara's testimony in a two million five hundred thousand dollar Irish Republican bond suit.

Sheriff Hall's Anniversary

Yesterday His 85th Birthday, and Marked Half a Century of Service as Sheriff of Peterborough County.

The gracious tribute which Judge Huycke paid to Sheriff Hall in just one rare and happily expressive word in his address to the Grand Jury last Tuesday afternoon possessed an element of timeliness which His Honour may not have realised in his spontaneous compliment.

"The reverend Sheriff tells me, and when I say reverend I mean it, because of his years and dignity," said the Judge in reference to the present roster of prisoners in the County Jail. And that felicitous phrase, "reverend Sheriff," seemed to re-echo faintly in the Court Room yesterday afternoon when the General Sessions of the Peace and the December sittings of the County Court had been wound up for another year, and only the Sheriff remained after the Judge and his juries, the lawyers and litigants, and the minor officials of the Court had gone.

For that scene and the occasion, the very day itself had a personal significance to Sheriff Hall. It marked the closing of a half-century of service as a representative of the Crown. And not only was it the fiftieth anniversary of his first public performance of the duties of the office of Sheriff, but it was also his eighty-fifth birthday.

The reporter's casual remark about the passing of another Court crystallised the Sheriff's crowding memories as he looked out from the big silent room toward the noisy children coasting down the slope of Victoria Park, and one recollection called up another.

And from these reminiscences it was evident that the year 1872 must have been one of the most eventful in the Sheriff's life.

In the municipal elections that January, he was returned at the head of the poll with the vote of the whole town, similar to the system now in use in distinction to the ward plan. On the second day of the following November he was appointed Sheriff, requiring his resignation as a Councillor and also as manager of the local Bank of Commerce.

Sheriff Hall has, therefore, attended fifty-one sessions of the December Court, first under Judge Dennistoun, then under Judge Weller, and now under Judge Huycke. He has heard the arguments of many lawyers, not a few of whom have been elevated to the bench, and the prisoners of the last fifty years have, in a sense, passed through his hands.

In this light, and in the long record of the Sheriff's faithful performance of duty, together with his fine personal qualities, Judge Huycke's happy expression of respect was particularly appropriate and well deserved.

Another anniversary that came back to the Sheriff from that year 1872 was his election in first place as an elder of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Some of these facts were modestly recalled by the Sheriff —others were obtained elsewhere at the Court House. They indicate that in his thirty-fifth year, at the fulness of his young manhood, Sheriff Hall occupied a high place in the business, municipal, and also the religious life of the Peterborough of those days.

The town has grown to a city since then, but many of the old landmarks are still vivid in the Sheriff's memory. As a boy he used to skate on a pond where St. Paul's Church now stands, and often chased black squirrels through the bush and the big oaks of Victoria Park. The Court House underwent extensive alterations following the fire of a few years ago, but its outlines are the same, and the Sheriff's office is virtually unchanged from its appearance and arrangement when he first entered it.

His reminiscences would provide a highly interesting chronicle of the fifties in this district, tracing and reflecting all the wonders that are mere commonplaces of this age.

As a young man attending college in Toronto, Sheriff Hall had to make the journey in the Pickwickian manner of the stage coach, with stops along the road for fresh horses and meals. The route followed the old lake shore road to Cobourg, and thence to Peterborough. Taverns were numerous, almost innumerable, and the company diverting and entertaining, even in the long cold rides at the Christmas holidays.

Sheriff Hall's old home, which was built by his father, was on the

TURKEYS WEAK AND ABUNDANT ON THE MARKET

Price Shaded Off and Sales Were Reported Under Forty Cents a Pound.

GREAT CROWD

The Christmas turkey occupied the centre of the market stage this morning with an immense supporting caste, including some beauty as several officers discovered, and a great throng of customers and spectators. Form 45c. and 50c. a pound at the opening, the price gradually eased off to 42c., and finally to 40c., where the farmers' wives seemed by some concerted but uncommunicated agreement to be holding determinedly as a last trench. Others, however, as the noon hour approached, began to compromise and a certain south end grocer, for example, came through the crowd with an opulent bird for which he paid $4.25 at the price of 34c. a pound.

As a prologue to the market the rumour went around that the turkey prices over the whole country were weak, and that in local stores was off 5 cents. Many of those who might have bought to-day postponed their purchase until Wednesday or Saturday in a feeling of more or less confidence that the price would at least not go higher. At that this morning's array had all the detail of a typical Christmas market. Extra benches had to be set up to accommodate the farmers' wives, and in every direction were heaped up with carcasses of geese, ducks, chickens and turkeys, an eye-filling and mouth-watering sight for those who disagree with Bernard Shaw's food ideas, and likewise a sacrificial offering of flesh for the Christian festival of Christmas. Many of the women behind the benches held out to the end for their price. Those who fell in with the downward trend contributed to that glorious feeling of the late-coming buyer who boasted of a conquest at under the 40c. level to a friend who had come early to avoid the rush and paid 45c. a pound.

Chickens were fairly plentiful at 20c. and 25c. a pound although they merely filled in the background this morning, with geese at 28 and 30c. Butter was stationary at 35c and eggs were as low as 65c.

On the outside market sleigh loads of beef and pork were features, the former at 9 and 10c. and pork at 18 and 20c.

THE WEATHER

This morning at six o'clock, the thermometer stood at 4 degrees below zero. The air was calm, and the waning moon and the planets Venus and Jupiter shining brilliantly in the eastern sky made a beautiful picture. This is the first occasion this season that zero has been reached. Twenty-six years ago to-day, or on Dec. 16th, 1896, I began taking weather observations at Peterboro for the Meteorological Service, having been supplied with a set of standard instruments by the Government. From that date to the present the record is practically unbroken. At frequent intervals (and always when there was anything worth while chronicling) these weather notes, signed by "W.P." have appeared in The Examiner. That they are read, I believe, for I have been told so by hundreds, and many have spoken of them in appreciative terms, lawyers, doctors, professional men, mechanics, farmers, saints and sinners, from the aged man of 90 years to the prattling child of five or six, who wanted to know what the weather was going to be to-morrow. However the subject is not a very broad one, and sometimes I feel that it is being worn thread-bare, and cease for a while, but I am invariably good naturedly called to time by some one who missed the usual "squib." Sometimes I am asked why I always put my initials after the item. Simply because it is my own, is official, and refers to Peterboro alone. Items frequently appear that are clipped from other papers. They may be correct locally, or they may not. I can vouch for the correctness of my own figures, but cannot for others.—Walter Peters, otherwise "W.P."

WILL ENFORCE ACT.

SASKATOON, Sask., Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Speaking at a Liberal banquet here last night, Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan, appealed for economy in public and private life. He warned of possible catastrophe in Europe at almost any time and declared Canada must be on the watch for any emergency. He expressed his determination to "continue enforcement of Saskatchewan temperance act in accordance with the expressed wish of the people."

MORE MONEY NEEDED TO PROVIDE RELIEF.

A Number of War Veterans Are Out of Work in the City.

It was stated at the Great War Veterans' headquarters yesterday that employment conditions throughout the city were not as good as could be wished, and a 'number of former service men are now out of work.' Unless something is done to alleviate their condition it will be a pretty gloomy Christmas for a great many families.

Mrs. R. J. Devey, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A., has already received a contribution of $10 to be expended on Christmas cheer, but a great deal more will be needed.

BY CONSIDERING THE THING EASY IT BECOMES SO

Self-Mastery Through Autor-Suggestion Unconsciously Makes One Better in Every Way.

EASY AND YOU CAN

By DR. EMILE COUE.

From the Thoughts and Precepts of Dr. Coue as jotted down by His Desciple—Mme. Leon—conscious autosuggestion made with confidence, with faith with perserverance, realizes itself, mathematically, within reason.

When certain people do not obtain satisfactory results with autosuggestion, it is either because they lack confidence, or because they make efforts, which is the more frequent case. To make good suggestions it is absolutely necessary to do it without effort. The latter implies the use of the will, which must be entirely put aside. One must have recourse exclusively to the imagination.

I must here affirm—and it is extremely important—that if, up to the present, you have lacked confidence in yourself, I tell you that this self-distrust will disappear little by little and give place to self-confidence, based on the knowledge of this force of incalculable power which is in each one of us.

It is absolutely necessary for every human being to have this confidence. Without it, one can accomplish nothing. With it one can accomplish whatever one likes, (within reason, of course).

You are then going to have confidence in yourself, and this confidence gives you the assurance that you are capable of accomplishing, perfectly well, whatever you wish to do, on condition that it is reasonable, and whatever it is your duty to do.

So when you wish to do something reasonable, or when you have a duty to perfrom, always think that it is easy, and make the words difficult ,impossible, I cannot, it is stronger than I, I cannot prevent myself , from...., disappear from your vocabulary; they are not in the language.

What is in the language is: "It is easy and I can."

By considering the thing easy, it becomes so for you, althought it migh seem difficult to others. You will do it quickly and well, and without fatigne, because you do it without effort.

Whereas if you had considered it as difficult or impossible it would have become so for you, simply because you would have thought it so.

To these general suggestions which will perhaps seem long and even childish to some of you, but which are neecssary; must be added those which apply to the particular case of the patient you are dealing with.

All you suggestions must be made in a monotonous and soothing voice (always emphasizing the essential words), which, although it does not actually send the subject to sleep, at least makes him feel drowsy, and think of nothing in particular.

When you have come to the end of the series of suggestions you address the subject in these terms:

"In short, I mean that from every point of view, physical as well as mental, your are going to enjoy health, better health than that you have been able to enjoy up to the present.

"Now I am going to count three, and when I say 'Three', you will open your eyes and come out of the passive state in which you are now.

"You will come out of it quite naturally, without feeling in the least drowsy, or tired, on the con-

AN INTERESTING TRIP THROUGH LOCAL FACTORY

Young Farmers Bewildered by Revelations in Canadian Packing Company's Modern Plant.

DINED AT NIGHT

It is almost superfluous to say that the young farmers attending the educational course in swine here found many surprising revelations and a considerable measure of instruction in their trip yesterday afternoon through so modern a packing plant as that of the Canadian Packing Company. Under the courteous guidance of Gordon and James Matthews, they found the factory a veritable hive of industry, where some 150 hands engaged in producing from live hogs the finest grades of pork in its varied classes for domestic consumption, not forgetting the approved sides for export to Britain.

The rural visitors found every reason for concentrated interest wherever they turned—from cleanly hog pens to the slaughter room, where the animals are killed with a quickness of despatch which conforms commendably with modern humane principles; also in the endless chain on which the suspended hogs travel through the various finishing departments until one stage of their journey ends in the cool, spacious hanging room. And here they were inspected—a small army of them—suspended, dressed and immaculately clean, ready for cutting up sections in other rooms, or finished as sides, to meet trade demands.

These young farmers found abundant food for reflection in the bewildering rapidity and precision with which skilled employees performed those varied operations which constitute the evolution of a live hog into merchantable meat, either ready for the home market in domestic grades or packed for overseas transportation. Order, method, system prevailed throughout the entire plant, where under the scrutinizing eyes of three Government inspectors, modern sanitation reigns supreme and absolute purity of products is assured.

The sausage department, wherein is manufactured that Rose Brand sausage, for which this factory enjoys an enviable reputation, held one's attention through all the several processes of manufacture from fresh pork, until these palatable edibles poured like running water in a rapid stream from machine to marble-topped tables ready for packing.

"Why, everything's as clean as a whistle," exclaimed one observing young farmer; and so everything was, for cleanliness is the policy obtaining in this big factory, where the last word in modernity enters into the manufacture of food products in number one grade.

Class Entertained.

Last evening this class of prospective hog producers, it is to be hoped on a large scale, were the guests of the Canadian Packing Co. at dinner in the Empress Hotel and at the Grand Theatre afterwards. And it goes without saying that, with such hosts as Gordon Matthews, manager of the local factory, and his genial lieutenants, the visitors spent a happy evening. Of course, the instructors and all connected with this educational course also enjoyed the company's hospitality.

DOCTORS STOP MEAT IN KIDNEY TROUBLE

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers, begin on Salts

No man or woman who eats too much meat can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Big meat eating may develop uric acid, which excites the kindeys; they become over-worked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood; then we get sick. Rheumatism, head aches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleepiness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or of the urine is cloudy, offensive full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine This famous salts is made from the acid of grape and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which every one should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

DIED ON STAGE.

HELP HELPLESS BLIND BABES

A Dominion Charter, without stock subscription, was recently obtained for the establishment in the city of Ottawa, of a Home, Nursery, Hospital and Kindergarten, for the blind under six years of age, free to all from any Province in the Dominion. So far nothing has been done for those poor unfortunates According to reports received from the various Provincial authorities, there are at present nearly 250 in the Dominion. The late Sir Arthur Pearson, before ihs death, claimed that "Sunshine Home," at Chorley Wood, England, was "the only home in the Empire for blind babies." It is hoped shortly to have the SECOND in Canada. To this end money is urgently required. Help us with your generous gift. "Lest we forget; Do it now!" Cheques should be made payable to the Canadian Blind Babies' Home Association. Remittances will be promptly acknowledged.

AFTER MORE POWER.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — Sir Adam Beck addressed the Canadian Club here last night and declared that engineers of Ontario Hydro Power Commission would be kept busy working out designs for another scheme to develop more power, either by way of tunnel or canal, or both. Demands for power exceeded present capacity he said.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16.— (Canadian Press.)— Interrupters voicing opinions of the most radical nature and asking questions that aroused laughter, shouting and hissing from audience, created much confusion during the address of Albert Thomas, a French labor man here last night. The uproar commenced when Thomas said of himself: "Yesterday I was a Socialist."

"It's Confidence That Counts".

PRES. POINCARE SAYS SITUATION SEEMS TO BE GETTING BETTER

Lausanne and London Negotiations Have Improved Relations of England and France.

POLICY FOLLOWED.

PARIS, Dec. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—In reinforcing his declaration that the situation seemed to him to have changed for the better, Premier Poincare said the relations of France with Great Britain had improved, the negotiations at Lausanne were proceeding well, and the reparations conference in London had merely adjourned to be resumed in a favorable atmosphere.

"We can regard the outlook with optimism," continued the Premier, "but should the Lausanne conference fail then France will do the impossible to prevent war again breaking out in the Far East .I am sure, however, that a satisfactory settlement will be found."

The London conference, declared M. Poincare, instead of being a failure, "was successful, because it was called only to prepare the way for a plenary conference, whether that should be held in Brussels or not, and that has been done. The negotiations were not interrupted. As a matter of fact they are going to be resumed on January 2."

"Our conversations in London," the Premier went on, "were conducted in the purest and sanest atmosphere of confidence. Everyone in London seemed imbued with the idea of keeping our alliance high above questions of detail and procedure. I have no reproaches to make to anyone, whoever he may be, and I cannot interfere with the interior policy of any other country, but I can tell you that the old calumnies and accusations of imperialism and militarism against France, which we have been accustomed to hear from the other side of the Channel, find no echo in the present English government."

Premier Poincare said he had followed strictly the announcement of his policy made in the Chamber on November 13. "On no point, whatsoever have I had to make any modification," he declared.

Reverting to the Lausanne meeting, the Premier said France was in accord with Great Britain and Italy and was supported by the United States on all the essentials, notably the freedom of the Straits, the maintenance of the capitulations and the protection of nationalities.

"Of course," he added, "agreements with the soviets have not been realized, but that does not interest me. I am, however, interested in an entente with England and Italy,and this has been accomplished."

Aged 84, Travels Alone to Attend Brother's Funeral—Haldimand Man's Cider Cost Him $200.

COBOURG, December 16. (Special.) — On Thursday, B. Irish, of Orillia, a man of 84 years arrived here to attend the funeral of his brother, the late W. R. Irish, who passed away on Sunday at the age of 82 years. The old gentleman made the trip alone. The late W. R. Irish is survived by his widow, before her marriage Eliza Timlin, and by three sons, Sandford, of Winnipeg, Fred of Cobourg, and Vance of Penetang, Mrs. David Taylor of Centreton is a sister, and Mr. Lewis Irish of Rochester, a brother. Mr. Irish was born near Centreton, and spent almost his entire life in Haldimand, and Hamilton townships.

Receives a Call.

Rev. H. A. Carson, pastor of the Cobourg and Coldsprings Congregational churches, has received an invitation to the Congregational churches at Rock Island, Quebec, and Holland, Vermont. This is an international charge. Mr. Carson has not yet decided whether he will acept or not.

Costly Cider.

R. I. Chapple of Haldimand township, was fined $200 or three months in jail in the police court here on a charge of having liquor in a place other than his own private dwelling A barrel of cider belonging to Mr. Chaffle was found by License Inspector Goodrich, it is stated, at the home of a neighbor, which tested over the legal percentage of proof spirits.

$150 For Hospital.

Hamilton township has made a grant of $150 to the Cobourg general hospital.

Ernest and Alfred Edgell are entered in the 15 mile bloor-Bathurst marathon to be run in Toronto today. Ernest finished 7th in the Marathon last year.

U. S. INFLUENCE TO BE EXERTED TO AID EUROPE

Help Toward Solution of the Reparations Problems —No Definite Announcements Have Been Made.

NO LOAN PLANNED.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Administration officials believe that the American influence can be employed to help towards a solution of the German reparations problem. That feeling was voiced authoritatively yesterday at the White House.

It was added, however, that no announcement now was possible or even imminent. Things that may be occurring behind the scenes, it was said, "cannot be exhibited on the stage," at this time without prejudice here or abroad to the very cause the Washington Government hopes to serve.

Such was the brief glimpse of official purpose made available at the close of a day filled with speculation as to what move the Washington Government might be contemplating towards averting the threatened Anglo-French break over Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

It was indicated authoritatively at the State Department late in the day that the plan for a loan to Germany had not come up in either an official or informal way. Comment with respect to the plan was refused beyond that intimation.

It was said officially at the State Department, however, that the attitude of the United States as to concellaton of war debts had undergone no change. In any event it was indicated on every side that there was no reason to anticipate any early action in Washington, the inference being that there was much informal discussion between Washington and European statesman to be expected before a definite project could take shape.

SAFE FAT REDUCTION

Reduce, reduce, reduce, is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim, is the cry of fashion and society. And the overfat wring their hands in mortification and helpfulness; revolsing at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent exercise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Prescription, and learn through it that they may safely reduce steadily and easily without one change in their mode of life, but harmlessly, secretly and quickly reaching their ideal of figure with a smoother skin, better appetite and health than they have ever known. And now comes Marmola Prescription Tablets from the same famously harmless formula as the Marmola Prescription. Trade Treaty With France Signed as Fair Agreement

Trade Barriers Will Be Lowered Without Sacrificing Any Important Interests of Either Country — Treaty May Be Terminated By Either Country on Six Months' Notice.

PARIS, Dec. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—Several weeks devoted to a painstaking review of the tariff schedules of Canada and France by Hon. W. S. Fielding, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and Lucien Dior, French Minister of Commerce, ended yesterday with the signing of a new commercial agreement, with a joint statement from the negotiators declared to be "a fair arrangement."

The object which the representatives of Canada and France had in view throughout the negotiations was to break down the trade barriers between the two countries as far as possible without unduly, sacrificing any important interest. The representatives of both countries declared last night they were confident that this had been successfully accomplished.

One of the most important provisions of the agreement puts Canada upon the same footing as the United States in respect to articles affected by the agreement of 1921 between the United States and France. This had placed Canadian industries at a disadvantage in competing for business in the French market. Under the pact signed yesterday, Canaad is placed on an even footing with the United States in regard to the export of 326 articles upon which the Dominion was previously handicapped. In addition 128 Canadian articles are accorded the French minimum tariff. In return, French exports will be admitterday, Canada is placed on an even tariff.

A total of nearly five hundred items were revised in the agreement. It was decided to keep the details secret for the time being in order to arrange for simultaneous publication in the two interested countries. The schedules will be made public upon a date to be agreed upon by the interested parties.

The convention is of indefinite durataion, being terminable upon six months' notice by either country.

WHAT DENMARK HAS DONE CANADA MUST AND CAN MEASURE UP TO

Canadian Farmers Lack Not the Possibilities For Increasing Their Export Bacon Trade to British Isles, Declares Editor W. H. Porter of the Farmers' Advocate.

TIMELY ADDRESS TO EDUCATIONAL CLASS.

"What the Dane has done the Canadian farmer can accomplish." This was the comforting assurance to the farmers' educational course at the Canadian Packing Co.'s local factory, yesterday afternoon, uttered by W. H. Porter, editor of the Farmers' Advocate, London, Ont., in an intensely interest-holding address on his trip to Denmark and the British Isles last summer. While overseas Mr. Porter thoroughly investigated the British market for bacon, which must be of high-grade Wiltshire brand, and also looked into the Wiltshire hog sides producing industry so successfully engaged in by the Danes, who today find a preference in Great Britain for their bacon to that exported by Canada. The bacon trade in the British Isles represents an annual consumption of 700,000,000 pounds annually, and he warned the class that if Canada is to successfully compete with Denmark and Ireland for that trade her farmers must measure up to the farmers of those countries in the quality of hogs bred.

From observation in Britain Mr. Porter gathered that British dealers do not care whether the bacon products they import are Dutch, Irish or Canadian so long as they are of the Wiltshire quality the consumers demand, and the sides of that long conformation which permits of selling profitably. The shoulder of a Wiltshire is sold by the Britisher at a loss, Mr. Porter added, and it is out of the side he makes his money. The possibilities for meeting this British demand for Wiltshires are here in Canada, the speaker declared; all that is needed is the real spirit and thorough otganization of hogs, for Canadians cannot

LIGHT TENDER IS BELIEVED TO HAVE PERISHED

Was Last Seen in a Boat About a Mile From Griffith's Island Wednesday Night.

NOT SEEN SINCE.

OWEN SOUND, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Geo. Bennett, light tender at Griffiths Islands about twenty miles from Owen Sound, is believed to have perished on Wednesday night in the heavy blow and excessive cold. He was last seen on Wednesday afternoon about a mile from the island, and when he did not return to the light that night, it was thought that he had gone to the mainland. No word was received from him on Thursday and yesterday inquiries along the shore showed that he had not been seen. The wind during Wednesday and Wednesday night would have driven him into Owen Sound Bay if his engine had stalled, providing the boat continued to ride the heavy seas. It is feared that the boat swamped and sank, with its occupant.

CLAIMS UNFOUNDED.

MONTREAL, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Disclaiming the statement made in a resolution of protest adopted at a meeting on Thursday night of the Jewish Community Council against the proposed change in the panelling of Montreal school taxes, which protest was telegraphed to Premier Taschereau, a telegram was yesterday sent to the Premier by Michael Hirsch and Maxwell Goldstein, K.C., members of the authorised Jewish committee which has been conferring with the Quebec Government, which states that the Jewish Community Council claims to represent all Jewish religious, philanthropic, social, and other bodies, are unfounded.

TO TAKE ACTION.

MONTREAL, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Following complaints voiced at the annual meeting of the Canadian Cavalry Association, recently held here, headquarters of the Canadian Militia has issued instructions indicating that drastic measures are to be taken regarding the illegal use of uniforms by men employed in civil occupations.

Proceedings will be instituted under section 124 of the Militia Act, which provides a fine of $20.00 for each offence, and also provides that other action may be taken.

POOR PREPARATION CAUSED THE LONDON CONFERENCE TO FAIL

Mussolini Says He Will Not Attend Meeting in Paris Unless Better Preparation is Made.

ITALIAN SCHEME.

ROME, December 16. Canadian Press. — At a Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon, a few hours after his return from the London Premiers' Conference, Premier Mussolini reported that the conference had been unsatisfactory on account of inadequate preparation. He declared that he would not not attend the discussions when they were resumed at Paris unless there was suitable diplomatic preparation beforehand. He declared further there must be no more going back on decisions, as was done after the failure. The date of this was one which in his opinion must eventually be followed.

The plan which Premier Mussolini presented at the London Conference was published here yesterday and it contains nothing about the United States. It declares however that not even the wealthy countries on both sides of the Atlantic will be able to escape the grave effects of the continuance of the unsatisfactory post-war conditions of the past four years. It maintains that it will be utterly inquitious to ruin Italy, France and Belgium for the sake of restoring Germany, and that in dealing with the reparations problem the Inter-Allied indebtedness cannot be left aside.

The following are the principal points of the memorandum: No partial settlement is admissible. Italy cannot renounce any portion of her reparations unless an equitable settlement of the Inter-allied debt question enables the Allies to renounce a corresponding portion of their reparations in favor of Germany.

The plan points out that England is in a position to effect such a set-

Kaiser William Had His Coffin Picked

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—An emergency coffin for former Emperor William of Germany, was found yesterday in a musty closet aboard his old flagship, the Bremen, now the Constantinople.

The Ex-kaiser made most of his long voyages—to the German African Provinces and other ports of the world,—aboard the Bremen. The coffin always accompanied him.

Lying in a handsome steel overall, the coffin has the Imperial insignia on the sides and lid in bas relief on enamelled iron crosses. The interior is lined with satin, once white, now spotted with grease.

And, underneath the satin—an elaborate set of box springs—which would have ensured an easy ride had death overtaken him en-voyage.

PROTECT YOUR VOTE.

Citizens of Peterborough who find their names are not on the voters' lists and who know that they are qualified to vote, should not fail to take advantage of the opportunity that is offered by the fact that Judge Huycke is to hold a Court of Revision to hear and determine complaints of errors and omissions in the voters' list on Tuesday next, December 19th, at 10.30 a.m.

Ratepayers should consult the lists and make sure that their names appear.

If they find, however, that there has been an omission, it is their duty to see that they present themselves at the Judge's chambers in the Court House on Tuesday.

The matter is of much importance, not only in connection with the municipal elections, but also because of the fact that the present municipal list will likely be used as the basis for the voters' list in the Provincial elections next year.

The citizen who does not even take the trouble to ascertain whether or not he has a vote is not much of an asset to the community.

And the man who has a vote and does not use it is scarcely more valuable.

We have unfortunately too many of both classes in Peterborough.

A MORRISON VICTORY.

The United Farmers' convention has been a triumph for Secretary J. J. Morrison, whose opposition to the Drury broadening out policy has been enthusiastically endorsed by the vast majority of the delegates.

The U.F.O. has decided to adhere to its original programme.

In other words, no change is to be made in the form of the organization for political purposes, the autonomy of the constituencies is to be preserved, and Premier Drury's plan of a Progressive political party taking in everybody who endorses the Farmers' policies is killed so far as the U.F.O. is concerned.

The class aspect of the movement is to be maintained in its entirely, although the various constituency organizations may, if they see fit, "broaden out" to their hearts' content.

The Morrison doctrine has prevailed, and the result is a tribute to the influence held over the United Farmers by the secretary of the movement.

What the result will be remains to be seen.

Mr. Drury declares that if the policies favored by the Farmers' organization are to succeed support must be drawn from all like-minded elements of the population.

The U.F.O. operating on a class basis cannot hope to win through.

In fact Mr. Drury points out that it is doubtful whether his Government could be returned to power if every farmer in the Province cast his vote for the present administration.

The door, however, has been slammed in the face of all non-farmers who approve of the U.F.O. policy.

If they want to trail after this Agrarian parade without any membership or standing therein, they can, of course, vote for Farmer candidates, but that is the only privilege they will be accorded.

THE MUNICIPAL SITUATION.

To some extent interest in the coming municipal elections is being aroused, but there are as yet no signs of that general concern that the best possible candidates should be brought out and elected that will be necessary if Peterborough is to have something like the civic government it requires.

The apathy of the public towards the whole question is a discouraging aspect of the situation.

Although the men who will be elected on New Year's Day will have the spending of thousands of dollars of the people's money, the ratepayers seem utterly indifferent as to the question of candidates.

There is not as much discussion over the municipal elections as there is over half a dozen little local affairs of passing importance.

Yet two weeks from Monday Peterborough will have to elect a Mayor, five members of the Council, a similar number of members of the School Board, and a member of the Utilities Commission.

The Mayor and Council will have many problems to deal with, the Board of Education has to decide upon a programme of building acticity that will result in the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars, and the utilities Commission is in charge of the most important department of light and water.

There should be no place in any of these bodies for weaklings; yet the indifference of the people make it possible for weaklings to be elected and re-elected, and makes it inevitable that good men should hesitate to offer their services to a community that apparently does not care who rules over it.

PROHIBITION AS AN ISSUE.

The Liberal members of the Legislature adhere to the opinion that prohibition cannot possibly be made a paramount issue at the next Provincial election.

The position of the Liberals is, in brief, that the people of the Province have given their verdict on this question, and until that decision has been reversed, the Government can have no other option than to see that the law is enforced.

With the logic of that attitude there can be no quarrel.

At the same time it must be remembered that politics may not always be logical and it is difficult to see how the prohibition question can fail to be more or less of an issue in the next appeal to the people.

For one thing the Government seems determined, that the Ontario Temperance Act shall be an issue if the warnings uttered by Hon. W. E. Raney are any guide — and there is no reason to doubt that the Attorney-General was speaking from the book when he made his statement.

And there is Hon. G. H. Ferguson with his so far carefully concealed policy that is to please both the wets and the drys. It is impossible to suppose that a general election can be fought without something from him on the subject of temperance legislation.

Prohibition may not be the issue, but it is assured that it will be an issue in the coming campaign, and none of the parties will be able to remain altogether aloof from the question.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If you still have some Christmas shopping to do attend to it the first of next week. And carry your small parcels home.

Peterborough merchants whose window dressing has always occasioned favorable comment from visitors, have, it is generally agreed, surpassed themselves in connection with the Christmas trade.

The United Farmers cheered Premier Drury, but it will be noticed their votes were registered for Morrison's "no broadening out" policy.

Toronto Board of Control has decided to spend $527,000 in securing additional park lands. The lesson for Peterborough should be plain. The chance to secure a valuable park site for $3,000 should not be neglected.

Those cities which have municipal elections recently found an increase in voters of from 20 to 30 per cent. over those when the elections were held on New Year's Day. The idea will spread.—Kingston Standard.

So far there has been no need of traffic officers to direct the candidates for municipal honors. The majority of them evidently believe in tranquillity.

Turkey has proposed to give guarantees for the safety of minorities. The trouble is that Turkish guarantees in the past have been little more than scraps of paper.

It is difficult to imagine, however, how the disturbers hope to gain anything for the people they are supposed to represent by the tactics they have adopted.

It takes the London police to deal with "Red flaggers." The bobbies have their way without bloodshed too, it might be noticed.

IRISH DETECTIVES DEFYING DETECTION

Criminal Investigation Department Replacing Metropolitan Detective.

DUBLIN, Dec. 16.—(Associated Press).—The Criminal Investigation Department, established by the Irish Government, has largely replaced the old detective department of the Dublin Metropolitan police.

It has its headquarters in Oriel House, and its task is the rounding up of the ordinary criminals, bank robbers and burglars, who have taken advantage of the prevailing troubled times to prey on the citizens. The new force has the advantage, over the old, that its members have none of the traditional and easily recognizable appearance of the ordinary police detective in Dublin. They are mostly young men, very like the average young man in dress and build, and their operations are increasingly effective. They recently made 56 arrests in one week; have recovered much property, and have been congratulated on their efficiency by the Recorder of Dublin.

RUSSIA IS GETTING READY TO EXPORT HER GRAIN

Red Executive Report Foreign Capital Will Be Resorted To.

MOSCOW, Dec. 16.—(Associated Press).—Export of Russian grain by use of foreign capital was advocated in a report to the central executive committee of Soviets—workmen and peasants' parliament—at its last sitting in this city.

The linking up of the rural economy of Russia with foreign markets is looked upon by soviet officials as a means of bringing into the country foreign capital which would help in the re-establishment of both agriculture and industry.

This year's harvest of grain has yielded 47,000,000 tons, which is about 13,000,000 tons more than last year, and 20,000,000 tons less than the pre-war production. Allowing 7,000,000 tons for sowing purposes, 28,000,000 tons for the needs of the peasants and some 3,-00,000 tons for the needs of the town, there is a balance of over 8,-000,000 tons, the greater part of which, according to the report, could be used for export.

In pre-war times Russia exported yearly over 12,000,000 tons of grain, or 15 per cent. of her production. Since then the sewing area has diminished from 222,750,000 acres in 1918 to 135,000,000 acres in 1922, while the number of livestock has fallen materially.

The minutes went by slowly. To Antony, lying hidden in the undergrowth at the foot of his tree, a new problem was presenting itself. Suppose Cayley had to make more than one journey that night? He might come back to find them in the boat; one of them, indeed, in the water.

His eyes were fixed on the boat as he considered these things, and suddenly, as if materialized from nowhere, Cayley was standing by the boat. In his hand was a small brown bag.

Cayley put the bag in the bottom of the boat, stepped in, and using an oar as a punt-pole, pushed slowly off. Then, very silently, he rowed toward the middle of the pond. . . .

He had stopped. The oars rested on the water. He picked up the bag from between his feet, leant over the nose of the boat, and rested it lightly on the water for a moment. Then he let go. It sank slowly. He waited there, watching; afraid, perhaps, that it might rise again.

Antony begun to count . . .

And now Cayley was back at his starting-place. He tied up the boat, looked carefully round to see that he had left no traces behind him, and then turned to the water again. For a long time, as it seemed to the watchers, he stood there, very big, very silent, in the moonlight. At last he seemed satisfied. Whatever his secret was, he had hidden it; and so with a gentle sigh, as unmistakable to Antony as if he had heard it, Cayley turned away and vanished again as quietly as he had come.

Antony gave him three minutes, and stepped out from the trees. He waited there for Bill to join him.

"Six," whispered Bill.

Antony nodded.

"Good," smiled Antony. "Mine was the eighteenth—a little way past it. Better hang your coat over the sixth post, and then we shall see it more easily. I'll put mine on the eighteenth. Are you going to undress here or in the boat?"

"Some here, and some in the boat. You're quite sure that you wouldn't like to do the diving yourself?"

"Quite, thanks."

They had walked round to the other side of the pond. Coming to the sixth post of the fence, Bill took off his coat and put it in position, and then finished his undressing, while Antony went off to mark the eighteenth post. When they were ready, they got into the boat, Antony taking the oars.

"Now, Bill, tell me as soon as I'm in a line with your two marks."

He rowed slowly toward the middle of the pond.

"You're about there now," said Bill at last.

Antony stopped rowing and looked about him.

"Yes, that's pretty well right." He turned the boat's nose round until it was pointing to the pine-tree under which Bill had lain. "You see my tree and the other coat?"

"Yes," said Bill.

"Right. Now then, I'm going to row gently along this line until we're dead in between the two. Get it as exact as you can—for your own sake."

"Steady!" said Bill warningly. "Back a little . . . a little more . . . a little more forward again . . . Right."

Antony left the oars on the water and looked round. As far as he could tell, they were in an exact line with each pair of landmarks.

"Now then, Bill, in you go."

Bill pulled off his shirt and trousers, and stood up.

"You mustn't dive from the boat, old boy," said Antony hastily. "You'll shift its position. Slide in gently."

Bill slid in from the stern and swam slowly round to Antony.

"What's it like?" said Antony.

"Cold. Well, here's luck to it."

He gave a sudden kick, flashed for a moment in the water, and was gone. Antony steadied the boat, and took another look at his landmarks.

Bill came up behind him with a loud explosion.

"It's pretty muddy," he protested. "Weeds?"

"No, thank the Lord."

"Well, try again."

Bill gave another kick and disappeared. Again Antony coaxed the boat back into position, and again Bill popped up, this time in front of him.

"I feel that if I threw you a sardine," said Antony, with a smile, "you'd catch it in your mouth quite prettily."

"It's awfully easy to be funny from where you are. How much longer have I got to go on doing this?"

Antony looked at his watch.

"About three hours. We must get back before daylight. But be quicker if you can, because it's rather cold for me sitting here."

IT SANK SLOWLY. HE WAITED.

Bill flicked a handful of water at him and disappeared again. He was under for almost a minute this time, and there was a grin on his face when it was visible again.

"I've got it, but it's devilish hard to get up. I'm not sure that it isn't too heavy for me."

"That's all right," said Antony. He brought out a ball of thick string from his pocket. "Get this through the handle if you can, and then we can both pull."

"Good man." He paddled to the side, took one end of the string and paddled back again. "Now then."

Two minutes later the bag was safely in the boat. Bill clambered in after it, and Antony rowed back.

"Well done, Watson," he said quietly, as they landed.

He fetched their two coats, and then waited, the bag in his hand, while Bill dried and dressed himself. As soon as the latter was ready, he took his arm and led him into the copse.

They sat down, and taking the bag between his knees, Antony pressed the catch and opened it.

"Clothes!" said Bill.

Antony pulled out the top garment and shook it out. It was a wet brown flannel coat.

"Do you recognize it?" he asked.

"Mark's brown flannel suit."

"The one he is advertised as having run away in?"

"Yes."

Antony put his hand in the breast-pocket and took out some letters. He considered them doubtfully for a moment.

"I suppose I'd better read them," he said. "I mean, just to see—" He looked inquiringly at Bill, who nodded. Antony turned on his torch and glanced at them. Bill waited anxiously.

"Yes. Mark . . . Hallo!"

"What is it?"

"The letter that Cayley was telling the Inspector about. From Robert. 'Mark, your loving brother is coming to see you—' Yes, I suppose I had better keep this. Well, that's his coat. Let's have out the rest of it." He took the remaining clothes from the bag and spread them out.

"They're all here," said Bill. "Shirt, tie, socks, underclothes, shoes—yes, all of them."

"All that he was wearing yesterday?"

"Yes."

"What do you make of it?"

Bill shook his head, and asked another question.

"Is it what you expected?"

Antony laughed suddenly.

"It's too absurd," he said. "I expected—well, you know what I expected. A body. A body in a suit of clothes. Well, perhaps it would be safer to hide them separately. The body here, and the clothes in the passage, where they would never betray themselves. And now he takes a great deal of trouble to hide the clothes here, and doesn't bother about the body at all." He shook his head. "I'm a bit lost for the moment, Bill, and that's the fact."

"Anything else there?"

Antony felt in the bag.

"Stones and—yes, there's something else." He took it out and held it up. "There we are, Bill."

It was the office key.

"By Jove, you were right."

Antony turned the bag gently upside down on the grass. A dozen large stones fell out—and something else. He flashed down his torch.

"Another key," he said.

He put the two keys in his pocket, and sat there for a ling time in silence, thinking. Bill was silent, too, not liking to interrupt his thoughts, but at last he said:

"Shall I put these things back?"

Antony looked up with a start.

"What? Oh, yes. No, I'll put them back. You give me a light, will you?"

Very slowly and carefully he put the clothes back in the bag, pausing as he took up each garment, in the certainty, as it seemed to Bill, that it had something to tell him if only he could read it. When the last of them was inside, he still waited there on his knees, thinking.

"That's the lot," said Bill.

Antony nodded at him.

"Yes, that's the lot," he said; "and that's the funny thing about it. You're sure it is the lot?"

"What do you mean?"

"Give me the torch a moment." He took it and flashed it over the ground between them. "Yes, that's the lot. It's funny." He stood up, the bag in his hands. "Now let's find a hiding-place for these, and then—" He said no more, but stepped off through the trees, Bill following him meekly.

As soon as they had got the bag off their hands and were clear of the copse, Antony became more communicative. He took the two keys out of his pocket.

"One of them is the office key, I suppose, and the other is the key of the passage cupboard. So I thought that perhaps we might have a look at the cupboard."

"I say, do you really think it is?"

"Well, I don't see what else it can be."

"But why should he want to throw it away?"

"Because it has now done its work, whatever it was, and he wants to wash his hands of the passage. He'd throw the passage away if he could. I don't think it matters much one way or another, and I don't suppose there's anything to find in the cupboard, but I feel that we must look."

"Do you still think Mark's body might be there?"

"No. And yet where else can it be? Unless I'm hopelessly wrong, and Cayley never killed him at all."

But the cupboard had not much to tell them that night. It was empty save for a few old bottles.

"Well, that's that," said Bill.

But Antony, on his knees with the torch in his hand, continued to search for something.

"What are you looking for?" asked Bill at last.

"Something that isn't there," said Antony, getting up and dusting his trousers. And he locked the door again.

LEFT-HANDED HUSBAND MAY SAVE THIS WOMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16.—The fact that her husband was left-handed may acquit Mrs. Grace Baratti, former artist's model and toast of poets, painters and sculptors in this city's gay Bohemia, of the charge of having slain her husband, Harry F. Baratti, song writer and professional pianist.

Only her persistent declaration that her husband had killed himself has broken the otherwise sphinx-like silence of the woman. Experts and physicians contradict her, saying Barratti was shot through the right hand and right temple.

But further investigation developed the fact that Baratti was left-handed, that he had unusually long arms and that he could have fired the deadly shots.

Mrs. Baratti, however, is still being held. For the experts declare the bullets that killed her husband were fired from a distance that makes suicide impossible.

Further than protesting her innocence, Mrs. Baratti remains an enigma to the police.

The Largest Hotel in The British Empire

Mount Royal Hotel

MONTREAL

Opens Wednesday, Dec. 20th.

THAT indomitable faith which inspired Champlain and Maisonneuve finds new expression today in Montreal's new hotel—The Mount Royal. Courageous adventurers! They built better than they knew, and Canada's Metropolis stands tribute to their memory.

To serve this growing city The Mount Royal was built. An entire year was required for its erection. More than 1500 men—artisan and artist—have been employed on the site. Steel mills and quarries, kilns and forests, factories and foundries throughout the land have contributed of their best for its building. Studios and stores, cabinet shops and looms without number, have been called on to provide its comforts and to enhance its beauty.

The work of building, equipping, furnishing and beautifying Canada's palatial new hotel has been completed. Now it is ready for guests. On Wednesday, December 20th, The Mount Royal opens for the accommodation of the public.

The Mount Royal's site—on Peal Street, just north of St. Catherine Street, the city's main thoroughfare—is one which for beauty of environment and convenience of location has few comparisons among hotels of the world's great cities. Almost at its door are the terminals of Canada's two great transcontinental railway systems. So too are the city's best shops and theatres. The financial district of "Canada's Capital of Finance," and the docks of the great trans-Atlantic ships are but a few minutes' ride by tram or taxi. And immediately north of the hotel is the city's most exclusive residential district, behind which towers Mount Royal, close-wooded and beautiful.

It is a point of interest that The Mount Royal is the largest hotel in The British Empire. But of greater interest to the travelling public, and to residents of Montreal, is the fact that The Mount Royal embodies the most advanced conception of modern hotel design, construction and equipment.

It is absolutely fireproof. It has one thousand, one hundred guest rooms—each with private bath.

The building is a masterpiece of architectural beauty, and the richness of its furnishings and decorations achieve an elegance and luxury that is distinctly refined and charming.

LAST YEAR POOR ONE FOR DAIRY PRODUCTS

Shortage of Feed and Water Hurt Many Ontario Farmers — Excellent Outlook For 1923

ENGLISH MARKET.

WARSAW, Dec. 16.—(Special.)—A well attended district meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association was held last evening in the town hall. The president, G. A. Gillespie, presided and in a short speech spoke of the hardships in the dairying business during the past few years, particularly the last two, but said that dairying is coming to be the best and most stable industry of all the branches of agricultural endeavor. Last year business conditions in England were terrible owing to a glut on the market of war left-overs and prices dropped to an extremely low mark. This was keenly felt here. Conditions have now changed, however, and a better price can now be obtained for dairy products. The price is not nearly up to the war time prices, but a fair value is given.

He stated that in 1922 there was less milk in Canada than for many years previous. This had been caused by the shortage in feed and water but he felt that if the farmers had fought this shortage instead of selling off their cattle there would now be a greater demand for milk and milk products.

He said that the people would be wise to back up the Minister of Agriculture as he was a good man for the dairying business and had been responsible for the Dairy Standards Act which necessitates that all milk be sold by its butter fat content.

He was extremly optimistic regarding the outlook for 1923 in the dairying business.

R. W. Ward Reports.

R. W. Ward, instructor for the Peterborough district, gave his report. Mr. Ward's duty is to see that all cheese is made the best quality possible, to impart information on all general dairying lines and to visit the farmers and cheese makers in the carrying out of his duties. His report showed that in the past year he had travelled 7,519 miles in the performance of his duties, made 598 visits to cheese factories, made 162 calls at various farms, attended 6 meetings with a total attendance of 378, attended 11 cheese board meetings and conversed with a large number of their patrons.

In reporting on the special butter fat tests he showed that the average butter fat in the milk had been 3.36, the average loss in the whey .217, the average pounds of milk needed to make one pound of cheese 11.31 and the average pounds of milk per cow 2943.42. This average he said, was very low and if persisted in would do more than any half dozen other causes to make dairying unprofitable.

Good Deliveries.

Mr. Gillespie stated that milk deliveries for 1922 had been more satisfactory than for the previous five years but that there were still a few careless people who should be made to deliver their milk to the factory in first class condition. He urged his hearers to be forehanded and lay in their ice now for the hot summer which is coming.

Mr. Gillespie, who for the past twenty years has been a director of the Eastern Ontario Dairying Association, was re-nominated for the position.

Value of Tests.

Mr. Publow, chief instructor for Eastern Ontario, spoke of the very low average that Mr. Ward had reported and urged the improvement of the herds and the elimination of the poor cow. He said that he hoped the Dairy Standard Act would get people to investigate the meaning of the butter fat tests so that they would know the true value of their herds. He emphasized the fact strongly that first-class milk is absolutely essential to first-class cheese.

The English market, where Canada formerly held almost a monopoly, is open to only the very best cheese, and Canada must fight to hold her trade there. The greatest weapon can be only an absolutely first class product. New Zealand has become Canada's greatest competitor in this field and is sending some excellent cheese to the market.

The stories circulated in England about people being poisoned by Canadian cheese, although proven untrue, has greatly injured the trade and made it increasingly necessary for only the best to be sent over.

The cost of production he said would also be greater if the milk was not in good condition. One careless farmer can do a great deal of harm when his milk goes to the factory for his milk will contaminate all other that it comes in contact with and a poor product will be the result.

Big Export Trade.

He showed that the dairy products had been a very big factor in Canada's export trade and any falling off in this trade would be a very serious thing to the whole nation as well as to the farmers directly interested. If the trade is to be held "Quality" must be the watchword and we must make the very best we know how in order to measure up to the other countries.

In 1921 Canada won most of the prizes in the competitions in England, but in 1922, under the same conditions, they did not do nearly so well and this lowering of the standard had created a decreasing demand for Canadian cheese.

In spite of these gloomy tales of the past he was, he said, very hopeful for the future as the present prospects all pointed to very decided improvements.

T. Braden, president of the Peterborough Cheese Board, spoke briefly, saying that the board had had no trouble in selling the cheese or in getting the money. Most of the grading had been done on the shelves.

Most popular low-priced car averages about 43 per cent. of the total number produced.

On Friday last the students attending the two courses met together in a social way and spent a very pleasant time.

This week lectures were given on economic entomology, bacteriology and elementary physics and chemistry by Mr. C. A. Galbraith, B.S.A., of Hornby. Mr. Webster, B.S.A., of Brockville, assistant representative, lectured on Animal Husbandry. The boys attending the course have visited the farms of Mr. John Marks, Hastings Road ,and Thompson Brothers near Westwood.

Miss Brown of Shedden, is teaching domestic science and Miss Harcourt is instructing the girls in nursing. On Friday afternoon of this week the latter addressed the girl students of the High school, those of the class and a number of the ladies of the town.

WHAT DENMARK

expect to raise short hogs and successfully compete or the Wiltshire trade in Britain.

Canadian Defects.

Taking the Canadian hog producing industry as a whole, continued Mr. Porter, the defects of Canada's breeding in comparison with that of other countries are: 1, short sides; 2, heavy shoulders; 3, too many heavy sides, and that is not good for either farmers or the trade generally; 4, the percentage of lean meat to the fat is too great; 5, thin streaks or bellies, and 6, lack of uniformity in weight and quality, in which respect competitors are putting it all over Canadians. These defects, Mr. Porter declared, can be bred and fed away from.

Tribute to Packers.

After paying a tribute to Canadian packers by recalling that everywhere he went in the British Isles they admitted that the butchering and trimming of hogs imported from Canada were quite O.K., the speaker spoke for a steadier volume of exports from Canada. For, he reminded his audience, John Bull must have a steady supply of bacon, get it where he may; and he sounded a note of warning that unless Canada ships weekly she stands to lose her bacon trade with the Mother Country.

The Danes' Methods.

Turning to the almost phenomenal success of the Danes in bidding for British bacon trade, he warmly eulogized their scientific methods of breeding and systematized organization which had gained for them 39 per cent. of Britain's patronage in 1922, as against Canada's 11 per cent. And yet, he said, their climate is not better than ours, their soil not so good, but they have created their own advantages. The Danes set out to breed hogs that would furnish British approved Wiltshires and they organized to give the British consumer what he wants. In Denmark one finds established 162 breeding centres, and three experimental stations for feeding and slaughtering tests to determine how many feed units are required to produce a pound of gain. The Danes methodically and scientifically experiment on how long a time and how cheaply a good hog carcass can be produced. In fact, uniformity prevails throughout, and they are down to fundamentals for getting the right kind of hog on the rail. Then they can get that type of animal in six months, from which can be butchered out quality Wiltshire sides.

Lessons to Learn.

Here, after defining the feed used by the Danes, much of which is imported, and stressing Canada's advantages in this connection, Mr. Porter concluded an exceedingly instructive talk by submitting the following lessons he gathered from his visit to Denmark as only essential for Canadians to adopt that they may quickly double, aye treble, their present bacon exports to the British Isles: Breed the right type of hogs for Wiltshire sides, select them, experiment for early maturity and economy in production, foster slaughtering tests, seek temperature-controlled transportation and maintain a steady weekly volume of trade to England. And always remember, he urged, that Canada can produce as good and as cheap hogs as any place in the world where hogs are grown.

tlement on the basis of the policy outlined in the Balfour note.

"The Italian Government," it says, "frankly demands this settlement from England on the ground that the Inter-allied indebtedness, being of a quite special character, cannot be classed with ordinary debts. The British government and the most eminent Englishmen in trade and finance realize perfectly well that England cannot exact payment of these debts without flinging the allies into an abyss of political crises and economic bankruptcy."

In brief the Italian plan is to deal with the German "C" bonds in such a manner that they will practically be eliminated, and Germany's reparation debt be reduced to "A" and "B" bonds, or 50,000,000,000 gold marks with a two year moratorium; that the German Government undertake to persuade German bankers and merchants to guarantee a loan of a minimum of 3,000,000,000 marks, one-sixth to be used to stabilize the mark and and the balance applied to reparations; but liens on the state revenue which already are pledged for reparations, cannot be used as a guarantee for the loan.

Another provision of the plan is that the powers entitled to reparations may demand that Germany continue to make reparations in kind and that after the expiration of the moratorium, when Germany's credit is restored, she resume the payment of reparations.

VESSELS STORING GRAIN FOR WINTER.

FORT WILLIAM, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Vessels were taking on grain yesterday, but the Pollock is due here shortly, and some of the boats discharging coal will have to load grain yet. The Central West is loaded and wintering here, and it is possible that some, if not all, of the others will stay here for the winter with storage grain.

Weather conditions have moderated, and the captain of the Collingwood stated that on Thursday night he came up in absolutely perfect winter weather, Lake Superior being as calm as in summer.

The Beaverton arrived here yesterday morning with package freight.

Including the cargo loaded on the Central West, total cargoes for yesterday were: Wheat, 1,463,000 bus.; oats, 275,000 bus.; and barley, 296,000 bus.

LAND OF THE PIONEER.

EDMONTON, December 16 (Canadian Press). — "There is no cause for pessimism or gloom," declared Premier Robert Greenfield, addressing the delegates to the convention of Alberta Union of Municipalities, in session here yesterday.

"This is the land of the pioneer, not the quitter," the Premier added, "and with our Western spirit there is no trouble, financially or otherwise, that we cannot surmount."

THE HYDRO RADIAL SCHEME THE ISSUE

Before Toronto Ratepayers in Annual Civic Campaign.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press)—The one big issue before the ratepayers of Toronto in the annual civic campaign now opening is the measure of support that is to be given the provincial Hydro electric radial scheme of which Toronto is to be the hub. The issue is uppermost in many other municipalities touched by the proposed first unit of the Hydro radial system between this city and Niagara, including Hamilton. Other parts of the province are also more or less directly interested.

The question of backing a municipally-owned system of radials has been before Toronto citizens for ten years, but the first definite move was made in January, 1916, when the ratepayers endorsed a by-law guaranteeing the bonds of the Hydro commission to the extent of $4,240,196 for a radial from the city to the adjacent town of Port Credit and also providing a free right-of-way across the city's waterfront, a distance of 8 miles on newly-made land controlled by the Toronto Harbor Commission. This Toronto-Port Credit section was to be part of the Toronto-Niagara radial and other municipalities affected assumed their portions of the bond guarantee at the same time.

The provincial commission made a start on the Port Credit unit and expended about a million dollars, mostly for right-of-way under the assurance of the late Hearst Provincial Government that a provincial guarantee would be forthcoming. Then the Farmers' Government came into power and Premier Drury, alarmed by the magnitude of the Hydro enterprises, not overlooking the rising cost of the Chippawa development, appointed the Sutherland Commission to investigate the merits of the radial scheme. This commission reported against the whole radial chiefly on the ground that the present nationally owned line would be paralleled. Premier Drury then announced that no government guarantee of bonds would be given except in the case of the Toronto-Niagara line respecting which he recognized some obligation because of the Hearst undertaking; but even in the case of this line the councils of the municipalities affected must, within a stated time, adopt resolutions reaffirming the approval given in 1916.

Toronto's council on July 27 last passed such a resolution in the face of considerable opposition from part of the press and some public bodies including the Board of Trade. When the time came to "execute the conveyance" of the right of way, a strip 106 wide sufficient for six tracks, strenuous objections were raised in council and outside to giving a commission appointed and controlled by the provincial government, supervision of Toronto streets. The Harbor Board proposed a narrower strip and running rights only for the radials. The objection was also raised that the radials would seriously eat into Toronto's street railway traffic and perhaps result in an increase in the cost of fares. Finally Council on September 6 adopted a resolution by 19 to 8 to hand over the land required. But the opponents of the scheme were not ready to submit. The Harbor Commission refused to sign the conveyance and the Board of Trade sought and obtained an injunction restraining the city from carrying out the agreement without first getting validating legislation from the Provincial Government or getting approval from the ratepayers again. The local Transportation Commision and the Canadian National Exhibition also protested. The plea that the people had already endorsed the scheme was brushed aside as it was shown that the new right of way scheme differed considerably from the 1916 proposition. For one thing it gave the commission a subway franchise from the waterfront into the heart of the business district which the original agreement did not.

In November of this year the Toronto Radial Association was formed to advocate civic control over radial entrances to be constructed by the Toronto Transportation Commission. This organization aroused considerable interest by holding meetings throughout the city with the result that council on Dec. 4 decided unanimously to again submit to the ratepayers the question, "Are you in favor of the Hydro radial agreement as passed by City Council on September 6?"

Both sides in the controversy are preparing a big battle. Two of the city papers are in favor of the entrance agreement and two against it. Ninteen members of the present City Council are in favor of the entrance and eight against it. It is expected that they will secure newspaper support for re-election on the sharply drawn line of the radial entrance issue.

FEDERAL ELECTIONS IN AUSTRALIA TO-DAY.

Premier Hughes in Keen Struggle With W. Piddington.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 16—(Canadian Press, via Reuter's).—Keen interest is being taken in the Federal elections to-day. The fight in North Sydney, where Premier Hughes is running against W. Piddington, has been warm. The Labor party withdrew its candidate to assist Piddington. Hughes lately represented Bendigo, but as the change in electoral boundaries seemed to prejudice his chance for re-election, he decided to contest North Sydney.

VIGOROUS POLICY OF DISAPPROVAL

Opposition Will Continue to Harass Imperial Government.

LONDON, Dec. 16. — (Canadian Press).—Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, intimated in a speech here last night that while he officially disapproves the indecorous conduct of his followers near the close of the session this week, he intends to pursue a vigorous policy of harassing the Government.

"When the new session begins," he said, "we are going to insist on the time of Parliament being given to consideration of real social issues. If the Government comes out with no greatly changed scheme of housing we shall use every ounce of our powers to harass and worry them until we prevail over their souls."

PRESENTED WITH A PYREX CASSEROLE

Miss Cadwell Remembered by Central Home and School Association.

A very pleasing event took place at Central school on Wednesday afternoon when the Home and School Association gave a Tea in honor of Miss Cadwell, the bride-elect. The guests included Mr. Mowat, the teachers of the staff and other friends.

Mrs. Pogue assisted the president in receiving. The tea table was very prettily decorated with yellow 'mums and candles of the same colour. Mrs. O. M. Steer poured tea and Mrs. R. Denne cut the jellies. Dainty refreshments were served by Mesdames Howson, Hall, Lush, Johnson, Carruthers, Stinson and Spencer. Musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. G. Perks and Mrs. A. A. Perrin.

The President, Mrs. F. E. Miller, made a few remarks, welcoming the guests and complimenting the teachers of the staff on their excellent work. She spoke briefly of the desire of the Association to be a real help to the teachers and of the mothers' interest in them and her longing to become better acquainted with them and thus be able to co-operate more fully in the great work of educating the 'child' for citizenship. On behalf of the Association she thanked the teachers for their assistance during the past year.

Miss Cadwell was then asked to come forward and Mrs. Miller read her the following address, while Mrs. G. J. Johnson presented her with a pyrex casserole set in a silver frame.

The Address.

Dear Miss Cadwell,—When the members of the Home and School Association of Central school heard of your resignation from the staff, we felt we could not let you leave us without expressing to you our feeling of appreciaion for your services to our children, to our society and to the community.

Perhaps we, who have had children in your room, can more fully understand the influence of your teaching, and we thank you heartily for their rapid advancement and the high ideals you have taught them, both by precept and example. In our Association we have always looked upon you as a real friend and have ever found you willing to assist us in every possible way. Many mothers have gone away from our meetings charmed with your amiable and pleasant smile.

Please accept this casserole, not for its intrinsic value, but as a slight token of our good will and best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the Association—

Florence Miller, President.
Margaret Denne, Secretary.

Miss Cadwell, although taken completely by surprise, made a fitting reply.

Mr. Mowat made a few appropriate remarks, referring to the excellent work of Miss Cadwell and the good feeling which now existed between the parents and teachers. He gave the Association no small amount of credit for this better understanding, and moved a hearty vote of thanks to the Association, which was seconded by Miss Tomilson.

SUPERLATIVE VALUE.

How a combination of three papers in one, such as The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal, can be produced and delivered to subscribers at the low price of two dollars a year, remains an unsolved mystery to the reading public. In each issue of this seventy-two page weekly there is a complete farm journal, a home magazine containing seven days' reading for every member of the family, and a weekly digest of world news.

If this were not enough, we now read an announcement by the publishers of The Family Herald that for a limited period they are offering each new subscriber a choice of five valuable books, cost free. Present subscribers who send in one new subscription to The Family Herald in addition to their own renewal also qualify for a book. Any one of the following books may be selected: (1) "The New Farmer's Manual," compiled and published by The Family Herald and Weekly Star, without question the best book of reference ever offered to the Canadian farmer; (2) "The Family Herald Cook Book" complete, scientific but non-technical; (3) "100 of the Best Songs"; (4) "100 Singing Games"; (5) "Album of Sacred Songs."

The fact is emphasized that these valuable books will not be sold for cash at any price, but can be obtained only as a reward for new subscriptions at the rate of two dollars per year. The supply is said to be limited, but the publishers guarantee delivery provided the new subscription is received by December 31.

CHRISTMAS BELLES ARE ALSO PEELING

They Can Shed Their Epidermis Like the Serpents at the Zoo.

By MARGARET ROHE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Now, while Christmas bells are pealing, Christmas belles are peeling, too. They can shed their epidermis like the serpents at the zoo. If they feel that their complexions are not all that they should be they just simply shed the old skin and in new skin rosily, pink and white as any iniant, face the world so all may see. Still it's really not so simple as the snakes and serpents do, for it takes a bit of money and a bit of suffring, too.

At the swagger beauty salons that are on Fifth Avenue they will very gladly skin you by French methods, which are new. One hundred dollars skins the face. If they also skin the neck, then it adds another fifty to your hundred-dollar check.

With Expert Haste—

With expert haste they skin your face. They skin you while you wait. When you have finished peeling, quite, it's just six days from date. Just six sick days to peel away your last year's facial skin. You have a treatment every day on forehead, cheeks, nose, chin, and soon in flakes and good-sized strips your skin all falls away. You're not a wholesome sight to see as nears the final day. For four days you may go abroad, of course behind a veil, but for the fifth and final days seclusion should prevail.

The beauty experts say to skin a face is quite a cinch, but I don't fancy it at all. The mere thought makes me flinch. It's all done by a chemical concoction in a smear each day applied.

What They'll Suffer—

Until it's dried it's left there to adhere. They say there's little danger and there's very little pain and ladies who have once been peeled will oft repeel again.

It really is amazing what the ladies, dear, will do to gain a little beauty and the bloom of youth renew. The things that they will suffer, and the dangers they'll go through to do away with wrinkles and an extra chin or two. 'Twould really be as thrilling as "The Perils of Pauline" if they should show these tortures in some reels upon the screen.

For instance, there's the lifted face—one sees it everywhere. The slack is all pulled up and then cut out beneath the hair.

But as for Peeling—

It gives a blank expression and a slightly Chinese stare, since the eyes are pulled all slanty, but there's not one wrinkle there.

To have your wrinkles thus removed, to vanish in a trice, would after all be worth the pain and also worth the price, but when it comes to peeling, that would ne'er appeal to me for what's the use of skinning off complexions I don't see, since I've an easy method that is simply out of sight. Each day a new complexion I put on and every night I take it off again with cream. I ask you—am I right?

WIN FOR CONSERVATIVES.

PORQUIS JCT., Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— All Hon. Howard Ferguson gives the Drury administration after election next fall is fifteen seats and the Conservatives will be in control. He predicted at a convention called here yesterday to choose a candidate for provincial riding of Cochrane. No choice was made and the convention adjourned until January in Timmins.

TO DEMAND RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The United States National convention of farmers' co-operative associations was told by Secretary Hoover yesterday that the farmer had a right to demand relief from the financial troubles by which he is handicapped. The Secretary predicted that action soon would be taken to provide this relief in a substantial and satisfactory manner An assurance of action also was given the convention by Senator Capper of Kansas, head of the Senate farm bloc, who told the delegates that the prospect for rural credit a legislation was growing better and better every day.

AMEND PLEADINGS TRIAL POSTPONED

Suit Involving Will Was Last on County Court List.

The last case on the list at the sittings of the county court, Israel Payne versus Hester Payne, was disposed of yesterday in a rather sudden manner.

Mr. Joseph Wearing, who appeared as counsel for Mr. A. E. Dixon, solicitor for the plaintiff, moved for certain amendments to the pleadings, which were granted by the Judge, but only on condition that a month or six weeks be given to Mr. J. A. O'Brien, counsel for the defendant, to prepare for the trial under the amendments, which is fixed by appointment. The judge at the same time expressed himself most strongly that a settlement should be reached by the opposing parties, stating that it was regrettable that a man over 80 should be engaged in a lawsuit with his daughter-in-law.

The circumstances of the case are that the plaintiff after the death of his wife and two daughters sent the railway fare to the daughter-in-law to bring her from California. After living together for 18 months the old man went to live with a nephew stating that his daughterin-law nagged him too much for money, and made his life generally miserable. This the defendant denies and states that the plaintiff was induced by outsiders. In the meantime she remains in the plaintiff's furnished house and refuses to give up possession or pay rent.

BALANCE OF CONFLICT BETWEEN FRIENDSHIPS

A Busy Housewife Risks Her Life to Uncover a Crime.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—In the balance of a conflict between two friendships—one of women, inspired of mother love; the other of men, succored by greed—hang two men's lives.

They are those of Abraham Becker, whose wife's mutilated body was found in a boiler pit seven months after she disappeared, and his friend, Reuben Norkin, on whose premises the body was buried.

These men now stand in the shadow of the death house, put there by Mrs. Rebecca Baldwin, friend of the dead woman.

Risks Her Life.

A busy housewife, mother of three, Mrs. Baldwin turned sleuth, risked her life and uncovered the alleged crime after police failed.

This unheralded heroine said:

"Being a mother I could not believe Mrs. Becker had left her four children and run away as her husband said.

"I was in a hospital then and could do little except think. I knew the woman well. I knew of her troubles and disillusionments.

"I knew other women had crossed her path. The husband had left her for a time.

"I got busy when I left the hospital. One afternoon I got to chatting with a man who had owned a candy store near Becker's home. He told me Becker had been in his shop at seven o'clock on the morning of his wife's disappearance and had joked about it. To the authorities Becker had said he discovered the disappearance when he came home for lunch.

Delves Deeper.

"I dug deeper. I found Becker had gone back to the woman who had made his wife unhappy.

"I found Becker had suffered a nervous collapse two days after the disappearance. I went to the authorities, but they said they wanted the body before they could bring indictments.

"I persisted. Finally the police grilled Becker. He implicated Norkin, who showed the detectives where the body was buried."

The women's friendship lasted but—

When Norkin was arrested, he insisted his part in the murder was that of a disinterested service for Becker. But before they came to trial the men turned on each other, each accusing the other of the crime.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE MY BOY THIS CHRISTMAS?

The old problem will soon be presenting itself to the fathers and mothers of Canada: What shall I give my boy this Christmas?

Why not give him a radio set? Of all things, that is the one thing your boy would appreciate and enjoy. Did you ever stop to think what an education your boy can get through the instrumentality of an efficient receiving set?

Do you know that the best of the world's college professors are "on air" 'every night?

Do your know that the best of the world's statesmen are "on the air" every night?

Do you know that the voices of the best opera singers are being transmitted night after night?

Do you know that every event of importance, every political meeting, every scientific lecture, every sporting event, is being transmitted as soon as it takes place and that you can hear it just as soon as those who are sitting in the lecture room, or the theatre, or the stadium?

You want to keep your boy at home in the winter evenings, don't you?

You would like your boy to grow up with a keen mind and a knowledge of the ways of men, and of the things that count.

A radio receiving set will do more to train your boy than any other medium you could possibly think of.

There are many other things you will enjoy when you have radio in your home. It is something the whole family can enjoy, and the upkeep— once the set is installed— is practically nil.

Yes, you should get your boy, or boys, a good radio set, but when you purchase make sure the dealer is thoroughly reliable, and that the set is of known standard make. This is important, because some "Gyp" manufacturers have sought to take advantage of the radio boom and have placed on the market a lot of material that is practically worthless.

The Greene Christmas Radio Club supplies to Club members an outfit at $59.00 which is giving excellent results, and is manufactured by the Northern Electric Co., Ltd., one of Canada's oldest and largest industries ,and manufacturers of Bell Telephone equipment. The makers stand behind these outfits in every particular, and the J. M. Greene Music Co., Ltd., who represent the Northern Electric Co. in this district, guarantees to all its customers the best possible service and attention. You should get in on this Club Sale at once.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT SOCIAL HELD AT "Y."

Hot Dogs and Coffee Followed a Picture and Musical Programme.

The first of the big nights to be held Friday evenings at the Y. M. C. A. was held last night. Educational and scenic moving pictures were shown in the lobby and fine music supplied by Vernon Willard at the piano. The pictures included "The Building of Canada's Merchant Marine," "The Wonders of Niagara," "The Making of Steel Rails," "Paper-Making"—6 reels in all. There was a splendid attendance for the first night, over 85 enjoying the programme at various stages. At the conclusion of the pictures, hot dogs and coffee were served to sixty, some of the members and friends having gone earlier in the evening after having enjoyed some of the programme.

The Reception and Social Committee who are responsible for the promotion of these events turned out splendidly, and Wallace's workers show that they are on the job in a real way. Every detail of the programme was carried out with clock-like precision, and the convenors of the different sub-committees are to be congratulated on their efficient handling of their various duties.

There will be no special event next Friday evening on account of the fact that most of the stores will be open, but a New Year's reception is being planned which will be a real event. Every member of the Association should plan to visit the building on New Year's Day.

north-west corner of Hunter and Aylmer Streets, Fleming Place traverses the property; and according to a bill in his father's papers the lumber for the house was bought from Mr. Young, of Young's Point, at $7.00 a thousand feet.

These sketches merely suggest the Sheriff's great store of memories. He is a link with the pioneers, one of Peterborough's patriarchs, and his many friends join in congratulating him upon his various anniversaries, especially his 85th birthday, and will wish for him a full measure of vigour in the years that remain. And to His Honour Judge Huycke they will accord their feelings of gratitude for the kindly sentiment that prompted and accompanied his eloquent public tribute to the "revered Sheriff."

CAMP BOYS ENTERTAINED.

Are Guests of Rotary Club at Oyster Supper in the Armouries.

The boys who attended the Rotary Camp last summer were the guests of the Peterborough Rotary Club at a most enjoyable re-union held in the Armouries last evening. Each Rotarian was assigned the task of bringing one of the boys, and the result was an attendance of practically every youngster who was at camp. It was a night of enjoyment, not only for the boys but for their hosts, who intend to keep in touch with their guests throughout the winter.

The first part of the evening was devoted to indoor baseball, the youngsters being divided into two squads and two games being played at once, a make-shift diamond at the west end of the Armouries making the second game possible. Afterwards the Rotarians themselves had a battle royal, in which some new talent for the next Soft Ball League was uncovered.

Then came an oyster supper for the boys, served by Rotarian Percy Hooper, and the fifty young guests attacked the good things with a vengeance, stopping long enough to sing "MacDonald's Form" and give their camp yell for the benefit of the Rotarians.

President John Crane welcomed the boys and remarked that they would make a good Rotary Club, for they had practically a one hundred per cent. attendance. In wishing them a merry Christmas, he hoped they would all be at Rotary Camp next summer.

One of the little guests, "Happy" O'Toole, contributed a couple of funny stories, and the affair was brought to an end with the National Anthem and three hearty cheers from the boys for the Rotary Club.

Doug. Loomis and Fred. McNeely, who were in charge of the camp last summer, were among the guests.

KEMAL PASHA TO GET PRESENT 3 AIRPLANES.

Also Decorated Sword from the Indian Mohammedans as Tokens of Sympathy,.

DELHI, India, Dec. 16.—(Associated Press)—Three airplanes and a finely decorated sword are to be presented to Mustapha Kemal Pasha by Indian Mohammedans as tokens of their sympathy with his cause. These gifts have been offered through the Central Khalifat Committee, which recently has been in session here. One of the airplanes is to be given by the Agra province.

The Khalifat Committee, in the resolutions it passed, congragulated Mustapha Kemal Pasha and the Nationalist Turks upon their recent victories over the Greeks, and approved of the establishment of an Angora Legion in India. The governments of France and Italy were thanked for the aid which they had given to Turkey. Appreciation was also expressed to the King of Afghanistan for granting equal rights to Hindus, in the interest of Hindu-Moslem unity.

With regard to the anti-Turkish policy recently displayed by Great Britain, the Khalifat Committee was outspoken in its condemnation. Resolutions passed on this subject were as follows:

"This meeting of the Central Khalifat Committee accepts the challenge thrown by Mr. Lloyd George, the British Premier, in his speech at Manchester, to Asia on the one hand an Islam on the other, and assures him and other persons of his way of thinking that so far as Islam is concerned this challenge to the Moslems of the world, alive to their responsibility, are ever ready to meet in every possible manner.

"This meeting of the Central Khalifat Committee considers the British activities ,in their attempts to internationalize the Turkish Straits, as unjust and coercive, and in the opinion of this committee such internationalization could only be justifiable in case other powers, especially Britain, internationalize the seas under their respective influences, and, further, in the opinion of this meeting, such attempts are detrimental to the freedom of the Khalifa of Islam and the seat of the Khalifat."

LITTLE ONES WITHOUT CLOTHES: WHO'LL HELP?

Peterborogh Children Prevented From Attending School by Lack of Clothing.

G. A. Gillespie has kindly loaned a room in the Peterborough Milk Products Building to the Big Sister hood for carrfying on their philanthropic work. It is hoped the public will make a note of this, and forward to the Sisterhood's new quarters such relief and Christmas cheer as they can spare for the needy, this joyous Yuletide season.

A family of four boys, ages eight, ten, twelve and fourteen; and three girls, ages six, eight and twelve years; are prevented from attending school by lack of suitable clothing. Clothes for these poor children will be gratefully received by the Big Sisterhood, and it is hoped such will be forth coming at an early date.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED—

You know that wedding invitations are always issued by the bride's parents, from two weeks to a month before the day set for the wedding.

If the bride is an orphan they are sent out in the name of her nearest relative. If there is an older brother they may be issued in his name, but never in the name of a sister, unless she is much older than the bride, or unless she is a married woman.

Protests are being made against highway billboards.

JEWS IN PARLIAMENT.

LONDON (By mail to United Press).—Britain has eleven Jewish members in its newly-elected Parliament. Six of them are Conservatives, three Lloyd Georgians, one Asquithian, and one Labor. The Labor member, E .Shinwell, is the first Jew to ever represent a Scottish constituency. He is, further, the fifty-first Jew to be elected since Jews were first permitted to enter the house of commonse in 1858. This calculation excludes Jews who left the faith.

The Greatest Gift of All
An Eureka Vacuum Cleaner

For the first time the "EUREKA" Vacuum Cleaner will be offered at a reduced price. This offer will only hold good until December 30th.

"EUREKA" Vacuum Cleaner alone for $49.50
With attachments for $57.50

THESE ARE STRICTLY CASH PRICES

Never before have "EUREKA" Electric Vacuum Cleaners been reduced in price. This offer was made possible by a material agreement between the factory and ourselves to allow 12 "EUREKAS" to be put on Sale at a reduced cash price.

No gift in the world could bring more happiness with it than an "EUREKA" Vacuum Cleaner. Think of the many times mother would use it in a year. Think of the tiresome task of sweeping or beating rugs—which is the greatest destroyer of rugs in existence—that would pass into history. Think of the prolonged life and beauty of your rugs. Think of a house with clean rugs, draperies, cushions, upholstered furniture, etc. Only made possible by the "EUREKA" Vacuum Cleaner, which is to be offered at a reduced price. By suction alone does the "EUREKA" absolutely clean your rugs. The large volume of air which passes through the rugs, at such a great velocity, when the "EUREKA" is on the job absolutely cleans the embedded dirt and sand from surface and deep down in the body of the rug without harming the pile whatsoever. It gets the dirt—not the carpet.

Let the family club together and give mother the greatest surprise of her life on Christmas morning, to see an Electric Vacuum Cleaner awaiting her to help her in her daily tasks from now on.

Ask for a demonstration on the Third Floor. It will be given with pleasure.

Special offer exists for one week only. Take advantage of it today.
Cleaner alone $49.50
With attachments $57.50

APPLIED FOR CITIZENSHIP

David Zacks and Nick Doukas Favorably Received by Judge.

Judge Huycke held out strong assurances yesterday afternoon that the application of David Zacks and Nicholas Doukas for naturalization would be granted. His Honour said he knew nothing against either man, and told them their requests in all probability would be approved.

"I want to say to both of you that it is a great privilege to be a Canadian and a citizen of the British Empire," the Judge said in a parting counsel. "You are given the same privileges as those who were born and brought up here, and the same as the boys who went overseas. Doukas you come from a place where they have been shooting their prime ministers, and in the country where Zacks came from nearly two million persons have been executed in the last few years. I don't wonder that you want to live here for that very protection and security that Canada gives to all her people. I hope you will both be loyal and good men. Hereafter this country will be yours. You will be Canadians and I hope that thought will always be with you."

Mr. Zacks came originally from Poland, near Warsaw, but has lived in New York, Kingston and Peterborough, having been here for ten years. He has four children, the oldest of whom is taking a philosophy course at Queen's University.

Doukas emigrated from Greece and has been in Peterborough ten years. He has six children, with such classical names as Aphrodite, Olga, Demitra, but the last is just plain Mary, the "grand old name" as George M. Cohan sang of it.

Witnesses appeared in support of the applications of both men, who themselves told the Judge that they had supported within their means various patriotic funds during the war. His Honour said that they must endeavour to learn what the Canadian Government means and prepare themselves as well as possible for citizenship. In asking to be naturalized Mr. Zacks and Mr. Doukas said they considered Peterborough their home, they had young families growing up and they wanted "to be the same as the other people."

The Boy and the Banker

Has your boy reached the age when you would like him to have a Savings Account of his own?

If so, any Branch Manager of The Bank of Toronto will be pleased to meet him and arrange for the opening of his account.

We are especially interested in meeting the young depositors who come to us. They are the business men of tomorrow. If we know and can encourage the Boy as he is saving his money, we will surely be of good assistance to the Man when he engages in business.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF THE P.C.I. BIG EVENT

A Large Attendance of Students, Parents and Friends Enjoy a Very Happy Afternoon Indeed

The annual P. C. I. Commencement Exercises held in the Institute's large assembly hall yesterday afternoon, commencing at three o'clock, attracted a large gathering of pupils, parents and friends, and proved a very happy function indeed. The platform was prettily decorated with flags and evergreens and presented an acceptably colorful and appropriately cheerful effect.

Chairman A. A. Fowler, of the Board of Education, presided over the interest-holding proceedings, and in his opening address tendered well-deserved credit to Principal H. R. H. Kenner and his capable staff for their splendid educational work in the school, so strikingly reflected in the progress of its students. Mr. Fowler also congratulated this city upon having such capable men at the head of its two most important educational institutions as Principal H. R. H. Kenner of the P. C. I. and Principal J. A. McKone, of the Peterborough Business College.

Continuing, the chairman expressed his disapproval that the June examinations should determine the actual standing of students, as while some scholars are nervous when writing at such tests, others are so endowed by nature that they are perfectly cool and collected while writing for promotion. Mr. Fowler held that a student's ability and advancement should be gauged and made on the reports of his work during the whole school term and not depend necessarily upon the result of his summer written examinations.

Referring to the projected extension to the Collegiate Institute building, the speaker regretted that only a bicycle shed had as yet been added. But, he explained, the Board of Education had hesitated submitting a concrete proposition to the ratepayers, entailing an expenditure of a large amount of money, because ,owing to business and industrial conditions, this year was an unpromising one in which to invite the people to pass a by-law authorizing the necessary expenditure. The outcome would have been a complete turn-down of the measure, in his opinion.

Contending that next year the Board will find it imperative that they adopt some definite plan for relieving the attendance congestion at the P.C.I., Mr. Fowler stressed that overcrowded condition which necessitates charging a fee of $50 a year to out-of-town students and thus limits their number and creates more room for city students.

The Programme.

The following programme was most acceptably carried out, with the whole-hearted co-operation of P. C. I. students and members of the teaching staff:

School Chorus—(Carl C. Browne, M.A., Conductor).

Chairman's Address — Mr. A. A. Fowler, Chairman Board of Education.

The Orchestra — "The Ensign" (Beyer.)

Presentation of the Nicholls Scholarhips— The Rev. J. A. Mackenzie, B.A.

The Girls' Glee Club—Two Part Song, "Barcarolle" (Offenbach.)

Presentation of Graduation Diplomas—Mr. Roland Denne.

The Boys' Gle eClub—"Just Whistle a Little Low Tune"—(Parks).

Presentation of Commercial Diplomas—Mr. Joseph Wearing, B.A.

The Girls' Glee Club— Two Part Song, "Angelus" (Chaminade.)

Presentation of Girls' Athletic Prizes—Miss M. McIntosh, B.A.

P.C.I. Male Quartette — "Lucky Jim" (Parks.)

Presentation of Boys' Athletic Prizes—H. R. H. Kenner.

School Chorus.

Presentation of Prizes to the Head Girl and the Head Boy of the School—Mr. A. S. Zavitz, B.A., and the Principal.

The Boys' Glee Club—"The Telephone" (Lincoln Hall.)

Valedictory Address—Written by Leonard Grime, to be read by Ian Munro.

The Orchestra — "Cheer Up"—(Beyer).

God Save the King.)

In each case the presentation of the awards and diplomas was accompanied by short but fitting addresses.

AFeature.

The feature of the programme was the presentation of prizes to the head girl and the head boy of the school. Mr. A. S. Zavitz presented the prize to the winning girl, Jean Kelly, president of the Girls' Athletic Society; Mr. Kenner presented the prize to the winning boy, Herbert Bradburn, secretary of the Boys' Athletic Society in 1921 and 1922. Their merit for acknowledgment as heads of the school was based on the following standard of attainment: Athletics 25 p.c., leadership 25c., scholarship 25 p.c. and character 25 p.c.

Music and Tea.

The musical portions of the programme were delightfully rendered by the P.C.I. orchestra, under the capable direction of Mr. Martin Chenhall.

Afternoon tea was served in the library room by members of the staff and the graduating class, to parents and other invited guests.

BY CONSIDERING

trary, you will fee strong, vigorous, alert, active, full of life.

"Further still, you will feel very cheerful and fit in every way.

"ONE—TWO—THREE."

At the word "three" the subject opens his eyes—always with a smile and an expression of well-being and contentment on his face.

Sometimes,—though rarely,—the patient is cured on the spot. At other times (and this is more generally the case) he finds himself relieved—his pain or his depression has partially or totally disappeared though only for a certain lapse of time.

In every case it is necessary to renew the suggestions more or less frequently, according to your subject. You must be careful always to space them out at longer and longer intervals, according to the progress obtained, until they are no longer necessary,—that is to say when the cure is complete.

Before sending away your patient, you must tell him that he carries within him the instrument by which he can cure himself, and that you are as it were, only a professor teaching him to use this instrument, and that he must help you in your task.

Thus, every morning before rising, and every night on getting into bed, he must shut his eyes and in thought transport himself into your presence ,and then repeat twenty times consecutively in a monotonous voice, counting by means of a string with twenty knots in it, this little phase:

"EVERY DAY IN EVERY WAY, I AM GETTING BETTER AND BETTER."

In his mind he should emphasize the words "in every way" which applies to every need mental or physical. This general suggestion is more efficacious than special ones.

Thus it is easy to realize the part played by the give of the suggestions.

He is not a master who gives orders, but a friend, a guide, who leads the patient, step by step, on the road to health.

As all the suggestions are given in the interest of the patient, the Unconscious of the latter asks nothing better than to assimilate them and transform them into Autosuggestions.

When this has been done, the cure is obtained more or less rapidly according to circumstances .

Let me give two interesting cases where Autosuggestion following visits, produced cures:

Case 4.

Mme. M., aged 43, Mazeville. Comes at the end of 1916 for violent pains in the head from which she has suffered all her life. After a few visit they vanish completely! Two months afterwards she realized that she was cured of a prolapse of the uterus which she had not mentioned to me, and of which she was not thinking when she made her Autosuggestion. (This result is due to the words: "in every way" contained in the formula used morning and evening.)

Case 5.

Mme. D., Choisy-le-Roi—Only one general suggestion from me in July, 1916, and Autosuggestion on her part morning and evening. In October of the same year this lady tells me that she is cured of an internal disorder from which she had suffered for more than twenty years. Up to April, 1920, the cure is still holding good. (Same remark as in the preceding cas.e)

NOT SURPRISED AT FARMERS' DECISION.

CALGARY, Dec 16..—(Canadian Press).—"I am not at all surprised that the Ontario farmers expressed themselves as opposed to the formation of a political party," stated R. W. Wood, President of the United Farmers of Alberta, to the Canadian Press yesterday when shown a Toronto despatch respecting the attitude of the farmers in Ontario.

"I do not think the rank and file of the organized farmers in any province would favor being merged into a political party," he continued. "Many of them may not have a clear idea of just what they want, but most of them have definite ideas that they have had enough of political bossism by either professional or amateur politicians. I am not surprised, consequently of course, I am not disappointed," he said.

"I Was Terribly Weak After Baby Was Born"

Mrs. H. McClure, Norwood, Ont., writes:

"After my baby was born, I was terribly weak and run down, with pains across my back. I had heard so much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that I decided to try it. Three boxes proved enough to make me quite strong and well again. I also used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash which broke out on the baby, and the rash disappeared completely in a short time."

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out, and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ACCIDENTS ON BETHANY ROADS

Highways to Village Have Been in Dangerous Condition—News Briefs.

BETHANY, Dec. 16.—The township council will met Friday in the last session of this year.

Rev. J. E. Beckel is in Toronto, this week on business.

F. C. Dawe has returned home after attending the funeral of his father at Roseneath.

The roads have been very dangerous for the past few days, and quite a few people have had narrow escapes from accidents. Mr. McDowell of Cavan, when returning home from here had his car turn over into the ditch but fortunately no serious damage resulted. It is also reported that Dr. Hamilton had quite an unpleasant experience on Vance's Hill. The snow storm of Friday was indeed ta welcome guest.

Clifton Spencer of Wellington is visiting his sister, Mrs P. C. Brown.

G. W. Powell, agent for the Children's Shelter of Peterboro, was in the village on Thursday last.

The Epworth League meeting in connection with the Methodist church was held as usual on Wednesday evening when the proceedings here in charge of the missionary department of which Mrs. A. H. Monk is vice-president. Quite a helpful program was given. Next week the Bible Study group will put on the programme.

Mrs. Sheilch of Manitoba, who has been home visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Mulligan for the past two months, has returned home.

The services on the Methodist Circuit next Sunday will be as follows: Yelverton at 11 a.m. Rev. J. E. Beckel; Bethany at 7—Rev. Beckel; Monk; Ebenezer at 3 p.m.— Rev. el; Bethany at 7 p.m. —Rev. Beckel; Fleetwood at 7 p.m.—A. H. Monk.

Suffered From Pimples and Blotches For Fifteen Years

When the blood becomes impure it is only natural that pimples, blotches boils or some other blood trouble will manifest itself by breaking out of the system.

There is only one way to get rid of these obnoxious skin troubles and that is by giving the impure blood a thorough cleansing by the use of a good blood purifier, such as

Burdock Blood Bitters

This remarkable remedy has been on the market for over forty years, is the best obtainable, and will do all we claim for it as a blood cleanser.

Mr. Albert R. De Witte, Lake Valley, Sask., writes: "I have suffered very much from pimples and unsightly blotches for the past fifteen years, and was so bad that I hated to go out anywhere. I tried many different medicines, but none seemed to help. A friend told me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I have used three and a half bottles, and now I have a clear, rosy complexion."

GERMANY JUBILANT OVER DREAM LOAN

Somebody Started Rumor That United States Would Lend Them a Billion and a Half.

BERLIN, Dec. 16. — (Canadian Press).—Reports from New York and London announcing the possibility of a United States loan of $1,500,000,000 to Germany were featured by big headlines in yesterday's papers.

Much credence was given the reports, but occasionally there was to be found the pessimist who expressed the opinion that they were fabrications put forth to stimulate the sluggish Christmas shopping. All in all Berlin generally, however, adopted the belief that an American Santa Clause was coming to Europe.

McGrath Warned to Leave United States.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Daniel J. McGrath, formerly Dail Eireann Consul to the United States, yesterday was warned to leave the United States before the morning of December 26, by a mysterious letter writer who signed himself, "Authority, Irish Republican Army."

Hudson Bay Railway May Be Built Soon.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Following a conference between J. A. Campbell, Commissioner of Northern Manitoba, and members of the Provincial Government, it was announced yesterday that the campaign to bring about the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway was endorsed by the members who promised to actively support the project. The subject, it is understood, will be made an issue at the forthcoming session of the Legislature.

Mr. Campbell will shortly confer with members of the Progressive party with a view of enlisting their aid at Ottawa.

PRESS STILL ASSERTS AMERICA WILL HELP.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.— (Canadian Press.) — Without exception Washington correspondents of New York dailies continue to assert that United States' administrative officials are actively though secretly working out some plan for relieving Germany's financial distress. Times correspondent asserts definitely that the matter of arranging an international loan was discussed at a meeting of the cabinet yesterday afternoon and the Tribune declares that "Plans for the move America is to make in the hope of restoring normal conditions in Europe are progressing rapidly."

ONTARIO HOUSE TO MEET JANUARY 23RD.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — Ontario Legislature will assemble for its next session on January 23rd. This date was selected yesterday afternoon at Parliament Buildings during course of a caucus which government members held. Session will be the fourth of Ontario's fifteenth parliament. Coming session is opening almost a month earlier than did last which assembled on February 14th of this year.

Minors Are Hit Hard By New Draft Rule--Other Sport News

Killing Black Cat is Jinx For "Slim" Harris

Bryon Harris, better known as "Slim" is a member of the Philadelphia Athletics' pitching staff.

Harris is one of the best pitchers in the league as far as stuff is concerned. He has a dazzling curve ball that breaks sharply and one of the fastest balls in major league keeping.

Besides having a great amount of stuff, Harris has an awkward delivery and this peculiar pitching motion adds to his effectiveness.

Harris won 9 games and lost 20 last season. A black cat made a losing pitcher of Harris. It happened down in Texas one day last winter. Harris, amusing himself with a sling shot, too a crack at a black cat that was wandering across a field. His aim was true and he killed the cat.

The killing of the cat happened in the presence of three witnesses and the news spread. It reached the American League this spring and ball players always eager for a psychological advantage, seized upon the incident and made it part of their attack whenever Connie Mack called upon Harris to pitch.

As Harris warmed up he would hear condoling messages such as:

"Tough luck, 'Slim,' that a pitcher with your stuff can't win, but it's that black cat you killed that's doing it. Killing a black cat ruins a man for life."

"Gee, 'Slim' I'd sooner break a hundred looking-glasses than even slap a black cat, much less kill one."

The thing finally got Harris. He became firmly convinced that it was the black cat that held him back and any time he pitched he kept thinking about the death of the smoky feline so that he could not concentrate upon his pitching, would slow up his delivery, fail to get the break on his curve ball and lose courtol.

The story of Harris' failure in 1922 is the story of a slain cat.

EXPERT OFFERS HIS ADVICE TO BOWLERS

Most Important Thing is to Hit the Head Pin.

By JIMMY SMITH.

World Famous Bowler

Many people make the mistake of trying to learn the sport of bowling in one trial. It can't be done.

I would advise the novice to start using a straight ball. He can either start it down the center of the alley or on the right side and let it work into the pins.

Regardless of the style of delivery used the most important thing is to hit the head pin. It is preferable to hit the head pin full rather than miss it entirely.

Hit the Head Pin.

Seldom is a strike made if the head pin is missed, but many a strike is made when the ball hits the head pin full a hit that is usually regarded as a possible spilt.

Great speed is not necessary to success. Some of the game's greatest bowlers use a slow ball, while others prefer a half speed.

A half-speed ball gives the pins a chance to work as the ball cuts through.

Control is the main thing, the most essential asset of any good bowler. When one acquires control he can increase his speed if he desires.

Curve Ball Destructive.

A hook or curve ball is generally considered the most destructive delivery.

If a bowler uses a hook, he should make it a working hook. Don't use speed; not at first, bcause speed rally doesn't knock down any more wood, and kills the hook because it doesn't give it a chance to work.

When throwing a hook take it easy and always try to keep the ball working on the right side of the pins. Start the hook along the right side of the alley and get it working so that it takes the curve as it nears the pins.

In making spares on the right side of the alley do not turn your hand at all, slide the fingers together in gripping the ball and shoot cross alley at them.

If you are right-handed move over to the left side of the alley and bowl across at the Nos. 3, 6, 8, 9 or 10. If your are left-handed move to the right side of the alley and shoot across.

Practice, for practice makes perfect.

BASKET BALL QUIZ

BY REFEREE

SUBSTITUTE.

When a substitute goes into the game what formality must he go through?

He must report to the scorers and be recognized by the referee. He cannot communicate with any player until play has been resumed.

DEAD BALL.

In making a throw for the basket the ball becomes lodged in the supports, how must the ball be put in play, under the basket or in the center circle?

The ball shall be put in play in the center circle.

BLOCKING.

What is blocking?

Blocking is impeding the progress of an opponet who has not the ball.

O.L.H.A. TO MEET.

If enthusiasm counts for anything, the proposed Ontario Ladies' Hockey Association should get off to a flying start at th big meeting that has been called for this afternoon at 2.15, at the Temple Building, corner of Bay and Richmond Streets, Toronto.

If communications and inquiries count for anything, there should be delegates present from all parts of Ontario to help in the forming of this association.

Owing to the nearness of the actual hockey season, it is quite possible that only those clubs that attend this meeting will be accepted to membership this year, as no further delay can be considered in order to have everything in readiness for the opening of the season.

If time will permit, the teams will probably be grouped in the different sections.

SIKI INVESTIGATION.

PARIS, December 16 (Canadian Press). — The Boxing Federation Committee, which is investigating the charges of "Battling" Siki that his fight with Carpentier was framed, yesterday asked the Federation to take no notice of Siki's letter proposing a fight with Carpentier for the benefit of scientific laboratories until the Senegalese consents to appear before the committee to give testimony.

Several more witnesses appeared before the committee yesterday to tell what they knew about the Carpentier-Siki fight.

TO ADOPT SCHEDULE.

CHICAGO, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Club owners of the American Association will meet here to-day to adopt a schedule for the 1923 season. President Hickey said last night that a schedule calling for 168 games, opening the season on 18th April, and closing during the first week in October, probably would be adopted.

New Draft Rule Will Be Semi-Boycott to Minors

Coast and International Leagues, American Association and Western and Three I. Leagues Will Be Hard Hit—Will Have to Draw All Material From Leagues of Lower Classification.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16:— (Canadian Press.)— Discussing the rule laid down by the joint major league meeting Thursday that all players released by major or minor leagues would be subject to draft, baseball men said yesterday that it was tantamount to a semi-boycott of the minors which refused re-establishment of the old draft law.

The new rule provides that after January 13, every player the majors release to the minors may be drafted. As a result, baseball men said the Coast and International, Leagues, the American Association and the Western and Three I. Leagues will be compelled to bow to the majors or get new material from leagues of lower classification.

The draft problem has given Commissioner Landis something to worry about. When questioned about it yesterday, he said:

"I am tired. I won't discuss the draft any further. It has caused me considerable worry since I came into baseball, trying to bring these five outstanding minor leagues into the fold, recognizing the draft, but without success."

The deal through which Eddie Collins was to become a member of the New York Americans, appeared to have died, but it was understood that officials of both clubs would make another attempt, probably today, to reach an agreement. The White Sox are after Aaron Ward, the present Yankee second baseman, Bob Meusel and Waite Hoyt.

"They want too much," said Miller Huggins, Yankee manager.

The owners were particularly pleased with the rules affecting the time limit for trading and the maximum players roster. June 15 was set as the time for bartering of players to cease. The old rule placed the date at August 1. Under the new roster cutting law, clubs will have until midnight of June 14, to cut their lists to 25 players. This date gives an additional month for looking over recruit packs.

While the owners of the Brooklyn Club failed Thursday to put through deals by which Zack Wheat and Jimmy Johnston would go to other clubs, they acquired from the Cubs an all-round player of exceptional ability, Turner Barber. Barber joined the Cubs in 1917, being purchased from Baltimore for $17,000. He played in the outfield for the Cubs, but had his greatest success at first base. He had a batting average of .309 in 84 games with the Cubs last season.

Most of the owners left for their homes Thursday night after the close of the joint meeting.

Peterboro Boy Put Up a Great Scrap

Lou Marsh, writing in the Toronto Star has the following to say regarding the Millard-Volp bout Thursday evening in the 112-pound class in the Toronto City Championship bouts:

A Slugfest.

The real tid-bit of last night's card was provided by Mike Volp, the St. Helen's little Italian slugger, and Raymond Millard, a mild-looking Peterboro novice, in the 112-pound class. Millard is only 15 years old, but he is a "fighting fool." He hasn't any more guard than the Salvation Army, but he has an awkward shift, and he hits with both hands harder than most lightweights.

Millard started out like he was playing "peas porridge hot and peas porridge cold" with some schoolgirl. He just slapped at Mike until the swarthy son of sunny Italy rudely smote his on the smeller. Right there the battle commenced to start from the knees and lay them on Mike's eyebrows. He knocked the surprised Mike all over the lot. Then Mike got his two fists windmilling and Millard wondered if the roof had caved in. For three solid rounds they clouted each other with right and left swings. Both staggered and wobbled to the end, and the judges gave the bout to Millard but it was mighty close.

CAN DIDIER PITRE DO A COMEBACK?

Veteran Puck Chaser is Giving Pa Time the Battle of His Life.

The surprise of the pre-season hockey news is that Didier Pitre is not only essaying a "come-back" but that the rotund veteran seems to have a fair chance of accomplishing that feat.

Under the immutable laws of nature, Pitre is near the end of a remarkable career, even if he should hold on for another season. But even if he does not make the grade this year, he can hang up his battered skates with the knowledge that he gave a performance that has never been excelled, in a point of length of service in the fastest company in the world. Didier, well over forty years of age, until last year retained nearly all of his wonderful speed and shooting ability, and played as a regular in the fastest company of the speediest games the world knows. It was only last season that his speed was dulled to such a degree that he was for the first time in a career extending over twenty years of active service, relegated to the bench.

Pitre is the last of the real Old Guard in hockey—a veteran of the Michigan League days when Hod Stuart, the Mallens, Hall and other great puck chasers of a half-forgotten past were stars. All of these have passed out of active playing arena except Pitre, who, with a physique that is remarkable and a courage undaunted in the face of advancing years, is still fighting gamely—and for sheer love of the game—to wear the red, white and blue of Canadiens another year.

Cylonic, picturesque, and one of the cleanest, fairest players who ever pulled on a skate, Pitre will have the best wishes of every fan for a final good year before he hangs up the steels for all time.

CLRMER WITH ORIOLES.

BALTIMORE, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Bill Clymer, last year's manager of the Newark Internationals, has been signed by the Baltimore Club of that League, to act as coach and scout, Manager Jack Dunn, of the Orioles, announced yesterday.

EXTENSIVE HIGHWAY WORK

TORONTO, Ontario. — Three hundred miles of highway were constructed in the province of Ontario during the last season.

SUGGEST CHANGES IN B. B. RULES

By HENRY L. FARREL, United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(United Press).—Suggestions for two radical changes in the baseball rules came recently from St. Louis.

It was suggested that a free ticket to the bases be issued on three balls instead of four balls, as at present, and that three fouls on the third strike should constitute an out.

While there is nothing particularly wrong with the suggestion, any adoption of the changes probably would be opposed on the theory that they are not needed.

Reducing the number of balls to three would only work a handicap on a pitcher and pitching is under enough handicap now with the lively ball, the freak rules, etc.

Making it an out for three fouls on the last strike would not be of much importance. Joe O'Brien, Jack Dunn and some of the old timers tell how John McGraw and the old Orioles used to knock fouls "by the hour" to weaken the opposing pitcher, but it is not done today, because the batters are not able to do it.

* * * * * * * * *

There is one thing of value in the suggestion. It would speed up the game, and speed is surely needed. Too many games last year ran two hours, two hours and a half and three hours. Some improvement could be made if the umpires would keep after the players, but the officials seem just as lazy themselves.

* * * * * * * * *

Club owners, privately if not for publication, know that pitching is under too much of a handicap and it is understood that the umpires may be instructed to permit the moderate use of resin next year on the ball. Many pitchers used it last season when they could get away with it and some of them did consistently.

When the pitching was too good, the popular demand was for hitting and now there is such an excess of slugging that the fans are beginning to howl for some old-time pitching.

* * * * * * * * *

While none of the high moguls would never admit it, there is no doubt that something was done last winter to put more life in the ball. It produced a season of the most dynamic hitting and it proved too much of a good thing. Pitchers grew lax and fielding suffered because the ball couldn't be handled and players were a little backward about taking chances.

It is understood that the balls will not be so lively next year. No one, of course, will do anything to take the life out of the ball, but they just simply won't be so lively.

* * * * * * * * *

Within a few weeks, the skating season will be in the midst of its big classics. While the dates have not been set definitely, the big features will start with the Middle-Atlantic Championships at Newburgh, N. Y. The Metropolitan Championships will follow at Yonkers. The National Championships come next at Chicago and the Internationals close the season at St. John's, N. B. As innovations the Metropolitan Championships at Conkers and the Nationals at Chicago will be staged by the "mayor's committee" of the two places.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, December 16 (Canadian Press). Extra dullness reigned in the local grain market yesterday, but the demand for Canadian Western oats was fair. There were no changes reported in the flour market.

The domestic market for millfeed continues [illegible] good. There was a steady [illegible] for rolled oats.

The [illegible] hay market is quiet.

Prices for eggs were maintained under a fair demand. A strong feeling prevails for butter. There is little business passing in the cheese market.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Receipts 1,165 cattle and calves, 1,860 hogs, and 280 sheep and lambs.

The cattle market opened under a fairly light volume of trade, and bidding generally showed no noticeable change over yesterday the demand for killing cattle being extremely poor.

The hog market was slightly weaker, packers bidding $8.75 for thick smooths and $9.62½ for select bacon.

Sheep and lambs slow, no early sales reported. Good lambs $10.00 to $11.00, mutton sheep $5.00 to $6.50.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Indications point to slightly lower prices on dressed poultry for the Christmas markets. Receipts continue to increase, and as yet the demand is only fair. One car of dressed turkeys offered at 33 for ones and 28 for twos, f.o.b. Alberta shipping points.

Montreal firm, fresh specials 80c to 90c. Demand for storage good, extras jobbing 45c to 47c, firsts 40c to 41c, seconds 36c. Dressed poultry firm.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta markets unchanged.

British Columbia local fresh 50c at country points, with 52c offered for specials. Jobbing specials 58c, extras 56c, pullets 48c, local storage firsts 35c, seconds 30c.

Chicago fresh, unchanged, refrigerators higher 29½c to 30c.

New York higher, fresh extra firsts 57c to 59c, firsts 54c to 56c, hennery 71c, refrigerators 31 to 32½.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, December 16 (Canadian Press). — Wheat underwent a setback in price yesterday owing more or less to the bearish influence of German financial difficulties and to word that wheat was being shipped here from Omaha for delivery on December contracts. With realising sales heavy, the close was unsettled, 7-8 to 1 3-8c net lower, with May $1.22 3-4 to $1.22 7-8 and July $1.13 5-8 to $1.13 3-4.

Corn finishd 3-8c at 1-2c to 1 1-2c down; oats off 3-8c to 5-8c, and provisions up 5c to 20c.

SOFTBALL TOURNEY AT THE ARMOURIES.

Caleys, Kiwanis, and Bowlers to Settle Which is the Worst Team in the Town.

The fur will fly at the Armouries on Monday night, when the Caledonians, Lawn Bowlers and the Kiwanis Club teams will meet in a tourney to decide which is the worst ball team in town. There has been much argument over this question, and Monday's competition should settle all disputes. It has been arranged that each of the three teams will play the other two, and the Caledonians and Bowlers will start the tournament going at 7 o'clock, the Kiwanis Club meeting the winner. The Caleys' manager expects to win both games; the other clubs refuse to make any promises, but they have a wild look in their eyes.

"I Was Run Down"

"Body was completely covered with Boils"

"If you have ever had boils, you know how painful and annoying even one or two can be. But imagine having your whole body almost entirely covered with them! I am a watchmaker by trade, making a specialty of repairing the highest grade movements. This is probably the most trying of any mechanical work, particularly for a nervous individual like me. Working under great strain both day and night for three months, brought me almost to a state of collapse. I was so irritable and nervous that the slightest thing would 'send me up in the air.' If I managed to get a few hours of sleep at night I was lucky. I had no appetite for food. I certainly was miserable. During this time boils began to appear on different parts of my body and the pain from them made life a misery. My suffering was so great at times that I felt there was nothing left for me to do but to end it all. I consulted doctors but they all told me that if I didn't give up my work and live out of doors, I would go into a decline. As I had no money I couldn't do this. In fact paying doctors' bills and buying medicines used up all the money I made. Finally in desperation, I decided that I would either kill or cure myself, so I began to study my case. I realized that I was as completely run down as any one could possibly be with a bad case of nerves. What I needed was building up. After reading descriptions of different preparations, the one which appeared to be the best for me was Carnol. It has simply performed miracles for me. Four bottles have done more than months of travel abroad. I feel like a two-year old. I sleep eight hours every night and eat three good meals a day. My skin is like a baby's, free from blemishes of any kind and I have now almost forgotten that I have ever had such things as nerves. I want everybody who is ailing to know about Carnol, because I have such faith in it I believe it will cure any human ill."

Mr. J. H. Mc. C.

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money 1-622

Do You Remember My Pictures? Charlie Chaplin

WIN $2500.00 IN PRIZES

NAME THE PICTURES THESE SCENES ARE FROM

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S Picture Plays have made millions laugh. He is particularly well known and appreciated in Canada. But whether or not you have seen all the famous Charlie Chaplin films that are being shown throughout the country, are you clever enough to find the names of the pictures from which the scenes at the right are taken? If you can you may share in the winning of $2500.00 in cash and prizes.

HOW TO SOLVE IT.

The object of this contest is to bring to your mind a few of the most popular of the famous Charlie Chaplin picture plays. The 5 scenes at the right are taken right out of five of his great pictures. In order to help you name them correctly the artist has put into these scenes the names of the plays themselves in jumbled letters. Unscramble these letters, put them into their right order and you will have their names. In case you are not familiar with the popular Charlie Chaplin picture plays that are appearing in Canada now, the names at the left will help you:

Favorite Charlie Chaplin Pictures
A Day's Pleasure.	The Tramp.
Shoulder Arms.	The Adventurer.
Sunny Side.	A Night at the Show.
His New Job.	In the Park.
A Dog's Life.	Easy Street.
The Idle Class.	Triple Trouble.
A Woman.	The Bank.
Shanghied	One A.M. The Cure
Pay Day.	The Kid.

$500.00 in extra cash prizes will also be awarded to entrants to this contest.

THIS GREAT CONTEST IS ABSOLUTELY FREE. SEND YOUR ANSWER TO-DAY.

This great contest is nothing more nor less than a great advertising and introduction campaign. It is absolutely free of expense. It is being conducted by the Continental Publishing Co., Limited, one of the largest and best known publishing houses in Canada, and has the endorsement of the great Charlie Chaplin Studios.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN HIMSELF IS HONORARY JUDGE!

Frankly this contest is intended to further advertise and introduce EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD, Canada's Greatest Magazine, but you do not have to buy anything, subscribe to anything or spend a cent of your money in order to enter and win a prize.

HOW TO SEND YOUR ANSWERS.

Write the names of the five pictures you think these scenes are from, using one side of the paper only. Put your full name and address (stating Miss, Mrs., Mr., or Master) in the lower right hand corner. Use a separate sheet for anything else you wish to write.

Mr. Chaplin as Honorary Judge, and three independent judges, having no connection with this company, will award the prizes, and the answers giving 250 points will win First prize. You will get 20 points for each picture you name correctly. 40 points will be awarded for the general neatness, punctuation, spelling, etc., of your answer. 10 points for handwriting and 100 points for fulfilling a simple condition of the contest. This condition is only that you assist in this great advertising campaign by showing a copy of EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD, Canada's Greatest Magazine, (which we will send you post paid) to just four friends or neighbours who will appreciate this really worth while Canadian publication and want it to come to them every month. The contest will close at 6 p. m. June 30th 1923, immediately after which the answers will be judged and prizes awarded. We reserve the right to alter the qualifying conditions from time to time as may appear necessary, though of course any such change will not affect anyone who has already qualified their entry. Don't delay sending your answer. This announcement may not appear in this paper again. Address Charlie Chaplin Contest Editor, Continental Publishing Co., Ltd., Dept. 48 Toronto, Ont.

"EBB TIDE" HAS THEME OF FINE HEART APPEAL

Robert Louis Stevenson's Superb Story Is Splendidly Picturized.

The absorbing and systematic story of how Robert Herrick was mired in the swamps of civilization and of how he finally struggled back to firm ground is the theme of "Ebb Tide," a picturization of Robert Louis Stevenson's famous story, which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Lila Lee, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett, Noah Beery and Jacqueline Logan are the featured players.

A young man of good birth and too careful rearing— he was never allowed to face responsibility—Robert Herrick becomes a drifter and is stranded on the beach of a South Sea Island. Here he meets two other derelicts, a discredited but likeable master mariner named Davis and a shady, vile-mouthed London clerk called Huish. The three are drawn together by the bonds of hunger and exile, and they barely exist until a chance offers to take out a smallpox ship.

The voyage of this schooner with its cargo of champagne and its native crew tries the souls of the three derelicts ,and each faces the crisis in a different way. When food runs low they sight a mysterious island, where they found a remarkable white man named Attwater, who lives there with his daughter and a few natives. For years Attwater has taken pearls from the lagoon, and this treasure offers a new temptation to the three adventurers. Herrick is ensnared against his well, but Attwater cleverly defeats Davis and Huish and wins over Herrick to the side of honor.

Naturally there is a girl who loves Herrick and her devotion has much to do with snatching Herrick from "the ebb tide in man's affairs."

The photography is excellent, and the scenes on Attwater's island are of the most gripping character. A desperate fight with a devil fish in twenty feet of water is one of the big thrills of the picture.

A Pathe News full of interest, and a comedy entitled "Old Sea Dog," will also be shown.

To-night is your last opportunity to see dainty Mae Murray in "Broadway Rose," as also the No. 3 adventure of Sherlock Holmes.

"HEART PUNCH" PRIME NECESSITY OF PICTURES DIRECTOR STAHL SAYS

"Heart punch" is the most important thing in a motion picture, in the opinion of John M. Stahl, director of "The Child Thou Gavest Me," the First National attraction which will be shown at the Royal Tuesday for the last time to-night.

"Getting the 'heart punch' is the greatest thing in pictures," he says. "It is more important than the star, and far more vital than the production. No matter how interesting the situations, or how spectacular the scenic features, if the director does not reflect in greater or less degree the very emotions that may come to everyone in his audience he has missed fire.

"Making a motion picture is less a matter of plot and situation than it is of arithmetic. Finding the 'greatest common divisor' of human interest is the question that animates us all. The emotions of love, hate, sorrow, pity, are universal. With the selection of every new story the director has to decide which one he will utilize and play upon to win his audience."

The above picture is one of the best that has been shown at the Royal for some time and to-night will be your last chance to see it. Come early to secure a seat.

Also the 7th Episode of Buffalo Bill serial. Louis B. Mayer presents "The Child Thou Gavest Me," A First National Attraction, with an All-Starcast—6 reels; Universal High Class Comedy, "The Kicking Fool," (2 reels); Best Wit and Jokes from the Press, 1 reel; First National Very Laughable Comedy, with Mack Sennett: "Bow-Wow," 2 reels. Open The Gate to Health

All of the energy and vitality which you need to carry you through a long life without disease is in your own keeping. The twists, strains, jars and wrenches to which the human spine is subjected are very detrimental to the general well-being of your body because by any of these unnatural movements a segment of the spine may be shifted out of normal position and cause pressure upon nerves.

If this occurs the life force or nerve energy is shut off from some of the organs and tissues and consequently the body vitality is lowered. Lowered vitality means susceptibility to disease.

Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments

correct abnormalities of the spine and release pressure from nerves. When 100% of mental impulse from the brain reaches all parts of the body each part will work normally and in harmony with every other part. The result is health.

By keeping your spine in normal alignment you open the gate to health. INVESTIGATE CHIROPRACTIC NOW.

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

The Grand Trunk Railway System offers to those who are taking advantage of the long week-end, and who are going home for Christmas and New Year's, a most convenient local and through service. Trains consist of the modern equipment and the optional ticketing arrangements applying between many Canadian National—Grand Trunk points give passengers a desirable choice of routes. Arrangements can also be made to deliver tickets to persons out of town by depositing the value of same, with Railway Agent here. For all information as to fares, train service, routes, etc. see nearest Grand Trunk Ticket Agent, or apply to C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont. 6d-14-16-20-22-26-28

NEW TELETYPE TICKER

Is now installed at the local broker's office of Nelson & Martyn, 332 1-2 George street, Suite "A." The Canadian National representatives have worked all week installing a special motor and battery service. This had to be done as the city's power was not sufficient to operate the TICKER SERVICE. This is the only service of the kind between Toronto and Ottawa. This service connects Nelson & Martyn's office with the well known and established brokerage firm of STOBIE FORLONG & Co., who have several REGULAR NEW YORK EXCHANGE HOUSE connections. There is NO EXCUSE for anything but the BEST of service. Nelson & Martyn are justly well pleased at being the FIRST BROKERS to install such a service East of Toronto to Ottawa. When business warrants they will extend the service, including Lindsay, Peterborough, Belleville, Oshawa and Toronto. 1d-142-7220

COSGRAVE'S MESSAGE FOR THE ULSTERITES.

Sees the Day When the Orange and Green Will Join in Upbuilding of the State.

BELFAST, December 16 (Canadian Press). — President William Cosgrave, of the Irish Free State, in a Christmas message to the Telegraph, of Newry, County Armagh, Ulster, says that even after the finding of the Boundary Commission, "We may have to suffer separation of portions of Ulster from the Irish Motherland. These portions will ultimately join the rest of Ireland, as certainly as the sun will rise tomorrow.

"There has never been in my Government," he adds, "any question of coercing or tyrannising over a section of the Northern people who do not wish to join us in founding and building a great, prosperous Irish Free State, in which all creeds and classes will enjoy prosperity and religious liberty in the best and fullest sense."

Governor Gerald Healy expresses the hope that on the day of peace and goodwill, the orange and green will join in toasting each other's health by a contented, prosperous, and united Ireland.

ITALIANS WILL SHOW WORLD HER ARTISANS.

Something More Than Labourers Produced in Italy, Declares Visitor.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The Fascisti are going to establish branches of their movement all over world, including the United States and Canada, and preparations are under way to form club in Toronto, at an early date. This information was given yesterday by Ambrogio Martelli, who arrived for purpose of holding propaganda meetings on behalf of the "Black Shirts". "What will be the aim of possible Fascisti Club in Toronto?" he was asked. "Intervention on behalf of Italy and Italians to bring about change in ideas, most other nations have about us. A new national consciousness is pervading the whole Italian world since Mussolini's coup d' etat" he declared. "The formation of Fascisti clubs is part of Premier Musslini's plan to send artisans, experts and men of science, who are natives of Italy, abroad in order that nations might learn that there are other people in that country besides unskilled laborers."

PREMIER HUGHES MAY LOSE SOME SUPPORTERS.

LONDON, December 16 (Canadian Press). — It is considered probable that the Government of Premier Hughes will lose seven seats in the Australian Federal elections today, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Melbourne, giving the country party, the agriculturists, the balance of power. Premier Hughes himself has been re-elected

GOVERNOR ALLEN HOT AFTER KU KLUX KLAN.

Will Legislate Them Out of the State of Kansas.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Va., Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Kansas will not drive the Ku Klux Klan from the State by force, but will expel it by refusing to permit it to do business within the State's boundaries, Governor Henry J. Allen declared in an address to-day before the Governors' conference. A writ which is being sought in Kansas Supreme Court, he said, would have the effect of ousting the Klan from the State.

"The essence of our opposition to this organization is not that it fights the Catholic Church or expresses its antipathy to Jew or Negro, but in fact that it does this under protection of a mask and through a process of terrorism and violence," he added. "The organization is dangerous to Protestant as it is to Catholicl, Jew or negro, because it exists only when the authority of the Government has been broken down and destroyed."

WEDDING BELLS

LOGAN—PONTON.

Belleville, December 16. — A wedding of Dominion wide interest was solemnized in Christ church this morning at 11 o'clock, when Anna Swanwick, daughter of Lieut.-Colonel W. N. Ponton, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario A. F. and A. M., was united in marriage to W. McGregor Logan, Hamilton, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Canada, A.F. and A. M. Unattended the bride entered the artistically and profusely decorated church, on the arm of her father, the bride charmingly attired in her travelling suit of navy and grey silk trimmed with grey squirrel, and hat to match. The service was fully choral, and the ceremony performed by Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., of St. John's Church, Peterboro, assisted by Rural Dean W. G. Swayne, rector of Christ Church. During the signing of the register Marvin Rathbun of Deseronto sang "O Perfect Love." The choir of Christ church, was assisted by members of the Bridge street Methodist church, of which Miss Ponton, was soloist for a number of years.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Logan left by the noon train for Montreal, where they will spend a few weeks, returning to reside in Hamilton.

The happy event was marked by the fact the congregation was one of the largest which has ever attended a wedding in Christ church, testifying the esteem in which both the bride and Lieut.-Col. Ponton's family are held in the city.

OBITUARY

JANE ANN GALLEY.

Jane Galley, wife of the late J. F. Stenson, who predeceased her by 12 years, passed away yesterday afternoon at 2:10 o'clock, at her late residence, 349 Reid street. The deceased was 82 years of age and had been ailing for a number of years. She was born in England, and coming to Canada has resided in Peterboro for the last 70 years. She was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

She leaves to mourn her loss, one daughter, Emma, at home, and six sons, R. J., of Verne, B.C.; William, of New York City; Harry, of Kirkland Lake, in Northern Ontario; George of Toronto; Frederick and Herbert E., both of the city.

The funeral will take place from the late residence on Monday afternoon. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Robert Pogue, of St. Paul's church. Interment to take place at the Little Lake cemetery.

EWARD VINETTE

The death occurred this morning of Edward Vinette aged 79, at his residence, 10 Lisbourn street, from pneumonia. The deceased had lived in the city for the last sixty years an enjoyed large circle of friends and acquaintances. He leaves to mourn his loss three sons, Pettise of Toronto, Edward and Joseph of this city; also six daughters; Mrs. N. Saunders of Thornton, Rhode Island; Mrs. Steven Minor, of Thornton, Rhode Island; Mrs. H. Hounsell, South Royalston, Mass; Mrs. R. Brioux of Toronto, Mrs. H. Gordon and Mrs. A. Ritchie of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place Monday morning from deceased's late residence at 9 o'clock to the Immaculate Conception Church and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

MRS. MARGARET O'SHEA.

The death occurred at her home, Park street south, of Mrs. Margaret O'Shea, widow of the late Jas. A. O'Shea of this city.

The late Mrs. O'Shea had been in apparently good health until a week ago ,and her death, coming as it did after so short an illness, was a great shock to her bereaved family and her great circle of friends.

The deceased has been a lifelong resident of Peterborough.

She leaves to mourn her loss five sons and one daughter: Oscar of Milwaukee, Wis., James of Toronto, Frank of Winnipeg, Ewart and Stanley of New York City, and Mona, widow of the late Capt. Sterndale Murphy, of Toronto.

Funeral mass will be celebrated on Monday at 10 a.m. at the Sacred Heart church. Interment at St. Peter's cemetery.

CHRISTMAS

Once more we reach a finger post,
Upon life's broad highway
To keep a tryst with Father Time
Who comes with greetings gay.
Leave care and trouble to themselves
Let pleasure hold full sway,
Hark to the laughter and the song,
All hail to Christmas Day.

The old folks and the youngsters join
In play and merry jest,
Or in the singing of the songs
That old folks love the best,
Because the memories that they bring
Are like a golden ray
Lumining all the happy hours
That crowd the Christmas Day.

Co-operation Among the Co-operatives Sought at Conference.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Co-operation among co-operatives.

That is the aim of a conference to be held here Dec. 14-16 by representatives of all national co-operative marketing associations. Out of it is expected to come a new impetus to co-operative marketing among farmers.

"The leaders of the co-operation movement are getting together in a national effort to work our means for its growth," says Charles M. Morgan, field representative of the American Cotton Growers Exchange who as secretary of the conference is in charge of arrangements.

"Particular attention will be given the subject of rural credits legislation .

"Co-operative marketing has been spreading at an amazing rate.

Growth of Movement.

"Two years ago there were no large tobacco co-operatives. This year the tobacco co-operatives will probably handle at least two-thirds of the American crop.

"There were no cotton co-operatives two years ago. This year 10 state organizations and the national overhead organization the American Cotton Growers Exchange, are operating. Three more state organizations are being organized and a tremendous volume of business handled.

"Nearly a dozen state wheat organizations and their overhead sales agencies are successfully functioning where a few years ago there were none.

"All these in addition to all sorts of co-operatives for the handling of other farm products.

Benefits All.

"Not only has the producer benefited by better prices wherever his product has been handled co-operatively, but the consumer has been likewise benefited by a better and more uniform product, at better prices."

One big weakness in the co-operative movement to date, Morgan says, was the fact that it had no national voice. There is no body, he points out, through which the separate co-operatives could co-operate in a national way. That is what the Co-operative Council, to be organized at the Washington conference will supply.

SENDS A WORD OF HOPE OVER TO MOVIE MAN

Evelyn Nesbitt Describes Some of the Wild Parties at Hollywood—"Please Pass the Sugar."

STAGES COMEBACK

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 18.—(United Press.)— How cocaine was seryed in sugar bowls at wild parties of movie actors was described to-day by Evelyn Nesbitt, a former member of the Hollywood Film Company.

"I was a 'dope' once, but I fought my way back and cured myself," declared Miss Nesbitt, sending a word of hope to Wallace Reid, celebrated screen star who, according to his wife ,is fighting a desperate battle against the drug habit.

Miss Nesbitt, a year ago haggard, worn with her strugle to break the grip of narcotics on her system, has greatly improved in spirit and appearance since she won her fight. Only a few months ago she attempted suicide by taking an overdose of drugs when her uptown tea room in New York failed. To-day, brisk, alert ,she is manager of one of the most prosperous cabarets on Atlantic city's famous board walk.

"Oh, but it was a long, mean fight against 'the happy stuff 'as they called it," said Miss Nesbitt.

"I began taking the stuff at Hollywood. There were dope agents at every party there, waiting to take orders.

"At one party the cocaine was passed in a sugar bowl. Every few minutes somebody would say 'pass the sugar.' It was a big joke.

"At that time I wasn't taking it, but some time later a follies girl gave me some for a toothache and then the habit got a grip. Every cent I had went for dope.

"I put myself under a doctor's care to break away. He cut down the doses every day. It was a heart-breaking fight. The pains were terrible. Then one day the doctor told me it was all over, I was cured. Since then I have not touched it.

COUE SAYS FRANKLY TO DOCTORS YOU SHOULD ALSO GIVE MEDICINE

Your Patient Wants a Prescription and He Wants to Know What It Will Do For Him, Declares French Exponent of Self-mastery Through Auto-Suggestion.

(By Dr. Emile Coue.)

The method of treatment I described in the preceding article gives absolutely marvelous results, and it is easy to understand why. Indeed, by following out my advice, it is impossible to fail, except in the case of the two classes of persons previously mentioned who unfortunately represent barely three per cent. of the whole.

The two classes are, first, those incapable mentally of grasping the principle of autosuggestion and, second, those who will not understand.

If, however, you try to put your subjects to sleep right away, without the explanations and preliminary experiments necessary to bring them to accept the suggestions and to transform them into autosuggestions, you cannot, and will not, succeed, except with peculiarly sensitive subjects.

And sensitive subjects are rare. Everybody may become so by training, but very few are so sufficiently without the preliminary instruction that I recommend, which can be done in a few minutes.

Formerly, imagining that suggestions could be given only during sleep, I always tried to put my patient to sleep; but on discovering that it was not indispensable, I left off doing it in order to spare him the dread and uneasiness he almost always experiences when he is told that he is going to be sent to sleep, and which often makes him offer, in spite of himself, an involuntary resistance to the treatment.

If, on the contrary, you tell him that you are not going to put him to sleep, as there is no need to do so, you gain his confidence. He listens to you without fear or any ulterior thought, and it often happens—if not the first time, anyway very soon—that, soothed by the monotonous sound of your voice, he falls into a deep sleep from which he wakes, astonished at having slept at all.

If there are sceptics among my readers—as I am quite sure there are—all I have to say to them is: "Come to my house and see what is being done, and you will be convinced by fact."

Physicians and Autosuggestion

You must not however run away with the idea that autosuggestion can be brought about only in the way I have described.

It is possible to make suggestions to people without their knowledge and without any preparation. For instance, if a doctor who, by his title alone, has a suggestive influence on his patient, tells him that he can do nothing for him, and that his illness is incurable, he provokes in the mind of the patient an autosuggestion which may have the most disastrous consequences.

If however he tells the patient that his illness is, it is true, a serious one, but that with care, time, and patience, he can be cured, the physician sometimes, and even often, obtains results which will surprise him.

Here is another example: if a doctor, after examining his patient, writes a prescription and gives it to him without any comment, the remedies prescribed will not have much chance of succeeding. If, on the other hand, he explains to his patient that such and such medicines must be taken in such and such conditions, and they will produce certain results, those results are practically certain to be brought about.

If among my readers there are medical men or brother chemists, I hope they will not think me their enemy. I am, on the contrary, their best friend. On the one hand I should like to see the theoretical and practical study of suggestion on the syllabus of the medical schools for the great benefit not only of the sick but of the doctors themselves.

And on the other hand, in my opinion, every time that a patient goes to see his doctor, the doctor should order him one, or even several, medicines, even if they are not necessary.

As a matter of fact, when a patient visits his doctor, it is in order to be told what medicine will cure him.

He does not realize that it is the hygiene and regimen which do this, and he attaches little importance to them. it is a medicine that he wants .

In my opinion, if the doctor prescribes only a regimen, without any medicine, his patient will be dissatisfied. He will say that he took the trouble to consult the physician for nothing, and often goes to another doctor.

It seems to me then that the doctor should always prescribe medicines to his patient, and, as much as possible, medicines made up by himself, rather than the standard remedies so much advertised and which owe their only value to the advertisement.

The doctor's own prescriptions will inspire infinitely more confidence than So-and-So's pills which anyone can procure easily at the nearest drug store without any need of a prescription.

Thornton Addresses Another Delegation

ST. JOHN, N.B., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—"It does not necessarily mean the selling of the Grand Trunk lines in the United States in order to eliminate Portland," said Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways Board, in addressing a joint delegation from St. John City Council and Board of Trade at the Union Depot this morning. "The possession of the Grand Trunk lines over the border is not fundamentally connected with your problem with regard to Portland."

ADDITIONS TO THE VOTERS' LIST

Only Those Who Appealed Can Appear Before Judge To-morrow.

An editorial in Saturday's Examiner in regard to the municipal voters' list may have been the means of deceiving some of the electors. It was stated that those whose names are omitted from the list can have them added by appearing before Judge Huycke on Tuesday. That was an error, inasmuch as only those who, before November 3rd, appealed to have the list amended, are entitled to appear before the Judge. Others who failed to take that precaution will be unable to get their names on the list.

BRIDGEBURG, Dec. 18.—(Special).—An inquest is likely to show that the death of Provincial Constable Smythe was accidental. No trace of poison was found in the stomach.

ANTICIPATING A NEW STRIKE AMONG MINERS

Union Leaders in the Coal Fields Suggest a Revolution as a Means of Freeing the Workers

CANADIAN SOVIET

SYDNEY, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Some of you men may not be ready now for affiliation with Red Internationale, but you will be with in year declared J. B. McLachlan, Secretary Treasurer of District 26, United Mine Workers, addressing a mass meeting of Trades Unionists at Glace Bay, yesterday.

Mr. McLachlan predicted that the present era of full employment in coal field would not last, that there would soon be surplus of coal and that unemployment similar to that of winter of 1921 would be rife in Cape Breton within a year.

"Large stocks of coal are being mined in United States and Canada, so that operators can fight you again next year and this time they intend to fight for victory," he said.

Trevor McGuire, who some time ago came before courts in Ontario on charge of seditious utterances, was principal speaker at meeting. He advocated setting up of Canadian Soviet as only permanent remedy for economic and political ills of country and predicted break up of the British Empire which he referred to as a "British Vampire".

Daniel Livingstone, president of United Mine Workers, District 26, declared that only salvation for workers was in revolution similar to that which liberated industrial classes of Russia.

The Same Maguire

TORONTO, Dec. 18—(Canadian Press).—Trevor Macguire, whose remarks before mass meeting of Miners yesterday are quoted in the above despatch from Sydney, was convicted by jury in Toronto, on charge of seditious utterance, for using pratically same phrases which he is quoted as using at Sydney, In Toronto case, Judge released him on suspended sentence, in view of his war record and peculiar conditions of the meeting.

THREE BANDITS SHOOT RESERVE GUARD OF BANK

Get Away With $300,000 in Currency From a Truck in Front of the Denver Mint.

ONE MAY DIE

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Three Bandits today shot and probably fatally wounded Charles Linton, Federal Reserve Bank Guard, and escaped with two hundred thousand dollars in currency which was being loaded on a truck in front of the Denver Mint.

The robbers seized the gold and sprang into an automobile and away.

Armed guards inside the Mint Building fired after the car, but with out effect.

While the robbery was going on another car loaded with masked men, armed with shotguns stood twenty feet from the bandit car.

ISSUE A WARNING TO SIDESTEP DANGER FIRE

The Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association have issued their annual warning regarding Christmas decorations. There is great danger of life and property from Christmas decorations, such as draperies, scenery, cotton to represent snow, etc. Carefully watch and see that inflammable material is clear of and not hung over heating and lighting devices, steam-pipes, stove-pipes, electric light bulbs, etc.

Fire Chief George Gimblett urges the citizens of the city to take particular precaution and observe the possibilities of fire before there is any actual cause of a fire. Constant vigilance and care must be exercised in order to render these displays free from danger.

Criticizes Liquor Administration in Province of Quebec

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Strong criticism of the administration of the liquor traffic in the Province of Quebec was voiced by Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, of Toronto, field secretary of the Evangelism and Social Service Department of the Methodist Church in Canada, in Fairmont Avenue Methodist Church last night. Dr. Moore referred to some contributory influences to the moulding of character and the making of good citizens, and enumerated other influences which he considered a menace to these ends. The greatest of these menaces, he classed the liquor administration in Quebec, referring to it as 'that damnable liquor traffic with all its curses.'

Election Notes

The members of the League of George Street Church will devote the regular Monday weekly meeting to municipal research. So the League, after meeting, will adjourn, and in a body repair to the ratepayers' meeting in the Public Library Hall, and take in the proceedings. The League hopes to get some idea of how candidates, near candidates and candidates who have been, behave on such occasion.

It would seem that the recent Mock Parliament has whetted the appetites of these young women and men for more light. So those who address the meeting may rely on at least that a part of the audience will be seekers after truth, and the hope is expressed that they find it.

The paucity of candidates in the aldermanic arena has worked on the feelings of the North Ward ratepayers. If a candidate or two do not come to the surface in the next few days, these ratepayers, in justice to themselves, have formed up a plan to go and nominate Miss Belle Griffith, as a representative in the Council, and from the North Ward. The men think that Miss Griffith would bring to bear on our municipal problems good sense and appreciation, and being a property owner, would be inclined to economy.

It is assumed that the incoming Council would welcome the addition of a woman on the several committees, relieving the men members of perplexing problems to which a woman may bring both information and good judgment. There be cords of excellent aldermanic material going to waste in the North Ward, and if it is not produced the ratepayers know what to look out for.

IN LAKE HURON

BAY CITY, Mich., December 18.—A fleet of nine steamships, grain laden, bound for Lake Erie ports, which left Fort William on Friday night, passed through the St. Mary's River on Sunday and early to-day entered Lake Huron on the way down. The ships and their cargoes are worth twenty-eight million dollars.

ATMOSPHERE OF CHRISTMAS AT ROTARY MEETING

Plans Made for Yuletide Activities and Christmas Music Featured Today's Luncheon.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

There was a real Yuletide atmosphere about to-day's luncheon at the Rotary Club, for Christmas music and recitations, a visit from Santa Claus himself, and consideration of the club's Christmas activities were the principal items in a programme that was full of interest and enjoyment.

The club showed a 92 per cent. attendance record, and in addition there were numerous visitors, including Capt. Henry, who has just returned to Peterborough after, serving in the Great War and in India, Dr. J. C. Smith ,of Lakefield, Rotarian A. Manley, of Ottawa, Kiwanian Bob Neill, and George Burnham.

President John Crane was in the chair, and Harry Thompson and Homer O. Fiske were welcomed as new members.

Among the choruses sung by the club to-day were the familiar Christmas hymns, "Adeste Fidelis" and "It came upon the midnight clear."

Rotarian Asa Huycke and Dr. Smith, of Lakefield, were heard to great advantage in a duet. Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland recited "St. Nicholas" with a true appreciation of its possibilities, and responded with "The Middle Girl" as an encore. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park contributed two most enjoyable solos that aroused warm applause.

A most interesting account of the visit of the Peterborough Rotarians to Toronto to meet the International President Ray Havens, of Kansas City, was given by Rotarian S. R. Armstrong, who couched the salient points of the meeting concisely and outlined the excellent speech delivered by the President.

A message from the Governor of this Rotary District, Ed. Bull of Buffalo, wishing the Peterborough Rotarians a merry Christmas, was read by President Crane.

Rotarian James Hamilton, dealing with the Christmas programme of the Club, stated that it had been decided that Rotary should look after those boys who had attended the Rotary Camp who would be in need of assistance. About 50 per cent. of the boys came in this category. The names of other boys who required help had been handed in, and it was for the club to decide whether or not they, too, would be taken care of by the Rotarians.

It was the unanimous feeling of the meeting that every Rotarian should be given the task of looking after one boy at Christmas.

At the suggestion of Rotarian Reg. Turner the assistance of those members of the Boys' Camp who are not themselves in need of help from the Club will be solicited in ascertaining the requirments of the other less fortunate youngsters.

Santa Claus, in full regalia, was introduced by Rotarian Rev. Harold Young, and delivered a Christmas message that struck a responsive note in every heart.

Before the Club adjourned, Mrs. McClelland and Mrs. Park were presented with beautiful bouquets of 'mums, the presentation being made

RESCUE 23 SURVIVORS FOUND ALIVE ON THE WRECKED STEAMER

Seven at Sault Ste. Marie Are Recovering Today From the Effects of Exposure After Being Driven in Small Lifeboat to the Canadian Mainland.

SOME NAMES NOT YET AVAILABLE

SAULT STE. MARIE, December 18. (Special.) — The tug Gray of the Lake Superior Paper Co., has just reached the wrecked steamer Reliance and found 23 alive on the vessel. The names are not available yet. Twenty seven in all are reported on the list of missing.

Seven survivors of the wreck which occurred when the storm-driven Reliance stripped her wheel on the rocsk, were recovering here to-day from exposure after being taken in a small life boat to the Canadian mainland.

Two others, Mr. and Mrs. John Harten, cooks, were reported in a serious condition at a railway station on the Algoma Central Railway.

Survivors' Story.

According to the story of the survivors the crew divided into groups shortly after the Reliance was wrecked and set out in life boats. The survivors under the command of Charles Currie, the second engineer of Sault Ste. Marie, took the lead and soon left the other groups that lingered near the Reliance.

After fighting zero weather, and the storm waves, the party landed on the shore, near Batchawana Bay, where they built a fire and recuperated They then started a weary march climbing high icy bluffs,crossing two rivers and wading in snow up to their waists most of the way.

Jack Harton, and his wife, cooks on the Reliance, who were members of the party, broke down when Mrs. Harton lost her shoes. A fire was built and Harton directed the men to continue their journey, saying he and his wife would remain at the fire and that it was no use for the entire nine to perish. The men left the Hartons. Four miles further on they found a lumber camp where they received shelter. A party from the camp rescued the couple.

Leads Jobless

Huge mass meetings of Britain's unemployed are being held in England. Here is Wallace Hannington, organizer of the unemployed, announcing in Trafalgar Square that if a peaceful parade failed to make Bonar Law meet the worker's committee, other methods may be used.

THE PASSING OF DISTRICT NURSE MISS HAMILTON

Peterborough Loses an Exceedingly Exemplary Citizen and Skilled and Sympathetic Nurse.

Nine years district nurse for this city, of a warm-hearted, lovable and sympathetic disposition, the passing away of Miss Edith Jane Kirsop Hamilton will be mourned, not only by her immediate family and friends, but also by a host of the less fortunately circumstanced in this city, to whom in their hour of sickness and distress, she conveyed comfort, healing and good cheer.

The late Miss Hamilton died at her home, 415 Rubidge street, from pneumonia which developed recently following an operation four weeks ago to-morrow, death ensuing Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. She is survived by one sister, Margaret A., and three brother, Percy, Frank and W. H., all at home.

The funeral service will be private, and held at the family residence at 10.30 a.m. to-morrow, December 19, conducted by Rev. A. J. Langford, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, of which deceased was a consistent member. Mr. Langford will be assisted by Rev. James Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, interment to be made in Little Lake cemetery.

Born and educated in Peterborough city, the late Miss Hamilton trained for her chosen profession of nurse in New York city, where, at the General Hospital, she took her register nurse degree in 1911, and in which institution she enjoyed the credit of being exceptionally skilled in the nursing art. Appointed in 1913 by the local Health Association district nurse for Peterborough, she continued in the faithful and indefatigable exercise of the important duties entailed until undergoing her operation, which duties she always performed to the unqualified acceptance and appreciation of association, physicians and patients alike.

Eminently fitted by inherent nature and the best of training for her responsible calling, the late Miss Hamilton's ready and cheerful response to the call of duty at times tryingly onerous—in all circumstances, at any hour, and under oftimes perplexing conditions, won for her unstinted praise from all affected and concerned in the duties of a district nurse. And to many a suffering or distressed family, her kindly Christian sympathy and tender professional ministrations clothed their gloomy cloud of despair and need with a silver lining of hope and cheer.

Then, well skilled in the principles of social hygiene, she was ever ready with fitting counsel and whole-hearted co-operation to and with many a family quite indifferent to those human physical and mental laws which conserve the health of individuals, and oftimes avert that menace of disease epidemic which communicable ailments threaten.

In the passing of this estimable lady, the health association has lost a district nurse whose place it will not be found easy to fill, and church and community will keep long in memory green a loyal, faithful adherent and exceedingly exemplary resident .

Dry batteries should be protected from moisture, dirt and vibration.

CLEAN-UP MAY FOLLOW RECENT THOROLD CRIME

Town Has an Unenviable Reputation as Result of Crime—Constable Shot on Sunday.

REWARD OFFERED

ST. CATHARINES, (Special).—Dec. 18.—Inquest on Joseph Trueman night policeman of Thorold, who was shot dead, Sunday morning while on duty, was this morning adjourned till December 28 at 2.30 in the afternoon as Crown Attorney Cowper will be engaged up to that time to work on the case. While Mayor Battle has offered a thousand dollars reward, Thorold leading citizens think it should be two thousand. It is felt that a thorough clean ing up of the foreign situation is due in Thorold.

Thorold town has won an unevidable reputation because of the operations of bootleggers there, it being claimed that it is the central point for bootlegging liquor transfer between Canada and United States. Frequently when a bottle toter is caught in St. Catharines he says he got the stuff at Thorold. It is not just in Thorold town that the bootleggers live but in Thorold township just outside the town.

While Coroner John Herod declined to discuss the case because of his official capacity, he plainly stated this morning that he was convinced it was a clear case of frame up. "And these men who frame these crimes are clever men," he added. "The bullet which killed Trueman went through his body entering in the interior of his chest. "You will note", remarked Coroner Herod the jury, as he stood before murdered policeman's body, "the murderer took no chances of missing. He shot straight for the centre of the body."

Chief Collins said this morning no one was held for the murder. They have one man on a drunk charge, who was seen about town during the night, but he is not suspected of knowing about the murder. The police would like to find the man who was heard by Night Watchman Morley, talking excitedly in the men's waiting room of the N. S. and T. R. station just before Trueman came in. When Morley went out to oust him he was gone.

ALL THE FAMILY HAD BAD COLDS

"Did you ever notice that if one of the family contracts a cold it generally runs to all the other members?"

Many people when they contract a cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps it will pass away of itself in a day or two. This is a great mistake for before they know it, it has become settled on the lungs.

Never neglect the first symptoms: get a bottle of

and see how quickly your cold will disappear.

Mrs. A. Coghlan, Magnolia, Alta., writes:—"Last Winter we all had bad colds in our family, and I didn't know what to do. Some friends told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I went and got a couple of bottles and in a short while our colds were all gone. Now we always keep a bottle on hand in case one of us might catch a cold."

"Dr. Wood's is 35c and 60c a bottle; put up only by T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto.

DEMOBILIZE CAPITAL AND BALANCE BUDGETS.

A Banker's Solution For the Cure of Europe.

By J. TAYLOR PEDDIE,

Banker and Economic Expert, Author of "A National System of Economics" and "Economic Reconstruction."

LONDON.—(United Press, by Mail).—It will be impossible for the continental belligerent nations to balance their budgets in present circumstances. The enormous government loans and debit balances are incapable of being discharged during the life time of the present generation and I doubt if they could be during the next century.

A capital levy is urged in many countries, but the disease cannot be cured by that means. There is only one solution to my mind and that is for each government to demobolize capital.

Since the conclusion of the war everything has been demobilized except capital, i. e., armies, ships, railways, factories, etc. But the most important of all is capital and this the governments concerned continue to mobilize through direct and indirect taxation with the consequent result that the world's productive power upon which man relies for the satisfaction of his wants is being reduced to an impoverished condition.

The interest charges on the great national debts are in many cases greater than the total national debts existing before the war. Who is to pay them? Labor rightly objects and suggests a capital levy as the cure. Our economic theories have all gone wrong.

The only cure is for all the governments concerned to pay back all the money they have received in the form in which it was received, namely, in bank notes, so that such money may be forced back to productive power, where alone the requisite wealth can be produced to pay interest or dividends and the services of the government.

Governments certainly cannot earn the wealth and consequently have no right to promise the payment of excessive rates. In the end the services of government all comes out of productive power, but the point that matters is the manner by which the means are taken out.

Productive power should pay dividends on the capital it employs and the government should tax such dividends, but productive power should not be called upon to depiete itself of capital in order to pay government taxes, since this course creates unemployment and that is what the world is suffering from today.

I may be argued by economic theorists that my policy would bring about the old disease of inflation, but my argument is that inflation still goes on and no remedy has yet been evolved to stop it. As a matter of fact it can not be stopped under present economic policy. Before the war a 20-mark gold piece commanded 3 per cent. interest—60-mark, and this was considered a good rate. Paper marks now command 5 per cent. and at the present rate of exchange that equals 1,500 marks per 20-mark gold, equivalent to 75 times the pre-war parity of gold. Yet we dream and hope that Germany and France may balance their budgets and that their currencies may return some day to parity value!

Inflation under my scheme would be based on wealth production and not, as at present, on government I.O.U.'s. But under my proposals inflation as we know it today could be stopped and government budgets balanced. After demobilizing capital in the manner suggested, government consols could be issued for 80 per cent. of the present national debts at an interest rate of 3 per cent. With so much money coming to market it would command no value and possessors would be forced to re-invest in the new government security, or, what is more desirable, employ it in productive power to the ultimate benefit of the community and labor power. Direct taxation could then be reduced.

In countries, however, where the national currency has depreciated to an abnormal extent interest rates should not in any event exceed 2 per cent.

LAKEFIELD CLUB HELD A MEETING.

Curlers Are Ready For a Big Season—Skips Elected—Tams Will Be Worn.

LAKEFIELD, December 18. — A well attended meeting of the Lakefield curling club, was held in Leonard's Hall, with the president, B. Q. Dench in the chair. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read by the secretary, Percy Spence.

There are six trophies in the club this winter, the H. G. Fitzgerald Cup for local competition with accompanying prizes, donated by Theo. Crawford, the E. A. Tanner and W. H. Casements Cups for a local bonspiel, and the A. G. Lawless, A. E. Dawson and W. J. Charlton Cups, for the open bonspiel.

After nine o'clock, the time limit for active members to join, there were 70 members signed up, 64 of which were active, and six were rovers. All who join after the meeting will be rovers. There are several others who are contemplating doing so and they will be welcomed. There was a prolonged discussion on the question of fees which had been arranged at the previous meeting to be skips $6, members $5 and associate members $2. This motion was rescinded and the fee settled at $6 for skips and $5 for members, with no associate members. The club room is not large enough at present to accommodate more than the active and non-members.

The skips were elected and the rinks drawn for in a business like manner after which the district cup skips were appointed. Moved by C. S. Tanner, seconded by G. G. Connell that J. C. Strickland and J. W. Ridpath be the district cup skips. Carried.

It was moved by J. C. Strickland, seconded by Dr. Gibson, that Levi Payne, who is the oldest curler in the village, be made a life member of the club. It was unanimously carried by a standing vote.

Mr. Payne was the oldest member of the Lakefield Colts ring which was the outstanding feature of the Peterboro bonspiel, 1921. F. X. Fortier, the youngest member, passed away last spring, while R. C. Strickland and J. W. Allen are still in the club as active members.

It was decided to enter a rink to play the Scotch curlers if it is possible when they are in Peterboro in January.

A committee to arrange for the opening bonspiel and local bonspiel was appointed: B. Q. Dench, D. H. Charlton, Theo. Chawford, T. Braden, E. W. Bailey, J. J. McFadden, J. W. Ridpath and W. J. Charlton.

The need of a clock at the rink to regulate the hours of the games seemed to be a crying necessity, as the members watches have been known to differ, so a motion was made and carried that the sub-skips be appointed to purchase a clock which would be the official time-piece of the club.

As curling after all hails from bonnie Scotland, and is essentially a Scottish game, it was decided almost unanimously that "tams" be worn by the skips. It was hinted that another season would see the whole club equipped with the regulation headgear.

After the business had been disposed of refreshments were served by Charles Lake and the remainder of the evening was spent in a social manner.

Last season the club moved into the commodious new rink and practically doubled its membership; this year most of last season's new members are assimilated into the club and there are a number of new comers also.

The good fellowship and genuine interest in the club shown at the meeting promise well for the coming season, as everyone knows (or should know) curling days are happy days and the Lakefield Curling Club, standing on the eve of a new season feel that it will be the best ever.

The rinks were drawn as follows: J. Todd, W. Morrison, T. Braden, C. S. Tanner, skip.
J. R. Hill, S. J. Charlton, J. J. McFadden, J. W. Ridpath skip.
B. Hull, S. McKibbin, W.W.Leonard, B. Dench skip.

FOUR HUNDRED RESCUED FROM A BURNING SHIP

Hospital Ship Carrying French Soldiers and Their Families Enveloped in Flames.

SEVERAL EXPLOSIONS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The U. S. destroyer Baninbridge Saturday rescued four hundred persons from the burning French hospital ship Vinh-Long, in the Sea of Marmora. The vessel took fire opposite San Stefano, on the western outskirts of Constantinople. Fifteen of those who were aboard the Vinh-Long are missing.

Five of the missing are believed to have been killed by explosions. The hospital ship was proceeding to Constantinople from Bizerta when a conflagration was discovered in the magazine. Several explosions followed rapidly, enveloping the ship in flames.

S.O.S. calls were answered immediately by the Baninbridge, Lieut. Commander W. A. Edwards running his vessel alongside and taking off the passengers, the majority of them French soldiers and their families, returning from leave.

United States submarine chaser Ninety-Six, in command of Lieut. A. H. Addoms, also assisted in rescuing those who jumped overboard.

SIR HENRY THORNTON GETTING AN OUTLINE OF HIS RAILWAY JOB

Present Tour is to Be a Thorough Inspection—Will Get the Details Later.

SPOKE AT MONCTON.

MONCTON, N.B., December 18.—Canadian Press. — "It is impossible to make a thorough inspection at the present time. I am merely getting an outline of the picture, and will paint in the details afterwards."

With these words, Sir Henry Thornton after making an inspection of the Canadian National Railway shops and offices in this city, took his departure in his special train for St. John, about 12 o'clock yesterday.

Owing to Sir Henry and his party being delayed about two hours in reaching Moncton from Prince Edward Island, the banquet tendered him on Saturday night at the Brunswick Hotel, under the auspices of the Board of Trade, which was set for eight o'clock, did not get under way before ten o'clock. Consequently it was after two o'clock Sunday morning before Sir Henry Thornton concluded his address.

About one hundred and sixty attended the banquet, which was presided over by Captain J. A. Masters, President of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Besides the chairman, the speakers were Lieut. Governor Pugsley, Hon. C. W. Robinson, Minister of Lands and Mines, in the New Brunswick Governor Senator Turgeon, of Bathurst, Matthew Lodge of Moncton, who is being boomed by the Moncton Board of Trade as a representative from New Brunswick on the Canadian National Board of Directors, and Sir Henry Thornton.

Moncton's geographical position as centre of the Maritime Division of the Canadian National Railways, its importance as a distributing point, the commercial and industrial interest of the Maritime Provinces, and the importance of having the Canadian National Railways operated in a way to contribute more largely in the development of the Maritime winter ports—St. John and Halifax—were the principal points stressed by the speakers preceding the guest of the evening.

In the course of his address which was mainly along the lines of his speeches at other Maritime points, Sir Henry spoke quite definitely in regard to decentralization.

He stressed the point that headquarters would not bother with details in the administration of the railway. One of the fundamentals of any successful organization must be centralization and complete decentralization with respect to details but let there be no mistake about that.

Sir Henry said in part as follows: "The Governor has put forward many exceedingly important suggestions which in my ignorance of

Boy Electrocuted Fixing Up Wireless

CHATHAM, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Albert Lambert, aged 17, was electrocuted yesterday afternoon while charging the batteries in his radio outfit. The young man, a wireless amateur, was preparing his set to enable him to listen in on a concert in Cuba. Making the connection between the charger and the batteries 110 volts of electricity were shot into his body. He found it impossible to let go and he called three times for assistance. His brother William attracted by his cries, rushed to the apparatus and pulled a switch shutting off the current. The unfortunate young man fell over unconscious and passed away five minutes later.

POLISH GOVT. IS STANDING FIRM

Strong Ministers Are Put in Office and Strict Order is Being Maintained Pending Election of a President.

WARSAW, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, former Provisional President of Poland, has been appointed Chief of Staff of the Polish Army. He replaces General Sikerski, who has assumed the premiership.

The assassination on Saturday of President Narutowicz has aroused the sense of patriotic duty among all the political parties and there now is general co-operation for the maintenance of strict order.

The formation within a few hours of a new Cabinet through the efforts of M. Rataj, who automatically became President when Narutowicz was assassinated, and of General Sikerski who was called to the premiership, has given the people a feeling of security. The immediate summoning of Parliament for next Wednesday to elect a new President has strengthened this feeling and Pilsudski's appointment as Chief of Staff has given national assurance that all necessary firmness will be shown by the heads of the Government in this critical time.

The Cabinet is rapidly being filled out around the skeleton group of Ministers who took office Saturday night. The Ministeries which were not filled are being operated for the present by the various men now holding portfolios.

Niewadomski, the assassin of President Narutowicz, who is a painter and 53 years old, was born in Warsaw. He was a student at the Academies of Fine Arts in Petrograd and Paris. His mental derangement is attributed to injuries sustained in an automobile accident in 1918, which necessitated two operations.

Niewadomski abandoned his art work and became active politically several years ago, but his irresponsibility caused him to be expelled from two political parties. There seems to be no doubt that he acted on his own responsibility, without accomplices or knowledge of any political group.

AUSTRALIAN VOTE IS STILL IN DOUBT

Premier Hughes Re-elected But Many of His Colleagues Have Been Defeated.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The majority whereby Premier Hughes was re-elected to Parliament in the Federal elections yesterday is placed at 5,000 in a despatch from Melbourne.

A Central News report from Sydney says that Assistant Minister Lamond was defeated.

Other Ministers whose seats are considered insecure are Walter M. Greene, Minister of Navy and for Defence; Alexander Poynton, Postmaster General, and Speaker Johnson. Most of the other Hughes colleagues were defeated.

The despatch gives the Nationalists approximately 36 seats, Labor 25, the Country party, 12, and the Independent Nationalist, 2, but says that the outstanding results from doubtful constituencies may alter the position.

DEPUTATION TO THE KING.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—After a demonstration of unemployed in Trafalgar Square yesterday a deputation was sent to Buckingham Palace in an orderly attempt to present a petition to King George. The King declined to receive the men and referred them to the Home Secretary.

Phantom Fleet Seen Off Brazil

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Dec. 18.— (Canadian Press). — The captain and passengers of the British steamer Almanzora, which arrived here yesterday, report having seen Saturday night on the high seas a fleet of 12 warships of the destroyer type steaming southward, conveying a merchant vessel, presumably a colliery.

The nationality of the fleet was not ascertained.

The semaphore station yesterday morning also report observing a fleet, the vessels of which flew no flags. As far as is known no fleet at the present time is navigating these waters; therefore, the reported presence of the ships is causing speculation.

TUG STRUCK ROCKS NEAR LIZARD ISLAND TWENTY-SEVEN LOST

Audience Ignorant Of Fire in Theatre

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Fire which broke out in the Grand Opera House building here shortly after the start of the Saturday afternoon performance and for a time looked bad, was extinguished with but half a dozen in the audience knowing anything about it until it was all over.

The fire was caused by the short circuiting of the high tension wire which melted a gas pipe in the ladies' rest room and ignited escaping gas. Dense clouds of smoke filled the lobby but none entered the auditorium of the theatre.

The fire alarm brought hundreds of people to the outside of the theatre but the audience was in blissful ignorance of the affair.

The loss will be about $1,000.

TWENTY-NINE ARE INJURED IN CRASH OF ELEVATED CARS

Prompt Action of Stationmaster Saved Many From Electrocution After the Accident Had Occurred.

AT RUSH HOUR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Twenty nine persons were injured and hundreds were thrown into a panic Saturday night when a swiftly-moving train on an elevated "shuttle" branch of the Interborough Transit Company's Lexington Avenue subway, crashed into the rear of a stalled train.

Seven women and children were among the victims. The motorman of moving section, Patrick Keogh, is believed to have been fatally injured.

At Fordham, where he was taken after being removed from the wreckage ,officials of the Transit Commission ordered him under guard on charges of criminal neglect.

The collision involved two southbound electric trains crowded with passengers, which were running only a few minutes apart on theatre rush hour schedules. As they came together in the semi-darkness, the concussion was heard for blocks and the frantic scream of the injured and imprisoned passengers brought thousands of helpless spectators to the scene.

The vestibule of the moving train, where Motorman Keogh was caught in his tiny cab, was demolished, as was the rear end of the train it encountered. Keogh's car mounted and partly telescoped the one it struck. Fifteen of the injured were taken from the rear car of the stalled train.

Pandemonium followed the crash, with men, women and children struggling to escape the cars through the tightly closed vestibules, and thence across tracks and live third rails to the street below the elevated structure.

Many are believed by the police to have been saved from electrocution by the stationmaster at Hunt's Point, who saw the collision and immediately threw the emergency switches cutting off power along the system.

Emergency ambulances from every hospital in the district were hurried to the scene, while all police reserves in the Bronx and several fire fighting units were summoned to hold the crowds and prepare against an outbreak of fire.

STEAMER ASHORE.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The Newfoundland Government steamer Prospero was ashore on Horse Island, Green Pond, Newfoundland, according to a wireless message received here Saturday evening from the White Star liner Baltic, via Cape Race. The ship was pounding heavily, the message stated.

The Prospero is a steel steamer, 599 tons net, and 204.8 feet long. She was built at Glasgow in 1904.

Green Pond is about 100 miles south of St. John's, Nf.

One hundred and twenty passengers were safely landed yesterday morning. The vessel, which is owned by the Newfoundland Government, was refloated later with numbers One and Two holds damaged.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH

AKRON, O., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Three men were burned to death and four others were injured one probably fatally, early yesterday when a fire destroyed a cottage in which they were sleeping at Little Wadsworth, near here. The dead and injured lived at Massillon, where three of the men were attorneys.

Nine Survivors, Including One Woman, Were Blown Ashore in a Life-Boat—But Little Hope For Others.

IN BLINDING STORM.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Twenty-seven persons are missing and are believed to have been drowned or died from exposure following the disaster which overtook the tug Reliance when it struck the rocks off Lizard Island four days ago.

This was the fear expressed by officials of the Superior Paper Company, owners of the tug, last night.

The last seen of the missing 27 persons was Wednesday morning when the Reliance, battling through a blinding snow storm, went on the rocks off Lizard Island, stripped her wheel and sank almost immediately.

Captain D. A. Williams of this city and six others who were forward, took one life boat, while nine others, including Mr. and Mrs. Harten, took the other. The second boat drifted several hours in the storm and was blown ashore on the Canadian mainland, 85 miles north of here.

Mrs. Harten was so exhausted that the party was held up 36 hours in an Indian shack before it was able to start inland toward the railroad, which was reached Saturday.

The survivors express little hope that the others survived the storm. The announcement by the company last night said that in addition to the crew of 14, the Reliance carried twenty lumberjacks, an official of the company's forestry department, and a fisheries company agent, who had been picked up by the Reliance on its last trip to the lumber camps.

The missing men, it is said by survivors, left the wrecked tug in a launch which was carried by the Reliance in addition to its two life boats.

It is pointed out that if the missing men reached Lizard Island, in the storm, they were without food. If they reached an island where there were huts, their problem of fighting the cold would not be so great, but being without weapons, their chances of obtaining enough food were declared to be slender.

The tug Gray late last night had not reached the spot where the reliance sank, according to wireless advices, but was still fighting the snow storm. The wrecking tug Favorite, of St. Ignace, passed here at noon yesterday to aid in the search.

SHERBROOKE MAY ADOPT CAMBRAI

French City Will Have Moral and Financial Support During Period of Reconstruction.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The City of Cambrai, one of the stepping stones to the Allies' victorious march in the final stages of the world struggle, and in the capture of which Eastern Townships regiments played an important part, is appealing to Sherbrooke for moral and financial support. The proposed adoption of the City of Cambrai by Sherbrooke is at present the subject of considerable correspondence between the chief magistrates of the two cities in question and ways and means are under discussion for the most satisfactory measures to be executed in this connection.

Sir Arthur Currie, Major General Sir Fred Loomis, Lieut. P. Pelletier, Agent General for Quebec stationed at London, and Philippe Roy, Commissioner General for Canada in France have expressed their views as being in favor of the adoption of Cambrai by Sherbrooke.

FOUR HUNDRED RESCUED FROM A BURNING SHIP

Hospital Ship Carrying French Soldiers and Their Families Enveloped in Flames.

SEVERAL EXPLOSIONS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The U. S. destroyer Baninbridge Saturday rescued four hundred persons from the burning French hospital ship Vinh-Long, in the Sea of Marmora. The vessel took fire opposite San Stefano, on the western outskirts of Constantinople. Fifteen of those who were aboard the Vinh-Long are missing.

Five of the missing are believed to have been killed by explosions. The hospital ship was proceeding to Constantinople from Bizerta when a conflagration was discovered in the magazine. Several explosions followed rapidly, enveloping the ship in flames.

S.O.S. calls were answered immediately by the Baninbridge, Lieut. Commander W. A. Edwards running his vessel alongside and taking off the passengers, the majority of them French soldiers and their families, returning from leave.

United States submarine chaser Ninety-Six, in command of Lieut. A. H. Addoms, also assisted in rescuing those who jumped overboard.

SIR HENRY THORNTON GETTING AN OUTLINE OF HIS RAILWAY JOB

Present Tour is to Be a Thorough Inspection—Will Get the Details Later.

SPOKE AT MONCTON.

MONCTON, N.B., December 18.—Canadian Press. — "It is impossible to make a thorough inspection at the present time. I am merely getting an outline of the picture, and will paint in the details afterwards."

With these words, Sir Henry Thornton after making an inspection of the Canadian National Railway shops and offices in this city, took his departure in his special train for St. John, about 12 o'clock yesterday.

Owing to Sir Henry and his party being delayed about two hours in reaching Moncton from Prince Edward Island, the banquet tendered him on Saturday night at the Brunswick Hotel, under the auspices of the Board of Trade, which was set for eight o'clock, did not get under way before ten o'clock. Consequently it was after two o'clock Sunday morning before Sir Henry Thornton concluded his address.

About one hundred and sixty attended the banquet, which was presided over by Captain J. A. Masters, President of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Besides the chairman, the speakers were Lieut. Governor Pugsley, Hon. C. W. Robinson, Minister of Lands and Mines, in the New Brunswick Governor Senator Turgeon, of Bathurst, Matthew Lodge of Moncton, who is being boomed by the Moncton Board of Trade as a representative from New Brunswick on the Canadian National Board of Directors, and Sir Henry Thornton.

Moncton's geographical position as centre of the Maritime Division of the Canadian National Railways, its importance as a distributing point, the commercial and industrial interest of the Maritime Provinces, and the importance of having the Canadian National Railways operated in a way to contribute more largely in the development of the Maritime winter ports—St. John and Halifax—were the principal points stressed by the speakers preceding the guest of the evening.

In the course of his address which was mainly along the lines of his speeches at other Maritime points, Sir Henry spoke quite definitely in regard to decentralization.

He stressed the point that headquarters would not bother with details in the administration of the railway. One of the fundamentals of any successful organization must be centralization and complete decentralization with respect to details but let there, be no mistake about that.

Sir Henry said in part as follows: "The Governor has put forward many exceedingly important suggestions which in my ignorance of

Boy Electrocuted Fixing Up Wireless

CHATHAM, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Albert Lambert, aged 17, was electrocuted yesterday afternoon while charging the batteries in his radio outfit. The young man a wireless amateur, was preparing his set to enable him to listen in on a concert in Cuba. Making the connection between the charger and the batteries 110 volts of electricity were shot into his body. He found it impossible to let go and he called three times for assistance. His brother William attracted by his cries, rushed to the apparatus and pulled a switch shutting off the current. The unfortunate young man fell over unconscious and passed away five minutes later.

POLISH GOVT. IS STANDING FIRM

Strong Ministers Are Put in Office and Strict Order is Being Maintained Pending Election of a President.

WARSAW, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, former Provisional President of Poland, has been appointed Chief of Staff of the Polish Army. He replaces General Sikerski, who has assumed the premiership.

The assassination on Saturday of President Narutowicz has aroused the sense of patriotic duty among all the political parties and there now is general co-operation for the maintenance of strict order.

The formation within a few hours of a new Cabinet through the efforts of M. Rataj, who automatically became President when Narutowicz was assassinated, and of General Sikerski who was called to the premiership, has given the people a feeling of security. The immediate summoning of Parliament for next Wednesday to elect a new President has strengthened this feeling and Pilsudski's appointment as Chief of Staff has given national assurance that all necessary firmness will be shown by the heads of the Government in this critical time.

The Cabinet is rapidly being filled out around the skeleton group of Ministers who took office Saturday night. The Ministeries which were not filled are being operated for the present by the various men now holding portfolios.

Niewadomski, the assassin of President Narutowicz, who is a painter and 53 years old, was born in Warsaw. He was a student at the Academies of Fine Arts in Petrograd and Paris. His mental derangement is attributed to injuries sustained in an automobile accident in 1918, which necessitated two operations.

Niewadomski abandoned his art work and became active politically several years ago, but his irresponsibility caused him to be expelled from two political parties. There seems to be no doubt that he acted on his own responsibility, without accomplices or knowledge of any political group.

AUSTRALIAN VOTE IS STILL IN DOUBT

Premier Hughes Re-elected But Many of His Colleagues Have Been Defeated.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The majority whereby Premier Hughes was re-elected to Parliament in the Federal elections yesterday is placed at 5,000 in a despatch from Melbourne.

A Central News report from Sydney says that Assistant Minister Lamond was defeated.

Other Ministers whose seats are considered insecure are Walter M. Greene, Minister of Navy and for Defence; Alexander Poynton, Postmaster General, and Speaker Johnson. Most of the other Hughes colleagues were defeated.

The despatch gives the Nationalists approximately 36 seats, Labor 25, the Country party, 12, and the Independent Nationalist, 2, but says that the outstanding results from doubtful constituencies may alter the position.

Phantom Fleet Seen Off Brazil

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The captain and passengers of the British steamer Almanzora, which arrived here yesterday, report having seen Saturday night on the high seas a fleet of 12 warships of the destroyer type steaming southward, conveying a merchant vessel, presumably a colliery.

The nationality of the fleet was not ascertained.

The semaphore station yesterday morning also report observing a fleet, the vessels of which flew no flags. As far as is known no fleet at the present time is navigating these waters; therefore, the reported presence of the ships is causing speculation.

TUG STRUCK ROCKS NEAR LIZARD ISLAND TWENTY-SEVEN LOST

Audience Ignorant Of Fire in Theatre

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Fire which broke out in the Grand Opera House building here shortly after the start of the Saturday afternoon performance and for a time looked bad, was extinguished with but half a dozen in the audience knowing anything about it until it was all over.

The fire was caused by the short circuiting of the high tension wire which melted a gas pipe in the ladies' rest room and ignited escaping gas. Dense clouds of smoke filled the lobby but none entered the auditorium of the theatre.

The fire alarm brought hundreds of people to the outside of the theatre but the audience was in blissful ignorance of the affair.

The loss will be about $1,000.

Nine Survivors, Including One Woman, Were Blown Ashore in a Life-Boat—But Little Hope For Others.

IN BLINDING STORM.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Twenty-seven persons are missing and are believed to have been drowned or died from exposure following the disaster which overtook the tug Reliance when it struck the rocks off Lizard Island four days ago.

This was the fear expressed by officials of the Superior Paper Company, owners of the tug, last night.

The last seen of the missing 27 persons was Wednesday morning when the Reliance, battling through a blinding snow storm, went on the rocks off Lizard Island, stripped her wheel and sank almost immediately.

Captain D. A. Williams of this city and six others who were forward, took one life boat, while nine others, including Mr. and Mrs. Harten, took the other. The second boat drifted several hours in the storm and was blown ashore on the Canadian mainland, 85 miles north of here.

Mrs. Harten was so exhausted that the party was held up 36 hours in an Indian shack before it was able to start inland toward the railroad, which was reached Saturday.

The survivors express little hope that the others survived the storm. The announcement by the company last night said that in addition to the crew of 14, the Reliance carried twenty lumberjacks, an official of the company's forestry department, and a fisheries company agent, who had been picked up by the Reliance on its last trip to the lumber camps.

The missing men, it is said by survivors, left the wrecked tug in a launch which was carried by the Reliance in addition to its two life boats.

It is pointed out that if the missing men reached Lizard Island, in the storm, they were without food. If they reached an island where there were huts, their problem of fighting the cold would not be so great, but being without weapons, their chances of obtaining enough food were declared to be slender.

The tug Gray late last night had not reached the spot where the reliance sank, according to wireless advices, but was still fighting the snow storm. The wrecking tug Favorite, of St. Ignace, passed here at noon yesterday to aid in the search.

TWENTY-NINE ARE INJURED IN CRASH OF ELEVATED CARS

Prompt Action of Stationmaster Saved Many From Electrocution After the Accident Had Occurred.

AT RUSH HOUR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Twenty nine persons were injured and hundreds were thrown into a panic Saturday night when a swiftly-moving train on an elevated "shuttle" branch of the Interborough Transit Company's Lexington Avenue subway, crashed into the rear of a stalled train.

Seven women and children were among the victims. The motorman of moving section, Patrick Keogh, is believed to have been fatally injured.

At Fordham, where he was taken after being removed from the wreckage officials of the Transit Commission ordered him under guard on charges of criminal neglect.

The collision involved two southbound electric trains crowded with passengers, which were running only a few minutes apart on theatre rush hour schedules. As they came together in the semi-darkness, the concussion was heard for blocks and the frantic scream of the injured and imprisoned passengers brought thousands of helpless spectators to the scene.

The vestibule of the moving train, where Motorman Keogh was caught in his tiny cab, was demolished, as was the rear end of the train it encountered. Keogh's car mounted and partly telescoped the one it struck. Fifteen of the injured were taken from the rear car of the stalled train.

Pandemonium followed the crash, with men, women and children struggling to escape the cars through the tightly closed vestibules, and thence across tracks and live third rails to the street below the elevated structure.

Many are believed by the police to have been saved from electrocution by the stationmaster at Hunt's Point, who saw the collision and immediately threw the emergency switches cutting off power along the system.

Emergency ambulances from every hospital in the district were hurried to the scene, while all police reserves in the Bronx and several fire fighting units were summoned to hold the crowds and prepare against an outbreak of fire.

STEAMER ASHORE.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The Newfoundland Government steamer Prospero was ashore on Horse Island, Green Pond, Newfoundland, according to a wireless message received here Saturday evening from the White Star liner Baltic, via Cape Race. The ship was pounding heavily, the message stated.

The Prospero is a steel steamer, 599 tons net, and 204.8 feet long. She was built at Glasgow in 1904.

Green Pond is about 100 miles south of St. John's, Nf.

One hundred and twenty passengers were safely landed yesterday morning. The vessel, which is owned by the Newfoundland Government, was refloated later with numbers One and Two holds damaged.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH

AKRON, O., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Three men were burned to death and four others were injured one probably fatally, early yesterday when a fire destroyed a cottage in which they were sleeping at Little Wadsworth, near here. The dead and injured lived at Massillon, where three of the men were attorneys.

SHERBROOKE MAY ADOPT CAMBRAI

French City Will Have Moral and Financial Support During Period of Reconstruction.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The City of Cambrai, one of the stepping stones to the Allies' victorious march in the final stages of the world struggle, and in the capture of which Eastern Townships regiments played an important part, is appealing to Sherbrooke for moral and financial support. The proposed adoption of the City of Cambrai by Sherbrooke is at present the subject of considerable correspondence between the chief magistrates of the two cities in question and ways and means are under discussion for the most satisfactory measures to be executed in this connection.

Sir Arthur Currie, Major General Sir Fred Loomis, Lieut. P. Pelletier, Agent General for Quebec stationed at London, and Philippe Roy, Commissioner General for Canada in France have expressed their views as being in favor of the adoption of Cambrai by Sherbrooke.

A REAL CALL.

Doubtless during the next few days, a number of citizens who possess to a large extent the qualities needed in the management of our civic affairs will be urged to stand for position in the Council.

It is recognized that there is need of such men, and it is to be hoped that some of those who are being pressed to become candidates will consent to giving the city the benefit of their services.

There is a real call for good men.

The cost of our civic government has reached such a level that it is imperative that real measures of economy should be in order.

It is necessary to see that we get value for the money expended—something that many citizens do not believe we have been getting.

Men who enter municipal life just now will find an unusual opportunity to be of genuine serivce.

That opportunity and the reward that comes from the satisfaction of having done what seemed to be one's duty are of course the only rewards that need to be expected.

The citizen who is qualified and who consents to serve would not want any other recompense.

IS IT ANY WONDER?

In seeking to arouse the electors of Peterborough to a deeper interest in municipal affairs and in pleading for the candidature of men qualified by ability or training for positions on the civic board of management, the Examiner has no axe to grind, no self-interest to serve, no desire save to be of some assistance to the community.

Not all men who are ambitious for posts in the Council or other civic bodies have the qualities that are needed there, and while honoring their ambition, the Examiner feels constrained to point out that managing the affairs of a municipality of over 21,000 people is, or should be, a straight business proposition, which should be entrusted to the best men we can persuade to accept office.

Many municipalities are beginning to look to the commission plan of civic government.

Others are going considerably further and are considering the city manager method.

It is not surprising that this should be the case—rather the wonder is that the majority of cities have not scrapped the obsolete and inefficient civic machinery now in force for something that promises at least continuity in policy, economy and efficiency.

However, Canadians on the whole are a conservative people, changing only when driven to it by dire necessity.

So we go along in the same old routine, caring very little, it seems, about the composition of our civic bodies, electing men who have little to offer save their anxiety to win, accepting the theory that a year or two on the Council makes such men more valuable than a new aspirant, who, on the contrary, are far more qualified to serve.

Is it any wonder people are beginning to ask themselves if a more efficient system of civic administration cannot be found?

SIMPLY GOOD BUSINESS.

The Examiner has been criticized in some quarters for advocating the passing of the Armour's Hill Park by-law.

That was to be expected, for, as stated a few days ago, these are bad times for money by-laws, and small as is the expenditure involved in the purchase of Armour's Hill, the fact that it is a spending by-law makes the fate of the measure uncertain, to say the least.

Granting that, the fact remains that the buying of this property for $3,000 is good business.

It is argued that Peterborough has enough parks.

That is a debatable question in itself.

If we imagined that the city was going to remain at its present size, possibly the statement might be accepted.

But the Examiner has faith in Peterborough, confidence that it is destined to grow and expand far beyond its present borders.

When that time comes park sites will not be available for $3,000.

If the people of that bigger Peterborough want more parks they'll have to pay through the nose for them as has every large city which has not had vision enough to provide for the future.

It is now when property for such purposes can be obtained for a song that Peterborough should visualize her future growth and plan accordingly.

The securing of Armour's Hill should be viewed as the first step in such a plan.

The desire for economy should not be carried out to a degree that is absurd, as the turning down of this unusual opportunity to add a new park for $3,000 would undoubtedly be.

To repeat the purchase of Armour's Hill at the price named is simply good business.

CRIMINAL WASTE.

Canada is wasting one of her richest natural resources with a prodigal extravagance that is criminal.

Canada is not only taking no trouble to conserve her timber wealth, but the policy she is pursuing is helping to deplete her forests with thoroughness and rapidity.

It is not on the present generation that the disastrous effects of her neglect and shortsightedness will rebound, but on the citizens of the future. The Federal and Provincial Governments, who are trustees of the natural resources of the Dominion, are selfishly wasting their substance without any regard for their responsibilities, without appreciation of the trust that is morally laid upon them.

In a striking letter on this page Mr. Frank J. D. Barnjum submits a few of the main heads under which our forest riches are being wasted. He points out that insects which attack our trees destroy one billion feet of merchantable spruce. The pulp and paper companies are denuding our forests and the toll of the axe for all purposes amounts to an annual shrinkage of fifteen million acres, while the loss by fire—largely due to criminal carelessness and inefficient patrolling—amounts to several million acres more.

Canada is cutting and burning her merchantable lumber just as if her citizens were a handful of settlers set down in the midst of a wide-reaching and seemingly limitless virgin forest The limit holder and the land owner are not the chief sufferers from the policy of negligence and indifference that is being pursued. Perhaps if they were we should have pressure brought to bear upon the Government to put a stop to this national tragedy. As the visible supply shrinks, the price of lumber and pulp, reacting to the changeless law of supply and demand, goes higher and the increase is passed on from the concessionaire and the leasing company to the ultimate consumer. It is the man who buys the wooden box, the kitchen chair, or any one of the innumerable articles made of or derived from wood that will have to pay the price of public carelessness and folly.

"There is wood enough for us to cut and burn," say the limit holders, and the forest owners—let the generations to come look after themselves. What crass ignorance. What wrong-headed stupidity! Such an attitude is reminiscent of the notorious pacifist statesman who boasted that if war was declared upon his country a million men would spring to arms over night. They would have the spirit perhaps, but they would not have the arms, the equipment or the training. So the generations to come who find timber scarce and the cost of cutting high owing to its inaccessibility, may have the will and the urge to cut more, but they will not have the raw material.

Armies do not spring up full statured over night, forests do not lift themselves from seedlings to great trees at a magic touch. Nature builds perfectly but slowly and not all the wishes or even the necessities in the world can in an instant add a cubit to the stature of a forest sapling.

It is high time that Governments ended this period of criminal lethargy and bestirred themselves to the adoption of a policy of reforestation, of planting and of protection.

Much of the damage that has been done is irreparable, but with the facts clearly before us we shall deserve, and receive in full measure, the censure of the generations of Canadians yet to come if we delay any longer in staving off a national calamity while there is yet time.—Montreal Star.

METHODS AND MOTIVES.

Scenes of disorder in the House of Commons, however spectacular and dramatic, have nothing but a transient influence for the student of politics. The real interest in these ebullitions of temper and bad manners lies in the underlying causes which create them.

The House of Commons is not a stranger to the incidents of indecorum and open defiance of the Speaker's authority which have been repeated during the last two days there. Charges and counter-charges were hurled across the floor of the House in the memorable sitting of February 4, 1881, when the Speaker "named" recalcitrant and obstinate members, at first singly and later in groups. On that day thirty-six members were suspended from the sitting. Old parliamentarians will recall the days of that great obstructionist Dr. Tanner, whose language was more vituperative and more flagrantly insulting than any uttered recently by his modern imitators. Dr. Tanner was ordered out of the House for a personal insult to Mr. Balfour and scenes in which members have been removed from the British House of Commons after a free-for-all with the sergeant-at-arm and his staff are matters of history.

It is recorded in the life of Viscount Peel that he had to intervene 935 times in the 1881 session, a matter which he cynically sums up as "a waste of 150 hours in the administration of the nation's affairs."

So again when Mr. Kirkwood and other extreme members shouted, "Shame", "Gag", and the like after the Speaker had put the question he was only echoing the very words that the Irish members bawled on June 17, 1887, when the "guillotine" was first introduced and fourteen clauses of the Irish Crimes Act were passed without discussion. Gladstone, who was the most bitter opponent of the Closure, was forced to have recourse to it in 1893, and the chorus of protest that six years before had gone up from the Liberal benches was shouted from the mouths of the Conservatives with as great a show of indignation as the little game of politics will permit.

Nevertheless the lack of decorum and dignity in the British House is just as much to be deplored today as it was in the days of the Irish obstruction. The leaders are just as bitter in the hatreds and as zealous in their scorn as were their predecessors. Kirkwood has already served a term of imprisonment for his extreme views and has been expelled from one of the British Dominions. The pabulum upon which Mr. Jack Jones and Mr. Walton Newbold have been spoon-fed for years is essentially destructive of constitutional pillars and traditions. It is not the cheap gibe or the insolent personality that is uttered in the House that matters, but the point of view of the errant member, the motive force that inspires the challenge.

Premier Bonar Law is taking a firm stand. He refuses to be caught by a palpable political trick. He has outlined the policy of the Government and declares that outside of this the problem of unemployment is a matter of administration, to be dealt with by the specific lieutenant whom he has chosen for the work. He refuses to continue the policy which has grown into disrepute of a "one-man Government." Labor sees, on the other hand, the political advantage of fastening upon him the discredit of the unemployed situation. It is not the Government the Kirkwoods and the Newbolds are after, but Mr. Bonar Law's scalp.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Get your Christmas list checked off before Saturday and give the farmers a chance.

The customers who carry home their small parcels this week have the real Santa Claus spirit.

Only U.F.O. members are expected to ride in the Farmers' political machine. Any other supporters may take a seat in the trailer.

Some Toronto folks are worrying over what they call the waterfront grab. It is nothing compared to the general invasion of municipal rights by the Provincial Government.

Christmas spirit luckily does not come under the ban of the O.T.A.

The fact that two motor cars collided on a railway crossing makes it look as if motorists are fighting for the chance to get hit by a train.

It seems probable the Turks and the turkeys will both have to come down.

One unfortunate thing about Christmas is that more young trees are killed in a week than are planted in a decade or two.

The longer skirts will make it impossible to see how the stockings are filled this Christmas.

Not knowing who the candidates in Peterborough are going to be, local folks find it easier to get interested in the Toronto Mayoralty contest.

A RECITAL

The musicale at the Conservatory on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Art Association was quite largely attended, especially in view of the many activities and duties that crowd the week-end. The restful spell of the twilight hour induced a singularly receptive mood, kindled by the pervasive spirit of Christmas, to which the programme was responsively attuned. The numbers were as follows:

"Around The Christmas Tree"—Tobani; The Conservatory Orchestra.
"Nazareth"—Gounod; Mr. Robert Brown.
"I Think"—Guy D'Handlot; Mrs. A. L. Amys.
(a) "Dominique," (b) "A Vagabond's Christmas," Miss May Perry.
(a) "Counsel to Nina"—Wekerlin. (b) "Chanson Provencale"—Del Rigo; Mathilde Masson.
"Plains of Peace"—Barnard; The Conservatory Orchestra.
"Holy Night"—Mrs. McKee Bingham.
"Home, Sweet Home," as played the world over; The Conservatory Orchestra.

The personnel of the orchestra was as follows: Violins, Dr. Park, Mrs. C. Seymour, Mrs. Hoyland, Miss McFarlane, Miss W. Evans, Miss K. Taylor, Mrs. Hetherington. French horns—Mr. H. Wood and Mr. S. Hetherington. Trombone—Mr. Walter Miller. Cornets—Mr. C. Gallagher and Mr. W. Cormack. Cello—Mr. Farthing. Piano, Miss Olga Fowler.

The programme was nicely selected and uniformly pleasing. The solos by Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Amys and Mr. Brown all reflected the sentiment of the season and its festival, and the orchestra helped to carry out the effect. Mr. Gliddon's musicians, although only at half strength on account of the demands of the afternoon, gave three numbers that were marked by a fine tonal quality and a rather surprising strength. It was simply a miniature orchestra, but it was agreeably arranged and balanced, and its playing was altogether delightful. Miss Perry of the Conservatory staff, made a very favorable impression in her readings. The treatment of both subjects was sympathetic and without undue obtrusion of personality in the interpretation, and her enunciation and delivery clear cut, easy and graceful.

Miss Masson revealed to many who heard her for the first time an exceedingly pleasing soprano, fresh and colorful, with a lovely texture in her lower tones and thoroughly satisfying throughout her entire range. It is scarcely robust, but it amply fulfilled all the requirements of her two charming selections. It is smooth and flexible in the control of this young artist whose "Chanson Provencale," with its haunting melody was invested with a gaiety and sparkle and atmosphere that captivated the audience. Both numbers were splendidly sung, but the chanson was a little lyrical gem in a particularly appealing setting of melody and expression. Miss Agnes Logan and Mrs. Evans were the accompanists. Mrs. Dr. Neal announced that the association had engaged the Hambourg trio for a concert in January.

PUPILS REBUILD SCHOOL FOR CITY.

Gaining Practical Experience and Saving Thousands of Dollars.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(United Press).—Gaining a vast amount of practical experience and saving the city thousands of dollars, the pupils of the Packham Vocational School here are erecting a new school building and are remodeling a three-story dwelling into classrooms. They are doing all the work themselves under the instruction of their teachers and are doing it as well as skilled workmen could, according to William W. Miller, principal of the school.

Ground was broken in September for a one-story frame structure, with an ell, to contain an assembly room, gymnasium and a carpenter shop. The plans and specifications were worked out by the instructors and pupils. The drafting classes made the blueprints, while the necessary amount of raw materials was estimated by those specializing in mathematics and the order forms supplied by the English students.

Work on the building has gone on rapidly under the direction of the teacher in carpentry. The cellar walls have been finished, the boys themselves making the concrete blocks of which they are composed.

"Two of the groups that did this work," Miller said, "could construct a concrete garage without the aid of their instructors.

"The Council appropriated $10,000 for the materials used in this building. It will be worth at least $25,000 when finished and the $15,000 difference will be a clear saving to the city. There are no figures obtainable to show the profit this work will be to the pupils who, by doing it, are learning to handle a real job of construction."

Near this building which is now being built another big piece of work has been started. A large three-story house is being remodeled into classrooms and drafting rooms, also by the boys, and according to their plans.

John F. Reed, instructor in carpentry and cabinet making, is supervising this undertaking. It would cost the city $5,000 if done by a contractor, but the cost will be cut in half by turning over the work to the class of 22 boys. In less than a month this force has ripped out partitions, started new ones, replaced flooring and has straightened out a crooked flight of stairs.

There are in all 195 pupils in the school taking courses of two years' duration. Half their time is spent in actual shop work and the other half is given to related book instruction.

They also turn out furniture for the different departments of the school. They make in their own machine shop some of their wood working tools. They even have their own electric plant.

THE DAY'S DOINGS AS RECORDED BY THE EXAMINER'S STAFF OF CORRESPONDENTS.

PRESENTATION AT MILLBROOK

Miss F. P. Byam Honored By Teachers and Officers of the Methodist Church.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 18. — An event of unusual interest took place in the basement of the Methodist church on Friday evening, the occasion being a farewell social evening held by the teachers and officers of the Sunday school, and the officers and members of the Boneka Bible Class, in honor of Miss F. P. Byam, whose marriage to Rev. Robert Stillwell, of Monteagle, Tenn., takes place in the immediate future. The pastor, Rev .S. T. Tucker, acted as chairman, making an appropriate opening address and after a brief programme consisting of piano solos, by Miss Estelle Hetherington, vocal solos by Mrs. P. Stinson and Mrs. G. W Sayles, cornet solos by G. E. Burnham, and an address by Rev. J. Wilks, Miss Byam was called to the platform and presented on behalf of her class with a handsome solid leather club bag (English make), and on behalf of the teachers and officers of the Sunday school, with the fittings for the bag in French ivory, and including a number of extra pieces to complete the furnishings of her dressing-table. Mr. F. W. Fallis read the following address, on behalf of the Executive, of which Miss Byam has been a member for twenty years, Mrs. J. McKnight and Mrs. I. M. Nattrass making the presentation.

Miss F. P. Byam, Millbrook.

Dear Miss Byam,—We, the teachers and officers of the Methodist Sunday school, having learned with regret of your intended departure from our ranks, have met here this evening to express our best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity, and also to join with your Sunday school class in enjoying a farewell social evening together.

We deeply appreciate the years of faithful service which you have willingly given to our school; its best interests, we were always assured, you had very close at heart, and whether it was in planning for an extension of its activities the upbuilding of its spiritual welfare, the preparation for our annual entertainment ,or the programme for some special Sunday's services, we were helped, more times than we can readily recall, and more fully than we can ever estimate, by your wise counsel. Even if you differed from some others on the executive as to the best means for accomplishing a desired end, that difference was invariably kindly and courteously expressed, and we have benefitted richly from your patience, ability and ripened experience.

The vacancy left on our teaching staff by your removal will be one not easily filled, but whoever your successor may be, we know she will find "foundations of spiritual truths well and truly laid" on which to build when she assumes the responsibility of imparting Bible instruction to the Boneka Bible class. Neglect of your class could never be laid at your door, and your regularity and punctuality in attendance were valuable aids to the superintendent in discharge of his duties, while your example was not without beneficial results not only on your own scholars, but doubtless influenced the teachers and scholars of other classes as well.

The number of trained teachers which have been secured for the school from your class is but another tribute to the excellent work which you have done for the Master during the years you have been associated with this Sunday school.

While your home, for the future, will probably be far removed from this neighborhood you will always have the happy assurance that your influence here for the best interests of the Kingdom, which always lay nearest your heart, will go on in the lives of your scholars, especially those who are mothers and have the training of the children in their homes ,and so, these lives touching others, and these still others, Eternity alone will see the completion of the circle.

We ask you to accept these slight tokens of our love and appreciation, and we would again assure you of our warmest wishes for your happiness, and our sincere prayer that both you, and the one soon to be associated with you on life's journey, may consistently realize the Father's guiding hand, the spirit's loving counsel, and the Saviour's abiding presence.

Signed on behalf of the teachers and officers of the Methodist Sunday school—

F. W. Fallis, Supt.
W .G. Howland, Sec'y.

Millbrook, Dec. 15, 1922.

Mrs. B .R. Raper, president of the Boneka class, then read the address which follows, Mrs. G. E. Burnham presenting the gift:

Miss F. P. Byam, Millbrook:

Dear Miss Byam,— The Boneka Bible class of the Methodist Sunday school wish to express their heartfelt appreciation of your faithful services for so many years as a member of our class. By your clear exposition of Scripture, and your exemplary life, you have revealed to us the true reality of Christianity. You have enabled us to see the value of our motto, "Help whoever, wherever you can," which has also been a reality in your own personal life. We shall aways look back with pleasant memories to these years of loving association.

We regret that you are about to leave us, but we know that wherever you may go, you will still seek an opportunity to labor in the Master's service. Kindly accept this small gift as a token of our love and esteem. We wish you God-speed, and many years of happiness and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the Boneka Bible Class—

Mrs. B. R. Raper, President.
Mary Widdis, Secretary.

Miss Byam, though deeply touched, made a suitable reply, expressing her pleasure in having been associated with the school ,and privileged to teach her class, especially as the latter, through their officers, who were always efficient and willing, had loyally supported her in every undertaking for its welfare. A pleasing feature of the programme, which must not be overlooked, was the reading of a cleverly-written poem, "The Boneka's Lament," written for the occasion by the "class poet," as the pastor called her, Miss Alberta Brock, and read by the "class orator," Mrs. Hilliard Lang. Two contests, "flower puzzles," and "a kitchen quiz," were enjoyed during the social hour, Mrs. C. Garside winning the prize (a large box of chocolates) for the former, and delicious refreshments were served before the gathering dispersed, thus bringing to a close one of the happiest evenings yet spent in connection with the Methodist Sunday school.

Some of those present were: Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Tucker, Rev. J. Wilks, Mr. F. W. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Earle, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. C. Garside, Mrs. W. H. and Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown, Mrs. P. Stinson, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. F. McMahon, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Nattrass, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. R. H .and Mrs. Ross Edmunds, Mrs. B. R. Raper, Mrs. M. Todd, Mrs. J. Todd, Miss M .Widdis, Mrs. Weatherup, Mr. Irwin Hatherly, Mrs. W. West, Miss M. E. and Miss Estelle Hetherington, Mrs. G. Raper, Miss L. Crocker, Miss A. Hampton, Mrs. H. Nattrass, Mrs. H. Lang, Mrs. Patton, Mr. W. G. Hetherington, Mrs. G. Freelove, Miss A. Stewart and several others.

Chimney Fire Nearly Got Away—Water Scarce in the District.

KING'S WHARF, Dec. 18.—Mr. Wm. Herlihey, Sr., had a bad chimney fire and it was with a great effort on the part of the neighbors that the house and other buildings were saved. The wind was very high and chimney fires are numerous around here.

Water Needed.

There is great need of water here as all the wells are nearly dry. The people here have to go to the lake to water their stock; some of them have to go for miles. It is to be hoped there will be rain before winter sets in and there wil be a water famine not only here but everywhere.

Messrs. Wm. Cartin and sons are busy threshing clover and alsike through here. The grain threshing is finished and the farmers had a good crop of grain but the prices are poor.

Quite a number from here attended the U.F.O. meeting at Downyville.

S. S. No. 15, under the direction of Miss Foley is getting ready for a concert to be held in the school Monday evening, Dec. 18.

On Monday night during the high wind, Mr. and Mrs. Moon were burned out. They are an old couple and reside near Emily Creek, just west of here. The duck hunters always found a welcome at their home and they will miss them next duck season. The sympathy of the community goes out to them in their loss. There was no insurance and they lost everything.

McGahey Bros are busy in this vicinity sawing wood with their gasoline outfit.

The Misses Mamie and Marie O'Neill of Lindsay, spent the week end at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Shine spent Wednesday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Duffy.

Miss Lucy Sullivan of Lindsay, spent the week end at her home here.

Rub old, honest St. Jacobs Oil whenever you have sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism or sprains, as it is absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

SIR HENRY THORNTON

conditions here it would be just about as safe for me to discuss as to to tickle the business end of a mule. The Canadian National Railway system has to be solved by a major operation involving amputation.

"There has been allusion to the difficulty in getting responsible and speedy action from the organizations which administered this railway in the past. Whether that be precisely true or not I am able to say that our organization for the administration of this property of yours will be the kind of an organization which will presereve a close contact with the public and give you a responsible and speedy action to anything within reason which you may present. The headquarters of this administration is not going to bother with cinders; in fact we are not going to be bothered with very much of anything, and if there is any loafing to be done it will be done at headquarters—and I will be the one to do the most of it. But I assure you gentlemen that one of the fundamentals of any successful organization must be centralization, and complete decentralization with respect to details, and let there be no mistake about this."

Referring to Moncton, and the Canadian National Railway employees, he said "This is an important distributing centre and also an important centre. Many of our citizens gain their livelihood from the Canadian National Railways. Our shops are here and our interests are yours, and I am very glad to have an opportunity to come into a community which is so largely represented by railway men and railway interests. The object of this trip to the Maritime Provinces, and subsequent trips which I shall take to other parts of the Dominion, is for the purpose of coming amongst you, becoming acquainted with you, looking into your interests and hearing from your own lips your troubles, aspirations and your difficulties. It is only in that way that I and those who will be charged with the administration of this property, can form a correct conception of the position in any part of the Dominion, and if any one imagines it is a joy ride, I can only ask him to look at the clock. I think I have violated most of the principles that are dear to the hearts of the trade unionists an dthe eight hour day has ceased for me.

"Seeing this is a railway community, I want to speak to that part of your population here, to our railway men. Railway wages are the first charge on the gross receipts of the company, they take precedence over all capital requirements and even bills that are paid to trades people and manuafcturers are a secondary charge, as the wages that are paid to the railway men are the first obligation which the railway company has to fulfill. I hope that we shall always be able to maintain that standard of wages on the Canadian National Railways system, which as I have said before and said many times, will permit every officer and every man in our service to live decently and comfortably and to bring up his children as self-respecting members of society, and that has been the minimum wage."

How much more we shall be able to pay depends upon the condition of business ,the value of the services rendered and other economic conditions, but certainly the Canadian National Railways stands for fair wages and honest treatment to its officers and its men and we believe that if we pursue that policy, and we accompany it by a speedy and just treatment and adjustments with respect to disputes, we shall build upon this railway an army of men who will have a pride in their great satisfaction to know that they are serving the public adequatery through the medium of this instrument of transportation.

"Now the same policy which we hope to pursue, which we intend to pursue towards the men, is likewise the same policy we shall pursue towards the public, fair treatment, prompt adjustment of complaints, sympathetic consideration of your problems. All of these things will, I believe, create that most valuable asset which any public institution can have, namely, a well satisfied clientel."

In conclusion Sir Henry said:

"Now let me just put to you briefly the general principles upon which we hope to administer this system of yours. With respect to the public, we shall attempt to give an honest and an efficient administration, free from all undesirable influences, and we will couple with that a sympathetic, and I hope intelligent investigation of all your problems. With respect to our men we are prepared to guarantee fair wages, fair treatment and a speedy adjustment of all disputes. Based upon this foundation, I venture to hope that we shall come to have the confidence and support of the public and the loyal and energetic support of our men."

Telegrams of regret from Hon. W. E. Foster, Premier of New Brunswick ,and Hon. Mr. Copp, Secretary of State, who were unable tot attend the banquet were read by the chairman.

WINDOWS UNVEILED AT LOCAL TEMPLE

Members of the Great War Veterans Took in the Ceremony.

The five stained glass windows presented to the Salvation Army by the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association were unveiled at a special service of dedication yesterday afternoon. Members of the association attended in a body and took part in the service.

The windows were given by the association as their contribution toward the remodelling and beautifying of the building, and are in memory of those members of the local Salvation Army Corps who gave up their lives during the Great War. There are five names on the honor list, as follows:

C. Naish, S. McKinley, E. Foy, E. Payne, H. Worrell.

In addition to the windows a small brass tablet has been erected on one of the pillars of the auditorium, in which the windows have been placed, telling of the purpose for which the windows were installed.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., occupied the chair for the occasion, and in a short talk paid fitting tribute to those who fell. In the course of his remarks he said that stained glass windows were an innovation in Salvation Army temples, for Commissioner Howton, who has travelled all parts of the globe in the interests of the Salvation Army, stated while he was here recently that these were the first that he had seen put to such a use.

Owing to the fact that the president of the organization was suffering from a severe cold, the address of presentation was made by the secretary, Sidney Whatley. In speaking of the efforts of those who fell to win the war, Captain Whatley showed that the sacrifices of not only these but all the Canadian boys who sleep in Flanders had contributed in a large measure to the ultimate victory which befell the Allied arms. And not only these but those who "went down to the sea in ships" and helped Britain's navy to guard the sea, had all done their big share in the great job of "winning the war."

At the close of his address the windows were unveiled by members of the Veterans' organization and the last post was sounded for the dead.

Colonel Bettridge, in accepting the windows for the corps, struck a happy chord in the sentiment of his hearers when he said that the lives of those who fell were not lost, they were lives that were given, freely and cheerfully given in the cause of humanity. He told briefly of his recent visit to France, where he had inspected the graves of many of Britain's warriors and told of many touching scenes that he had witnessed at the grave sides. He said that the graves were receiving the best of attention, but that there were over 500,000 British graves in France and Flanders, and it would be a period of several years before all could be brought under proper care. The work, however, is progressing in the best manner possible.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills The Great Liver Regulators

The duty of the liver is to prepare and secret bile and serve as a filter to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and poisons.

Therefore when the liver is inactive and failing to secrete bile in sufficient quantity constipation and other liver troubles soon follow.

Mrs. H. D. Hutchinson, Peterborough, Ont., writes:—"I have been using your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and they have done me a lot of good.

My liver bothered me a great deal; I was drowsy and tired all the time and didn't feel like doing anything, let alone my housework, I tried everything, but your Pills seemed to do the work for better than anything I had ever taken."

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GREY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

THE DECEASED WAS A PETERBORO BOY

Stanley Hetherington Died in Toronto Last Evening—Served Overseas.

The sudden death occurred last night ot St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto of Stanley Gordon Hetherington at the age of 32, the youngest son of the late John and Mary Hetherington from heart failure. Deceased served as a Bombardier in Ninth Battery and was a member of the First Canadian Contingent. He was in France for almost four years, during which time he escaped without a scratch He developed heart trouble in France and was invalided home one month before Armistice.

The late Mr. Hetherington was employed as a travelling salesman for Ault and Wibory. Paint and Ink manufacturers. He was a member of the Original Club and belonged to Canadian Foresters and Maccabbees He is survived by a widow and daughter, two brothers and three sisters.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. from the residance of his sister Mrs. Fred G. Roberts, 106 Well street, Toronto, to the Prospect Cemetery.

NEWS COBOURG AND DISTRICT

Community Tree.

Arrangements are being made for holding the fourth annual community Christmas tree here next week. Thirteen hundred boxes of candy are to be distributed to the children and there will be community carol singing.

For Warden.

The four men whose names are being mentioned as probable candidates in the Wardenship of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham for 1923 are: Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook, George A. Smith of Port Hope, E. C. Redper of Bowmanvile and James McManus of Cavan. The name of Frank Allin of Clarke is also prominently mentioned in this connection.

SHOE BUCKLES.

Very large cut-steel and rhinestone buckles are used on the new colonial pumps. The round or oblong ones are most popular at the moment. Cut steel is used on patent leather while the satin pump seems to call for the jeweled ornament.

WOMAN STOWAWAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—The pluck and cleverness shown by Miss Christiana Wilhelmina Ida Klingemann, 41 years, of Berlin, in digging herself in among 200 tons of gravel ballast down No 7 hold aft on the White Star liner Pittsburgh and remaining below for seven days and nights, was related yesterday to the reporters when the liner arrived at Pier 59, North River from Bremen.

During that time the woman subsisted on some black bread with sausages and quenched her thirst with a large bottle of vinegar and water. When the supply was exhausted and the stowaway felt that the vessel was well on her way to New York she knocked at the hatch covers with the empty bottle until one of the steerage passengers head the noise and called the attention of the stewards, who reported it to the Chief Officer.

In spite of her having been practically a week down in the hold the German woman was able to walk on deck and tell her story. She had a canvas bag with a change of linen and some extra stockings and a man's suit, in which she had expected to make her escape after the Pittsburgh had arrived at her pier in New York.

Miss Klinkemann, (who appeared to be an intelligent woman, said that she had served eight years as stewardess on the Hamburg-American liners in the New York service before the war.) Since the armistice she said that things had gone from bad to worse in Germany and it was difficult to earn enough money to buy food and clothing with. She had to support an invalid widowed mother and brother and had decided to come to America to join relatives living in California. There are three cousins, she added, one of these Emil Masserbach, a school teacher, at Petaluma, had promised to pay her fare across the continent if she could reach Ellis Island and be admitted.

She made a previous attempt when she stowed away on the Hamburg-American liner Wuerttemburg and was sent back to Germany. She carried no passport, but had an identification card and a book showing her service as stewardess. Several people have taken an interest in her case and will endeavor to day to get the Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, Rbert E. Tod, to permit her to land and will also find her work so that she can send money to her family.

A SPLENDID REPORT

He and she were watching the infantry manoeuvres and everything was going fine until suddenly there was a volley from the rifles. She threw her arms around his neck.

"Oh, Mr. Smith, I hope you will pardon me, I was so frightened."

"That's all right. Won't you come with me and watch the artillery practice?"

FOR VALOR

Meek—I forgot myself to-day and spoke sharply to my wife.

But Martha is a fair-minded woman—after she had thought it over she shook hands with me and congratulated me on my bravery.

HOME CIRCLE

CHRISTMAS IN THE WOODS

From under the boughs in the snow clad wood
The berle and the mavis are peeping.
Alike secure from the wind and the Flood,
Yet a silent Christmas keeping.
Still happy are they,
And their looks are gay,
And they frisk it from bough to bough;
Since berries bright red
Hang over their head,
A right goodly feast, I trow.
There, under the boughs, in their wintry dress,
Haps many a tender greeting;
Blithe hearts have met, and the soft caress
Hath told the delight of meeting.
Though winter hath come
To his woodland home,
There is mirth with old Christmas cheer,
For 'neath the light snow
Is the fruit-fraught bough,
And each to his love is near.
Yes! under the boughs, scarce seen, nestle they,
Those children of song together—
As blissful by night, as joyous by day,
'Mid the snows and the wintry weather.
For they dream of spring,
and the songs they'll sing,
When the flowers bloom again in the mead;
And mindful are they
Of those blossoms gay,
Which have brought them today
Such help in their time of need!

—HARRISON WEIR.

Genuine affection for a person is the finest thing in the world to entertain and to express. Don't be afraid of showing it in your own home. It will never brand you as a mollycoddle, although a long string of exaggerated endearments covering a flint bottom, might do so. It isn't necessary to entertain the whole neighborhood with your appreciation of a thing; there are more subtle ways of showing the one chiefly concerned in it your appreciation. On the other hand, if the occasion of acknowledgement happens to be a public one, don't be afraid of bestowing a little generous praise or affection. It will relieve you of the guilty feeling that follows upon an enforced silence. And after all, since everyone knows a spade is a spade, why not call it a spade?

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS.

Every year we hear a great deal of talk about the Spirit of Christmas From the way people speak of it, one gains the impression that this little Christmas elf is above all things happy; that she is generous peaceful and loving. Yet to see a large crowd of Christmas shoppers in the city, one gets almost any impression except that of happiness and peace. It's a scene of discontent and confusion. Just as we are about to be convinced that the little Christmas elf has gone to other planets, we suddenly see some kindly man taking two very poor children on a shopping tour through the toy department. He has captured the little elf, and he has the sign-boards of happiness clearly displayed on his face. In fact, he is one of the much talked of Good Fellows, and if you are looking for the Christmas Spirit, let him tell you how to find it.

The Spirit of Christmas is essentially the spirit of happiness, and you have real happiness only when you give it to others. This is one place where unselfishness pays in visible returns, because the more happiness you give others, the greater will be your stock on hand. And you can give greater happiness to those who are not on close terms with it, than you can to those who see it every day. Therefore go out into the highways and the byways and search for the needy whose stock of happiness is running low. It takes so little to bring them such a great amount of joy, and in doing this, you will find the Spirit of Christmas.

The little elf isn't elusive. She is fairly crying to everyone in the land to adopt her. But we are all so absorbed in our own affairs that we often forget to give a helping hand. We find the spirit of Christmas more hospitably received in the child's heart perhaps, than anywhere else. How well we remember the joyful Christmas days of our childhood when we worked so hard carrying wood and water for mother and shoveling snow for father so we could earn enough to buy them some Christmas presents with "our very own money." That is the spitit that made the long-ago Christmas so happy, and that same spirit of unselfishness—the spirit of Christmas—will bring back to us the old Christmas joy, if we will open our hearts and let it in.

TO KEEP YOUR ENGINE PULLING GOOD ADVICE

"Keep your engine pulling," is an instruction that has proved fatal to many an autoist.

Many are now of the opinion that it is far safer to let the engine run idle when braking than to try to "keep it pulling."

New drivers have been taught to keep the engine pulling when rounding a corner or desiring to change to a slower speed, by shutting down the gas and applying the foot brake. Thus the car is slowed to the same speed as the engine.

Frequently, one reads of auto accidents: "It is thought the driver attempted to apply the brake and struck the accelerator instead. Then the crash came."

This recalls a striking case. A man, considered a good driver, was attempting to turn his large touring car into a garage. Another car was coming behind him. He looked around as he put his foot out for the accelerator and his car leaped through the garage doors.

The auto struck a supporting post, knocking it out. The second floor was let down on him with many autos. He was caught in the debris and, in the ensuing fire, was burned to a crisp while thousands of dollars in damage resulted.

This man was a believer in the theory of keeping the engine pulling. But it has been found that it is just as easy to drive a car with the accelerator as with the hand throttle. Then if a driver schools himself into the use of the clutch, such an accident as the above is not apt to follow.

When an autoist drives with the accelerator, he must release it as soon as he removes the clutch. Thus the engine is permitted to run idle at a low speed, while the car is free from the engine. When the autoist reaches for the foot brake, should he miss it and strike the accelerator, he has done no damage.

A Magnificent Gift Would Be a "Hoover" Suction Sweeper

GIVE "HER" A HOOVER FOR CHRISTMAS, and you give her more than a passing remembrance of the day; you give a lifetime of freedom from the irksome drudgery of housework. For with a HOOVER she can clean and refresh and add years to the life of the Rugs and other household things she treasures so dearly. And she can do all with none of the effort and strain that now attends the efforts of house-cleaning.

Give "her" a HOOVER for Christmas, and you give her the only Electric Cleaner with exclusive right to the three essentials of thorough cleaning—Beating, Sweeping, and Air Suction.

We urge the sincere consideration of the HOOVER as a Christmas Gift. Let us tell you more about it, and give a Demonstration.

HAVE BARBACUE AT INAUGURATION.

When Oklahoma Governor Takes Office He'll Give a Merry Dance.

By L. L. SISK

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

OKLOHAMA CITY, Dec. 16. (United Press).—"Dance with yer ma, dance with yer paw and dance with the girl from Arkansaw."

"Boys, you're old eno gh to know so swing your girl to and fro."

These and many other juaint "calls" will ring through Oklahoma's statehouse on the nights of January 7 and 8, when Jack Walton mayor of Oklahoma City, becomes governor of the Sooner State.

Old-fashioned square dances will replace the usual formal ball at Walton's inauguration, he announced. He ran for office on the Democratic ticket and as the candidate of the "common folks" and he is going to be the "common folks" governor Walton said.

"No pink teas, fancy balls or other new fangled things for my inaugural celebration," Walton d.clared. "Blue jeans, hob-nail shoes, calico aprons and sun bonnets will be "formal" for the affair.

"No soup and fish suits or plug hats for mine.

"I was the laboring man's candidate and the laboring man and his family are invited to my celebration."

Other than the old-fashioned square dance to be on the two nights, Walton announced the celebration would include;

An open air inaugural ceremony so the thousands of "common folks" may see "everything."

A continuous two-day barbacue, menu to include bear meat, venison, buffalo, 'possum, coon, squirrel, rabbit, beef, mutton, pork, turkey, duck and chicken, to be served with coffee and other old-fashioned trimings.

Indian games and war dances, for which 3,500 blanket Indians will be brought here to stay in a tepee camp on the capitol grounds.

Fiddling, banjo picking and coon-dog contests for State championships.

A gigantic parade to precede the celebration.

Excursion rates from all parts of the State will be available on railroads for the celebration, it was announced that accommodation will be provided for 300,000 persons to attend the celebration.

Champion square dance callers from all sections of the State will relay in calling the all-night "sets." Five floors of the capitol building will be available for the 'breakdowns." Twenty-five orchestras will provide dance music.

The State House of representatives and Senate will meet in front of the inaugural platform, while the chief justice of the State Supreme Court administers the oath of office.

Each of the State's seventy-seven counties is promising contributions for the barbacue. Each county will also produce a champion fiddler, banjo picker and coon-dog for the championship finals. Each county will also be represented in the parade by an elaborately decorated float.

Walton will lead the parade, riding 'Teddy,' famous Indian pony owned by Theodore Roosevelt in territorial days. The $1,000 saddle belonging to Joe Miller, 101 Ranch, will be used for the occasion.

"It's going to be some blow-out," Governor Jack declared.

WINNERS JUDGING CARCASSES OF HOGS.

Educational Course at C.P.C.'s Peterborough Plant Closes.

The educational course on swine raising and marketing for young farmers of the Peterborough district was brought to a close at the Canadian Packing Company's local plant Saturday morning. This course has been both interesting and profitable ,and the students entered keenly into the last item on the programme, Saturday, a competition in judging and grading hog carcasses. The winners and counties to which they belong, and their scores obtained, are as follows:

1, Roscoe Robson, Hastings, 188; 2, Melville Moncrief, Victoria, 179; 3, Gilbert Sills, Hastings, 178; 4, Roy McCullough, Northumberland, 171; 5, O. Grandy, Victoria, 169; 6 Hector Ray Hastings, 168; 7, H. M. Jackson, Lennox and Addington, 166; 8, O. Drew, Lennox and Addington 164; 9, Russell Little, Peterborough, 160; 10, Kenneth Denyes, Hastings, 159; 11, Harold Little, Hastings, 157.

The eleven individual prizes for the above ranged from $11 for the first to $1 for the last, dropping one dollar each grading, and were donated by the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers, Toronto. The possible score attainable was 200 points.

The judges for this competition were: James Matthews; R. G. Knox, O.A.C., Guelph, D. C. Flatt and J. Wylde.

The students left for their homes Saturday noon, all filled with appreciation of the course and unstintingly outspoken in praise of the Canadian Packing Company's hospitality.

CHAPTER XVII

THE inquest was at three o'clock; thereafter Antony could have no claim on the hospitality of the Red House. By ten o'clock his bag was packed, and waiting to be taken to the "George." To Bill, coming upstairs after a more prolonged breakfast, this early morning bustle was a little surprising.

"What's the hurry?" he asked.

"None. But we don't want to come back here after the inquest. Get your packing over now and then we can have the morning to ourselves."

"Righto." He turned to go to his room, and then came back again. "I say, are we going to tell Cayley that we're staying at the 'George'?"

"You're not staying at the 'George,' Bill. Not officially. You're going back to London."

"Oh!"

"Yes. Ask Cayley to have your luggage sent in to Stanton, ready for you when you catch a train there after the inquest. You can tell him that you've got to see the Bishop of London at once. The fact that you are hurrying back to London to be confirmed will make it seem more natural that I should resume my interrupted solitude at the 'George' as soon as you have gone."

"Then where do I sleep tonight?"

"Unofficially, in my bed, unless they've got another spare room at the 'George.' I've put your confirmation robe—I mean your pyjamas and brushes and things—in my bag, ready for you. Is there anything else you want to know? No? Then go and pack. And meet me at ten-thirty beneath the blasted oak or in the hall or somewhere. I want to talk and talk and talk, and I must have my Watson."

"Good," said Bill, and went off to his room.

An hour later they wandered out together into the park.

"Well?" said Bill, as they sat down underneath a convenient tree. "Talk away."

"I had many bright thoughts in my bath this morning," began Antony. "The brightest one of all was that we were being damn fools, and working at this thing from the wrong end altogether."

"Well, that's helpful."

"If we had been professionals, I believe we should have gone at it from the other end. The Robert end. We've been wandering about Mark and Cayley all the time. Now let's wonder about Robert for a bit."

"We know so little about him."

"Well, let's see what we do know. First of all, then, we know vaguely that he was a bad lot.

"Yes."

"And then we know rather a curious thing. We know that Mark told you all that this black sheep was coming. Now, why did he tell you?"

Bill was thoughtful for a moment.

"I suppose," he said slowly, "that he knew we were bound to see him and thought that the best way was to be quite frank about him."

"But were you bound to see him? You were all away playing golf."

"We were bound to see him if he stayed in the house that night."

"Very well, then. That's one thing we've discovered. Mark knew that there was no chance of getting Robert out of the house at once."

Bill looked at his friend eagerly.

"Go on," he said. "This is getting interesting."

"He also knew something else," went on Antony. "He knew that Robert was bound to betray his real character to you as soon as you met him."

"Yes. That's sound enough."

"Well, now, doesn't it strike you that Mark made up his mind about all that rather quickly?"

"How do you mean?"

"He got this letter at breakfast. He read it; and directly he had read it he began to confide in you all. That is to say, in about one second he thought out the whole business and came to a decision—to two decisions. He considered the possibility of getting Robert out of the way before you came back, and decided that it was impossible. He considered the possibility of Robert's behaving like an ordinary decent person in public, and decided that it was very unlikely. He came to those two decisions instantaneously, as he was reading the letter. Isn't that rather quick work?"

"Well, what's the explanation?"

Antony waited until he had refilled

"WHAT'S THE HURRY?" HE ASKED.

and lighted his pipe before answering.

"What's the explanation? Well, let's leave it for a moment and take another look at the two brothers. In conjunction, this time, with Mrs. Norbury."

"Mrs. Norbury?" said Bill, surprised.

"Yes. Mark hoped to marry Miss Norbury. Now, if Robert really was a blot upon the family honor, Mark would want to do one of two things. Either keep it from the Norburys altogether, or else, if it had to come out, tell them himself before the news came to them indirectly. Well, he told them. But the funny thing is that he told them the day before Robert's letter came. Robert came, and was killed, the day before yesterday—Tuesday. Mark told Mrs. Norbury about him on Monday. What do you make of that?"

"Coincidence," said Bill, after careful thought. "He'd always meant to tell her; his suit was prospering, and just before it was finally settled, he told her. That happened to be Monday. On Tuesday he got Robert's letter, and felt jolly glad that he'd told her in time."

"Well, it might be that, but it's rather a curious coincidence. And here is something which makes it very curious indeed. It only occurred to me in the bath this morning. Inspiring place, a bathroom. Well, it's this—he told her on Monday morning, on his way to Middleston in the car."

"Sorry, Tony; I'm dense this morning."

"In the car, Bill. And how near can the car get to Jallands?"

"About six hundred yards."

"Yes. And on his way to Middleston, Mark stops the car, walks six hundred yards down the hill to Jallands, says, 'Oh, by the way, Mrs. Norbury, I don't think I ever told you that I have a shady brother called Robert,' walks six hundred yards up the hill again, gets into the car, and goes off to Middleston. Is that likely?"

Bill frowned heavily.

"Yes, but I don't see what you're getting at. Likely or not likely, we know he did do it."

"Of course he did. All I mean is that he must have had some strong reason for telling Mrs. Norbury at once. And the reason I suggest is that he knew on that morning—Monday morning, not Tuesday—that Robert was coming to see him, and had to be in first with the news."

"But—but—"

"And that would explain the other point— his instantaneous decision at breakfast to tell you all about his brother. It wasn't instantaneous. He knew on Monday that Robert was coming, and decided then that you would all have to know."

"Then how do you explain the letter?"

"Well, let's have a look at it."

Antony took the letter from his pocket and spread it out on the grass between them.

"Mark, your loving brother is coming to see you tomorrow, all the way from Australia. I give you warning so that you will be able to conceal your surprise but not I hope your pleasure. Expect him at three or thereabouts."

"No date mentioned, you see," said Antony. "Just 'tomorrow'."

"But he got this on Tuesday."

"Did he?"

"Well, he read it out to us on Tuesday."

"Oh, yes! he read it out to you."

Bill read the letter again, and then turned it over and looked at the back of it. The back of it had nothing to say to him.

"What about the postmark?" he asked.

"We haven't got the envelope, unfortunately."

"And you think that he got this letter on Monday."

"I'm inclined to think so, Bill. Anyhow, I think—I feel almost certain—that he knew on Monday that his brother was coming."

"Is that going to help us much?"

"No. It makes it more difficult. There's something rather uncanny about it all. I don't understand it." He was silent for a little, and then added, "I wonder if the inquest is going to help us."

"What about last night? I'm longing to hear what you make of that. Have you been thinking it out at all?"

"Last night," said Antony thoughtfully to himself. "Yes, last night wants some explaining."

Bill waited hopefully for him to explain. What, for instance, had Antony been looking for in the cupboard?

"I think," began Antony slowly, "that after last night we must give up the idea that Mark has been killed; killed, I mean, by Cayley. I don't believe anybody would go to so much trouble to hide a suit of clothes when he had a body on his hands. The body would seem so much more important. I think we may take it now that the clothes are all that Cayley had to hide."

"But why not have kept them in the passage?"

"He was frightened of the passage. Miss Norris knew about it."

Bill said nothing for a little, and then with a sudden laugh confessed.

"It was so exciting yesterday," he said apologetically, "and we seemed to be just getting there, and discovering the most wonderful things, and now—"

"And now?"

"Well, it's so much more ordinary."

Antony gave a shout of laughter.

"Ordinary!" he cried. "Ordinary! Well, I'm dashed! Ordinary! If only one thing would happen in an ordinary way, we might do something, but everything is ridiculous."

Bill brightened up again.

"Ridiculous? How?"

"Every way. Take those ridiculous clothes we found last night. You can explain the brown suit, but why the underclothes. You can explain the underclothes in some absurd way, if you like—you can say that Mark always changed his underclothes whenever he interviewed anybody from Australia—but why, in that case, my dear Watson, why didn't he change his collar?"

"His collar?" said Bill in amazement.

"His collar, Watson. There was no collar in the bag last night. Shirt, socks, tie—everything except a collar. Why?"

CAMPBELLFORD ORGANIZATION CHRISTMAS FAIR SATURDAY

Receipts Run Well Over Three Hundred Dollars—Many of the Booths Sold Out Early—Campbellford News of Interest.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec 18—The Women's Missionary Society, assisted by the Mission Circle, held what is called a "Christmas Fair" on Saturday afternoon and evening at the Kerr Building on Front street. The total receipts will run over $327.00 which amount proves that the Fair was well attended and every body got value for their money—the fancy work department was loaded wih beautiful and useful articles, which helped to solve the Christmas present problem for many tired shoppers. The handkerchief tree seemed to be the centre of attraction and was "sold out" early in the day The plain sewing department with experts in charge did a thriving business right from the start and could have sold another hundred or so aprons which appear to be in great demand—and just a little different from the ordinary variety. Talk about candy— the real home made kind—this booth with the dainty boxes and minature baskets of the choicest confections, looked like the rush hour during a bargain sale, and the ladies in charge were off duty early —then came the Home Cooking with the kind of bread that mother used to make—deep apple pies—and all kinds of good things to eat with a special feature called the Scripture Cake which with every piece sold the buyer received a famous recipe and proved quite an attraction for those wanting something new Then came the Tea Room —just imagine getting afternon tea fr fifteen cents and talk about service. The ladies in charge of this important department would make Mr. Childs sit up and take notice—there was no confusion —everything went like clockwork—and the decorations of palms, evergreens, and Christmas trimmings—to say nothing of the strains of soft music, made a lovely background, where the tired ones could rest.—The President of the W.M.S., Mrs. George A Kingston is to be congratulated upon the success of the fair and also the ladies who so ably assisted. Those in charge of the different departments were:—Handkerchief Tree, Miss Jean Kenyon, Fancy Work, Mrs. L. B. Glover, Mrs. W. Abernethy, Mrs. John W. Hay, Mrs. Walter Wiggins;; Plain Sewing, Mrs. Robert Moore, Mrs. James Hore, Mrs. Wm. Ashton, Mrs. Henry Bakes Mrs. L. F. Gould, Miss Boyce; Candy Mrs. P. C. Denyes, Mrs. T. L. Diamond, Miss Hattie Redden; Home Cooking, Mrs. Ernest Bonney, Mrs. Wm. Bateson, Mrs. George Oliver Mrs. Percy Sherwin; Tea Room Mrs. C. W. Turner, Mrs. David Mitchell, Mrs. Walter Lowe, Miss Alma Upton, Miss Eva Martin, Miss Verna Saunders Miss Nellie Turner.

Christmas Turkey

People in the city often wonder where all the turkeys came from about this time of the year. Mr. T. S. Baker of Campbellford, can account for a few of them. In a recent shipment consigned principally to Toronto and Montreal. There were exactly five tons, representing ten thousand pounds of choice turkeys of the XXX variety; along with one thousand pounds of dressed chickens for those who fancied the smaller birds. Price of Turkeys dropped to 30c a lb., live weight, here Saturday.

Called His Bluff

Money is no object in Campbellford, if you get what you want, —when you want it—as demonstrated on Friday evening—Scene Charlie Nadon's Cigar Store — Time 7.15 p.m. enter Rolly Jarvis for a smoke before starting evenings work—Nip. Weston asks Rolly Jarvis, "how's chances for a shave".—Jarvis (whose shop is just across the road) replies that there are three men waiting—but if Weston is in a hurry he will shave him for one dollar. Weston replies all right, if you do the job right here. Away goes Jarvis for his razor, soap, towels, etc., returns, performs the operation before an admiring audience—the job is done—the money paid—and business goes on as usual.

Corn ranged from 1-8c decline to a rise of 3-8c, oats were unchanged to 1-2c up, and provisions gained 5 to 30c.

FOUND HANGING IN OWN BARN

Lifeless Body of Samuel Landry Found by Two Neighbors.

Samuel Landry, a farmer, who has been occupying the S. W. Blewett farm near the Curtis brick yards, was found dead, hanging to a beam in his barn yesterday morning. The discovery was made by J. J. Mortimer and Samuel Stewart, two neighbors, who immediately notified the provincial police.

Mr. Landry rented the farm last October and had been living there ever since. His wife has been very ill at the Nicholls Hospital for some time and consequently Mr. Landry has been living alone. His neighbors had seen him around during the early part of the week, but had missed him since Wednesday morning. Mr. Morrison and Mr. Stewart went over yesterday morning about 9:45 to see him, and not finding him at the house ,went to the farm to look for him. Here they made their gruesome discovery. The body was hanging from a beam near the hay mow, with a rope around the neck, and it was apparent that life had been extinct for some time. The deceased had evidently tried to cut his throat with a razor first, and failing in that attempt had resorted to the other method to end his life. No reason could be given for the fatality.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Sermon to Young Women By Rev. H. B. Kenny—Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 18. —The Methodist church was filled last evening when the pastor, Rev. H. B. Kenny, delivered the second sermon to young women, his subject being "The Young Woman, her place and power," basing his remarks on Titus Chapter 2, verse 4, "That they may teach the young women to be sober."

The speaker endeavored to impress uopn young women their great opportunities and possibilities under God and stated that the place of young women is alongside of young men. In the centuries gone by woman was not given her place. In ancient Hebrew time woman was a chattel; in ancient Rome she was the property of her father to be sold to the highest bidder, the husband exercising jurisdiction of life or death over his wife and children. In China girls are not wanted. Mohammedan women are slaves, and deprived of intellectual growth. The feeling in women's inferiority was not alone confined to the far east of the old west, but early in the 18th century in England wives were exposed to sale. Only half a century ago were most of the colleges opened to women. The struggle to rise has been long and tedious, but today no man will question the equality of women. Women can not attain equality by becoming masculine at the expense of womanly instincts which God has given.

Women are invading the world of business, the literary world; 80 per cent. of all teachers being women. In the heroic and philanthropic worlds the names of Florence Nightingale. Helen Gould, and Frances Wilard stand out prominently. Woman may do anything she can do well without sacrificing her womanly instincts. Her power is her influence. Her presence in the office, tends to purify the speech of men. Woman does not always speak her mind but some day she will. She must find a useful career and give to it her best talents with which God has endowed her. It is the Christian religion and the Bible that has raised womanhood. He who recognizes the gospel of a cup of cold water will crown the efforts of women with success and glory.

The choir rendered "Saviour, Thy Children Keep" (Sullivan), under the able direction of Mr. R. T. Cowell, A.R.C.O., in a manner which was thoroughly appreciated, as was also a duet "Come unto Me and Rest" by Messrs. George Lucy and R. T. Cowell.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Earl Stephens of Toronto University, and Oliver, of Peterboro, Normal School, are spending their holidays at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stephens, West River Road.

Miss Helen Irwin of Toronto University, is holidaying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Irwin.

PRESIDENT'S BODY WILL LIE IN STATE

Funeral of President Narutowicz Will be Held After the Election of a New President For Poland.

WARSAW, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The body of President Narutowicz was emblamed yesterday. It will be taken Tuesday to the Royal Palace, where it will lie in state during a great public ceremony. The funeral will be held after the election of the new President.

Narutowicz visited the Art Exhibition, where he was assassinated, against the advice of Premier Nowak, who told him it would be dangerous to expose himself.

Narutowicz, however, accepted an invitation presented by a delegation of artists, with whom he arranged that his visit should be a private one.

The President was shot while he was conversing with the British Minister, William G. Max-Muller. Mr. Max-Muller had just offered congratulations on the election of Narutowicz to the presidency.

"Condolences, you should say," replied the President.

He had scarcely spoken when three shots came in quick succession. Narutowicz slowly sank to his knees and then collapsed on the floor, dead.

Narutowicz leaves two children, a daughter, 16, and a son, Earl Narutowicz, who is in the twenties.

The son is a music student in Zurich, Switzerland.

One of the President's last acts was to telegraph Count Zamouski, the Polish Minister of Paris, and his rival in the final balloting for the presidency, thanking him for his cordial congratulations.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT ST. THOMAS' CHURCH SUNDAY

Thirty-Seventh Anniversary in Millbrook an Inspiring Occasion—Peterboro Soloist Sang.

The thirty-seventh anniversary of St. Thomas church was observed with special services on Sunday, December 17th, Rev. Prof. Cosgrave, Dean of Trinity College, Toronto, preaching both morning and evening ,his sermons being characterized by simplicity of language, and a wealth of spiritual insight and inspiration. Special music was provided by the choir, including solos by Mrs. (Dr.) King, of Peterborough, who sang at the morning service, "Angels ever Bright and Fair," and in the evening, "Lead Us to the Light Above," and by Miss M. Money, whose morning selection was, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," and, following the sermon at night, "Ring Out Wild Bells"; Miss M. Collins presided at the organ and, as usual, her opening and closing voluntaries, and while the offertory was being received, added greatly to the enjoyment of the services and also to the spirit of worship.

In the evening Dean Cosgrave chose the somewhat unusual text from Romans 16:34, "Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus; who have for my life laid down their own necks; unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles," explaining that since on a church anniversary it is natural to take both a backward, and also a forward glance, he wished the congregation to learn some lessons from two people who lived long ago and in a distant country, who are interesting for several reasons ,chiefly because they were firm and true friends of St. Paul, unswerving in their loyalty to the promotion of the Kingdom, and who rendered a great service to the church of Christ in their day. The Scriptures do not give us any extended account of their lives, but from the 18th chapter of Acts we learn that Paul first met them at Corinth, whither they had come after the edict of the Emperor Claudius had banished all Jews from Rome. Persuaded by Paul they accompanied the latter as far as Ephesus when he was proceeding to Jerusalem on business, and prepared the ground there for Paul's own labors upon his return. Possibly these three were the more closely drawn together as they worked at the same trade, that of tent-making. At Ephesus, while waiting for Paul's return, Aquila and his wife, Priscilla, as their custom was, went to the synagogue on the Sabbath day, where they met Apollos and ,after hearing him preach diligently "the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptism of John, they took him unto them and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly." That these two servants of Christ were untiring in their efforts to promote the interests of His Kingdom is evident from the reference which Paul makes in his first letter to the church at Corinth, when he says: "Aquila and Priscilla salute you much in the Lord, with the church that is in their house." In these early days there were no church buildings where the followers of Christ might gather on the first day of the week, so the custom was to meet in the home of of the one who possessed the largest house; Aquila was not a deacon, but lacking an ordained priest he did the work himself; and this action has been duplicated by many a Godly man in the isolated settlements of our own land. And further every good churchman should be familiar with his church service ,and so anxious to do his utmost for the cause of Christ, that he could do likewise if need arose.

Back in Rome.

Back in Rome after the Emperor's edict had been revoked, we find from the text that Aquila and Priscilla have been running a great risk for Paul's sake, "who have for my life laid down their own necks," hence we infer that although Aquila and his wife could very probably have made more money by remaining in one place, and plying their trade, that of artisans preparing leather for tents, they were willing not only to sacrifice ease and a comfortable living, but also life itself, if necessary for the gospel's sake. This church exists to-day, the speaker said, because during the past one hundred years faithful, earnest men and women were content, like Aquila and Priscilla, to work, and suffer, in order to build up a strong, vigorous, religious life in this community; thank God for them on this anniversary occasion, and pray that for the future God will raise up men and women of a similar mind who will put the Kingdom first.

Religious Revival.

We are looking to-day for a great religious revival, and we are told that the only way the civilization of the world can be asked from collapse is by an outburst of genuine, religious life in all nations; but this will only come when there are found amongst us men and women like Aquila and his wife, Priscilla, who are determined that God shall reign supreme in their own souls. No one can lead another to the Saviour unless he has first known the way himself through repentance, and a change of viewpoint, seeing things as God sees them. The only possible way to make a better world is to make better men and women, since "the soul of improvement is the improvement of the soul," and for this all should pray, because the whole responsibility does not rest alone upon the clergy; God is looking to the laity too, to be seized with the vital importance of putting the interests of the Kingdom first, and promoting His cause no matter at what cost. "Herein is My Father glorified that ye bear much fruit," and as Hosea tells us, "Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the Lord."

WOMAN CHARGED WITH A MURDER

C. P. R. Engineer at Chapleau Shot and Killed

CHAPLEAU, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—John McKee, aged 42, widower, C.P.R. engineer, and prominent citizen of Chapleau for 20 years, is dead, with a bullet through his brain, and Mrs. Sadie Connaughton, aged 40, wife of a C.P.R. engineer, is at the district jail in Sudbury, charged with the crime.

Mrs. Connaughton is alleged to have entered the rear door of the McKee home and found another woman present. It was while McKee was endeavoring to have her leave the house that Mrs. Connaughton shot him through the head. She then walked to neighbors and recounted what she had done, and asked that the police be notified.

When Provincial Officer Jorgenson arrived, Mrs. Connaughton refused to divulge the name of the woman who was present, but is alleged to have made the explanation that "he ruined my home, and will not ruin another."

A Gift of Unusual Appeal

TODAY a new art embellishes the tables of those cultured Canadian women who love life and its graceful luxuries. Years and years of experiment, countless trials and elimination of errors, and now the perfection of the difficult art of plating make it possible for you to obtain a gift that is a veritable masterpiece of silverplated ware.

Holmes & Edwards comes in two qualities. SILVER INLAID wards off wear with solid blocks of sterling silver, fused in at the rest points before plating, and SUPERPLATE, with extra sterling silver at the exposed parts. In either form Holmes & Edwards Silver Plate is a welcome guest at any board.

See the dignified Jamestown pattern, reminiscent of that creative period from which it derived its name. Or the charming and distinctive pattern —The Hostess.

Ask your jeweller to show you, also, his display of flower baskets, cake comports, baking dishes, casseroles—designed and burnished to a perfection that has made Holmes & Edwards deservedly famed.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

In Persia smart weddings last five days, ultra-smart ones a week.

The women guests wear beautifully embroidered clothes and magnificient jewels. They sip sherbets, drink tea, smoke kalians and gossip.

But the bride sits in silence, her head bent, veil drawn over her eyes. Slaves wait on the bridegroom and amuse him by dancing.

TOLL OF LIVES

CHICAGO, December 18. Canadian Press. — Battling foot by foot through towering seas and freezing spray, men who go down to seas in ships are fighting an epochal battle across the icy wastes of Lake Superior to keep navigation open far beyond its usual time, and bring down the lakes the last cargo of the year. Already the fight has claimed its toll of lives and before the last ship has been accounted for that toll may be greater.

Nearly a doezn died a few days ago when a steamer was dashed to pieces at the mouth of the Portage Lake Ship Canal and last night 27 more were added to the probable death roll when the survivors of the tug Reliance, wrecked last Wednesday, reached Sault Ste. Marie.

RADIO NEWS

Plans for unifying the call systems of the world are being discussed by amateur organizations of the chief countries.

This movement is the result of an effort to clear up the existing confusion when one amateur calls another. At present, four different interpretations may be placed on a call between amateurs in America.

With the advent of trans-Atlantic amateur communication, this confusion is looked upon with greater concern. For this reason, British, French and American amateur societies have been trying to devise a call system that would include amateurs of all countries with no chance of misinterpretation. Many plans have been offered.

Suggested System.

One, out of which the final system may come, is suggested by the French amateur society and elaborated by the officials of the American Radio Relay League. This is the plan by which an amateur in one country calling one in another country would replace the letters "de," as they are used now between his call and that of the amateur called, with the initial of his country and that of the other country concerned.

For example, 2AVB in the United States is calling 8DW in France. He would sign his call: "8DW fu 2AVB." Thus only one correct interpretation could be placed on this call and no confusion would result. At the same time, every amateur would retain his present call, necessitating no expense or trouble in changing the system.

All that would be needed, say officials of the A. A. A. L., would be consent of the various Governments to the change, as the use of "de" between calls is prescribed by international law.

SHOULD THE CITY HAVE A COLLEGE?

An Opportunity Will Be Offered to Residents in Peterborough.

A college near at hand offering courses in Languages, Psychology, Logic and Rhetoric, History and English Literature ought to have the effect of encouraging a considerable number of people to obtain a wider and deeper culture.

An opportrnity is offered at the present time which may not occur again for many years for Peterborough to have a college of its own if sufficient interest is shown in the project.

Evening lectures would enable those at business in the day time to pursue their studies.

The Provincial Educational authorities tell us that the time is soon coming, when the work o the first two years in the Art Courses will be covered in local colleges.

This will solve the problem of over-crowded class-rooms and lack of accommodation ror so many classes at Toronto University in pareticular. Why should Peterborough not lead in such work? Since at these large universities the lectures in the first two years are given mainly by junior assistants, mostly raw new graduates themselves, it would be possible to get better instructors and lecturers for new local colleges. There are available men in Ontario well trained and well qualified for such work.

There are doubtless recent graduates from the Collegiate Institute, here who would like to go on with college work if they could do so and live at home, and perhaps give a part of their time to remunerative employment.

There will be others graduating from the P.C.I. in June, who would be glad to be able to remain here for another year if the first year Arts work could be taken at home.

There should also be a considerable number ready to take one or more courses of two lectures per week for the sake of self improvement and general culture. This is after all the main aim of education and of life.

Some teachers who are working extramurally for degrees might also find some of the proposed courses helpful.

It depends upn the people of Peterborough, whether something shall be begun in this way here and now, which might well result in a very important addition to the city. Would those who are interested telephone or send in their names stating what courses they think of taking to one of the following, viz: Dr. Moir, Principal McKone, Principal Kenner, Inspector Mowatt or the Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Roper.

If eight or more names are received for any subject classes will be formed in French, Latin, Greek, Psychology, Logic, English Literature, History, Religious, Knowledge.

Fine tucking is used on many of the first summer frocks made up for Palm Beach wear. This is most effective on fine voiles, batistes and handkerchief linens.

A THOUGHT

And let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his neighbor; and love no false oath; for all these things do I hate, saith the Lord.—Zechariah 8:17.

Trust me, that for the instructed, time will come
When they shall meet no object but may teach
Some acceptable lesson to their minds
Of human suffering or human joy.
For them shall all things speak of man.

BOSTON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Frank Chance, new manager of the Red Sox, announced yesterday that he would have Jimmy Archer, Chicago Cub catcher of a few years ago, and Mike Donlin, veteran outfielder, as coaches.

BASKET BALL QUIZ BY REFEREE

REMOVAL.

In what cases can the referee remove a player from the game?

If a player makes four personal fouls he automatically removes himself from the game. The referee simply points to the exit sign when the fourth personal foul is committed by the same player. He can also be ejected from the game for a disqualifying foul.

DISQUALIFY.

What is a disqualifying foul?

When in the opinion of the official a player indulges in rough play that is entirely uncalled for, he can class such action as a disqualifying foul and remove the offending player from the game.

JUMPING.

Can a player jump center without having his hand in contract with his back?

When the ball is put in play in the center, each center player shall stand with both feet in his half of the circle, with one hand in contact with middle of the small of his back.

FORFEIT.

When a game is forfeited by a team what is regarded as the final score?

A foreited game is never to desired. Regardless of whether or not a team believes it is being unjustly treated if should play the game under protest and continue to the finish. If a game is forfeited the score is regarded as 2 to 0.

LADIES' HOCKEY LEAGUE FORMED

Many Delegates Met in Toronto on Saturday to Form Province - Wide Organization.

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—Delegates from over a score of teams located at various points throughout Ontario attended a meeting in the Temple Building on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of organizing the Ontario Ladies' Hockey Association, and the motion to form such an organization was passed unanimously, the motion was proposed by Mr. Campbell of Dunnville and seconded by J. A. Grier, of London, a member of the O.H.A. executive. President Frank McEwen, of the Toronto Hockey League, and Secretary Frank Smith of the same league, were elected, temporary chairman and secretary, respectively. At the request of several of the delegates, Mr. Smith explained the circumstances which lead up to the calling of the meeting.

Short addresses were made by President John DeGruchy, of the Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C.; President Higginbottom, of the T.A.H.A.; Secretary Steele, of the Ontario branch, all of whom referred to the growth of athletics among the so-called weaker sex, and gave several suggestions from their experiences which will prove of benefit in the organization and working of the new association .

Many Clubs Represented.

The delegates present were:—
Lakefield—R. A. Hirsch.
Huntsville—Miss E. B. Cook.
Welland—Frank Best .
Owen Sund—Miss Mary Miller.

Dunnville—Miss Edith Harrison, Miss Viola Wardell.
London — taSnley Reed, John Greer.
Preston—D. H. Hurlbert.
Thornhill— Jas. Pearson, Miss Edith E. Lueshy.

Communications from other clubs promising supports were received from Peterborough, Ottawa Alerts, Campbellford, Hamilton, Cobourg, Guelph, Hanover, Mimico, Bolton, Cannington, Lindsay and Willowdale.

Various delegates addressed the meeting and offered suggestions which will likely be adopted when the constitution is drawn up. On motion of J. A. Greer, of London, the officers will be the same as in the O.H.A. and the election of officers resulted as follows: Honorary president, John DeGruchy, Toronto; president, James McFadyen, Toronto; first vice-president, Miss Mae Maxwell, St. Thomas; second vice-president, Miss W. Simpson, Thornhill; third vice-president, Frank H. Smith, Toronto; secretary, C. W. MacQueen, Mail and Empire, Toronto; treasurer, Miss J. Allen, Toronto; executive, Miss Edith Harrison, Dunnville; Miss Kathleen Milne, London; Frank Best, Welland, and Alan Campbell, Bowmanville.

SECOND DEFEAT.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The Nationals of Montreal suffered the second defeat of their two-day series with Boston U.S.H.A. teams Saturday night. They were beaten by the Boston Athletic Association team, 3 to 0, the same score by which they lost on Friday night to the Victorias.

Local Boy Ran Eighth in Race

Dick Bates, winner of the Examiner Road Race on Thanksgiving Day, made an exceptionally good showing when he ran in eighth place in the Bloor-Bathurst marathon in Toronto on Saturday afternoon. The best running talent, not only of Toronto but also of the neighboring cities of Ontario and the United States was entered in the contest. The local boy finished well up with the winners for the first ten or twelve men to come in were pretty well bunched. J. Ward, the other boy who was running under the colours of the Peterboro Y.M.C.A. also did well and finished in sixteenth place.

Art Scholes, of the Gladstone A.C. of Toronto was first and Eddie Fay of Hamilton Y.M.C.A. was second .

Spitball May Get New Lease of Life

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The lively ball has made it impossible for the pitchers to keep the batsmen in check. The lively ball has caused the batsman to dominate the pitcher

No pitchers in the American League were much more successful than Red Faber and Urban Shocker. These two veterans still include the spitball in the repetoire.

It is a noticeable fact that in two major leagues, pitchers still permitted to use the spitball were uniformly successful.

All of which gives to the rumor that the spitball may be declared legal ,despite the drastic action taken by the rulemakers a few ago in eliminating it entirely from the game.

BROTHERS PITTED AGAINST EACH OTHER

The brothers Steinmetz ,of Chicago, will fight against one another in the coming international championship at St. John, according to L. B. Judson, member of the Board of Control of the I.S.U. of A.

There were present at the meeting here, E. C. Paarman and Patrick-Hennessy, of Lake Placid; L. B. Judson and Charles Goldsmith, of Saranac Lake, William Fisher of Endicott-Johnson City, N.Y., C. G. Felts and B. Cowle, of Plattsburgh, N.Y.; D. G. Corey, of the Maratime Provinces Amateur Skating Association, and C. E. McNutt, of Moncton N.B.

FORTY OSHAWA PLAYERS SIGN O.H.A. CERTIFICATES

OSHAWA, Dec. 18.—Manager Ed. Donald of the local hockey team is assured of plenty of material for both Intermediate and Junior O.H.A. teams. At a meeting called for signing certificates about forty candidates were present to attach their John Henry's to the O.H.A. slips. Of the old reliables who put in appearance were Walter Fair, Charlie Hall, Kip Rowden, Dick Smith, Jack Smith, L. Flintoff, M. Bouckley. While a number of new fans were in the line-up. Ray Belding who was appointed secretary-treasurer at the organization meeting has resigned owing to lack of time to give the boys his personal attention and Chas. P. Davis has been appointed to succede him.

NEW PASTURES.

The fact that Tyson has started "working" in Oshawa comes as a great shock to Cobourg fans. The Sentinel Star says: Alfred Tyson, who has caught for the Cobourg Central Ontario League team for the past two season, is now located in Oshawa and will probably play with the Oshawa team this season. He has already started light training, he runs to work every morning at 7. Haven't heard anything about him getting his release from the local club, but don't let a little thing like that keep you from work, "Ty."

START APRIL 18.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—After deciding on a 168-game schedule and agreeing to open April 18, at the same time the major leagues pry off the baseball lid, owners of the American Association after an all-day meeting here yesterday adjourned without adopting a schedule.

RAYBESTOS PRACTICE.

The Raybestos hockey team got in some good practice on the Raybestos rink on Saturday afternoon and from present indications the brake-makers should have a good team this winter. Sixteen aspirants were on the ice Saturday but Jack Creighton, the coach, is still looking for more good material.

A RAW, SORE THROAT

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

ST. PATRICK'S ON TOP IN ST. MARY'S TILT.

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—St. Patricks amateur hockey team of this city, defeated St. Mary's Junior O.H.A. sextette of Toronto at the arena here on Saturday night by six to two. It was originally expected to bring down the Granites, Allan Cup holders of Toronto, to engage St. Patricks, but theye were unable to make connections and St. Mary's Juniors with Mike and Eddie Rodden included, filled the bill. The locals had little trouble in defeating the Queen City team. Eddie Rodden of Aura Lee, the only senior hockey player from Toronto on the ice, was the best of the ivsitors and scored both of their goals in the last period.

CUBS BUY SOUTHPAW.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—President Veeck of the Chicago Cubs Saturday night announced the purchase from the Los Angeles Coast League Club of Nick Dumovich, 21 years old, left-handed pitcher, who won twenty games last season.

The Cubs will give in exchange five players and a sum of money, how much, Mr. Veeck declined to say. The five players will include a pitcher, first baseman, third baseman and two outfielders.

NEAR CATASTROPHE FOR SARNIA FERRY

Passenger - Laden Boat Narrowly Escaped Being Run Down By a Big Freighter.

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Passengers on the ferry steamer Lawrence on Saturday afternoon had a real thrill when the little ferry attempted to cross the river to Sarnia ahead of the fast approaching freighter Fayette Brown, down-bound from the Soo laden with grain to her topmost hatch. Poking her nose out of Black River from Port Huron, the ferry found herself in the path of the on-rushing freighter. It looked as if there might be time enough to pass in front of her, but the captain of the Fayette Brown thought not and sent his warning blasts in quick staccatto notes booming from his whistle. Then followed the thrill note of warning again and the ferry turned tail and made down-stream and all the time edging back to the American side of the river. It was a ticklish situation and the passengers of the ferry were in a near panic. Women shrieked and there was genuine confusion as the big hulk of the Fayette Brown kept coming on at 15 knots and ever drawing nearer. The ferry Lawrence, however, managed to sheer off to the American side in time to avert a tragedy. There was also great excitement from the Sarnia side as many watched the incident and speculated as to whether the ferry would get out of the way in time. When the Fayette Brown passed the Lawrence was well down stream and had to resume her trip almost from the elevator to the Sarnia dock.

THE UNITED STATES BEST CLUB CANNERS

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—A trip to France—guests of the American Committee for Devasted France—because they are the best club canners in the United States!

That is the prize awarded to four girls, two from Iowa and two from Colorado, winners in the national canning club contests just completed here in connection with the International Live Stock Exposition.

First place in the contests was awarded to the Iowa team, Beulah Rodgers, 16, and Kathryn Bolibaugh 17, both from Eddyville, Ia. The Colorado team which won second place and will accompany the Iowa girls to France, consists of Bertha Rogers, 18, and Elaine Hendirckson, 17, both of Burlington.

They go to France next summer to demonstrate modern food canning practices there.

Nine teams, composed of two girls each, engaged in the eliminating canning finals here during the meet.

Out of the north, east, west and south they came as veritable feminine knights of the farm kitchens, garbed with powers plenipotentiary to show the waiting world just what goes on behind the scenes of Americans agriculture.

State and sectional contests had been held previously, and every team at the Chicago meet was a champion and the cream of all canning clubs in its section of the country.

FANCY SUM REPORTED PAID FOR HALE SOUNDS LIKE BUNK

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—If there was ever a bit of bunk handed the public it was the report recenty circulated that Connie Mack paid $75,000 for Third Baseman Sammy Hale of the Portland Pacific Coast League team .

In the first place, Hale isn't worth $75,000. In the second place, no one is more aware of that fact than Connie Mack. In the third place, Connie Mack isn't in the habit of spending money in such reckless fashion.

In all probability Mack turned over in the neighborhood of $15,000 for Hale and agreed to turn over five or six players in addition to the cash consideration. Connie has plenty of surplus talent. Figuring these players to be worth about $10,000 each, it would be possible to make the deal resemble a $75,000 transaction.

Connie Mack pays $75,000 actual money for a ball player! Never. Connie has entirely too much sense.

COMEBACKS, AS WELL AS BUSTS, IN 1922

By Henry L. Farrell
(United Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.— (United Press.)—While the closing year of 1922 will be remembered long as a year of upsets and gd backs, it was also a year of some comebacks.

Many kings of sport became ex-kings and quite a few former leaders in their line came back to the top.

Comebacks are always more interesting because they are so few. It's easy to drop out of the race but it's hard to get back in.

Willie Hoppe, who had reigned from the time he could reach the table until late in 1921 as the king of billiards, came back and his return to the throne was the most popular acession of the year. Hoppe was defeated last year by Jake Schaefer and in coming back as the champion this year, he removed all doubts as to his ability by finishing first in a field of six of the world's best players.

Perhaps he isn't as great as he once was. Certainly he is not the sure, confident artist of years ago, but still he is the greatest player of them all.

Jack Scott, the big Carolina farmer, was the most remarkable comeback of the baseball year. Scott was slid out of the National League and headed for the scrap heap on the assumption that he had a bad arm.

He worked the arm back in condition, got a berth with the New York Giants, won eight games for them and was one of the stars of the world's series.

"Reb" Russell, the old pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, was another noted comeback. The Rebel discovered he could bat and catch flies and he came back as a sensation in the outfield with the Pittsburg Pirates.

One could talk of Ty Cobb's great comeback if he had ever gone back. Looks like he never will go back.

Mike O'Dowd gave the ring a notable comeback when he came into part ownership of the middleweight championship, by winning from Dave Rosenburg. The New York boxing commission recognized Rosenberg as the champion and it now regards the St. Paul happy and ex-champion as the title holder.

O'Dowd's comeback may help to clarify the situation caused by the suspension of Johnny Wilson. Wilson, it will be recalled once said: "I may be a cheese champion and an awful fighter but there is one bird that I can lick and that's O'Dowd. Wilson did it twice and he may do it again. It wouldn't be a surprise to see him go after O'Dowd.

Joe Lynch also pulled a comeback by regaining the world's bantamweight championship.

If her downfall at Forest Hill in 1921 could be taken as a "go back," Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis star and world's woman champion, was also a comeback. She gave Mrs. Molla Mallory, the American champion, a terrible trimming in the British championships and established herself again as the greatest of all women players.

Kentucky, in 1921, had the first road-building policy.

More than 55 per cent of all automobiles in this country are in towns of less than 5000 inhabitants.

HOCKEY RULES EXPLAINED FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL PLAYERS

Secretary W. A. Hewitt, of the O.H.A., has issued his annual instructions to referees.

Every hockey player and official in the Province should read these instructions carefully as they are the best guide as to how the game should be played.

All players must have certificates signed by the secretary of the association. These certificates must be shown to the referee before the game.

Before the game the referee shall receive from the captains of the opposing teams a full list of the players on his side, and each man shall answer to his name at the call of the referee and shall sign his name on the referee's report in the presence of the referee.

Substitutes Must Report.

Each team is allowed nine players for a match, two of which must be goalkeepers. All players must be numbered.

Referee is to instruct teams (including substitutes) before the game starts that they must report to him whenever a change of player is made on the ice. In all cases where this is violated or where there are more than the proper number of players on the ice the side offending is to be penalised at least two minutes for each player so offending. The referee is to penalise the player whose position the substitute is taking, and this substitute is also to leave the ice until the penalised player's time has expired.

When intending to make substitutions a signal should be made to the referee from the player's box by waving a flag or handkerchief.

Controls All Minor Officials.

All minor officials are under the control of the referee, and he can change any of them at any time. He is to appoint two timekeepers and two goal umpires and a penalty timekeeper (if he can secure a neutral official), or two penalty timekeepers. Penalties do not commence until the player reports to the penalty timekeeper or timekeepers. Any dispute in time is to be immediately settled by the referee.

Keep Up With the Play.

Goal umpire should have handkerchiefs or small white flags to be raised when the puck goes into the net from in front. The referee's decision is final as to whether or not a goal has been scored.

Referees should at all times keep up with the play, particularly around the nets, so as to be in a position to determine whether the puck has scored or not, and so verify the report of the goal umpires.

Overtime Games.

No match is to continue for more than thirty minutes overtime, in periods of ten minutes (five minutes each way, without intermission), and with a five-minute rest between periods. The overtime will start after a ten-minute rest.

Should either team decline to play in any of the necessary extra periods it shall be declared a loss for that team.

Facing Off the Puck.

In facing off the left-hand side of the players who face the puck shall be towards the opponents' goal, and they must keep the blades of their sticks on the ice until the referee drops the puck.

When the puck leaves the ice at the end of the rink the referee is to face it off three feet in front of the goal line to one side of the nets. When the puck goes off the ice at the side it is to be faced five feet from the boards.

Face Off on 20-Foot Line.

When an offside is committed by the defending side from a play within the 20-foot limit at the end of the rink, the puck is to be taken back to the 20-foot line and to one side, and there faced off.

Must Return Promptly to the Ice.

Referees are to see that the game starts on time, and that the teams return promptly to the ice at the intermissions. The intermission is 10 minutes only, and teams not obeying promptly the referee's signal to return to the ice shall be penalised by the loss of one player's services on the ice for every minute's delay. Referee will give a preliminary signal to the teams three minutes before the rest period expires.

Referee's Bell Stops Play.

The referee's bell or whistle stops the play and his decision is final. The timekeeper's gong is merely a warning that time is up. Referees should act very promptly on hearing the timekeeper's signal to avoid disputes. Timekeepers are to be instructed to notify the referee at least two minutes before time is up in each period (when there is a stoppage in the play) so that the referee will be in readiness to stop the game promptly when time is up.

Penalty Box Rules.

The referee is to see that the penalty box is reserved absolutely for the use of the players, timers, and managers and coaches, and that the visiting team has half the accommodation provided.

Professional coaches and trainers are not permitted to sit in or near the players' bench or penalty box, or to direct or interfere with the play or players in any manner during a match. Report any infraction of this rule to the O.H.A. executive. The home team shall provide an officers to enable the referee to enforce the rule.

In case a player is injured he is to be assisted off the ice by a trainer or other person designated beforehand by the clubs competing, and under no circumstances shall any other team followers be allowed on the ice during a match.

The Goaler's Territory.

Referees are to see that the goal nets are properly fixed in the ice and that a dark distinguishing line is drawn on the ice between the centre of each goalpost and extending one foot on each side. From the middle point of this line and fronting the goal, a half-circle shall be drawn in the ice with a radius of four feet.

This semi-circle is the goaltender's territory, and in it he may stop the puck in any position or manner he wishes, but shall not throw or hold it, and no other player of the defending side, other than the goalkeeper, shall, during the play, lie, sit, kneel, or slide along the ice in the goalkeeper's territory. Penalty one minute for a goalkeeper who infringes this rule, and two minutes for any other player on his side who offends.

Change in Goalkeepers.

Goalkeepers may be changed any time in case of injury, but only at the end of periods when substituting. Referees will permit the reentry of the injured goalkeeper when he is capable of returning to the game.

Mustn't Charge Goalkeeper.

Referees shall penalise all players charging a goalkeeper, whether accidental or otherwise. Penalty of three minutes or more. Goalkeepers who trip or slash opponents are to be ruled off for at least one minute.

No Offside Defence Area.

Another dark distinguishing line 20 feet from the goal is to be drawn across the rink. Within this territory there can be no offside for the defending team, but the attacking team must keep onside.

Penalise Offside Interference.

Referees should penalise any offside interference by stopping the play. Particular attention is called to the habit some players have of obstructing opponents who are not playing the puck. This offence is particularly noticeable around the nets. If any player persists in offside work after being warned, he is to be ruled off, the penalty at the discretion of the referee. Players must be warned to keep their sticks low at all times.

Penalise All Rough Play.

Referees are to penalise players who throw their sticks along the ice or throw the puck after catching it or picking it up. Penalty, two minutes for the first offence.

Referees are to penalise players who cross-check, trip, or charge opponents, or make any unfair or rough play, who disputes his decision. Two minutes for the first offence.

When a defending player hah deliberately committed a foul to prevent a score the referee should not stop the play until that play has been completed. Then ring your bell and penalise the offender. Penalty, three minutes for the first offence.

Player using abusive language to the officials, foul language during the progress of the game, kicking at opponents with skates, or hitting an opponent on the head or face with stick, is to be given a five-minute penalty for the first offence.

EARLY MARRIAGE LOSING SUPPORT.

What Happened to One Family Who Married Off Early.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 16.—Early marriage is losing one of its greatest supporters—"The marrying Burches."

"Times are changing. Maybe it's better now to wait longer," says Mrs. Rhoda Burch, whose four married children wedded before they were 16. Her doubt is aroused by the fact that Goldie, who wedded last year when 13, is home seeking a divorce, and John, who is 16, and married a 13-year-old girl, is also suing for separation.

It was a hard blow on the early marriage theory of Michael and Rhoda Burch, who eloped when Rhoda was 16. It may hold back the marriage of Robert, now 12.

Michael Burch minister and stonemason, whose home is also built so it can be used as a chapel Sundays, has considered his children of marriageable age when they got into their "teens."

All Wed Early.

Flossie, oldest daughter, married when 15 years old, at the altar in the home-chapel. She has several children and like Pearl, who married at 14, has been very happy. Their parents have pointed with pride to these as examples of the success of early matrimony.

Then John, 16, and a neighbor's girl, 13 years old, were married. Goldie, 13, said she was old enough to wed too, and she became the wife of Jerry Hines, 21-year-old stonemason.

But these two marriages did not endure like those of Flossie and Pearl.

Two Come Home.

Goldie, not yet 14, came home with her baby. She said her husband scolded her, that she would not live with him any more.

Right afterward John returned to the Burch chapel and home. He blamed his wife's relatives for trouble that estranged him and his 14-year-old bride.

"I guess the rest of the children will be asked to wait until they are a little older", opines Mrs. Burch, after more than the usual experience in early marriage as an institution.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ARMISTICE DAY?

Dear Sir—In the issue of your valuable paper of Thursday Dec. 14, on page four under "Quiz Corner", you have a question "What is Armistice Day?" The answer is, "Armistice Day in Canada on Nov. 11, commemorates the eventful Nov. 11th, 1918, when the great war was ended. To-day I passed by the Cenotaph on Murray street, the bronze tablet on this Cenotaph has the following inscription: "Erected by the Peterborough Branch Great War Veterans' Association on Armistice Day, Nov. 7th 1921.

Since when was Armistice Day on Nov. 7th. Somebody is wrong, either the whole world or the G. W. V. A.

Thanking you, Sir, for a space in your valuable paper, I remain,
Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

SLEEVE FASHION.

Very wide sleeves of transparent materials, gathered into a close cuff at the wrist are featured on many of the new frocks. They have a dignity as well as beauty, and are very flattering to arms that find the sleeveless frock trying.

BEERY ARTISTIC IN FATHER ROLE.

Player Finely Cast in Paramount Picture, "Ebb Tide."

One of the most hard-hearted, vindictive and relentless men that ever was seen in a motion picture is Noah Beery, screen father of Lila Lee in "Ebb Tide," George Melford's new Paramount production, which will be on view at the Capitol Theatre for three days, beginning to-day.

We have all heard of cold-hearted fathers, with a resulting sympathy for the child; but did you ever hear of a father who would not allow his only daughter to make herself pretty or follow the natural instincts of her feminine nature? Well, that is just what Mr. Berey does in this production, and he does it with consummate artistry.

What circumstances induced the character so realistically portrayed by Mr. Beery to become such an undesirable parent? Was he naturally mean? No; there was a reason, which he, as a man in whom the primitive was strong, believed demanded the severe treatment to be imposed. For an explanation of this trait it may suffice to state that on a gravestone in his tropical garden was the inscription, "Here lie the bodies of a faithless wife and a man who called himself her husband's friend."

Of course you will wonder what happened to the girl as well as to the father. And were you to see some of the other strange characters as they first appeared on the beach at Papeete you would also wonder what happened to them. It is sufficient to say that besides Mr. Kirkwood, Miss Lee and Mr. Beery in the all-star cast are such widely noted players as George Fawcett, Robert Hatton and Jacqueline Logan.

A Pathe News full of interest, and a comedy entitled "Old Sea Dog," will also be shown.

BREAKING THE NEWS.

"Daddy, do you know what I'm going to give you for your birthday?"

"No, my boy; what is it?"

"I'm going to get you a brand-new straw hat."

"That would be fine, but I already have a straw hat."

"I know, daddy, but I sat on it this morning."

JOHN GILBERT SHOWS HIS VERSATILITY IN LATEST PRODUCTION

John Gilbert, the Wm. Fox star who is being widely heralded by the motion picture magazines as the screen luminary of the year, has no middle name, according to his birth certificate. His latest picture, "The Love Gambler," which comes to the Royal Theatre to-day, however, would lead one to suspect that his middle name is "Versatility."

No matter what the role is, Gilbert manages to make it fit like a glove. His remarkable impersonation of "Monte Cristo," in the famous film of that name, made it seem that his forte was that of dignity; it was to be expected that he would appear hereafter mainly as the hero in the most serious dramatic pictures that could be found for him.

And now he makes his appearance in "The Love Gambler," as a rollicking rolling stone, who "comes from nowhere in particular and is bound on the wind for the same place," to quote from one of the sub-titles. Gone is the relentless vengeance of Monte Cristo; here is the insouciance of youth, as well portrayed, probably, as it has ever been in the films.

"IN EXCELSIS"

Christmas Cantata by George St. Church Choir

The choir of the George street Methodist church repeated at the Sunday night service the cantata, "In Excelsis," which they gave as their special Christmas music a year ago. The church was crowded, and as the people assembled Mr. John H. Renwick played a short programme on the organ, displaying the new beauties and resources of his instrument since its recent repairs and improvements, including a vox humana of ethereal tone. Rev. Mr. Young's sermon dealt with the happiness of the Christian in the knowledge of his God giving a contentment that never fails and faith that is unshaken.

The cantata was deeply devotional, and in its musical aspect must have satisfied the most exacting critic. The choral manner seemed more assured than on the last presentation and this feeling imparted a freedom that permitted full emphasis to the singing. At the same time the concerted voice of the choir was big and smoothly blended, with an abundance of power that was never misused. The choir responded instantly to the conductor and the finish of its attack without the suggestion of looseness was in the best form that has been so characteristic of the George Street choir under Mr. Renwick's leadership. Complete understanding between the choir and its director accounted largely for the gratifying success of last night's beautiful prayer in song.

The solo parts were sung even better than last year, and this was particularly apparent in the work of Miss Doris Rathbone whose experience in Toronto has given her a confidence that was indicated by the pronounced ease and suavity of her singing and by its general polish. The opinion persists that she has not yet reached the limits of her voice which in its progressive development has always suggested that something still remained uncovered. Hers is perhaps the best contralto that has been brought out in Peterborough in recent years, and her work with the Bond street church will afford new opportunities while demanding more effort and hard work which should round out every latent resource. Miss Rathbone has already attained an enviable success, and it is hoped that it will be but a step toward new endeavor and accomplishments. The other soloists last night were Mrs. Renwick, Miss McIntyre, Mr. Thorpe and Mr. Jones.

OBITUARY

THOMAS DETCHER

The death of Mr. Thomas Detcher occurred Saturday night at 10.30 at his late residence, 806 George St., The deceased was born in Peterboro 72 years ago and he has lived in the city practically all his life and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Early in the summer he suffered a severe sickness from which he never fully recovered and pneumonia set in on Friday noon doing its deadly work.

He leaves to mourn his loss, His wife, two daughters, Ella and Camilla, also three brothers and two sisters. The funeral service will take place on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock.

MARY AGNES KING.

The death of Mary King, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John King, 380 London street, occurred suddenly on Sunday morning in St. Joseph's Hospital, at eleven o'clock after a short illness., The deceased was 15 years of age and was attending school. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her sorrowing parents, five brothers, Orville and John of North Bay; Stafford, William and Arthur, at home, and also one sister, Mrs. H. Spence, of Toronto.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, 380 London Street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

JOHN BRADBURY

The funeral of John Bradbury took place this afternoon from Belleghem's Funeral Chapel at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Lloyd of St. John's Church officiated. Interment took place at the Little Lake Cemetery.

WHAT WILL BECOME OF ACTRESS OUT OF WORK

Most Actresses Can Sew and Make Hats—Hostesses Not Waitresses.

By Marian Hale

"What will become of the actresses out of work?" everybody asked last winter when the theatrical slump came.

"If they can't get jobs on the stage," answered Margaret Allen, "they'll have to work at some thing else until they can.

"Most actresses can sew and make hats. Many can cook and paint.

"Let's open an exchange and show the public what they can do."

Hostesses, Not Waitresses

So she opened an exchange in her own parlor and invited all girls out of work to bring in what they could make and she began to sell these offerings.

The enterprise flourished but did not make money enough.

"Let's open a restaurant as well," Miss Allen said.

Thereup on the Stage Door Inn came into existence.

Soon it became one of the most popular eating places in New York

There are no waitresses who may be stars one day, but they're hostesses, not waitresses.

Smart New Yorkers and tourists like having their soup brought to them by pretty girls with neat frocks and beautifully kept fingers. Soon patrons began to ask for actresses to come to their homes to help them as assistants hostesses in receiving their guests.

Also a number of would-be Bernhardts proved amazingly clever at arranging tables and making favors. Society women enjoy saying that their decorations are actress-made.

In the past 10 months Miss Allen has organized 400 girls for work which will not interfere with theatrical job hunting. She has paid out more than $10 000 in salaries alone.

French, Singing, Dancing

"This year I hope to do much more," she says, "for again there is much unemployment.

"Among other things, I plan to provide teachers of French, singing and dancing, so that girls may improve themselves and become more valuable to the profession while they wait for positions."

The Inn will be closed on Christmas Day to the general public, but it will keep open house for members of the theatrical profession.

EVERYWOMAN'S STOCK HAS DRESS THAT IS TOO SHORT FOR WEAR.

By MARIAN HALE.

In Everywoman's wardrobe these days is at least one frock, maybe more, useless for wear, because too short.

The fact that it misses the floor by 12 inches or so marks it as a last season's model. Rich material, becoming neckline and lovely shade all are nought.

Sleeves have all the liberty in the world—long, short, loose, close or non-existant.

The waistline may wander freely from the point where the waist really is to the hips.

But the skirt must toe the mark, at least in spots.

In spots—that's the point. It may be short if it's also long.

So the situation is by no means hopeless. To lengthen a skirt is no difficult matter of you have a bolt of ribbon and a bit of ingenuity.

You may add panels to the front, back ,sides or to all of them and not only lend the illusion of length, and give the proper uneven line, but you can give yourself the altogether pleasant sensation of a new frock.

For the most serviceable type of frock satin of moire ribbons the color of the frock are most used, but gowns whose activities are limited to afternoon and evening functions may be gorgeously decorated with figured and brocaded bands, in harmony or contrast.

A dark costume may be pepped up tremendously by a self-toned girdle, outlined at each edge with an inch band of color. Picot-edged ribbon, and the double-faced variety where the under side is of contrasting color, are greatly liked for these purposes.

The girl with a taste for millinery makes a very attractive costume by constructing a turban to match her sash. The same gown may have a number of ribbon appliances, each one of which gives a different effect to the frock.

Indeed, right treated, your last season's frock may become this season's favorite instead of being relegated to an ignominious position at the back of the clothes closet, or bestowed upon a shorter sister.

KEENE INTEREST IN CITY AFFAIRS REFLECTED IN THE DISCUSSIONS AT OWNERS' AND TENANTS' PARLEY

Utilities Commissioners Give Account of Their Stewardship and are Warmly Received—R. R. Hall, K.C., Stresses His Project for Cheaper Power.

ALDERMEN AND THE MAYOR ALSO SPEAK

Keen enthusiasm in civic affairs marked the attendance at the open meeting of the local Owners' and Tenants 'Association in the Public Library last evening, when some 250 citizens participated whole-heartedly in questions municipal and of community interest generally.

The gathering was an encouragingly representative one, including the Mayor, ex-Mayors, Aldermen, Utilities Commissioners, business, industrial and labour men, not forgetting a fair sprinkling of the fair sex; and the outspoken and applausive interest manifested in the proceedings should emphatically reflect on the quality of candidates for municipal honors this coming election.

The accounting for their stewardships of near a million and a half dollars of public money invested in Peterborough's water, power and light systems elicited flattering applause for Commissioners Hicks, Bradburn and Mason, while R. R. Hall's proposition for electric juice in abundance generated at Burleigh Falls an dat Dams No. four and five at a big saving in cost of power to this city, evoked considerable interest.

Past Activities.

President M. J. Maher, presiding in his customary fitting manner, briefly reviewed the activities of the Association's executive the last five or six months, during which time they had, he said, kept closely in touch with public issues of interest to the community as a whole. And, he explained, in the face of pending candidature for civic offices —on the municipal board, the Utilities Commission and the Education Board— the executive felt it time that an open meeting was called to discuss the situation and permit of prospective candidates or members of last year's public boards laying their views before the people.

Robert Hicks.

First to respond to the foregoing invitation was Robert Hicks, chairman of the Utilities Commission, who is always to the fore on such occasions, and who last night met with quite an enthusiastic reception. Explaining that during the past three or four years the Commission had invested considerable capital expenditure in expansion and improvements, involving a $325,000 filtration plant, which is giving 100 per cent in efficiency and 100 p.c. in water that is absolutely pure, he lucidly emphasized the benefits accruing from the installation. Having passed through its first experimenting year, during which time the water works plant has kept its superintendent and employees on edge all year to get for the public the best results for the least money, he could safely say that the system's operating cost will be reduced next year. (Applause.)

Turning to the activities at the electrical end of the Utilities' trust, Mr. Hicks pointed out that absorbing the old Peterborough Light and Power Co.'s almost scrap plant cost the city some $120,000, necessitating an expenditure each year of from $10,000 to $12,000 for replacements and betterments. However, some two-thirds of the lighting plant had now been overhauled, and very shortly the Utilities' work in this regard will be reflected in improved street lighting. The system will show a balance on the right side of the ledger this year, Mr. Hicks continued, for receipts have increased somewhat, and the twelve months just closing he believed would measure up to any year in the Utilities' history, as improving the lighting system had added to its net profits.

The speaker here passing over briefly increased fire protection by improved water service on Charlotte street, and a keeping apace generally with Peterborough's requirements in this respect, turned to the matter of inspecting premises where water is used, which inspection he claimed had increased the revenue from this system by $3,000 or $4,000. The Commissioners' object was that there should be no water wastage and that all should be charged for service on the same equitable basis. That objective has now been reached, declared Mr. Hicks, and the public will find no individual favors coming from the Utilities Commission. "Why," he added, "I have paid discount for missing the time limit for paying water rates, and there is positively no rule for one to live up to that another has not to comply with." (Applause.)

In conclusion, Mr. Hicks eulogized the work of Messrs. E. F. Mason and W. H. Bradburn, recent members on the Commission, who had thoroughly examined into every detail of the board's activities in past and present years and whose suggested changes or innovations wherever found practicable and advisable after investigation and consultation with practical men had been adopted.

Eulogized Chairman.

Utilities Commissioner E. F. Mason emphasizing the fact that the commissioners have near a million and a half dollars worth of the public's property in their care, declared that they had controlled that trust to the best of their ability. Of the estimated cost of the filtration plant, $350,000, he went on to say, the Commission had saved $25,000, and citizens were now getting 100 p.c. pure water, together with 100 p.c. in service. He also spoke in glowing terms of Chairman Hicks' indefatigable work in connection with this filtration plant, asserting that he was on the job night and day—always at the phone, once, twice and even three times a day, keeping close tab on the construction work as it proceeded and now both the people and commissioners have a waterworks plant that they may well be proud of. "Of course, Mr. Mason continued, in the city's interests we are anxious to run the utilities services in our keeping as economical as possible. We might build for today and save money, but the chairman, with his colleagues' approval, is planning for generations to come.

In conclusion, the speaker stressed the importance of each member of the Commission being available for all calls at a moment's notice.

A Christmas Box.

The other two Utilities Commissioners having left but little ground to be covered by Commissioner W. H. Bradburn, he endored the representations of his two colleagues, and averred that the work of the department had been transacted in the most efficient manner, as also had the duties of its practical officials and employees. In closing he apprised his hearers that a Christmas box was coming to them in the declaration of another 5 p.c. discount on water rates, effective on January first. "Applause.) "What we want now, he added, "is increased population to build up those streets where water mains are available and vacant lots in evidence, thus augmenting the Utilities' revenue at no further outlay by the ratepayers. The population of Peterborough he believed, had increased this year

Voice—"One cartage concern took away the goods of 100 families this year."

W. H. Bradburn — "Assessment Commissioner Henry says our population shows a slight increase."

Mr. Maher understood that about 250 families had shipped away their goods by the two local railways this year ,and here a thoughtful person in the audience remarked that on the other hand quite a number of families may haev come into town.

Alderman Jones Uncertain

Alderman Jones in a few brief words said he was uncertain if he would be a candidate for a seat in the council next year or not. He felt, he said, that the citizens should have the best representatives they could get. He felt there were men in the city who could do better than he had in the past four years and if any of them would come out he would be only too glad to withdraw from the race. He also mentioned briefly the controversy occasioned by the letters which have appeared in the press from time to time signed by R. R. Hall to the effect that the city could obtain power at cheaper rates than at present and hoped that the new council would find a way to get better and cheaper power if it were possible to do so.

Candidate For Mayor

Ex-alderman J. J. Turner ,who is a candidacy for the position of mayor for 1923 said that he had come to the council to stop, look and listen to a resume of the work accomplished by the City Council of 1922 and also to explain his present position and to check himself up. Speaking of his defeat last year for mayoralty honours he said he was satisfied with the verdict of the voters and said also that he had not aspired for those honours for 1923. He had been however approached by many friends on the question and had finally consented to run for the office if sufficient requests were obtained and subject to other conditions.

These conditions were: First, four or five members of the present council whose term would expire at the end of this year might want to run. If any of them did he would certainly withdraw. Secondly, the present mayor might be entitled to a two-year term. And thirdly, he would not spend any money on a campaign other than to insert a card in the local paper to the effect that he was a candidate for the office.

He had found that none of the retiring aldermen wished to run for office. He told a parable in answer to the second question saying that if you hired a man to prune some trees, to cut out the unnecessary branches and other things and he went to sleep on the job would he be hired for another year or would some one else be hired because his predecessor had done a better job and been hired for two years in succession should he also be hired again.

He said that his defeat last year was due to the fact that he had announced his candidacy too soon and that the voters who had expressed their faith in him had failed to back their faith with their works. He felt that if he had the whole hearted support of those who had so far recommended him he would pile up a substantial majority on election day.

Technical Education

Mrs. Kate Morris in speaking about the educational needs of the city said that she was not a candidate for election this year as her term of office did not expire until 1924. The great educational question to be put before the voters at this election in the matter of a new building or an ad-

To Mr. R. Hicks, Mr. Hall's Figures On His Power Project Are Absurd

Utilities Commissioner Hicks' deductions from Mr. R. R. Hall's statements regarding developing power for this city at Burleigh Falls and dams No. four and five, made before the meeting of the Owners' and Tenants' Association last evening, are as follows:

City power for 1922 will cost	$100,000
Deduct saving suggested by Mr. Hall by developing power at Burleigh and Dams 4 and 5	50,000

This leaves but $50,000 for developing power at Burleigh and Dams 4 and 5. There are certain known costs in connection with operating power, which are here totalled to ascertain just exactly what amount would remain for paying interest, sinking fund and obsolescense. They are as follows:

Six power house operators, per year	$ 9,000
One superintendent, per year	2,500
Water rental at $2 per horse power, per year	10,000
Maintenance	5,000
Total	$26,500

It will thus be seen that these operation costs would leave only $23,000 for annual fixed charges.

Now, it is an accepted principle of all Electric Engineers that 12 p.c. is the amount that should be fixed to take care of interest, sinking fund and obsolescence. Therefore it is readily seen that with a balance of $23,500 to take care of annual fixed charges at 12 p.c., only a capital account of $196,000 would be available for developing the two powers and transmission lines proposed by Mr. Hall.

To Mr. Hicks, the proposition of developing power on Mr. Hall's figures is absurd and impracticable.

DEATH FOR THE TRAIN WRECKERS IN IRELAND NOW

Drastic Measures Are Adopted by Nationals to Suppress Interference with Railways.

SEVEN EXECUTED

DUBLIN, Dec. 19. — (Canadian Press.)—The official army report of the seven executions of members of the Irish Republican army, gives the names of the men as Stephen White, Patrick Bagnot, Joseph Johnston and Patrick Mangan of Kildare, James O'Connor of Bansha, Patrick Nolan and Brian Moore of Rathbride. They were arrested with others at Rathbride, which is in County Kildare.

Were Ambushers.

They were found guilty by a military committee of possession without proper authority, of ten rifles, 200 rounds of ammunition, four bombs with detonators, and one exploder. An unofficial report, however, states that the men were captured in a dugout at Kilbride, near the Kildare County line, and that they were part of a column of ten operating in that district and responsible for the ambush of National troops, the destruction of goods shipped by rail and seizure of material in shops.

Also Train Wreckers.

The seven men members of the Republican army executed, were captured November 13 by Free State troops and with them a quantity of stolen goods, rifles and ammunition was found. They were tried by military committee and sentenced to death on the charge of train wrecking. The sentences were carried out at 8.30 o'clock this morning.

Train wrecking, tearing up of railway tracks and blowing up of bridges has been practised on a large scale by Republican sympathizers in Ireland since the Irregulars began their operations. This has badly disorganized the railway system and hurt trade. To-day's drastic action against interference with train operation was under a blanket measure passed by the Dail Eireann last fall, giving full authority to suppress disorders. Previous executions have been in connection with the use or possession of arms, except that last infliction of captial punishment on Dec. 8, when Rory O'Connor, Liam Mellows and two other Republican leaders were executed, was officially announced as in reprisal for assassination of Zean Hales, the deputy shot the day previous.

TOBACCO SALE AT LOUIS YEOTES'

Louis Yeotes has made drastic price reductions on tobaccos and smokers sundries for his Christmas Sale, which is now on. Pipes, cigars, cigar and cigarette holders and cases and many other articles are being offered at very low prices. Those who are contemplating giving tobacco or smokers' sundries as gifts would do well to visit this sale. Special attention is promised to ladies. See page fifteen for particulars.

THE WEATHER

Last evening was clear and perfectly calm, and the thermometer gradually began to go down. At six o'clock it was at zero, at 7, 4 below, at 8. 6 below, at 9 8 below and at 10.30 p.m., 10 below, where it remained for a short time, and then began to rise. At 6 o'clock this morning it had risen to zero. To-day is more moderate. One or two day cold snaps are quite bearable; it is only when we have a prolonged siege of three or four days or a week, when the cold finds an entrance to most houses, that we really suffer from our Canadian winters. As an item of news I have been informed that there are more than the usual number of dry wells throughout the country, and that the swamps which are usually full when winter sets in, have little water in them at present.—W. Irish Insurgents Executed Today by Free State Troops

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Four railway men and three laborers were executed here this morning for interfering with trains in County Kildare.

A report circulated in Paris last night that De Valera had been captured by the Irish Free State authorities lacked corroboration here to-day. It is believed the report may have grown out of a despatch which stated that De Valera had escaped while attending mass in a Catholic university church.

A despatch to the Times from Dublin states that the residence of Gordon Campbell, son of Baron Glenavy, chairman of the Free State Senate, was entered last night by armed men and set on fire.

ELECTED TODAY

PRESIDENT J. A. McKONE

Kiwanian Alex. Dick announced that the Kiwanis baseball team, which formally claimed the honor of being at the bottom of the first section of the schedule, now occupies the cellar position of both sections. This was greated with applause. "We may be good minstrels but we are poor baseball players," observed Jack Jarry.

The question of providing relief for a man by the name of Whitmore, whose home near Apsley was destroyed by fire some weeks ago, came up, but it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the committee in charge of relief work. Coupled with this was a suggestion from Kiwanian James Rollins that the Club withhold its Christmas relief programme until the months of January and February, when relief is more necessary. This suggestion was left in the hands of the Relief Committee.

The regular weekly luncheon will be held on Thursday next instead of Tuesday. A feature of the proceedings will be a Christmas tree.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES AT THE LOCAL Y.W.C.A.

The Christmas festivities at the Y. W.C.A. started on Saturday morning when one hundred and fifty of the little gymnasium tots gathered for their Christmas Party. The kiddies with their bright eyes and expectant faces were indeed a happy group, and mothers and friends who dropper in enjoyed it as much as the children. The Halls of the Y.W. C.A. and the Gymnasium were prettily decorated in evergreens, tinsel and bells and a large Christmas tree. A jolly program of songs and recitations was preceded by the regular gymnastics. The children were arranged in groups around the Gym and Santa Claus presented each child with a package of candy, shaking hands with each one upon leaving. The Wednesday intermediates gave a play called Santa Claus, Reunion. The exercises and program were under the direction of the Physical Director, Miss Caroline Littlefied, assisted by Miss Phyliss Hall and Miss M. Neill.

Mrs. Cruikshank, President of the Board and Mrs. Cormack of the Physical Committee, were among the guests present.

All the Gym pupils brought little gifts to be distributed at Christmas time to those whom Santa may overlook.

In the afternoon a similar party was held for the Ever-Bright, Sunshine and Willing Workers clubs under the direction of Miss Brownscombe and Misses Morphet and Hall, Junior Club leaders.

NEW OFFICERS KIWANIS CLUB WERE ELECTED

J. A. McKone is the New President for the Year 1923—Christmas Relief Work.

THF EXECUTIVE

To-day was election day at the Kiwanis Club, when the following office-bearers for 1923 were elected by ballot:

President—J. A. McKone.
Vice-President—Alex. Dick.
Treasurer—Chas. Cummer.
District Trustee—J. I. Allen.
Directors:
Dr. John Craig.
Lloyd Hamilton.
Jack Marshall.
Wilfrid Lawson.
Dr. J. L. Macdougall.
J. W. Worth.
J. Wearing.

With this slate of officers, the Peterborough Kiwanis Club is assured of another active and progressive year. Jack Allen was in the chair in the unavoidable absence of ex-President Frank Whitehouse, who was called away to Toronto on business.

Isaac P. McNabb, a new member, was welcomed into the club, with Dr. John Craig and Rev. James Rollins performing the usual ceremonies.

Kiwanian McNabb was immediately christened "Ike," and was formally presented with the Club insignia by Secretary George Henderson.

Treasurer Charlie Cummer reported that the recent Kiwanis Minstrel show would net the club about $370 after all expenses were paid. In addition to this, the Kiwanis Minstrels went down to Knox Church last week and made $70 for the church. The club is prepared to undertake similar work on behalf of any church or organization in the city, irrespective of denomination.

COAL AND WOOD SHED DESTROYED BY FIRE.

But Firemen Managed to Save Adjoining Frame Dwelling.

Yesterday afternoon at 5.12 o'clock the local Fire Department was summoned by telephone to a fire at 486 Bonacord Street, and two minutes later the alarm was sent in for the same blaze from Box 41.

The fire had started in the floor of a small addition to the house used as a wood and coal shed.

The whole shed was a mass of flames on the arrival of the firemen, who, however, managed to save the dwelling, which was also a wooden structure.

The total loss, it is estimated, will be covered easily by $150.00. Most of the contents of the shed were saved.

C. G. E. CO. ASSESSMENT APPEAL TO THE JUDGE

Ask for Relief From Court of Revision's Decision —New Buildings Largely Vacant.

CITY OPPOSED

The C.G.E. Company's appeal from the Court of Revision's adjustment of the assessment of the company's property in Peterboro was adjourned by Judge Huycke this morning until next Wednesday to permit the appellants to put in evidence in regard to depreciated values since 1920.

The C.G.E. Company were represented at the hearing in the Judge's Chambers by Mr. E. G. Patterson, general manager of the local plant and Mr. J. A. Bremner, and the city by C. R. Widdifield,. S. R. Armstrong, and W. J. Henry, assessor.

The assessment for the 1923 taxes for school purposes amounted to $1,670,980 which was reduced by the Court of Revision to $1,454,823. This reduction of $216,157 was equivalent to a cut of $2,600 in the company's taxes for next year. Mr. Bremner said that the C.G.E. had received fair treatment in regard to the assessed land values, but they felt they should have further relief in their building assessment. The plant has been fifty percent. vacant during the last year and to that extent unproductive. Conditions were still far from satisfactory although conditions seemed to be improving somewhat. It was pointed out that 18.82 acres of the company's property was unoccupied, and should therefore have a special assessment per acre with no business assessment added.

The Massey-Harris Company's assessment on their extensive property in Toronto was $535,000 and as compared with that the C.G.E. company here was assessed for $835,300 with $517,380 added, making a total for buildings of $1,379,680. The book value of the buildings was about one million dollars, and in a way it was suggested that the assessment should conform with this amount, representing the original value of the buildings less a depreciation of from two to three percent. a year.

It was incidentally stated by the appellants that City Assessor Henry was a most efficient and conscientious assessor, and that the city lost nothing by his efforts

Evidence by Mr. Henry showed that the assessment of the "railway lot" on the east side of Park street, owned by the C.G.E., was at the the rate of $3,708 an acre as against $3,860 an acre for the Raybestos property. Building lots on the north side of Wolfe street west of Park street were assessed at $2718 an acre while the C.G.E. vacant property on the south side of Wolfe street was assessed at $1,232 an acre.

An appraisal of the buildisgs in 1920 by Mr. T. C. Ephgrave gave a total valuation of $1,007,533, and Mr. Henry said that since then new buildings had been erected at a value of about $460,000.

"Not half that', said Mr. Bremner "nor anywhere near half.. The tender was $150,000 or $160,000."

Judge Huycke jocularly remarked that Mr. Patterson's new school might be taken into consideration. He explained to Mr. Bremner that it was Mr. Patterson's "pet".

"One thing, there were no extras on that school," Mr. Patterson replied.

Mr. Patterson explained that the $150,000 was just the Hayes contract for the building, and when sprinklers plumbing and other fitting were mentioned by Mr. Henry it was contended by appelants that these were fixtures and the rest equipment. Mr. Patterson stated that sixty percent. of the new buildings were not in use.

--And by the Gods They Can't Deny Us Right to Organize

MONTREAL, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press)—"We do not deny employers, the right to organize and, by the Gods, they cannot deny us, the right to organize. We want to live our lives. We want progress, not reaction. We want to be of service. Civilization, not barbarism; evolution not revolution."

With the above words Samuel Gompers president of the American Federation of Labor, concluded an appeal to an audience here last night for unity and solidarity of Labor and intensive organization of the Labor Movement.

Tom Moore, president of the Canadian Trades and Labor Council, urged the audience to protest against the "uncontrolled tide of immigration brought here for ulterior purposes."

MR. J. O. FIFE MAY ENTER THE ARENA

Mr. J. O. Fife may be an aldermanic candidate this year. Mr. Fife made a good run in last year's campaign and if he enters the lists again this year, he may be expected to be a strong candidate. As a man well known to business and other interests in the city, Mr. Fife may well expect a large measure of support from all classes.

PRAISE FOR MR. MOWAT AS SCHOOL INSPECTOR.

Mr. A. A. Fowler Commends His Work in the Responsible Position.

In the report of Mr. A. A. Fowler's address as chairman of the Commencement Exercises in the Collegiate Institute last Friday afternoon, the statement read:

"Mr. Fowler also congratulated this city upon having such capable men at the head of its two most important educational institutions, as Principal H. R. H. Kenner, of the P.C.I., and Principal J. A. McKone, of the Peterborough Business College."

In Mr. Fowler's address he did not mention the name of Mr. McKone, but the name of Mr. A. Mowat, in connection with being the head of the Public Schools as Inspector.

"Although," stated Mr. Fowler, "I am not saying that Mr. McKone should not be congratulated on his good work, but on the occasion I didn't mention his name, but the name of Mr. A. Mowat, the Public School Inspector."

CANNOT YET LOCATE "MYSTERY WOMAN"

Finger of Suspicion is Pointed by Rumors and Gossip to Several Married Women in Chapleau

SEEKING SLAYER OF JOHN McKEE

CHAPLEAU Ont., Dec. 19.—(Special.)— It now seems probable that the head of one family is held in the Sudbury Jail charged with murder, entirely through a ghastly mistake on the part of the woman now accused of committing the crime. According to the evidence of the police and of friends of the unfortunate Mrs. Connaughton, to who she made statements after the shooting and who gave evidence at the inquest last night, Mrs. Connaughton crossed the street from her home and killed the late John McKee, because she saw another women entering the McKee home. Mrs. Connaughton, the evidence disclosed, believed that the other woman was in the McKee home with McKee at the time of the shooting.

For two days the "other woman" in the case has been known as the "mystery women" by the local people closest in touch with the whole affair and the finger of suspicion has been pointed by rumours and gossip and near evidence at several local married women. Efforts were made by the police to discover her identity but in vain. She was wanted as a witness for according to Mrs. Connaughton's statement this "other woman" must have heard the shot and must know all the immediate circumstances of the crime.

A sensation almost as great as that of the shooting itself was the naming at the inquest lost night of Mrs. P. D. Gibson whose husband is a local timekeeper for the C.P.R., and also runs a job printing business in Chapleau. Always considered of most exemplary character, the naming of Mrs. Gibson came as a bolt from the blue to the astonished audience of several hundred people, and to that large audience among whom those at the inquest soon dispersed and told the story. Mrs. Gibson, herself not in the court room, was sent for and gave her testimony, stating that the last she saw of the deceased was when he called on her husband at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Afterwards, Mrs. Gibson stated that while giving her testimony to the hundreds in the hall, she alone did not know why she had been called to testify, and that she was considered to be the cause of the tragic affair. Immediately after the inquest, however, Mrs. Gibson produced witnesses to show that she had not been absent from her apartment on the night of the shooting long enough to go as far as McKee's house and return to her apartment.

ECZEMA

Hands Were Raw Would Crack and Bleed

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is commonly called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when exposed to heat, are almost unbearable and relief is gladly welcomed.

The pre-eminent success which

has met with in permanently removing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

Mrs. M. R. Willard, Dudswell Jct., Que., writes: "For about three years I had eczema, in a very bad form, on my hands. They were all raw and would crack and bleed so that I could not do my housework. I tried everything I could think of without any results. As last I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and when I had it about all taken I could see it was helping me; by the time I had taken five bottles my hands were all well again and I have not been bothered since. I cannot praise Burdock Blood Bitters enough."

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE POET

There walketh one with winged feet
As gilded air he trod,
Where ninety trudge the common street
In creaking leather shod.

There strayeth one with eyes that see
Where ninety pause astare
At sign of smokeless burning tree,
Or writing in the air.

Where ninety chatter, silently
One cups a hand to ear
For Delphic rune which only he
Of all the group shall hear.

Where ninety baffled, mutely crave
A Pentecostal tongue,
One passioned voice is lift to save—
One soul like largess flung.

Where ninety heavy pilgrims plod
Dull-browed, with clumsy feet,
The Poet, 'ware of man and God,
Comes singing up the street.

LORD CURZON ON THE NEAR EAST

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(Associated Press)—While the recent address of Lord Curzon, Secretary for foreign affairs, to an audience of business men in the city, dealt in large measure with the actual political situation the Near East, the speaker also expressed some interesting ideas as to conditions on the Continent. He does not believe that the future outlook of economic Europe is one of unrelieved gloom.

"I see the little nations of Europe pushing forward to a greater life of international unity during the next few years," said Lord Curzon. "In the states of Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Poland and Finland, and in the Baltic States, I see symptoms of life and energy, and the growth of a strong sense of national independence and power. But on the other hand, if I look at the great powers, whether they emerged triumphant from the war or whether they were broken up by the disasters that ensued, I find that they are in a position of much greater dislocation and disturbance. Take our own country. Our financial position is much stronger, with the exception of America, than any other State that took part in the war.

"But at the same time we have a burden of heavy taxation which weighs down industry, and which is a burden upon every man in this country.

"France is weighted with a heavy debt and is sore about reparations. Germany is in a position of political instability and, is debilitated by the utter collapse of her exchange. Russ ia is still outside the comity of nations, because she cannot make up her mind to accept the conditions which render admission to that comity possible and desirable. She is still enamored of communism, and persists in pursuing her communistic propaganda in every part of the world.

"Austria was saved only by the intervention of the powers when on the verge of perishing. Italy has been concerned with more than one convulsion and change of Government.

"What an ambition it would be for the statesmen of the great powers to combine and survey this situation; to liquidate it section by section; gradually to take the various pieces of the jig-saw puzzle which are lying about and fit them in their own places, and once more present a picture of a peaceful and united Europe."

SYNOPSIS OF BY-LAW

A by-law to provide for borrowing of $3,000.00 to purchase that part of Block "V" East of Armour Road, in the City of Peterborough, and commonly known as Armour Hill for the purpose of establishing a public park. The money is to be repaid in thirty years (30) with interest in the meantime at five and one-half (5½ p.c.) per cent. per annum, involving the raising, namely of $65.50 to form a sinking fund and $165.00 for the payment of interest, making in all $230.50 to be raised annually for a period of thirty years (30) for the payment of the debt and interest.

TAKE NOTICE that the foregoing is a true synopsis of a proposed Bylaw of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to be submitted to the votes of the electors at the same time and at the same places as the annual election for the Municipal Council and the Deputy Returning Officers appointed to hold said election shall take the vote.

TAKE NOTICE FURTHER that a tenant who desires to vote on said proposed by-law must deliver to the Clerk, not later than the Tenth day before the day appointed for taking the vote, a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt or liability is to be created, or in which the amount to be raised by the proposed by-law is payable, or for at least twenty-one years, and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all Municipal taxes in receipt of the property of which he is tenant but other than Local Improvement rates.

And that the 30th day of December, A.D., 1922, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the Clerk's office in the said Municipality, has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED BY-LAW

A by-law for granting a bonus to the De Laval Company, Limited, which consists of fixing the assessment of the said Company, including the lands and buildings and being all those parts of Park Lots One, Two and Three in Township Lot Number Thirteen in the Twelfth Concession of the Township of North Monaghan (now within the City of Peterborough) lying south-east of the right-of-way of the Midland Branch of the Grand Trunk Railway, except the Northerly eight feet of said Lot Three, at the sum of $50,000.00 for a period of ten years commencing on the first day of January, 1923, said fixed assessment not to include school rates or taxes, local improvement rates or taxes and patriotic fund rates or taxes. This fixed assessment is conditional upon the Company erecting a building on the above described lands on or before the 31st day of December 1923, with dimensions of 100 feet by 40 feet and in default of the Company so doing the fixed assessment herein provided shall fail after said last mentioned date.

TAKE NOTICE that the foregoing is a true synopsis of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to be submitted to the votes of the electors at the same places as the annual election for the Municipal Council and the Deputy Returning Officers appointed to hold the said election shall take the vote.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed by-law it shall be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice, and that such first publication was made on the 5th day of December, 1922.

And that the 30th day of December, A.D., 1922, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at the Clerk's office in the said Municipality, has been fixed for the appointment of persons to attend at the polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

23 RESCUED AFTER GREAT BATTLE WITH FORCES OF NATURE

Four of the Crew and Passengers of Reliance Are Still Missing — All Were Given Up as Lost.

HEROIC WORK.

SAULT STE, MARIE, Mich., Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).—After being marooned for five days on the barren Lizard Isle in Lake Superior with the temperature ever hanging well below the zero mark and apparently without food, 23 of the 27 missing persons from the ill-fated tug Reliance have been rescued by the tugs Gray and Favorite, according to a meagre wireless despatch received here this afternoon from the Gray.

Fate of the remaining four missing persons was not revealed in the cryptic dispatch flashed by the Gray's wireless. Search for them is being continued. Those rescued include Captain D. A. Williams, master of the Reliance; Captain John Mc Pherson of the Booth Fisheries, a passenger on the craft, still is missing. The message mentioned no other names.

Hope of finding any of the missing persons alive virtually was abandoned here earlier in the day when the Gray reported the finding of two battered lifeboats from the Reliance It now is assumed the boats were washed away from the island after the marooned man had landed.

The hardships suffered by the band during their five day imprisonment will, it is believed here, become new history of the Lakes. When they left the sinking tug none of the men had food, fuel or firearms. The isle on which they landed is practically barren and uninhabited. It is believed there are a few huts, however, left by Indians and trappers in past seasons

It probably will be late to-day before the tugs can return to this port with the rescued, because of the ice in Lake Superior. Physicians and medical supplies, together with food and fuel, were taken aboard the rescue tugs before they started to fight their way through the ice floes to the wreck scene.

The wrecking of the Reliance, that occurred off the Lizard Islands, was the result of a gamble with fate on the part of those aboard the tug. After lying-to in a sheltered cove for three days in the hope of riding out the storm that was sweeping the Lake, Captain Williams found his supplies of food and fuel almost exhausted The lake mariners elected to tempt fate and breast the blizzard rather than chance death from starvation.

Four hours after the anchor had been hoisted the Reliance was dashed against the rocks and her wheel disabled. The craft filled rapidly. Just before the wireless was put out of commission the operator flashed a single call for help. It was this call, received here, that instigated one of the most thrilling rescue attempts in the history of the lakes.

All those on board took to the lifeboats as the tug begn to settle beneath their feet. Seven of the thirty-six aboard, reached safety on Saturday night, after a battle against the waves and a 16-mile trek over a white wilderness Two others, Mr. and Mrs. John Harton, cooks, were left at a wayside station when the woman became exhausted and had to be carried four miles through the snow drifts.

The rescue tugs had made two previous attempts to reach the side of the Reliance but were beaten back by thes gale.

These aboard the Reliance included the captain, 13 members of the crew and 22 passengers.

Find Thigh Bones of Patagonian Dinosaur

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Discovery of the thigh bones of a patagonian dinosaur, each bone measuring two metres ,70 centimetres (nearly nine feet) in length, and claimed to be the largest unearthed in any part of the world, was announced to-day by La Plata Museum.

These two bones, together with other fossil remains of the gigantic animal were found by the Museum's palenontological research at Neuquern, on November 20. It is conjectured that when the Patagonian dinosaur roamed the Mesozoic forests he was at least 45 metres, or about 140 feet long.

Further explorations are planned for next March, in an effort to unearth the remainder of the skeleton.

RESIDENCE AND BARN DESTROYED.

Only Few Bed Clothes Saved From a Fenelon Home.

LINDSAY, Dec. 16.— The residence and barn of Lawrence Metcalfe, near Zion, Fenelon Township, was totally destroyed by fire a few days ago. The fiire broke out at noon in the upper part of the house, and the high wind carried the flames to the barn. Only a few bed clothes were saved from the house. The stock was saved but practica,lly all the contents of the barn were destroyed. The loss is a heavy one, and is only partly covered by insurance.

SAYS EVERY CITIZEN HAS RIGHT APPROACH KING WITH PETITION

Labour Member Objects to the Constitutional Methods of the House of Commons.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press). — Speaking in Trafalgar Square yesterday, George Lansdury, Labor M.P., said every citizen had a right to approach the King by petition, but had no right to go in a crowd and attempt to get into Buckingham Palace. The King was no more inaccessible than a Mayor, he said. He declared Home Secretary Mr. Bridgeman and the authorities of Scotland Yard were destroying the power of Labor leaders to preserve the constitution.

STEPS ARE TAKEN TO STOP SMUGGLING OF MOONSHINE TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press.)— Formal notification has been given in a note presented to the State Department by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador ,and made public yesterday, that the Canadian Government has issued instructions to its registrars of shipping by which it is hoped to restrict smuggling into the United States through fraudulent transfer of American vessels to British registry.

Under the new instructions, the note set forth, an application to register a vessel in Canada which has been purchased from a citizen of the United States, unless supported by a cerificate under the seal of the United States Shipping Board authorizing such a transfer, "must be forwarded to the competent department of the Canadian Government for instructions before any definite steps are taken."

FIRST BILL TO BE PASSED FOR OVER CENTURY

First Act of the Irish Parliament Went Through the Free State Senate Yesterday.

SOLEMN OCCASION.

DUBLIN, Dec 19. — (Canadian Press).—The first Act passed by an Irish Parliament for more than a century went formally through the Free State Senate at a brief sitting yesfter day. It was a highly technical measure entitled "Adaptation of Enactments Bill." It passed through the Dail last week and was accepted by the Senate without discussion.

The solemnity of the occasion was emphasized by Sir Thomas Esmonde who, speaking with much emotion, said;

"I think it is fitting that at this moment the Senators should pause and consider the significance of what we have just done. We have passed the first Act by an Irish parliament for one hundred and twenty three years.

"I think we may all thank Providence that we have been allowed to take part in this work. We have marked a milestone in our nation's history. We have done what many generations of Irishmen lost their lives in endeavoring to be able to do, and may all thank God we have lived to see this day."

SAY SMALL KIDNAPPERS ARE IN SOUTH AMERICA

RIO DE JANEIRO.—By Mail to United Press).—Are the persons responsible for the disappearance and possible death of Ambrose Small, wealthy motion picture magnate, who disappeared in Montreal, living in Brazil at this time.

An American detective who has just arrived in Rio de Janeiro, says that they will be placed under arrest soon if extradition arrangements can be made.

The detective—who refuses to allow his name to be used—claims to have obtained the following information:

Small was drugged and taken aboard ship to Buenos Aires, where he was placed in a private insane hospital. Six months ago the hospital records show that the patient was reported as "dead from natural causes." The persons responsible for placing him in the institution disappeared and detectives traced them to Rio de Janeiro.

It is claimed that the man and woman wanted in the case are constantly under surveillance and that an arrest will be made as soon as legal papers can be obtained.

MORGAN REFUSES TO LEND GERMANY CASH

Will Not Even Consider a Loan Until the Reparation Has Been Settled and German Currency is Stabilized.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.— (Canadian Press.) — J. P. Morgan and Company last night issued a statement declaring they had notified the German Ambasasdor to this country, "that it was impossible for us to discuss or consider a loan to Germany unless and until the reparations question was settled."

This statement was issued, it was learned ,to set at rest what were described as "highly fantastical stories," which have been published regarding the possibility of the flotation of an international loan to Germany as high as $1,500,000,000.

Official denial was made of reports that the Morgan firm had presented "a plan" for the settlement of the reparations problem to the Washington Administration. While no official comment was made concerning Mr. Morgan's visit to Secretary Hughes in Washington last week, it is understood the financier merely gives the Secretary his views on conditions in Europe, whence he recently returned after a six months' visit. Mr. Morgan was a member of an international committee of bankers which met at London last June to discuss the question of financial assistance to Germany.

Local internatoinal bankers are said to believe that before any loan is made by this country to Germany, there must be not only a settlement of the reparations question, but a sincere effort made by Germany to balance her budget, revise her bankinfi system and stabilize her currency, which has been enormously inflated. If these conditions are met a small loan of short duration may be made through local bankers but the possibility of such an undertaking is said to be "very remote" at this time.

MINSTREL SHOW BY TUXIS BOYS OF BAILIEBORO

Was One of the Most Successful Events Ever Staged at Centreville — Humor, Music and Dancing.

NEWS BRIEFS.

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 19. — The minstrel show put on by the Bailieboro Tuxi boys on Friday evening was one of the most successful events ever staged in hte Centreville Sunday school hall. At 7 o'clock the crowd commenced to pour in at the doors, and at 8.30 the hall was well filled with a very attentive audience.

About twenty of the Tuxis boys were blackened and dressed as "darkies," and with their mentor, S. R. Nichol as manager, the programme was an excellent one.

The four end men, Wm. Lang, known as Rufus, Clifton Lang, known as Bones, Geo. Stauttars as Snowball, Earnest Dawson as Rastus, acted their parts to perfection and delighted the house with funny jokes and irresistible comedy.

The choruses all received hearty applause and the parts were well taken by the impersonators.

Rev. R. M. Patterson acted as interlocutor for the first part of the programme, which consisted of solos and choruses, with funny jokes between by the end men. When the curtain was being drawn gradually back for the opening act, eighteen ebony colored gentlemen were discovered sitting along the stage singing "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" in very effective style.

The second part of the programme was equally well rendered and composed of vocal solos, quartettes, duets, etc.

A splendid orchestra was in attendance. Two of the darkies added greatly to the attraction of the evening when they danced a jig, delighting the audience and evoking an enthusiastic encore.

The ticket seller and ushers also impersonated darkies, and the reserved seats sold very rapidly.

At the close of the programme a presentation was made to Mrs. S. R. Nichol, who so kindly helped out with the programme by playing for the solos and quartettes, choruses, etc.

The Tuxis boys then gathered on the stage and gave thier Tuxis yell. The evening closed with singing the National Anthem.

News Paragraphs.

COAL SHORTAGE WILL CONTINUE FOR CANADIANS

Chairman of Fuel Commission Advised That Fifty Per Cent. Shortage of Anthracite Will Continue.

USE SUBSTITUTES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19:—(Canadian Press). — C. A. Magrath, chairman of the Federal Advisory Fuel Committee at Ottawa, Ont., was informed yesterday by C. E. Spens, Federal Fuel Distributor, that because of the acute shortage of anthracite in the United States, "there is no immediate prospect if any at all, of equalizing the deficit existing on December first in Canada's allotment," amounting to fifty per cent. of last season's imports.

Mr. Spens' telegram said he was aware of the fact "that since September 11, the date the strike ceased, up to the first of December, you have received only approximately forty per cent. of the allotment of domestic sizes, but there are sections in this country that are suffering grievously despite that production is practically at a maximum and demand is constantly increasing."

"Rationing and compulsory mixing of steam with domestic sizes have been inaugurated in our most populous districts, which have heretofore been accustomed to using only domestic anthracite," Mr. Spens declared "Other substitutes are also being used We have no information that such drastic steps have been adopted in Canada."

BRANTFORD ROBBERS ARE REMANDED TO-DAY

Admitted Scheme to Rob Tax Collector Was Hatched in Winnipeg.

BRANTFORD, Dec. 18— (Canadian Press.)—Cecil Stevenson, Eugene Collins and Wiliam Swartout appeared in court this morning charged with robbing tax collector Kelly, of Burford township, of cash and cheques amounting to about four thousand dollars, and were remanded until Wedn sday. They admitted that robebry was hatched in Winnipeg three weeks ago. Collins belongs to Winnipeg, Stevenson to Cathcart, and Swartout to Brantford. Money recovered was found hidden in Stevenson's barn. Search is now being made for the missing one-third. Swartout's arrest came after his pals had tipped off the city police, refusing to talk to county officers.

DUVAL SAYS HE SAW MURDER BUT DID NOT DO KILLING HIMSELF

Sharp Tilt Between the Lawyers and Uncomplimentary Remarks For the Judges at Garneau Inquiry.

MANY WITNESSES.

QUEBEC, Dec. 19. — (Canadian Press.)—Three men to whom Henri Duval, alias Casaubon, who on several occasions is alleged to have stated that he was present at the murder of Blanche Garneau, but who later repudiated his "confessions," was alleged to have said that he was the actual murderer, were heard before the Royal Commission yesterday afternoon, but none of them could recall that he had admitted he himself had killed the girl.

Joseph Valade, a "special agent," who had been working on the case, had told the commission which is investigating all the circumstances surrounding the murder of the young girl two years ago in Quebec, that Duval had confessed to three men that he was the actual murderer.

Duval told all there witnesses that he was in "serious trouble" that he was there when the crime was committed and that he had covered the body with a white sheet, but to none did he admit doing the deed himself.

Hector Valade, Jos. Valade's son, swore that Duval told him he was present at the murder and Mrs. Valade, wife of Joseph Valade, told the commission that Duval had stated to her that he would talk and denounce the real guilty ones when he was "on the scaffold."

Aime Dion, a Quebec lawyer, had referred to the commissioners as "gentlemen who through old age and infirmities had been unable to continue in their duties in the Superior Court," at the morning session and Aime Geoffrion, K.C., one of the lawyers for the Attorney General's Department, had characterized his

Four in an Auto Lost Through Ice

SOREL, Que., Dec. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—Four unidentified persons were drowned yesterday morning when the automobile in which they were crossing the St. Lawrence river, went through the ice. They had just passed the car of E. Duhamel ,of Sorel, who was crossing to Berthier. Duhamel looked round and saw a hole through the ice. There was no cry as the party disappeared. He stopped his machine and walked back to the hole. The wheel marks of the car led straight to it, but there was no sign of the missing car or its occupants.

No report of any missing auto tourists has been made to the authorities here or in the chief centres of the provinces of Quebec.

STRIKE BREAKER IN FREE-FOR-ALL SCRAP

EDMONTON, Dec. 19.— (Canadian Press.)— Two police officers and several miners were injured durin a free for all fight at the Cardiff mine early yesterday morning when striking miners attempted to keep working miners away from the mines. Sticks, stones and bricks were freely used in the fracas, but the injuries received by the men were not serious. The strikers' objective was not attained as 35 men were able to get to the mine and it was put in operation. About 300 persons, including women and children, took part in the disturbance. Similar scenes were enacted at the Penn Mine, but the city police were able to cope with the situation and kept a mob of strikers from gaining access to the mine property.

THE DE LAVAL BY-LAW.

There should be no hesitation on the part of the ratepayers in endorsing the by-law that will be submitted to them two weeks from yesterday, fixing the assessment of the De Laval Company at $50,000 for a term of ten years.

The concession is conditional on the erection by the company of a substantial addition to its already large plant and a consequent enlarging of its working force.

In view of the general situation Peterborough cannot well afford to ignore this opportunity which means considerable to the city's progress.

That is the material side of it.

Morally, there is an obligation towards the company on the part of Peterborough that should be made good.

In locating here, the De Laval Company was told that if accepted a fixed assessment for a ten-year term there would be no difficulty in securing a second ten-year term when the first expired.

The company has dotted every "i" and crossed every "t" in its agreement with the city, and has more than met every obligation it undertook.

It has given employment to many more workers than it contracted to do when it commenced operations here, in fact its average over the ten years has been 200 employees.

In the face of that record and in view of the promise of the company to add to its plant next year, the ratepayers should see to it that the by-law is carried by a substantial majority.

MR. RANEY'S WARNING.

In his warning to the Ku Klux Klan, Hon. W. E. Raney has said something that will meet with general approval in Ontario.

It is unusual for the Attorney General's utterances to be received with such widespread cordiality.

Generally, and especially when he is talking about the Ontario Temperance Act, Mr. Raney's speeches evoke admiration on one side and derision on the other.

To the Ku Klux Klan, however, he has addressed words that will be applauded by all citizens of the Province.

"There is no excuse for such an organization in any state where law is enforced," declared the Attorney-General, in referring to a report that the Grand Kleagle of the Klan had been visiting Ontario in the hope of organizing a branch in this province. "Men who attempt to set up here an authority above our courts will find our courts clothed with authority to send them to the penitentiary."

That is plain talk and it is talk of the kind that Ontario is glad to hear from the man encharged with the enforcement of law.

The Hooded Klan deserves just the reception here that Mr. Raney promises—a quick trip to the penitentiary.

Canada does not propose to hand over its administration of justice to a secret organization that sets itself up above the law itself.

There may be flaws in our existing system but it is infinitely to be preferred to the activities of the Hidden Empire.

A QUESTION OF ROADS.

One of the resolutions passed by the United Farmer at their convention last week is being widely approved in the rural sections of the province.

It demanded that less money be spent on the provincial highways and more on the side roads of the province.

The former were described as $30,000 a mile trunk highways and the latter as $1,000 a mile country side roads.

At first blush the resolution seems to be justified.

Analysis of the two propositions, however, leaves little doubt that in the long run the $30,000 a mile road is cheaper.

Like the case of a collar, it is not the initial cost, but the cost of the upkeep that hurts.

A highway at $30,000 a mile sounds like extravagance but such a road should with proper supervision and regulation of traffic and a little additional expense last for at least fifteen years—possibly twenty.

The other road at $1,000 a mile is never good and it requires the expenditure of that amount practically every year to keep it in condition to be of any use.

The money that has been spent in Ontario in the past twenty years in keeping these side line roads in repair would build a good many miles of permanent highway.

Resolutions of this kind sound well but often mean little.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

On the ground that the four retiring members of the Board of Education who will offer themselves for re-election are more thoroughly familiar with the pressing problem of additional school accommodation than new members would be, there is considerable amount of public opinion in favour of their return by acclamation.

If such a development were to occur it should be taken by those gentlemen as a mandate from the people to clean up this most important question of what is to be done to provide Peterboro with the needed Collegiate Institute and Technical School accommodation.

The return without a contest of the four old members would be an indication that the people recognize their familiarity with the problem and expect them out of their knowledge and experience to arrive at a solution that will satisfactorily meet the situation, which up to the present, even with their knowledge of the needs and financial ability of the city to absorb new expenditures, they have kept putting off a final decision.

But such a solution must be reached without much longer delay.

The accomodation of the Collegiate Institute is so taxed this year that it has been impossible to admit pupils from outside the city.

Next year it is possible that there will not be room enough for all the city pupils who may desire to attend.

That will mean not only that our boys and girls who desire higher education than the public schools can give them will be unable to obtain such education here, but that Peterboro will be deprived at the same time of the revenue that might be secured from the outside pupils.

And on top of this demand for more Collegiate Institute accommodation is the absolute necessity of facilities for technical training.

We are in this respect falling rapidly behind other centres.

For the children who do not aspire to a professional education but want a chance to develop themselves along other lines, Peterboro offers little or nothing.

It is not fair that these youngsters should be neglected any more than it would be fair to cut off from the opportunity of a professional career those other pupils who wish to go on to college.

The men who have sat on the School Board for some years should be acquainted with every angle of these problems and it is because of that many citizens feel this to be so that there is a sentiment that the four retiring members should be sent back to finish their work, accepting the honour as instructions from the ratepayers to see that the question of school accomodation is tackled vigorously and brought to a successful issue during the coming year.

CHRISTMAS COOKERY.

Anyone from Mars who read the December magazines would no doubt come to the conclusion that Christmas was a festival when the people of earth devoted over a month to preparing a feast to be enjoyed on December 25. Perhaps a good many inhabitants of the earth think so too. A good many small boys—to say nothing of small girls—would consider it rather a sorry sort of Christmas which did not feature the traditional goodies of the day. And apart from the spiritual significance of Christmas, the ancient customs that have grown up in connection with Christmas cookery, form a very real part of the celebration, though perhaps the joys of anticipation and preparation far over-top the actual pleasure of eating Christmas dinner.

The good things that make a part of Christmas come from all over the earth. Dates from the Garden of Eden—the cradle of the human race—rich, juicy and delicious, a tribute to the capable engineering works in that land; sultana raisins and figs from sorely stricken Smyrna, apples from almost the extreme east or west of Canada, tropical fruits from the southern seas and southern California, and sweets of every imaginable kind from all over the globe.

While there is a tremendous demand for "ready-made" cookery there is nothing quite so good as the Christmas cake and plum pudding that is made at home and in which every member of the family has taken a part. Of course the manufacturers have made it a good deal easier than it used to be, and have taken away certain very pleasant mechanical operations that were the reverse of tiresome. Large raisins years ago had the seeds in them, but machinery now removes them instead of a small boy or girl who was bidden to whistle during the entire operation! Fortunately no machine yet invented can clean currants absolutely as clean as a nimble fingered child. Lemon peel and citron peel and orange peel can now be bought all ready cut, but have the disadvantage of being somewhat dry, so this process will likely be home done for awhile.

There may be pleasanter ways of spending a winter afternoon than in mixing cakes in a kitchen that is fragrant with spices and fruits and full of all sorts of happy noises of egg-beaters and the soft clatter of wooden spoons, but most people will agree at least that it is a supremely satisfying (and filling) experience. It is hard to decide whether the actual mixing and baking, or the icing and decorating is the jolliest part of the job—or the actual eating on Christmas Day. There are many who would vote for each part, though probably the housewife would think that the time when she can proudly look the calendar in the face and say: "Well those cakes are done for this year anyhow," is the happiest time of all.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Do it before Saturday, give the farmers a chance then to finish their Christmas shopping.

There seems to be an element of the poetic justice about the hold-up of the Brantford tax collector. At least the operation was right in his own line.

Evidently the Toronto Telegram does not regard R. J. Fleming, Mayoralty candidate as much of a Christmas present for Toronto.

The Globe thinks there is danger in frequent rferences to the White River climate, which although a joke in Ontario may not so be understood by outsiders. Doubtless White River folks also fail to see the joke.

Two more killings in Ontario over the week-end can be credited to the revolver. When are we going to wake up to the necessity of greater control over the sale of these deadly weapons, or better still of stopping their manufacture?

Talk in the United States of an embargo upon coal for Canada makes it necessary that the problem of making this country self-sustaining so far as fuel is concerned should be tackled with greater vigor than has yet been devoted to this most pressing question.

Hon. W .E. Raney's warning to the Ku Klux Klan is the kind of talk the Canadian people will endorse. No invisible Empire is desired in this country.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE POULTRY SHOW.

To the Lovers of Poultry:

The poultry show at Peterborough on January 2, 3 and 4 will be the show of the season.

Every poultry exhibitor is proud of his birds. He will, therefore, welcome the opportunity to place them in competition with birds that have already borne away ribbons at previous shows. And every novice should enter the exhibiting field via the medium of comparison with strains of established reputation. This pride in possessing quality birds is the stimulative factor from which is derived the greatest benefit to exhibitors and poultry fanciers and it is due to this friendly competitive striving that so high a standard has been reached among various strains and breeds. This high ideal of excellence times as all exhibitors at the Peterboro winter show will find that this deal of a combined high standard of excellence in exhibits to exhibitors reaches a very high mark.

The Reasons.

1—At no other show in Canada do your birds receive better care the show possesses an efficient, courteous Superintendent with a fully qualified staff of experienced Poultrymen.

2.—We offer one of the best prize lists of its size in Canada.

3—The Judges include experts of International fame guaranteeing the highest mark of approval on your winning birds.

4—It is one of the final shows of the season you will be in competion with the best exhibits of previous shows.

The splendid goodfellowship of exhibitors at previous Peterboro winter shows has become a tradition. Help to maintain it. We are proud of this reputation and of our annual show. Our regular exhibitors are proud of this reputation, you are proud of your birds. Therefore, if you have exhibited with us before, help to maintain this mutual prestige by entering your exhibits at once in friendly competition. If you have not exhibited with us, join us this year and show your birds at the quality show of the season.

Yours very truly,
THOS. DARRAH.
President Peterboro Poultry Association.

BRAZIL NEGLECTED BY BRITISH INDUSTRIES

And the American Tariff is Aiding American Exporters.

LONDON, Dec. 19. — (Associated Press).—Brazil has been overlooked by the British manufacturer, according to Sir John E. Thornycroft, and the American tariff is aiding American exporters in that South American republic.

Sir John has just returned from a trip to Brazil, and speaks glowingly of the latent possibilities of the country. "Brazil is virtually as large as Europe, and yet there are only about 15 or 16 millions of inhabitants. There is an enormous wealth in natural resources, and there are vast areas in southern Brazil suitable for stock-raising, where the climatic conditions are good for Europeans, and which Germans were exploiting before the war. Then again, the extent of Brazil's mineral wealth is often entirely overlooked at home. It has probably the richest iron deposits in the world, besides diamonds and other precious stones, which are by no means worked out."

Sir John expressed the opinion that "the manufacturing and engineering industries of Great Britain are doomed unless we can get some sort of protection for our home markets, and especially get the exchange put right, besides removing some of the disabilities we are under as regards preferential tariffs. Owing to the American's tariff policy, the United States succeeded in getting no fewer than 39 different classes of manufactured goods put on a preferential tariff basis for importation into Brazil, and this hits the British manufacturer."

Great Britain lost ground, Sir John thought, by not sending a naval commission to Brazil at the end of the war. Americans, on the other hand, took the opportunity to push forward and are now firmly established as Brazil's naval advisers, with a large staff of American officers.

STANDING THE GAFF

When all you have built up with thought and care, the harvest of your youth and hard work, seems to be slipping away from you, can you stand right up to it and keep smiling?

The knowledge of what you have previously accomplished is there to help you out, the courage and conviction that you can do still better helps you through. You face the fight undaunted and you stand the gaff. There are many men who would have failed to stand the gaff but for a friendly pat on the shoulder, a word of friendly advice, possibly a few hours' help to see the trouble through.

You always seem to look at trouble through the magnifying glass. Take a firm hold of trouble and it melts away in your grip, fail to catch hold and it grows mightily. Believe me, stand right up to the gaff.

Risked Life for Liberty He Lost on Race Track

DETROIT, Dec. 19.—This story of despots, and a man and horses, begins in Poland in 1905, when John Sawicki abruptly terminated his course at the University of Warsaw, and fled from the booted and fur-jacketed officers of the Russian Czar. It ends—at least to date—with the service of a warrant, by two Detroit detectives in plain clothes.

Seventeen years ago, Sawicki led a students' revolution against the tyrannies of the Imperial Russian government. But he and his fellow undergraduates had no guns, no money, no means by which the common people, who believed with them, could be rallied in support. The revolution was put down, and Siberia waited for Sawicki.

A month later when he steamed into New York Harbor, it occurred to the young revolutionist that his new country would be more than a refuge; it would offer him liberty and opportunity, he felt, the two things that were denied by Russia to all citizens of Polish birth.

Feared No Despot

He did not for an instant dream that here, too, he would meet a despot.

He learned the new language quickly, married an American-born girl, and became the father of a daughter and a son. A year ago he came to Detroit and secured employment as a salesman for the Detroit & Northern Michigan Building & Loan Association, 1450 Washington boulevard.

"To sell real estate," Savicki said today, "I had to meet all kinds of people, and had to interest myself in their interests.

"Eventually one of my clients suggested that I go across the river with him, and watch the horses run at the Windsor track.

"Of course it was expedient for me to go. And of course I had to place a bet to show the man that I was a good fellow. I lost, but I thought that another day would bring better luck. I went back to Windsor."

The Old Story

From then on, Sawicki's story is the familiar one. He lost all his savings, then, hoping desperately that he would have a lucky day, he borrowed the money that was in his wife's name. This gone, he used funds that he had collected for his employers. It went the way of the rest and so, Thursday, two officers went to his home, showed him a warrant charging the embezzlement of $2,015, and took him to the county jail.

Tears crept down Sawicki's cheek and he spoke of the races at Kenilworth and Windsor.

"Do you know" he said, "there is poison in the dust cloud that follows those horses around the track, and comes drifting in to the stands?

"Do you know that the parimutuel machine is more sinister in its relations to any man than was ever the rule of the Russian Czar?

"I know it I knew it, even when I was betting, but I could not revolt again. The poison of the dust cloud was in my blood."

GERMAN STRIKE CAUSES HEAVY LOSSES IN FOOD

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Dec. 19. —(Associated Press).—With pleas for winter food supplies coming in from all over Germany, 400 carloads of potatoes were permitted to freeze in the railroad yards here because of a strike of transport workers. The station warehouses also became congested with goods, and for a time all of the Rhenish-Westphalian industry was threatened with great losses on account of the tie-up. The issue centered primarily in the question of wages.

Happy Function at Campbellford With 115 Guests—Elected to Parliament.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 19.—James Irwin is holidaying at the home of her brother, J. A. Irwin.

Mrs. Harry Young and Masters Allan and Clarence, left for Toronto on Monday to meet Mr. Young, who arrived from the west. They will return to town on Wednesday accompanied by Mr. Young.

Miss Flora Davis, milliner at Miss Oulton's, leaves on Wednesday for her home in Peterborough.

Recital at St. Mary's.

The music pupils of Sister America ,of St. Mary's convent, will hold a recital to-night at the studio at the convent, to which all the parents and friends of the pupils are invited.

The public meeting of boys' Sunday school classes from 12 years of age to 19 years, and organized Tuxis squares of the district, was held last evneing in the Public Library, for the purpose of selecting a candidate to attend the Boys' Parliament in January at Toronto, with C. H. Harris in the chair and Cecil Stephens as secretary. There were two candidates for election, Leslie Clegg and Gerald Connor ,each of whom in a forceful manner, laid down his platform. The former, as one of his planks, was in favour of extending the age limit to 22 or 23 years instead of 19 as at present. James Benor, in a pretty little speech, made a rousing appeal for the support of his candidate, Leslie Clegg, while Cecil Stephens strongly supported his candidate, Gerald Connor. Rev. C. E. Clarke made a very efficient D.R.O., while Rev. C. F. McIntosh, Hylton Beatty and Howard Fairman most acceptably performed the duties of scrutineers.

Upon the final ballot, the vote stood 10-4 in favour of Leslie Clegg, who was declared elected. It was decided that a future conclave be held some time in January.

Fathers and Sons Banquet.

The fathers and sons banquet, held on Thursday evening in Parish Hall, was a most successful and pleasant affair, as declared by the one hundred and fifteen men and boys present. The men, assisted by the ladies, prepared tables that fairly groaned beneath their weight of good things, and with spicy toasts, proposed and responded to by those possessing ready wit and humour, the evening left nothing to be desired. Dr. Watson in his usual affable manner, proposed the toast to "The Son," to which James Benor and Arthur Smith responded most fittingly. The toast to "The Fathers" was cleverly proposed by Master Grant Morrison and responded to by Mr. John Maynard. The address of the evening was given by Rev. Canon Sawyer, of Cobourg. Major Belford, of Codrington, who is always a favorite with Campbellford audiences, made a brief address, as did also Rev. C. E. Clarke and Mr. C. B. Harris. Orchestra numbers, with community singing led by Mr. Gledhill, beguiled the time too quickly. Major Bygott proposed the toast to the King, to which all responded. Mr. Bailey moved a vote of thanks to the ladies, to which Mrs. C. W. Smith charmingly replied. A very pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Cheer Up, Cornelia!

Don't forget the Christmas cantata and entertainment to-night in the Baptist church, when the cantata "Cheer Up, Cornelia" will be presented by 18 young ladies and men, also dialogues, choruses, recitations.

The Boy Scouts of Christ church had a most successful hike in the country on Saturday afternoon. Field Secretary Davidson, of Toronto, is expected soon to give the boys their tenderfoot test.

CORONER DID NOT RENDER A VERDICT

Murder Charge Against Mrs. Connaughton to Be Heard in Sudbury.

CHAPLEAU, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Coroner Brody, of Sudbury, last night conducted an inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of John McKee, C.P.R. engineer, who was shot on Saturday night in his own home, and for which crime his neighbor, Mrs. Connaughton, is now being held in Sudbury Jail. Three witnesses testified as to Mrs. Connaughton's admission that she had committed the crime. Two witnesses credited Mrs. Connaughton with the statement, made after the shooting, that "he had ruined one home and would not ruin another," while two witnesses credited Mrs. Connaughton with the statement that Mrs. Gibson was in the McKee home when the prisoner shot him. Mrs. Gibson, a petite little French-Canadian woman of about 24 years of age, gave her evidence clearly and without emotion.

She denied being implicated with McKee, and said she did not have more than a passing acquaintanceship with the deceased, and but very brief acquaintanceship with the accused woman. There was not the slightest foundation, she said, for suspicion of misconduct between her and McKee. Every witness, without exception, gave deceased and the accused the very best character.

Coroner Brody did not render a verdict, the inquest being held without a jury. The preliminary hearing of the charge of murder against Mrs. Connaughton will be brought on without delay in Sudbury.

Getting Ready For Skating —Nominations on Friday Next.

TRENT RIVER, December 19. — The Sunday school is preparing an interesting programme for the Christmas tree and entertainment to be held at the church on Friday night of this week.

The open air rink is being put in shape and will be opened to the public on Christmas day, with Geo. Ellis as manager.

At the regular meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon of last week at Mrs. Robert McCulloch's home, the report of the provincial convention was given. A full attendance was present.

The Seymour nominations will be held on Friday, December 22nd from 12 to 1 o'clock in the opera house, Campbellford.

Harold Wood is appointed deputy returning officer, and Isaac Lawson, poll clerk for this polling division. The salary of the D.R.O. has been fixed at $5 and that of the poll clerks at $3.

RUSSIA STILL HUNGRY.

LONDON.—(By Mail to United Press).—Codliver oil by the ton is part of the supplies that have been distributed throughout Russia to hospitals and institutions, according to J. Bentley Mulford, Hoover representative in Russia, who has returned to the United States. Despite an enormous improvement in Moscow, Mulford says, "the results of the famine are still apparent everywhere. In the crowded orphan homes where we are still feeding American food, in the hospitals where patients are being treated for intestina? trouble caused by eating grass and clay, in the refugees—the awful days of famine are still bitterly apparent."

GLANDS AND MONKEY FUR.

PARIS.—(By Mail to United Press).—Dr. Vornoff's experiments with monkey glands are going to have the effect of raising the price of monkey fur, now a fashionable trimming for women's clothes. The newspaper Comedia points out that if science is going to appropriate most of the available monkeys, the cost of the fur must inevitably rise. At a recent auction, where a large chimpanzee was sold Dr. Voronoff turned out to be the highest bidder, acquiring the animal for 5,000 francs.

Parish Guild Bazaar.

The parish guild of St. John's church held their annual Christmas Bazzar in the basement of the church on Friday afternoon last and it was a decided success in every way, the proceeds amounting to $178. There was the sale of work table, the candy table, and the juniors' work table. The sale of work began at 3 o'clock sharp, followed by a supper from 5 o'clock till 8, the tables being very prettily decorated for the occasion.

Skating Rink Opened.

The skating rink which has been enlarged and altered was opened on Saturday afternoon and evening. A large crowd turned out and reported the ice to be in good condition.

Monday evening will find hockey fans trying to pick out this year's Trent Valley League winners at their first practice.

Trent Valley League.

A meeting of the Trent Valley League was held in Marmora on Monday with President Whittey in the chair. Representatives from Tweed, Marmora, Havelock, Norwood and Stirling, were present. Norwood and Havelock were admitted to the league. Applications from Hastings and Keene were also at hand but as they failed to send representatives they were not considered.

It was decided to play a straight schedule home and home games. Two members from each team will be permitted to play in the O.H.A., which means that should Doug. Brennan catch a place with Peterboro Havelock will still be able to play him.

The following schedule was drawn up:

Jan. 5—Stirling at Norwood.
Jan. 10—Marmora at Havelock.
Jan 13.—Stirling at Tweed.
Jan. 17.—Norwood at Marmora.
Jan. 18—Havelock at Stirling.

Feb. 26.—Norwood at Tweed.
Feb. 28.—Havelock at Marmora.

Dear Marie,

A real blizzard out to-day! But I adore roaming around in this kind of weather when I'm all bundled up with nice woolly things on, and my face and hands well protected.

I've found from experience that even in the worst kind of weather I can keep my face and hands smooth and white by simply rubbing a little Campana's Italian Balm on them before I dust on the powder. Campana's is a wonderful preventative as well as preservative. If everyone only knew that there would be no more red noses, and cracked lips and chapped hands! Peggy.

WHAT TO DO IN CASE OF A FIRE

(1) Locate the Fire Alarm Box nearest to your home so that you can use them in case of fire.

(2) Always pull the box to the fire.

(3) Stay near the box when pulled for fire, to direct the firemen.

(4) When using the telphone call 24 and tell the operator it is a fire.

(5) Always keep your telephone directory in a convenient place for quick servic should you want to call the Fire Department.

(6) Keep cool and speak slowly and distinctly when calling the Fire Department.

(7) GIVE EXACT LOCATION OF THE FIRE; don't say "My house is on fire, come quick."

(8) Always remain at the telephone until you are sure that the OPERATOR at the CENTRAL FIRE STATION has got the CORRECT ADDRESS.

(9) When leaving the telephone after giving the alarm, be sure and hang the receiver on the hook.

(10) Own a fire extinguisher, if possible and learn how to use it in case of fire.

(11) It is wise to have two six quart pails always handy.

(12) Always look for the nearest EXIT to where you are sitting when in Theatres, Halls and Public Buildings. In case of fire walk, not run to that EXIT. Do not try to beat your neighbor to the street.

(13) Keep on the sidewalk when the fire apparatus are responding to a fire alarm.

(15) REALIZE that the Fire Department is ready at all times to respond to a fire within twenty seconds after the alarm is sent in. That delay in sending in an alarm is responsible for nearly every large fire that occurs. That with deep snow on the ground and a two mile run uphill, the Department must be notified quickly to be of any service. The most efficient service within two minutes after the fire breaks out. That seconds lost at the beginning of a fire means minutes, and sometimes hours, at the ending.

(16) If all exits to stairways and fire escapes are cut off, close the door of your room, also the transom, plug the keyhole and place a rug at the bottom of the door to keep out as much smoke as possible. Get near a window, open it and stay by it until the firemen are able to take you down on their ladders. Never jump until the fire is burning you.

(17) Ask any firemen for instructions; he will give them.

(18) Give the firemen credit when they deserve it.

AMATEURS TO SHAKE HANDS

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 18.—American and European amateurs are determined to shake hands by radio, without any of the difficulties they have met heretofore.

A third series of trans-Atlantic amateur radio tests is being arranged by the American Radio Relay League fror the accomplishment of this desire. These tests will be conducted some time in December and will be participated in amateur in the United States, Canada, England, France and Holland.

When the amateurs, with their low wave lengths, tried to flash their messages across the ocean for the first time, they failed. Last year a second test was arranged, and Paul Godley crossed the ocean with an American receiving set, to see if he could catch any signals from this side.

Godley succeeded. So did a few English amateurs. But Godley, with his far-superior apparatus, was able to receive signals from many more stations than his English friends.

No Help

Now, at the third attempt, no American will be in Europe with an American set. English and European amateurs will be ready to receive the American signals and they will answer with signals to be caught on this side.

Trans-Atlantic radio transmission is common. But commercially, and for governmental purposes, the messages are sent on long waves lengths under extremely high power.

Amateurs, however, are not permitted to send messages on wave lengths longer than 200 meters, except under special license, which makes the problem of crossing the ocean much more difficult. However, says F. W. Schnell, traffic manager of the American Radio Relay League, the national organization of amateurs, this feat will be accomplished and perfected so that amateur transmission across the ocean will be made with ease.

Early Tests

Preliminary tests in the United States and Canada will be conducted from October 25 to November 3, to choose the amateurs qualified to send their signals across the ocean. The tests will be made from 9.30 until midnight, when at set periods a group of stations in each district will signal its call letters.

The purpose will be to attain the greatest possible distance for each amateur radio station. Those amateurs who receive cards showing that their messages were caught at stations more than 1200 miles away, will be qualified to participate in the trans-Atlantic tests.

The main tests will cover a period of 20 days. From 7 at night to 1 o'clock the next morning, during the first ten days. American amateurs will transit. From 8 at night until 2 the next morning, for the next ten days, they will listen in for signals from England, France and Holland.

Officials of the A. R. R. L. expect a record will be set in the transmission a reception of trans-Atlantic messages by amateurs, on this third series of tests.

THE OPEN DOOR NEAR EAST POLICY AND THE UNITED STATES

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(United Press).—As the picturesque Near Eastern peace conference at Lausanne, composed of the great powers, militant Turkey and ramshackle Balkan States procedes slowly with its deliberations, the part taken by the United States in the parley is seen here as a great major step in American foreign policy and one that is likely to have a lasting effect on the world.

For centuries the Near East has been a hotbed of intrigue and a fertile field for the seeds of war. During the World War there were secret treaties and agreements between the various belligerents determining how the victors were to reap the spoils from the vanquished.

And as these skeletons were being dragged from the closets of the Paris Peace Conference, soon now agreements were hatched which were destined to bring about the present situation that has developed the Lausanne conference. Greek and Italian troops were dispatched to Turkey, the powers began to mark off their special stamping grounds in the old Ottoman Empire, old world diplomatists and agents set to work to frame their grants of special economic privileges — and soon a skein was being tangled that was threatening to embroil in international conflict all who touched it.

Beyond the whole picture of the day-to-day events in Turkey, observers could plainly see an economic background—economic forces constitute the principal cause for war today—and the big world question, oil!

Then Nationalist Turkey struck back with a bang, mowed down the ambitious Greek army, and expelled the Greeks from Turkey. The peace which the great powers had forced on the Sultan after the World War in the Treaty of Sevres was overturned by Mustapha Kemal, the Nationalist leader, and the Turks were given a seat of equality in the Lausanne conference, designed to bring about the peace in the Near East.

And what part does the United States have in this Old World melodrama? This Government does not intend to involve itself in the wrangle over territorial boundaries or the ambitions of Balkan kings. But with the constant expansion of this country's world interests there were certain definite rights that the American Government had to protect at Lausanne and this necessitated the oppointment of official American observers, who have since been active in the deliberations of the conference.

Asks Square Deal.

The United States Government stands firm at Lausanne for the "square deal". It intends to protect the rights and interests of the country and its nationals, but only on a basis of equality with all countries there seems to be no doubt in the minds of Washington officials that the effect of the American policies at Lausanne is tending slowly to beat down the ugly menace of secrecy and intrigue in European diplomacy.

When in the early stages of the conference, Richard Washburn Child, the American spokesman at Lausanne, made a statement to the negotiators of the United States' strong stand for the principle of the "open door" and against all secret treaties and agreements, and dispatches reported consternation among the powers.

This was one of the most important steps taken by the United States at Lausanne. It showed that Secretary of State Hughes intends to fight for the "open door" of equality in economic and commercial opportunity.

But that was not the only reaction here to Child's announcement of American policy on this point at Lausanne. Observers here point out that the Old World system of secret treaties and agreements is getting to be less and less profitable. Fewer and fewer of such pacts are ever taking effect, thanks to the United States.

Against Secret Diplomacy.

The war against secret diplomacy became popular when former President Wilson announced his policy of "open covenants, openly arrived at," during the World War. Now, with Hughes vigorously prosecuting this fight in Asia, Europe and all over the world, it is believed here that this principle may become an established and recognized part of the law of nations in the near future.

The "open door" and secret treaty declaration of this Government to the Lausanne conference undoubtedly did mark a divergence in the policies of the United States and the great allied powers, for this stand of the United States certainly struck at some of the plans of the powers of Turkey. Another divergence in policy will be that the United States will have a separate treaty with Nationalist Turkey and will not be a signatory to the general treaty of peace between the Allies, Greece and Turkey, to be worked out at Lausanne to replace the Treaty of Sevres. The United States will not be a party to the treaty of peace because it was not at war with Turkey.

However, the United States undoubtedly will be found working in co-operation with the Allies on a great majority of the problems at Lausanne, such as the questions of the freedom of the Straits and of the Turkish capitulations, or extra territorial rights enjoyed by the powers of Turkey.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking snuffing, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

Mohammedan law allows the shah of Persia only four regular wives but he may take as many temporary ones as he likes.

Should he fancy the wife of some other man, the latter, if a loyal subject, divorces her in the shah's favor.

When, on the other hand, the ruler tires of a wife, he gets rid of her by marrying her to one of his officials, whether the honor is desired or not.

In this country the custom of cremating the dead has grown most rapidly on the Pacific coast and it is said that in Oakland and Pasadena the number of incinerations has equaled 50 per cent of the deaths.

POISON PEN LETTERS STIR WHOLE EMPIRE

Scotland Yard Sets Out to Find the Hand Behind Scurrilous Anonymous Letters.

By CHAS. McCANN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(United Press).—Scotland Yard has set out to find the hand behind the poisoned pen whose acid strokes, during two years of scurrilous anonymous letters, have beaten into the hearts of hundreds of residents of the seaside town of Littlehampton, near Brighton.

Husbands and wives have been estranged, daughters cast out, homes broken up, lives wrecked; suicides and murders even have been caused by or attributed to the foul charges with which the letters are filled.

Two innocent women have been prosecuted as authors of them.

Local and county police have sought since 1920 for the author of the letters. Now some of the best detectives in the famous Scotland Yard force have been assigned to the case.

All the evidence they have to work upon is:

1.—Bundles of hundreds of somewhat shakily printed letters, making terrible charges against bankers, clergymen, businessmen, wives, sweethearts, even mothers and children; some of them sent as far as India to relatives and friends of the victims.

2.—The knowledge that none of the persons ever suspected could have written the letters.

3.—The probability that a woman is the author; probably someone whose life was soured through sorrow on secret sins.

Scotland Yard was called in following a revival of the letters.

The letters are as prolific as their charges are varied—immorality, unfaithfulness, dishonesty, deceit, perversion, disease.

It was two years ago that the plague was visited upon Littlehampton. From a particular neighborhood the letters spread over the little town of 8,500 people, then throughout the country. The letters circulated to London and finally to the outposts of the British Empire—wherever a husband or sweetheart, relative or friends of the victim could be reached.

All the letters show an intimate knowledge of affairs, public and private, in the town. Some of the letters are easily proved untrue; others have done the work their authors intended for them.

A local housewife was prosecuted for sending the letters and sentenced to ten days' imprisonment. Soon after her release, the letters began to carry their foul messages throughout the Empire. The woman was arrested again, convicted, and sentenced to a years' imprisonment. While she was serving her sentence they began again. Finally it was found that the woman in jail could not have written them. She was released and compensated by the British Government. Her accuser, at her two trials, a spinster, was arrested. She was tried, but by the judge's order the jury acquitted her, because of the weakness of the case for the prosecution.

The plague lay dormant for a time. Now it is again epidemic.

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY
by A. A. MILNE

"Was it the collar you were looking for in the cupboard?" said Bill eagerly.

"Of course. 'Why no collar?' I said. For some reason Cayley considered it necessary to hide all Mark's clothes; not just the suit, but everything which he was wearing, or supposed to be wearing, at the time of the murder. But he hadn't hidden the collar. Why? Had he left it out by mistake? So I looked in the cupboard. It wasn't there. Had he left it out on purpose? If so, why?—and where was it? Naturally I began to say to myself, 'Where have I seen a collar lately? A collar all by itself?' And I remembered—what, Bill?"

Bill frowned heavily to himself, and shook his head.

"Don't ask me, Tony. I can't—By Jove!" He threw up his head. "In the basket in the office bedroom!"

"Exactly."

"But is that the one?"

"The one that goes with the rest of the clothes? I dont know. Where else can it be? But if so, why send the collar quite casually to the wash in the ordinary way, and take immense trouble to hide everything else? Why? why, why?"

Bill bit hard at his pipe, but could think of nothing to say.

"Anyhow," said Antony, getting up restlessly, "I'm certain of one thing. Mark knew on the Monday that Robert was coming here."

CHAPTER XVIII

THE coroner, having made a few commonplace remarks as to the terrible nature of the tragedy which they had come to investigate that afternoon, proceeded to outline the case to the jury.

Antony did not expect to learn much from the evidence—he knew the facts of the case so well by now—but he wondered if Inspector Birch had developed any new theories. If so, they would appear in the coroner's examination, for the coroner would certainly have been coached by the police as to the important facts to be extracted from each witness. Bill was the first to be put through it.

"Now, about this letter, Mr. Beverley?" he was asked when his chief evidence was over. "Did you see it at all?"

"I didn't see the actual writing. I saw the back of it. Mark was holding it up when he told us about his brother."

"You don't know what was in it, then?"

Bill had a sudden shock. He had read the letter only that morning. He knew quite well what was in it. But it wouldn't do to admit this. And then, just as he was about to perjure himself, he remembered: Antony had heard Cayley telling the Inspector.

"I knew afterwards. I was told. But Mark didn't read it out at breakfast."

"You gathered, however, that it was an unwelcome letter?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Would you say that Mark was frightened by it?"

"Not frightened. Sort of bitter—and resigned. Sort of 'Oh, Lord, here we are again!'"

There was a titter here and there. The coroner smiled, and tried to pretend that he hadn't.

"Thank you, Mr. Beverley."

The next witness was summoned by the name of Andrew Amos, and Antony looked up with interest, wondering who he was.

"He lives at the inner lodge," whispered Bill to him.

All that Amos had to say was that a stranger had passed by his lodge at a little before three that afternoon, and had spoken to him. He had seen the body and recognized it as the man.

"What did he say?"

"'Is this right for the Red House?' or something like that, sir."

"What did you say?"

"I said, 'This is the Red House. Who do you want to see?' He was a bit rough-looking, you know, sir, and I didn't know what he was doing there."

"Well?"

"Well, sir, he said, 'Is Mister Mark Ablett at home?' It doesn't sound much put like that, sir, but I didn't care about the way he said it. So I got in front of him like, and said, 'What do you want, eh?' and he gave a sort of chuckle and said, 'I want to see my dear brother Mark.'"

"Well, then I took a closer look at him, and I see that g'raps he might be his brother, so I said, 'If you'll follow the drive, sir, you'll come to the house. Of course I can't say if Mr. Ablett's at home.' And he gave a sort of nasty laugh again, and said, 'Fine place Mister Mark Ablett's got here. Plenty of money to spend, eh?' Well, then I had another look at him, but before I could make up my mind, he laughed and went on. That's all I can tell you, sir."

Andrew Amos stepped down and moved away to the back of the room, nor did Antony take his eyes off him until he was assured that Amos intended to remain there until the inquest was over.

"Who's Amos talking to now?" he whispered to Bill.

"Parsons. One of the gardeners. He's at the outside lodge on the Stanton road. They're all here today. Sort of holiday for 'em."

"I wonder if he's giving evidence, too," thought Antony.

He was. He followed Amos. He had been at work on the lawn in front of the house, and had seen Robert Ablett arrive. He didn't hear the shot—not to notice. He was a little hard of hearing. He had seen a gentleman arrive about five minutes after Mr. Robert.

"Can you see him in court now?" asked the coroner.

Parsons looked round slowly. Antony caught his eye and smiled.

"That's him," said Parsons, pointing.

Everybody looked at Antony.

"That was about five minutes afterward?"

"About that, sir."

"Did anybody come out of the house before this gentleman's arrival?"

"No, sir. That is to say I didn't see 'em."

Stevens followed. She gave her evidence much as she had given it to the Inspector. Nothing new was brought out by her examination. Then came Elsie. As the reporters scribbled down what she had overheard, they added in brackets "Sensation" for the first time that afternoon.

"How soon after you had heard this did the shot come?" asked the coroner.

"Almost at once, sir."

"Were you still in the hall?"

"Oh, no, sir. I was just outside Mrs. Stevens' room. The housekeeper, sir."

"You didn't think of going back to the hall to see what had happened?"

"Oh, no, sir. I just went in to Mrs. Stevens, and she said, 'Oh, what was that?' frightened-like. And I said, 'That was in the house, Mrs. Stevens, that was.' Just like something going off, it was."

"Thank you," said the coroner.

There was another emotional disturbance in the room as Cayley went into the witness-box; not "Sensation" this time, but an eager and, as it seemed to Antony, sympathetic interest. Now they were getting to grips with the drama.

He gave his evidence carefully, unemotionally—the lies with the same slow deliberation as the truth. Antony watched him intently, wondering what it was about him which had this odd sort of attractiveness. For Antony, who knew that he was lying, and lying (as he believed) not for Mark's sake but his own, yet could not help sharing some of that general sympathy with him.

"Was Mark ever in possession of a revolver?" asked the coroner.

"Not to my knowledge. I think I should have known if he had been."

"You were alone with him all that morning. Did he talk about this visit of Robert's at all?"

"I didn't see very much of him in the morning. I was at work in my room, and outside, and so on. We lunched together and he talked of it then a little."

"In what terms?"

"Well—" he hesitated, and then went on, "I can't think of a better word than 'peevishly.'"

"You didn't hear any conversation between the brothers when they were in the office together?"

"No. I happened to go into the library just after Mark had gone in, and I was there all the time."

"Was the library door open?"

"Oh, yes."

"Did you see or hear the last witness at all?"

"No."

"Would you call Mark a hasty-tempered man?"

Cayley considered this carefully before answering.

"Hasty-tempered, yes," he said. "But not violent-tempered."

"Was he fairly athletic? Active and quick?"

"Active and quick, yes. Not particularly strong."

"Yes. . . . One question more. Was Mark in the habit of carrying any considerable sum of money about with him?"

"Yes. He always had one £100 note on him, and perhaps ten or twenty pounds as well."

"Thank you, Mr. Cayley."

Cayley went back heavily to his seat. "Damn it," said Antony to himself, "why do I like the fellow?"

"Antony Gillingham!"

Again the eager interest of the room could be felt. Who was this stranger who had got mixed up in the business so mysteriously?

Antony smiled at Bill and stepped up to give his evidence.

He explained how he came to be staying at the "George" at Woodham, how he had heard that the Red House was in the neighborhood, how he had walked over to see his friend Beverley, and had arrived just after the tragedy. Thinking it over afterward he was fairly certain that he had heard the shot, but it had not made any impression on him at the time.

"You and the last witness reached the french windows together and found them shut?"

"Yes."

"You pushed them in and came to the body. Of course you had no idea whose body it was?"

"No."

"Did Mr. Cayley say anything?"

"He turned the body over, just so as to see the face, and when he saw it, he said, 'Thank God'."

Again the reporters wrote "Sensation."

"Did you understand what he meant by that?"

"I asked him who it was, and he said that it was Robert Ablett. Then he explained that he was afraid at first it was the cousin with whom he lived—Mark."

"Yes. Did he seem upset?"

"Very much so at first. Less when he found that it wasn't Mark."

MATHESON GAVE ADDRESS TO MEN

Good Meetings at the Royal Theatre Yesterday Afternoon and Evening.

Sunday afternoon and evening Billy Matheson addressed a large number of men in the Royal Theatre. The object of his meetings is to win souls for Christ, and his earnest appeals are working their ways into the hearts and souls of many.

At the afternoon meeting Evangelist Matheson dwelt at length upon the fact that the Creator is the only one that is able to give us satisfaction and happiness. We are all sons of God, he stated, and God wants us to worship Him and is willing to save us from our sin. We must measure up to the plumbline and be perfect in His sight. Human nature tells us that we can never be satisfied, and as a result we indulge in the pleasures of sin, and the wages of sin is death. Sin will always find itself out.

LUSTS OF THE FLESH.

We satisfy our bodies by the lusts of the flesh, and our bodies will never be in heaven, therefore, continued the speaker, why don't we satisfy our craving souls which will be in heaven? The man who dwells at the altar of pleasure will become a sacrifice to it.

In conclusion, Mr. Matheson explained how many men of to-day are satisfying the lusts of their flesh by the wicked woman. This woman is not the sweetheart, the mother, wife or sister, he stated, but the woman who makes goggle eyes at strange men. There is far too much of this very same thing going on all around us to-day, he said. There is death in one glance from such evil eyes; suicide, murder and destruction in such a wink, and hell from such a kiss.

I am not against love by any means, Matheson concluded, but I warn you brothers and friends to stay clear of such a type of woman, for they have caused no end of trouble in the world in the olden days as well as now.

WINTERS ARE GETTING WARMER AND WARMER

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(United Press).—American winters are getting warmer, weather statistics announced here.

The old-fashioned winter with big snows seems a thing of the past. Summer is slowly taking the place of cold days of early spring and late autumn.

November just passed was third among the warmest Novembers on record. In 1902 and 1918 averages for the month were warmer. The cold snap during the last few days of the month pushed this year's record down.

Since January 1, 1910, there have been 97 months in which temperatures have been above normal and only 47 below. Since August 14, 1920, the mercury has not gone below normal except between June 20 and July 28, 1922.

Summer was 47 days longer than usual this year. The growing season began on April 1 and ended Nov. 15. The average season is 189 days.

19,396 PERSONS DIE FROM SNAKE BITES.

LONDON, Dec. 19. — (Associated Press).—According to statistics received from India, 3,360 persons were killed by wild animals in British India during 1921 against 3,633 in the previous year.

Tigers were responsible for 1,454 deaths, leopards for 560, wolves for 556, bears for 69, elephants for 70 and hyenas for 10. The loss of human life from snake bites fell from 20,043 in 1920 to 19,396 in 1921.

NEWS OF LAKEFIELD AND THE DISTRICT.

Small Boys Take Up Snow Ploughing — Clementi Lodge Elect Officers.

LAKEFIELD, December 19. — On Sunday the snow fell steadily all day making the world ready for the white Christmas famed in song and story. Two small boys, Gerald Kennedy and Hugh Morrison, with a home made snow plough, cleared Chippawa and Colborne streets and Chippewa Avenue, in a workmanlike manner.

Officers Elected.

At the last regular meeting of Clementi Lodge No. 313 A. F. and A. M., these officers were elected: W. M., W. Bro. B. Q. Dench.
S.W., Bro. Dr. J. C. Smith.
J.W., Bro. E. Milburn.
Chap., W. Bro. S. R. Leggott.
Treas., W. Bro. W. H. Casement.
Sec., W. Bro. A. E. Kennedy.
I.G., Bro W G Morrison
Tyler, W. Bro. A. V. Hill.
Auditors, Bros. G. G. Connell and Robert Duff.

Mrs. T. B. Marling entertained a number of lady friends at the tea hour on Saturday in honor of her guest, Mrs. Hazlett of Vancouver.

Nominations.

On Friday evening of this week the nominations for Reeve, Councillors, School Trustees and Hydro Electric Commissioner, will be held in the memorial hall at 7.30 p.m. In case the election is necessary it will be held on Monday, Jan 1st.

The amount realized at the Yule Tide Fair of St. John's church was reported as $40. This was a printers error as the amount of considerably over $400.

Nine members of the A.Y.P.A. attended the meeting of the Peterboro District Local Council held in St. Luke's school room on Tuesday evening. After the business was concluded those present were guests of St. Luke's Branch, who had provided a Christmas tree with a real Santa Claus who distributed the gifts in his usual happy manner. The Lakefield delegation all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

NEWS COBOURG AND DISTRICT

Minister of Highways to Address Meetings--Judge Ward Deplores Increase of Crime.

COBOURG, Dec. 19.—(Speciay.)—Sunday was missionary anniversary at the Methodist church here. In the morning a platform meeting was held, when addresses were delivered by Mr. F. W. Galbraith, Port Hope, and Mr. T. F. Harrison, Cobourg. In the evening the pastor, Rev. J. I. T. Wilson, preached, his subject being, "A Cry For Help."

Hon. Mr. Biggs, Minister of Highways, is to visit Northumberland county this week. On Wednesday, Dec. 20, he is to address an U. F.O. convention at Warkworth, and on Thursday he is to address the West Northumberland U.F.O. convention here.

Mr. George Irwin, a brother of Dr. John R. Irwin, and a former resident of this locality, is coming home from the west with his bride for the holiday season. Mr. Irwin has been essayist for some time with the Premier mine in Alaska.

Unique Coincidence.

A unique circumstance in connection with the municipal elections in Brockville is that Mr. W. P. Carswell, a former Cobourg boy, was elected a member of the Board of Education and his son a member of the Town Council.

Word has been received here from Sidney, B.C., of the death of James McNaught, a former resident of Cobourg. He married Miss Ethel Elliott, eldest daughter of Mr. Robert Elliott, of this town.

Crime on Increase.

In his address to the jury at the High Court sittings here, Judge Ward deplored the fact that crime was on the increase in Northumberland and Durham. The crime of theft had become alarming and he referred especially to an organized gang in Durham county, who had entered many private residences and had also stolen from freight cars.

Miss Lena Field, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Field, of this town, has been appointed dietician at the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, and has assumed her new duties.

The Cobourg Primary Chapter of the I.O.D.E. gave a dance at the armouries on Friday evening for the cast of the musical comedy, "In Sunny France," which was put on at the opera house here. It was greatly enjoyed.

Employees' Association.

The employees of the various industrial plants here have organized an association stated to be non-partisan and non-sectarian in its character. The name of the new organization is "The Cobourg Industrial League." The industries and plants represented in this new league are the Grand Trunk shops and freight offices, Lydia Pinkham Medicine Co., Langlov Limited, Dominion Wheel and Foundries, Cooper Planing Mills, Rice Lake Canoe Co., etc. The purpose of the new organization is stated to be to promote the prosperity and growth of the town, and a clean, capable, progressive administration of town affairs, and the encouragement of industrial activities.

The Nominations.

Nominations for Mayor and Council of the town of Cobourg will be held on Friday, Dec. 22nd, instead of on Christmas day. It is expected the majority of this year's council will be in the field and also a number of new aspirants. An old-time, hot contest is expected.

Estate of $31,435.

The late Rev. E. F. Niven, who married Miss Florence Cruso, of this town, left an estate valued at $31,435, it is stated. His entire estate is bequeathed to his wife.

Social Events.

The Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters had a shower of toys and books suitable for Christmas gifts for the Haileybury children at the town hall during the week and collected quite an assortment.

Another of the interesting events of last week was a child's welfare party held at the armouries, in which many of the ladies of the town assisted. There were about one hundred and thirty mothers with their babies at the clinic held in connection with it.

Friday night the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association held an old-time dance and progressive euchre at the armouries.

News Briefs.

Mrs. George U. Isaac of Harwood, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Port Hope hospital one day this week. She is reported to be getting on nicely.

Action has been deferred for the time being on the by-law asking the Corporation of Cobourg to guarantee the bonds of Langslov Ltd., of this town to the extent of $150,000. This has been done at the request of Mr. Langslov.

NEW WAY FOUND TO DODGE INCOME TAX

U.S. Concerns Escape the Tax Collector By Declaring Stock Instead of Cash Dividends.

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Apparently as an aftermath of a recent United States Supreme Court decision that stock dividends were not taxable, hundreds of companies are increasing their capitalization by enormous amounts, the Secretary of State's office announced yesterday. The move is thought to be in anticipation of action by Congress to tax surplus or its distribution.

The increases in capitalization run into the millions and it is not uncommon for a company originally capitalized at $100,000 to increase its capitalization to $1,000,000, the statement said. The movement is not confined to any particular line of business.

Increasing the amount of authorized capital stock enables the corporation to turn over its surplus to its shareholders in the form of stock dividends, the move converting the amount into capital instead of surplus, it was explained.

AFTERNOON TEA AND WORK SALE WAS BIG SUCCESS.

Ladies' Aid of Lakefield Methodist Church Hold Generously Patronized Event.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 19.—On Friday afternoon, the Ladies Aid of the Methodist Church held a very successful afternoon tea and sale of work, home cooking, vegetables, fruit, candy, etc., in the basement of the fine church. On each side of this spacious room is ranged well lighted class rooms and these were converted into booths, thus leaving the large central space free, in the centre of which was a prettily fitted up tea room enclosed by ropes and garlands of Christmas greenery. The space outside of this afforded ample room for the large number of ladies attending to move freely about and select thier purchases without any crowding or jostling.

The scene upon entering this basement was attractive in the extreme, also the central tea room with its pleasing enclosure, the little tables so tastefully and temptingly set, at the sides the beautifully decorated booths, and across the end the home-cooking table and the fruit and vegetable stand. It was evident that the ladies in charge of each booth carried out a scheme of decoration of their own, each group apparently striving for the best and most effective results and all succeeding in a most satisfactory degree. Where all were so enchanting, it seems unfair to particularize, but one may be forgiven, perhaps, for mentioning especially the fairy bower where handkerchiefs were displayed, and which was a semi-circular enclosure decorated in mauve and white with touches of silver gleaming here and there as one paused to exclaim in admiration; one was tempted to purchase some of the pretty handkerchiefs so airily and daintily displayed.

Some of the tables had special features which were doubtless intended to halt the passer- by; one of these was a majestic stork, carrying suspended from his mouth, a very young doll nude, in need of clothes but carefully enclosed in a white handkerchief, needless to say this was the "circle" where infant's garments of all sorts were to be found and made ready sale.

The Methodist ladies have an enviable reputation for home-cooking and this well-stocked table was soon sold out; likewise the candy table about which youthful customers wistfully hovered.

The sale was opened promptly at 3 o'clock by Mrs. (Rev.) Reddick and business immediately began. The general management of the affair was in the hands of Miss Webster; the president and the long-time head and untiring spirit of this Ladies Aid, Mrs. Spence, and reflected great credit, not only upon them; but also upon their splendid corps of assistants, who assiduously performed their various duties, and never forgetting to be kind and friendly to visitors as the Methodist ladies invariably are.

Mrs. Robert Nugent and Mrs. W. J. Northey assisted Miss Webster and Mrs. Spence in greeting and looking after the comfort of those present.

The booths were in charge of the following ladies:—

Fancy work—Madames George Spence, John Hendren and Miss Milburn.

Candy—Mrs. Walters Madill and Mrs. J. R. Northey.

Fruit and vegetables—Mrs. W. J. Dunford and Mrs. Albert Darling.

Home-cooking—Mrs. John Charlton, Adams, S. Pearson and Erskine

Knitting—Mrs. A. Northey.

Dolls—Mrs. A. D. Payne and Miss Richard Simpson.

Handkerchiefs— Mrs. Grylls and Mrs. Nixon.

Aprons—Mrs. H. Scriber and Mrs. Wheeler.

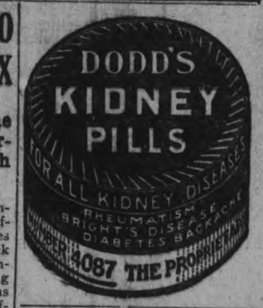
Infant's wear—Mrs. Stabler, Percy Spence, Botterill and Walter Hamblin.

Tea-room attendants—Mrs. Ray, A. H. Little, Harry Dunford, B. Moore, Arthur Jory, W. Nugent, H. Wager and N. Payne.

A gratifying sum was netted from the sale.

CHINOOK IN ALBERTA.

LETHBRIDGE, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Southern Alberta was enjoying a Chinook yesterday with the mercury standing at 29 degrees above freezing as against the cold dip to thirty-five below zero last week. The weather had moderated nearly forty degrees in twenty-four hours.



A NEW REPUBLIC USES WISCONSIN AS LAW MODEL

Czecho-Slovakia Adopting a Set of Industrial Laws Copied From U. S.

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 19.—(United Press).—A brand new European republic is modelling its statutes on Wisconsin laws.

Czecho-Slovakia, born of the Treaty of Versailles and headed by President Masaryk, who spent a year studying American conditions in Chicago and the Middle West, is adopting a set of industrial laws that ncludes not only several that have been put into successful use in Wisconsin, but also some originating here that the Badger State has not had the nerve to put into practice.

This information was received here recently by Prof. John R. Commons of the Economics Department of the University of Wisconsin, author of numerous pioneer workmen's compensation, civil service and unemployment measures, in a letter from Mary McDowell, head of the Chicago University settlement house and a guest of President Masaryk.

Czecho-Slovakia was freed of Austrian domination and Austrian debts by the Versailles Treaty. It is now the only Slavic nation with a stable currency.

The measures to be put into effect, full details of which have been sent by Prof. Commons to the new republic, include health, accident, unemployment and old age insurance laws protecting women and children in industry, and laws restricting hours of labor.

The new government is a "model democracy," the President being elected for life, and the reins of government being held by a cabinet and parliament chosen periodically by popular vote.

Prof. Commons was the author of the law creating the Wisconsin industrial commission in 1902, the first of its kind, and the predecessor of labor departments in practically ever State in the Union.

SATISFIES EVERY NEED.

No other journal caters so intimately and minutely to the needs of the agriculturist and country dweller as does The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. From his medical to his religious needs, from the health of his stock to the capabilities of his machinery from his ladies' embroidery to their pickles, from the minerals on the land to the fish in his brooks, from the books of his leisure hours to the amusement of his children, from his individual cares to his public duties, he finds companionship, help and guidance in the same old journal which delighted his fathers and is the joy of his children today. He cannot afford to be without The Family Herald at any price. The cost of a year's subscription is only two dollars.

CONVICTION QUASHED.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press.) — The Manitoba Court of Appeal, holding that the Crown had failed to establish that he was not a provincial police officer, and claiming the offence, if any, was theft, yesterday quashed the conviction of Alfred M. (Dad) Scheer, recently sentenced to thirty months in the penitentiary for obtaining a quantity of liquor by false pretences.

Scheer is being held in custody pending arrangements for bail on another charge against him in connection with the bank robbery at Melita late in September.

HARD PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE
Itched and Burned. Lost Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"I had pimples and blackheads all over my face. The pimples were hard and quite large, and the itching and burning were so severe that I could not help scratching them. I was very restless and lost many nights' sleep

"I tried different remedies without success. Seeing an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment I sent for a free sample which I used with success. I purchased more and after using three cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Sadie Deice, 263 Admiral St., Providence, R. I., Aug. 11, 1921.

FAMOUS GREAT DANE DOG MASCOT IS DEAD

The Passing Of Rastus Regretted By Many War Veterans.

VICTORIA, B.C., Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Rastus, huge black dog of the Great Dane species, official member of the local branch of the Veterans of France, is dead and many friends mourn his passing.

He died at sea on the tender Estevan, on which he never missed a sailing during his lifetime. A soldiers' friend he was and it was the funeral of a comrade he was given. Full naval honors marked his consignment to the deep.

A remarkable character was Rastus, returned men declare. Handsome in appearance, probably the biggest dog on the coast, he made friends on all sides.

Rastus' original owner was the late Paddy Dineen, who fought with the 67th Western Scots. After the war the twain were inseparable, and spent much time around the club rooms of the Veterans of France. Rastus was officially made a member, and the only known way to ruffle his temper was to attempt to tamper with the veterans' badge on his collar.

During the war Rastus had found a home on the Estevan. While the ship was in port he lived on the fat of the land, but sailing day found him on the dock. How he knew when the vessel was to sail is a mystery. He seemed to sense it from afar, and there was never a voyage of the steamer that he was not in his accustomed place aboard.

The Prince of Wales, when he visited Victoria, took a deep interest in the big black pup, who was formally presented with the rest of the local notables. The prince said he had a collar in London that he thought would look well on the dog's neck, but he forgot to send it.

HOME CIRCLE

Christmas, the celebration of the birthday of the Divine Child, is peculiarly the children's festival. And while it cannot, too, but be a time of ups, we realize after all that it has no other charm to compare with the pleasure we take in some kiddy's delight over a doll or a drum or a picture book that our special Santa Claus has brought him.

It does the world good to open up its doors and take in the season's greetings. Business goes on all the happier because there is a warm, charitable feeling in a man's soul toward his employer or employes or acquaintances. We are all so busy we are apt to forget to be considerate, forgiving and kind. It is well to let the brain rest and allow the heart to rule sometimes, or men may lose the faculty of loving and being charitable.

Christmas most truly belongs to the children. It celebrates the event of the Christ Child, to whom the wise men brought gifts and the shepherds came and worshipped. We would that every child in this land of abundance might receive that little portion to fill the hearts with joy and chase the sobs and tears away. It takes so little to open the founts of joy, it would seem so small a portion might fall to the lot of all children of American homes; but alas! some will be burdened with gifts until they weary of counting them and others—what a disappointing Christmas it will be! Cannot we be thoughtful one of another and share our blessings with those less favored and make our Christmas more truly happy for ourselves and merry for many others?

Oh, how pleasant, bright and cheery home should be made at that sweet season—Christmas—when each and every one can bestow some little gift of affection upon dear ones and remembering those who are less fortunate. We should remember the great gift of our Heavenly Father to the world. He it is that can and will make home bright and happy. The inmates of a sweet, Christian home should never indulge in gossip, but speak kindly of every one, some loving word of encouragement to the disconsolate. When in our power lend a helping hand.

Santa Claus' reindeer with their spreading antlers, may have walked two and two out of the ark when it rested on Aarat's crest after the flood subsided, but who cares? The gift of eternal youth is theirs and they are too busy to bother with family records or chronological tables. Each year the rythmic patter of their tiny hoofs will be heard on your roof on Christmas eve if your heart keeps young and true and your ears still attuned to the faintest whisper of God's own messengers. Santa Claus finds his happy way into the homes of the rich and poor alike, into the palace and into the cottage, wherever children have been sent to brighten and to bless.

Christmas should mean infinitely more to us than can be expressed by gift or language. It is not to be a season of tears, but joy. It should fill every home with gladness and the noise of happy children and parents. Let the children come home, let the parents throw open their homes to them; let the yule log, a log of wood, be laid in the fireplace and lighted with songs, match the merry crackling log and shadows of the flames dancing jocundly upon the wall. Say, come friends, come strangers. If it be but a cup of cold water, it's given, and a kindly smile will do something to show that.

"God's in His Heaven, All's well with the world."

To us no season of the year awakens so much of tenderness and fellow feeling towards all humanity as Christmas. It is not only a time of well wishing, but kindly doing, with a vein of sympathy that would turn no one away empty, withhold no tender greeting, no act of kindness, no world of love that might contribute to another's happiness. No sacrifice seems too great that we might not bless one another—no yielding up of self too trying that we might not smooth some life, no trial of patience too great that we might not bear and forbear with a spirit vexed with many things. An appreciative Christmas will rule the baseness, rudeness and roughness out of any life. Christmas is the time of love. Hatred, envy and malice can have no Christmas. Greed and selfishness are entirely foreign to the day.

They tell me that reindeer fur is the latest wrinkle. We presume that Santa Claus is flooding the market with reindeer since he must have gone over to the moderns and rides in an automobile.

MRS. MATHESON GAVE 2 ADDRESSES SUNDAY

Is a convincing Speaker—Meetings will Continue

Two well attended meetings were held in St. Paul's Church on Sunday one ot 4 o'clock and the other at 8.30 when Mrs. Matheson the wife of the Evangelist gave two very helpful and inspiring addresses. Many who have heard Mr. Matheson were anxious to see and hear his wife to whose work he has made much frequent reference. All who heard her were delighed by her personality and her message. She was married to Mr. Matheson eleven years ago. Six of those years she spent with her husband in mission work in the city of London, Ont. One who engages in work of that kind must be prepared to come in contact with every phase of life in the underworld and to see human nature at its worst. Mrs. Matheson is a woman of culture and refinement. Her mother was a clergyman's daughter, and one of her uncles was a Senator of the United States Government, while the other was a Congressman. Notwithstanding her delicate upbringing when she married Mr. Matheson she gave herself utterly to the work in which he was engaged. She must have had the same feelings that other women of refinement have in relation to the denizens of the underworld, the drunkard and the harlot and the unfortunate in the jails. But such is the power of the love of Jesus Christ in the heart that she soon found herself going down into homes of poverty, sin and vice and doing all she could to lift the fallen and restore them to home and to God.

Mrs. Matheson related many instances where the Lord used her to bring new life and hope to fallen women. She told how the most vicious and abandoned respond to the kindly act and loving deed. She pointed out that such work is indeed work worth while. It is the work of the Master. It is such work the Lord would have his children do. The woman who loves Christ and has a vision of life as Jesus Christ can make it will not waste her time on the silly amusements which occupy so much of the interest of women. She will turn away from the afternoon card parties and she will follow the example of her Master and she will be found going about doing good.

Mrs. Matheson is a pleasing and a effective speaker. At the close of her address many expressed a desire to consecrate themselves to the service of Christ.

GIFTS

Not just one rose in my garden,
But countless roses abloom,
That lift their heads to the sunlight,
And waft me a kiss of perfume.

Not just one joy to my living,
But many the joys that I hold,
Beauty of dawn and of twilight,
Dreams that are shy to unfold.

Not just one gift to my giving,
If I have eased one of pain,
If I have stilled one of sobbing,
Grant me to give it again.

RUSSIA EXPERIMENTING WITH NEW CURRENCIES

A Ruble Called the "Goods Ruble" Is To Be Introduced.

MOSCOW, Dec. 19.—(Associated Press.)—As the gold ruble cannot at present be regarded as the real measure of value in Russia, a new ruble called the "goods ruble," corresponding to the value of certain kinds of goods, is to be introduced as commercial currency. Wages will be fixed in "goods rubles." In addition to the "goods ruble" it is proposed to introduce into the market other varieties of the ruble, namely, agricultural, export, import and budget rubles.

A well informed Russian business man, questioned as to the Soviets latest financial plans, said the intention was that paper issues should be in theory backed by supplies of goods Regarding the export and import issues, he said that the paper would be backed for face value by all the trade entering and leaving Russia.

The new financial measure is probably attributable to the fact that the supply of gold rubles is nearing extinction, and to a desire on the part of the Soviet officials to deal a blow at the people who are hoarding them. An effort was made by the Bolsheviks some time ago to declare the Czar, Duma and Kerensky rubles valueless, but it did not succeed.

LARGE STOCK FIRM FAILED IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—Failure of Houston, Fible and Company, one of the largest stock dealing concerns west of the Mississippi, yesterday was followed by a marked falling off in the market, and a rather heavy selling of oil stocks. It was estimated the company failed for several millions, although no statements were given out here either as to the amount or the cause for the trouble.

Announcement from the New York Stock Exchange that the firm had been suspended was followed by an effort to get W. R. Houston, eastern member of the firm, to explain. He refused to do so and left at once for Chicago.

It was said here that the company, which has its main office in Kansas City and does not operate an office here, had had heavy commitments in the Chicago grain markets. It also was said here that the concern had been hit by the Federal Reserve Bank order in the Middle West to reduce loans on oil stocks. The company was said to have been a heav ydealer in oil stocks in Texas and Oklahoma.

THE U.S. GOBS STAGE A TWO-MONTH PARTY

By MILES W. VAUGHN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

RIO DE JANEIRO.—(By Mail to United Press).—The visit of the United States steamship Nevada to Rio will go down in the annals of the American colony as the gayest and most successful two months' party ever held on the shores of Guanabra Bay.

The big warship arrived on September 5 and departed November 16. The time in Rio was one continuous party—with the gobs and marine detachment occupying the centre of the stage all the time.

And the navy showed its appreciation by coming through handsomely every time it had a chance.

"Nevada Day" at the International Exposition, arranged by the Commissioner General of the United States, drew the biggest crowd of paid admissions of any one day since the show opened.

Incidentally it provided Brazil an opportunity to see real North American football, played on a field built by American engineers, who are tearing down the Morro do Castello.

"Nevada" boxers also caused the manly art to increase tremendously in popularity in Brazil—where all the local sports have been talking boxing since the Carpentier-Dempsey battle.

And finally, after raising several thousand milreis for the Rio graded school, which is operated by the Anglo-American Colony, through a vaudeville show in one of the suburban theatres, the gobs and marines topped things off by giving the school $1,000 right out of their pockets.

Minnesota has started to line its highways with trees.

HUSBAND DIDN'T DARE LEAVE HER ALONE HER HEART WAS SO BAD

Those feelings of faintness, those dizzy spells, the all-gone sinking sensations which come on from time to time indicate a weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

have no equal as a remedy to strengthen the heart, invigorate the nerves and build up the run-down system.

Mrs. C. Vanhorn, Eckville, Alta., writes:—'About a year ago I had heart trouble. My husband didn't dare leave me alone, and often I would just feel kind of faint and my heart would seem to stop beating. I would just faint away, and it would sometimes be an hour before they could bring me back to life. Someone told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got three boxes I took them and felt much better, so continued all Winter, and now I ever feel any such faintness. I surely do appreciate the good they have done for me."

Price 50c a box at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GOOD MANNERS

During a song, the performance of an instrumental musical selection or a recitation at a social gathering, an appreciative silence should be maintained by the other guests, from the start until the moment comes for applause. Continued conversation, even in an undertone, or any other disturbance at such a time should be scrupulously avoided.

GIRLS, CAN YOU ANSWER THESE?

Thirty - Five Questions Asked Women By California Educator.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 19.—Girls, what was Mrs. Mallory famed for? What is the adolescent age? Who was Prince Albert?

The college women of the country now are invited to step to the front and have their mentality determined by replying to a series of questions propounded by a California educator.

Professor Ralph L. Power, of the faculty of the University of Southern California, is the questioner. He has prepared a series of 35 interrogations which he thinks the college women of the United States, if their academic training is not faulty, should find little difficulty in answering.

Here are Professor Power's questions:

1. What is the adolescent stage?
2. What are the Guianas?

About The Bible

3. What was the first woman's college in the United States?
4. Name five present-day captains of industry.
5. Where was former President Wilson born?
6. What is the commission form of government.
7. Who wrote "The End of a Perfect Day?"
8. Where is the Yazoo river?
9. Name the books of the Old Testament.
10. Name the seven wonders of the ancient world.
11. What is the Nobel prize?
12. What is theism?
13. Name five Shakespearean plays.
14. Who modeled "The End of the Trail?"
15. What is the National Woman's Party?
16. What well known infant does the title "The Kid" suggest?
17. What did Elias Howe invent and what was its significance?
18. Name the members of President Harding's cabinet.
19. Who is the chief justice of the United States?
20. What is the highest mountain in the United States?

The Homestead Riots

21. Who was Prince Albert?
22. What is the largest American ship afloat?
23. Where is former President Roosevelt buried?
24. What is the treaty of Versailles?
25. What was the cause of the Homestead riots?
26. What recent work of fiction has a sociological aspect?
27. What is the Rotary club?
28. What is the significance of the defeat of Lloyd George?
29. Who are the following and what are they famed for: Gladstone, Jane Addams, Mrs. Mallory, Samuel Clemens, Lafcadio Hearn, Carrie Chapman Catt, Clara Barton, Edith Cavell, Cleopatra, Isaac Newton and Izaak Walton?
30. What was the Hay-Pauncefote treaty?
31. Define philosophy.
32. Who is the highest paid editorial writer today?
33. What was the outstanding event of 1920 relating to women?
34. What book, published previous to the war between the states, is known everywhere as a book and a play?
35. When was the Monroe Doctrine formulated?

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, December 19. Canadian Press. —, The trade in spot supplies on the local market was rather quiet with the tone of the market firm. There was no change in the flour market. A feature of the millfeed market was the renewed demand from the United States buyers for Canadian brans and shorts with prices realizing $2 to $4 per ton better than in the local market.

There was no price change in the local market. An easier feeling developed in rolled oats with prices down 10c a bag. There was no improvement in the demand for baled hay. A feature of the local egg market was the stronger feeling for storage supplies with prices up 1c to 3c per dozen. There are more potatoes in growers hands and fewer in storage this year than last and this is largely due to heavy to the speculators and grocers who held potatoes over the winter. Butter prices were up 3/4c to 1c per lb. The undertone of the cheese market is strong.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, December 19. Canadian Press. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Demand, 4.6715.
Cables, 4.6740.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, December 19. Canadian Press. — Receipts 1540 cattle and calves; 1720 hogs and 540 sheep and lambs.

Trading on the cattle market was generally dull and lifeless.

There was an exceptionally poor enquiry for all classes and grades with prospects for a further decline in prices over the close of last week.

The hog market opened with a slighter firmer tone, packers bidding $8.90 for thick smooths and $9.79 for select bacon.

Sheep and lambs were in poor request. Good lambs were paid from $9 to $9.50 with good light killing sheep weighing up to 550.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, December 19. Canadian Press. — Some fresh are reported being shipped from Ontario points to Montreal 70c f.o.b. Ontario dealers are paying 45c to 50 making sales of fresh 60c, fresh gathered 46 to 48c f.o.b. One sale of storage firsts reported 47 f.o.b. country. The market situation generally is unchanged.

A large quantity of dressed turkeys it is reported have been purchased by the American buyers at 47c f.o.b. Toronto. The tendency is for the poultry market to keep pretty steady although the arrivals are much heavier.

Toronto fresh receipts increasing, jobbing prices unchanged.

Montreal firm, specials 80 to 85c, storage extras 45 to 46; firsts 40 to 41c. Dressed turkeys 45 to 48c.

Winnipeg storage extras jobbing, 40c; firsts 35c; seconds, 31. Poultry receipts heavy, turkeys live 16c; dressed 22c.

Regina storage extras jobbing 42, seconds 35c.

Edmonton storage extras jobbing 42c, firsts 35c. Turkey market weak, due to over-supply, dealers paying country shippers 23c dressed, 18c live.

Calgary relying on shipments from British Columbia for fresh packers paying $13.50 per case delivered Calgary.

British Columbia local fresh easy, paying country points 48 with 50c offered for specials. Jobbing specials 57, firsts 55; pullets 40, local storage firsts 35c, seconds 40c.

Chicago, fresh easier, 50c to 52c; refrigerators unchanged.

New York fresh easier, extra firsts 56 to 58; firsst 53 to 55; henery 64 to 65; refrigerators 31 to 33.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, December 19. — Canadian Press. — Renewal of crop damage fears as a result of the cold wave led to soaring prices in the wheat market yesterday. Closing quotations were unsettled 1 7-8 to 3 3-8c net higher, with May $1.25 1-8 to $1.25 1/4, and July $1.16 1-8 to 1.16 1-4. Corn gained 1 1-4 to 1 1/4, oats 3-8 to 3-4 and 7-8, and provisions 10 to 35c.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, December 19. KEEN INTEREST IN CITY AFFAIRS

dition to the present building in order to give the necessary technical education to many of the adolescent pupils.

Mrs. Morris said she had spent a great deal of time and work on this subject and had found that the facts of the situation could be easily determined. She had not only interviewed the heads of the departments in question in Toronto, but had visited technical schools and combination schools in various parts of the country.

Under the present High School system, she said, did not give the same service to all classes, though all classes must pay for it. The remedy for this situation was the establishment of technical schools or of combination high and technical schools which would give an equal opportunity to all. When the need arose in Peterboro for room in the high schools she had strongly advocated the building of a school for training in the basic trades and no arguments had yet been raised which had sufficient reason to cause her to change her mind.

The best course that could be pursued in this matter would be the building of a High School extension because the building of a separate building for a technical school would entail the construction on many unnecessary duplicate facilities as gymnasiums, assembly rooms, rest rooms, lavatories, etc. These rooms would be absolutely required by the government in both buildings if built separately but if an addition was built to the present school the rooms now in use could be made to do for both.

In the course of her investigation of the matter she had visited Sarnia where a combination school is serving the needs of the community. The results here had shown the necessity of providing some means of teaching the fundamentals of the trade and commercial vocations. Of the new pupils at Sarnia this year 191 had entered for the commercial and trades courses while 123 had entered for the regular high school course leading to junior or senior matriculation or to normal school work.

In reply to a question from the floor she said that the government grant would be about one-third of the cost of the proposed building and would amount to $140,000 if the plans for a $310,000 extension were followed out. This building she said would give almost twice the accommodation as a separate building costing $95,000 less and in addition would provide all the facilities for technical training.

Favors Technical Education

J. W. Worth stated that he was most emphatically in favor of technical education and wanted to see such education given in the most economical way. He was also in favor of a combined school but said he wanted to know the cost first for to go at the thing blindly would only result in another "white elephant" being burdened on the city. He told of his inspection of the technical school at Niagara Falls where he said, they have found the solution of the difficulty arising from certain classes of pupils who find that their capabilities are not sufficient to carry them through the collegiate course. These pupils had been placed in the technical school and the result had been success from the start.

He showed that Peterboro must live up to the Adolescent Act. But to send these young people back to school now meant that they only had to repeat the last two years' work where with some facilities for technical education they could be given a good grounding in the fundamentals of a trade and when the people had become educated to the true value of the technical education this education would in all probability be counted on the apprentice time.

He blamed the Hunter Street bridge for the trouble in having the necessary by-laws passed to make needed improvements in the educational system. He stated that he is a strong advocate of economy in these matters but the economy must not be so penurious as to destroy the educational system. Unless some technical education is provided the children of the laboring man will not be getting as good a chance as the children of the richer people and he said he was on the board to look after the welfare of every man's child regardless of whether he was rich or poor and to give each an equal chance.

The Power Question

R. R. Hall was the next speaker to take the floor and presented a good case in his appeal for an investigation by unbiased engineers into the possibilities of cheaper power development for the city.

Referring for the moment to Hydro-Electric Commission's Price to Peterboro of $22.50 a horse power Mr. Hall asked how long this price was likely to continue, or was the time coming when it would be increased. The Commission's reports did not show what such places as Oshawa, Port Hope and Belleville paid, but it did show that many towns were charged much in excess of Peterboro. Picton for instance had to pay $64 per h.p. as against Peterboro's $22.50. Was the equalizing and levelling process to go on upward toward the Picton level?

"What I wish to point out is that we are right in the market now for 4,600 h.p. for which the city is paying the Hydro $22.50 per h.p. Can we get power ourselves and get it cheaper? We have near the city dams Nos. 4 and 5. I was connected with dam No. 5 twenty years ago, and I know what it cost to develop. We delivered in Peterboro at less than $10 per h.p. power which we developed and delivered right to the consumers in Peterboro."

Plans Available

Mr. Hall said that if these two dams were secured by the city today and developed under one head power could be sold at the switchboard at about $10. At present the city was paying not only $22.50 to the Hydro for power but the consumers were also charged with an additional $15.30 per h.p. for distribution. The necessary survey for the development of dams Nos. 4 and 5 under one head had been prepared by Mr. Henry Holgate showing that a head of about 26 feet was available. Mr. Holgate still had this data in his office, and all his estimates needed was revision to bring them up to date in regard to the cost of excavation. The total estimated cost to the local company at that time was $250,000, but owing to the financial situation that arose in 1907 the project was postponed.

Benefit Navigation

If the City Council now made application for a report on the scheme the Department of Railways and Canals would insist on the head race being built on the east side of the river and incorporated into the canal system, eliminating one lock and thereby improving conditions of navigation between Peterboro and Lakefield. Dams Nos. 4 and 5 could be developed under one head by the Government building this stretch of the canal, and the city would then have the power to harness close to the river, with the excavations for the power house and wheel pits on dry ground, and a rock foundation immediately at hand. Mr. Hall said that in his judgment the expenditure of $250,000 in that work would provide the city with power at $10 per h.p. He calculated that with the minimum flow of the river 2,600 h.p. would be produced, but during eight months of the year there would be sufficient water to develop 4,500 h.p.

"When I mention $10 per h.p. I mean that would be the cost on the minimum flow of the river, the extra power would be so much to the good. If we got 1,500 h.p. extra for eight months of the year we would be that much to the good," Mr. Hall pointed out.

Burleigh's Resources

Continuing, he said that at Burleigh Falls there was an available head of 26 feet, and if that dam was raised to drown out Lovesick Lock the head would be 30 feet giving at least 2,600 h.p. "My information is that the minimum flow at dams 4 and 5 is greater than at Burleigh Falls and would thereby offset the greater head at Burleigh. If we can develop Burleigh for $250,000 we should say to the Dominion Government cut out another lock in the canal for the benefit of navigation and for the development of the power resources at that point."

Mr. Hall said that Mr. Robert Stuart of the Quaker Oats Company had told him on many occasions that as soon as the Trent Canal was completed his company would put on a line of barges from Georgian Bay. The first time he had declared that purpose was twenty years ago, and Mr. Stuart had repeated it on his many visits to Peterboro since that time. Mr. Hall contended that it was in the interests of navigation for the canal to be equipped in the best way possible in order that it might be fully utilized for water transportation. The Government had spent twelve million dollars on the construction of the canal up to the present, and was it now to be penny wise and pound foolish.

"We should say to the Dominion Government 'raise the dam at Burleigh Falls and lease the power to the people of Peterboro on fair terms.' If they will not give that to us then the Dominion Government is sitting on assets and resources we should enjoy, and it would be for us to say that the Dominion Government are not required on that job. They ought to lease that power to us on the same rates as to private enterprises. They have no right to block this city, I believe we could get a lease from the Hon. W. C. Kennedy on favorable terms, and would have power at $10 per h.p. that would save us $50,000 a year."

Mr. Hall remarked that it might be said he was out on his estimates. "Suppose I am out $50,000 on Henry Holgate's estimates. At six per cent that is only $3,000 year interest. If we had 5,200 h.p. that would mean an increase in the charge of only 55 cents per h.p.; but we are not hesitating to pay the difference between $10 and $22.50 a horse power. And if I am out even $100,000 the difference would only be $1.10 a horse power, and would get us power at $12 per h.p. Isn't the difference between $12 and $22.50 a horse power worth saving?"

Should Investigate

"My position is that it would pay the city to investigate and to spend some money in having a report from a competent engineer. We have competent engineers in Peterboro and I would just as soon trust one of our own engineers as an outsider. But we don't want advice from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission or the Ontario Government, because we don't want advice fromthose who would sell to us. The Government bought the Central Ontario system for $8,350,000 and they have spent more than $2,000,000 on it. They have $11,000,000 invested in the Hydro power enterprises with gas plants, a pulp mill and other things. They have $168,000 on the wrong side of the balance sheet, and in 1921 they lost $41,000. We don't want that white elephant loaded on the city; it is too expensive an animal to keep.

Impartial Opinion

"Get independent, separate advice from an engineer who has no interest in the matter and would give us an impartial opinion. Have an engineer here on the ground, and tell us that cost of these developments under existing conditions. Electric machinery and hydraulic machinery are manufactured by companies that would be in a position to give us a close price. But don't engage an engineer to do everything as was done with the Hunter Street bridge, and before a single document is signed, know what the cost will be."

Council's Responsibility

Mr. Hall argued that for any additional needs there was power at Dam No. 2 at Lakefield and also the Auburn dam which he said, legitimately belonged to Peterboro, "and to the system we might take over." He said that it should be the first duty of the incoming Council to start an investigation, and not leave it to the Utilities Commission because they were particularly interested in the administration of the affairs of the local distribution system. The chief responsibility must rest on the City Council because they represent all the people in embarking on a matter of this kind.

A Plain Question

"I am not here to criticise what has been done by any Council. It is not a matter of finding fault with what has been done by other people in the past. The question for us is "are we going to find out what can be done with these powers I have mentioned"."

Mr. Hall said he was satisfied the Government would accede to the city's application, and put no legal difficulties in the way. He saw no difficulty whatever in the Council obtaining a lease on favorable terms. If legal quibbles arose in regard to securing a release from any obligation to the Hydro-Electric Commission that could be dealt with when the time came.

with the prompt reply: "Don't refer to me to endorse your statements, because you are absolutely wrong in many of the things you are saying."

Mr. Hicks stated that the cost of power to Peterboro had been in the past year about $100,000. If the city could make the saving that Mr. Hall claimed they would have $50,000 saved, but against this there would also be the following charges: salaries for three operators in each of the two power houses necessary, $9,000; salary for one superintendent, $2,500; water rentals, $10,000; maintenance on five generators, $5,000; a total of $26,500 for operating expenses. This would leave $23,500 of the saving but this would have to be used to cover the twelve and a half per cent of the original cost which is the accepted percentage needed to allow for interest, sinking fund and obsolescence. It was here that he turned to Mr. Hall for verification of his figures.

In closing he said that if power could be obtained at the figure Mr. Hall suggested he was sure the Hydro Commission would be only too glad to develop at that price.

Mayor's Remarks

Mayor Taylor who had arrived from the council meeting during Mr. Hicks' address was asked to speak and told briefly how the taxes of the city were expended. Of the $700,000 which the city collects annually in taxes the council has but 29 per cent at its disposal the remainder being distributed among the various spending bodies of the city. These departments had reported a considerable saving in nearly every case this year and the end of the year would find the city with a good balance on hand. The debentures of the city had been increased only $20,000 and the sinking fund had been raised to $130,000. Careful management, he said, for the next year or two would put the city on a sound financial footing.

Other members of the city council also spoke briefly.

The chairman in a short talk said that the object of the organization was to cooperate with the city council in every way and to do everything in its power to bring about the betterment of the city. The power question as outlined by Mr. Hall had been before the public for some time but so far the city council had done nothing. Alderman Hamilton took exception to this statement saying that the utilities commission had been requested to obtain all information possible on the question and when that was available it would be immediately presented to the council for its consideration and action.

Alderman Hamilton also moved a resolution that the association should endorse the project to purchase Armour's Hill for a park at $3,000. The purchase was strongly supported by Thomas Tooms, M.P.P., who pointed out that an excellent opportunity existed for the construction of a toboggan slide which could be made to pay the upkeep, and even perhaps the cost price of the whole property. The resolution was passed though it met with some opposition, it being suggested that the money could be used to better advantage in fixing up the west bank of the river in the vicinity of the Hunter Street bridge, this locality being described as "a hole."

In order to bring the power question to a head it was moved by R. R. Hall that the new city council be recommended to engage competent and disinterested engineers to investigate and report on the cost of developing dams 4 and 5 under one head and developing Burleigh Falls at a 30-foot head, by drowning out Lovesick Lock, provided the Dominion government bear the expense of that portion of the construction at Burleigh Falls and the canal improvements at Dams 4 and 5.

An alternative motion that the incoming mayor be requested to invite Sir Adam Beck and any others interested to attend a public meeting to be held in Peterboro and discuss the whole question with Mr. Hall, was presented by J. W. Worth. Mr. Hall immediately withdrew his motion and seconded Mr. Worth's on a vote being taken it was carried unanimously.

TEAM TOOK FRIGHT DASHED INTO A CAR.

Deposited Load of Christmas Trees at Bond's Drug Store.

Last evening at 5 o'clock a livery team from Stan Blwett's livery stable took fright when coming down George street, at the corner of Brock, and bolted down George street, made a fast run west on Hunter street. tA the corner of George and Hunter the rig's entire load of Christmas trees was deposited at the side of Bond's drug store, and the horses continued their flight with increased speed westward on Hunter street. Near the bridge over the creek the team clashed into a small touring car which occupied the centre of the road, and vainly tried to plunge over its top. This halted their mad rush.

The horses were slightly hurt after their escapade and the sleigh little damaged, but the car suffered broken wind shield and top.

The motor car was owned by M. Fair, a farmer in Cavan.

THLETE MUST HAVE THE WALLOP TO GET INTO THE SPOTLIGHT

In any sport the athlete with the wallop gets the spotlight.

The ball player who can hit home runs, the boxer who can knock his opponent cold, the golfer who can drive 'em a mile gets the hero worship.

Babe Ruth almost overnight became the baseball idol of the country, simply because he could hit the ball farther than any one else playing the game.

No diamond hero ever reached greater heights than Ruth. Incidentally, unless Rambino starts hitting home runs again next season, Humpty Dumpty he is due for a fall. Fandom is fickle.

[illegible] dor. [illegible] was ever a more colorful fighter than Stanley Ketchel. I saw him in a number of his best fights and never failed to get a thrill. Ketchel was a real fighter, yet the possessor of much cleverness.

The boxing game has too few such champions. In these modern days the idea is to waltz through a bout and do as little real fighting as possible. In other words, "bunk" the public.

Recently I saw in action in Detroit a youngster by the name of Bob Sage, who reminded me in many ways of the late Stanley Ketchel. It wouldn't surprise me if within a year or two this fellow Sage would be a prominent figure in pugilistic circles.

Sage is a student at the University of Detroit. By the way, the University of Detroit is some pumpkins from an athletic standpoint. Recently the football eleven representing that institution surprised the football experts by its decisive defeat of Washington and Jefferson.

Likes Boxing as Sport.

Sage is a middleweight built along the lines of Ketchel. He is a fine looking chap, and so far has managed to retain his pulchritude despite a number of hard battles. Like Ketchel, Sage can hit. Like Ketchel Sage really enjoys the fight game.

In football the best players are the fellows who really enjoy the strenuous pastime. In baseball, the fellow who plays for the love of the game is the player who does big things The same holds good in boxing.

Sage isn't known very widely, his reputation is largely confined to the middle west, but I miss my guess unless he soon becomes a national figure in the boxing game.

I sincerely hope he does because he is the type that uplifts the sport. He is a college student and looks the part. Incidentally, he is a real fighter.

BASKET BALL QUIZ BY REFEREE

OUT OF BOUNDS

How do the officials determine who shall get the ball when it goes out of bounds?

The ball is caused to go out of bounds by the last player touched by it before it crosses the line. It becomes the property of the opposing team at the point it went out of bounds and shall be put in play at that point.

HELD BALL.

How is a held ball determined?

A held ball is a matter of opinion on the part of the official. A ball is regarded as held when two players of opposing teams have one or both hands on the ball and are fighting for possession of same, or when one closely guarded player is withholding the ball from play .

TAKEN OUT

If a player is taken out of the game can he again be sent back into the lineup?

If a player has left the game except for disqualification for four personal fouls or for other disqualifications, he may re-enter the game once.

OVER LINE

Is a player out of bounds if one foot is over the line but the rest of his body inside the court?

A player is out of bounds when any part of his body touches the boundary line or the floor outside the boundary line.

POSITION

What position is proper for players to take when the ball is put in play by a toss other than in the centre?

When the referee puts the ball in play by a toss-up between two players other than center, the players shall assume the same position in relation to each other as when jumping in the center. One of the hands must be in contact with the middle of the small of the back.

OLD B. B. STARS HOLD THEIR OWN

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(United Press).—Young players are coming along fast as batters in the major leagues and veteran pitching arms are beginning to crack, but the old fixtures around the bases and in the outfield continue to set the fielding pace.

Take the three leading outfielders of the American League for instance —Tris Speaker, Bobby Veach and Ty Cobb.

The leading first baseman—Joe Judge and Stuffy McInnis.

The leading second baseman—Eddie Collins.

The leading shortstop—Everett Scott.

The leading catchers—Ray Schalk and Hank Severeid.

The best fielding pitchers—Walter Johnson and Joe Bush.

* * * * * *

Age held its own just the same in the National League during the past season. The averages of 1922 show as the fielding leaders the following:

First base—Jake Daubert.

Second base—Hornsby.

Shortstop—Hollocher.

Third base—Heinie Groh.

Outfield—Wheat, Powell and Meusel.

Pitcher—Alec the Great.

and ten points in the American League.

Figuring misplays among the number of chances is not the most accurate way to judge the ability of a player. Unless an error has a vital result on the outcome of the game, it should not be figured in the averages.

Some, classed as average players, will not exert themselves to go after a real hard chance and others go after everything, taking a chance on an error.

Veteran players, because they are slower of limb and less ambitious, do not take the chances that youngsters do, and the averages show it. Fielding averages are misleading at the best. George Sisler was eighth on the list of first basemen and he made seventeen errors during the season. Joe Judge was first on the list. He went through the season with only six errors.

As a fielding first baseman, regardless of batting, which one would you pick for your team?

* * * * * *

Importance of the inner defense in baseball is shown in the averages of the New York Yanks, who finished first in the American League with a percentage of .975. It was due to the individual brilliance of Pipp, Ward, Scott and Dugan, the infield. The Yankee outfield's only distinction was that it was about the worst in the league.

* * * * * *

With a million dollar infield and a diamond studded outfield, the New York Giants just squeezed in as the fielding champs of the National League. The Pittsburgh Pirates were second by two-ten thousandths.

* * * * * *

The outstanding young player of the year was "Butch" Henline, the young Philadelphia catcher, who led the league behind the bat. It must be admitted that the National League is in a bad way for catchers, but Henline would have held his own with Schalk, O'Neil, Perkins, Schang or the other stars of the American League.

* * * * * *

When it comes to fielding there isn't a great difference between the ability of the individual clubs and the two leagues. Fielding long ago reached a stage of almost perfecton and it is steadily being maintained. Nine percentage points separated the eight clubs in the National League

TOMMY GIBBONS WANTS DEMPSEY

Clever, Elusive Minnesotan Is After a Crack at the Champion.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19. — Tex Rickard said today he had received word from Tommy Gibbons' manager asking for a fight with Jack Dempsey. and that in good time he would take some action. Asked whether he thought the fight would be worth while, Rickard was non-commital, as a shrewd promoter naturally would be before the time has come to talk money to the two principals. But there is no doubt that Tex would like to hook the two men up and would pay good money for the privilege.

Dempsey would get most of it, of course. Gibbons, contrary to the attitude of some contenders, is not asking a present of the Philadelphia mint in return for meeting Dempsey. In fact, his financial desires are modest. So far as the challenger is concerned Rickard will find no obstacle at all in the way of the match. The present situation has arisen as a result of Tommy's victory over his fellow-citizen, Billy Miske, the other night. Anyone that can pound Miske the way Gibbons did, even granting that Billy has begun to slip back to his 1920 form, has a claim to battle for high heavyweight honors.

As for the champion it is time his manager ceased to buzz around with Jess Willard. In Tommy Gibbons he can find a young contender who has, all things considered, a magnificent record. The very fact that Jack Kearns has given all advances from the Gibbons' ranks the cold and glassy stare, indicates that neither he nor his meal ticket is too greatly stuck upon the idea of mixing up with the Minnesotan. Why not? Well, Tommy is clever as Houdini and elusive as a ghost. And besides, he can hit.

It would not be a great miracle were Gibbons to avoid the champion's most crushing wallops in a twelve-round bout, and at the same time administer a lot of punishment to Jack. Probably this would not happen but the chance that it might would fill a big arena.

MARITIMES TALK OF PRO. HOCKEY LEAGUE

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 19.—Negotiations looking to the formation of a hockey league were commenced between Cape Breton and the mainland over the week-end.

Th proposal is for a four-team league to include New Glasgow, Stellerton, Glace Bay and Sydney. At the same time an effort is being made to organize another league consisting of Moncton, Amherst, Springhill and possibly Truro, the winners in these leagues to play-off at the end of the season for the professional championship of the Maritime provinces.

ROBT. HICKS SKIP AGAINST THE SCOTS

Will Be One of Those to Represent Ontario in Test Match at Granite Rink in Toronto.

Skips to represent Ontario in the test match with the Scottish curlers in the Granite rink, Toronto, on January 23, are:

Tom Rennie, Toronto, representing the O.C.A.; R. Hicks, Peterborough, 1921 Canadian team; P. H. Douglas, tankard winner 1922; H. R. Moffat, Owen Sound, Governor-General's prize winner 1922; Dr. V. H. McWilliams, Toronto Granites, District Cup winner 1922, and R. Wray, Belleville, Eastern Ontario.

President Cunningham of the O. C. A. made the selection of the rink to represent the O.C.A., and named Tom Rennie, skip; Larry O'Connor, vice-skip; himself as second, and First Vice-President W. H. Wright, Owen Sound, as lead.

The other five skips appointed will choose their own rinks.

RUMOR VERIFIED.

The following regarding Tyson's move to Oshawa was clipped from the Port Hope Guide:

"The story of the big celebration with bands and cheering crowds upon the occasion of Al. Tyson arriving in Oshawa was not true. In fact, Al. came in so quietly that his presence in Oshawa was not known for several days later. Our proof is provided by the following paragraph of innocence from the Oshawa Reformer: 'The Port Hope Guide handed out the tip that Catcher Al. Tyson of the Cobourg Baseball Club had located in Oshawa. This statement was verified last night when Al. showed up at a meeting of the Athletic Association. On being questioned as to his intentions of remaining in Oshawa, he stated that he had secured a position here and would make his home in this city.'"

OTTAWA SENATORS TO OPEN TO-MORROW.

OTTAWA, Dec. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—The Ottawa Senators will open the local professional hockey season here Wednesday night when they meet the Toronto St. Patricks, Stanley Cup holders. Their Excellencies the Governor General and Lady Byng of Vimy have extended their patronage to the local games and will be present. It is likely that Lord Byng, who is an enthusiastic fan, will face the puck in the opener.

The locals will have a chance to climb back into the running on Wednesday night, and Petie Green, strategist of the Ottawa crew, is confident that his charges will defeat the Stanley Cup holders here. The Senators held a private practice to-day and will hold another tomorrow night to round them off for their encounter with the Queen City team.

Diamond Rings for The Diamond Champs

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—The New York Giants yesterday selected diamond rings as emblems of their 1922 baseball championship, and forwarded the approved design to Leslie O'Connor, Secretary to Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Last year the Giants received diamond studded watch fobs from Commissioner Landis for their victory in the world's series.

OFFERED BIG PURSE FOR WOMEN BOXERS

Tex Rickard Offered the Biggest Sum Ever Put Up in German Fight Circles.

By GUS M. OEHM
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—Tex Rickard offered the biggest purse ever put up in German fight circles and for women boxers.

Rickard, through his European manager, Leon Britton, supplied this purse—one million marks—for the winner of the international boxing matches in the Palais der Friedrichstadt here.

This purse—though the smallest dollar purse ever put up by the Madison Square promoter—was twice as large as the purse offered recently in the Sampson-Breitenstrater championship match. When the American Sampson defeated the heavyweight champion of Germany he received only half a million marks, much of which was offered by fans in the audience. Georges Carpentier, a spectator of the downfall of Breitenstrater, gave 200,000 marks to his former sparring partner, Sampson.

The million mark purse offered for the ladies' bout by Rickard cost him about $150. The lady boxers of the famous Fischer troup gave preliminary exhibitions before the main match between "Lady" Fischer, the German leader of the troupe' and "Fraudein" Kuehn, a promising pugess from Hamburg. The bout lasted ten rounds and was fought with six-ounce gloves.

German fans are showing great interest in the famale bouts being staged at various cabarets about the city.

TWO NEW PITCHERS FOR TORONTO CLUB

Manager Howley Reports the Acquisition of Collins and Lynch — O'Rourke Not Leaf.

TORONTO, Dec. 19.— Manager Dan Howley of the Toronto Club, reported the signing of two more pitchers yesterday morning for the Leafs. They are semi-pro's with good records in indepedent ranks. Richard Collins, of Salem, Mass., is a righthander, who won twenty or more games in and around Boston last year, while Fred Lynch, the other hurler, starred in New Jersey. He is also a righthander, six feet two in height and twenty-two years of age. Lynch, last summer outpitched Carroll the Holy Cross star signed by Detroit, on three occasions, twice two to nothing and once three to two. H was recommended to Manager Howley by Bill Doyle, scout of the Tigers.

Mr. Howley is expecting word every day now that the Detroit club has secured waivers on a catcher and an outfielder who are booked for Toronto. There is little chance that Frank O'Rourke will come to the Leafs. Four other major league clubs are bidding for him now. St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia Nationals and the Yankees.

BOUT CANCELLED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—Promoters yesterday cancelled arrangements for a bantamweight championship contest between Joe Lynch, title-holder, and Midget Smith, at Madison Square Garden next Friday evening after being notified that the New York State Commission had upheld the New Jersey Boxing Commission's suspension of Smith.

It was announced that as a substitute for the Lynch-Smith bout, a 12-round match has been arranged between Johnny Dundee, of New York, and Joe Tiplitz of Philadelphia, lightweights.

Drives Golf Ball Into His Sweater Pocket

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 19.—All the complicated plays in sport are not confined to the diamond and gridiron—golf has its share.

In a recent match played at the Willowick Club of this city, Harry Moore pulled a freak play that isn't definitely covered in the book.

Playing out of a sand trap, Moore, who is a left-handed golfer, drove the ball into the nearby bunker. Striking the bunker, the ball took a reverse English and settled into the right pocket of the sweater which Moore was wearing, the weather being a trifle cool.

The match was for blood and Moore's opponent insisted that the ball must be p[illegible] lies. Moore, of course, insisted such a thing was impossible. His opponent good-naturedly insisted there was nothing to prevent him from removing his sweater, placing it on the ground, and driving the ball out of the pocket.

The contest was halted while Deke White, the club professional, was summoned. He ruled that Moore had the right to drop the ball back and take a stroke penalty, because of an unplayable lie.

Unquestionably the play is without precedent. None of the Cleveland professionals said they ever heard of such [illegible] thing as a ball set[illegible] in the [illegible] et of the sweater of [illegible] the driv[illegible]

MORE SUPPORT IS GIVEN P.A.A.A.

Memberships Are Renewed and Work of Association is Encouraged.

A number of the memberships secured for the Peterborough A.A.A. in the membership drive now underway, are acknowledged herewith. Many are renewals. Members of the medical profession who were keen to support the Association a year ago, are back again, and they are showing increased interest in the work being carried on.

The membership committees are finding difficulty in getting sufficient time to carry on the campaign but nevertheless the reports are very satisfactory. The work of the Association appears to be popular with the public and the campaigners are being well received.

Lists of new members will be published regularly from now on until the close of the campaign.

MIKE VOLP TO BOX MILLARD.

Pair Who Featured the Toronto Tourney Will Meet Here.

Mike Volp, the clever St. Helen's boxer, who was outpointed by Raymond Millard, the local entry, in the tournament at Toronto last week, may come here at an early date for a bout with Millard. This pair furnished the most interesting battle of the first night's draw at the Toronto show, and Wilfred Jones says the youngsters were given a big reception by the crowd. Millard's victory was unexpected, as Volp is up among the top-notchers of his class, and he had previously defeated Davidson, who won the final on the second night of the tourney. Millard damaged a thumb and although the swelling was reduced, and he was willing to go on with the semi-finals, doctor's orders forced him to default.

Lorne Combe was unfortunate in that he was drawn against Walter Newton, who, as boxing fans know, is a title holder and has had a long experience in the ring. Newton proved himself a good sportsman throughout the bout, and Combe made it interesting all the way.

Domestic consumption of gasoline in one month last summer was nearly 600,000,000 gallons.

JACK THIRNBECK, FOREMAN, PRESENTED WITH CHAIRS

Members of Construction Work on Romaine St. Make Presentation on Saturday Night.

On Saturday evening, as Mr. John Thirnbeck was enjoying a little rest at his home after the day's labors, he was favored with a visit from the men under him working on the Romaine Street sewer construction, of which he is foreman, and presented him with a pair of most comfortable chairs, as an appreciation of their feelings towards him as their foreman.

Mr. Thirnbeck, as foreman in charge under Engineer R. H. Parsons, has completed what looks to be a first-class job on the Romaine Street construction, and, it is understood, well within the estimates provided for this work. Mr. Thirnbeck has been on a number of important jobs; the outfall sewer and other work and the Romaine Street construction is not the least of them.

The members of Mr. Thirnbeck's workmen which were present wished him the compliments of the season, and hoped that he would long live to enjoy the chairs presented to him.

TO FORM JUNIOR HOCKEY SERIES.

Meeting on Wednesday Night to Hear From Clubs Interested.

It takes the icicles to put pep into the followers of the great winter game, and the cold wave is creating a lot of excitement among the junior hockey players. A meeting has been called for Wednesday night at the Chamber of Commerce to bring the junior clubs together for the purpose of discussing the formation of a Junior City League. Senior clubs are not toeing the mark, only two clubs being ready to take to the ice. They are the Canadian Generals and Raybestos. The senior series will likely be held up, waiting developments in the O.H.A. camp.

Junior clubs wishing to enter a junior series, the games of which would be played at Brock Street Rink, are requested to send representatives to the meeting on Wednesday night.

PHYSICAL DISEASES EASIER TO CURE THAN MENTAL SAYS COUE

Contrary to General Opinion, Suggestion or Auto-Suggestion Can Bring About Cure of Organic Lesions.

"Contrary to general opinion, suggestion, or autosuggestion can bring about the cure of organic lesions.

"Formerly it was believed that hypnotism could be applied only to the treatment of nervous illnesses; its domain is far greater than that. It is true that hypnotism acts through the intermediary or the nervous system; but the nervous system dominates the whole organism. The muscles are set in movement by the nerves; the nerves regulate action on the heart, and by their action o nthe heart, and by their action on the blood vessels which they dilate or contract.

"The nerves act then on all the organs and by their intermediation all the unhealthy organs may be affected—"Doctor Paul Joire." President of the Societe universelle d'Etudes psychiques.

By Dr. Emile Coue.

Many people who have been treating some sort of ailment all their lives, in vain, imagine that they can or should be immediately cured by autosuggestion .

This is a mistake; it is not reasonable to think so. It is no use expecting from suggestion more than it can normally produce—that is to say, a progressive improvement which little by little transforms itself into a complete cure, when that is possible

Every illness has two aspects unless it is exclusively a mental one. Indeed, on every physical illness a mental one comes and attaches itself.

If we give to the physical illness the coefficient 1, the mental illness may have the coefficient 1, 2, 10, 20, 50, 100, even greater. In many cases the mental illness can be made to disappear instantaneously, and if its coefficient is a very high one—100 for instance—while that of the physical ailment is 1, ony this latter is left, a 101st part of the total illness! Such a thing is called a miracle, and yet there is nothing miraculous about it .

Contrary to common opinion, physical diseases are generally far more easily cured than mental ones.

In order to understand properly the part played by suggestion, or rather by autosuggestion, it is enough to know that the Unconscious Self is the grand director of all our functions.

Make it believed, as I said in a preceding article, that a certain organ, which does not function well, must perform its function, and instantly the order is transmitted. The organ obeys with docility, and either at once or little by little performs its functions in a normal manner.

This explains simply and clearly how by means of suggestion one can stop hemorrhages, cause fibrous tumors to disappear, cure paralysis, tubercular lesions, etc.

Striking Concrete Example.

Let us take for example, a case of dental hemorrhage which I had the opportunity of observing in the consulting room of M. Gauthe, a dentist at Troyes. A young lady whom I had helped to cure herself of asthma, from which she had suffered for eight years, told me one day that she wanted to have a tooth out.

As I knew her to be very sensitive, I offered to make her feel nothing of the operation. She naturally accepted with pleasure and we made an appointment with the dentist.

On the day we had arranged we presented ourselves at the dentists's and, standing opposite my patient, I looked fixedly at her, saying:

"You feel nothing, you feel nothin, etc., etc.," and then while still continuing the suggestion I made a sign to the dentist.

In an instant the tooth was out without Mlle. D. suffering the slightest pain.

As fairly often happens, a hemorrhage followed, but I told the dentist that I would try suggestion without his using a haemostatic and without knowing, beforehand, what would happen.

I then asked Mlle. D. to look at me fixedly. I suggested to her that in two minutes the hemmorrhage would cease of its own accord, and

The patient spat blood again once or twice ,and then ceased. I told her to open her mouth, and we both looked and found that a clot of blood had formed in the dental cavity.

How is this phenomenon to be explained? In the simplest way. Under the influence of the ideas. "The hemorrhage is to stop," the Unconscious had sent to the small arteries and veins the order to stop the flow of blood, and, obediently, they contracted naturally, as they would have done artificially at the contact of a hemostatic like adrenalin, for example.

The same reasoning explains how a fibrous tumor can be made to disappear. The Unconscious, having accepted the idea "It is to go" the brain orders the arteries, which nourish it, to contract. They do so, refusing their services, and ceasing to nourish the tumor which, deprived of nourishment, dies, dries up, is reabsorbed and disappears.

Let me cite now a case where the patient's ailment had an additional obstacle to suggestion treatment in its visual obviousness—a case of club feet:

Case No. 6.

T..... Maurice, aged 8 and a half, at Nancy; club feet. A first operation, cures or nearly so, the left foot, while the right one still remains crippled. Two subsequent operations do no good. The child is brought to me, for the first time in February, 1915; he walks pretty well, thanks to two contrivances which hold his feet straight. The first visit is followed by an immediate improvement, and after the second, the child is quite well. The right foot however is not quite so strong as it was, owing to a sprain which he gave it in February, 1916.

How a Child Kleptomaniac Was Cured by Suggestion is Described in Dr. Coue's next article.

THE HEROISM OF BILLY GOW

Fireman of Wrecked "Reliance" Swam Ashore With Rope to Save Party

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press). — Over wireless comes the story of the remarkable heroism on the party of Billy Gow, fireman of the tug Reliance, who, four days after the boat had grounded, volunteered to swim ashore with a rope and enable the party to make their way to the mainland. All boats except the first one let down had been lost, and the tug had been tossed about for four days until it was about 75 yards from the shore of Lizard Island. Gow then plunged into the icy water with a rope tied around his body, and after a terrific struggle, in what seemed a hopeless effort, and certain to end in death for the plucky fireman, he reached shore. Rafts were constructed from ice skiffs, and with Gow's aid, the crew and passengers on the tug were able to reach land.

Survivors were picked up yesterday by the tug Gray, but owing to a heavy sea it was found impossible to land them at Agawa. The tug was forced to take shelter at Gargantua for the night, and the survivors will be carried with the vessel on its trip to take off lighthouse keepers at Otter Head and Quebec Harbor, east end of Michipicoten Island, Caribou Island and Parisian Island.

STRANDED ON ROCKS.

WELLAND, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press)—The steamer "Thunder Bay" is still stranded on the rocks at Morgan's Point. There was such a heavy sea on Lake Erie yesterday that the work of lightening the vessel could not be proceeded with. The large tug "Sarnia City" is on her way from Detroit to the aid of the vessel. It was stated there was no danger of the vessel breaking up. The work of salvaging the cargo is going on to-day.

GOOD MANNERS.

Entertaining at dinner, the ideal hostess does her utmost to put any late arrival at ease.

Should the guest be a woman, the hostess rises from the table greets her cordially and conducts her to her place without mentioning the fact that she is late, and making light of her apologies. If it is a man, the hostess bows and smiles without rising.

In either case, she starts a conversation immediately to draw attention from the newcomer's tardiness.

THEATRES

Capitol Entertainment

The scenes are excellent, the various views showing glimpses of southern seas, calm in the sunshine or foam-crested in storm. The story is interesting, being the film version of Stevenson's novel, and all the cast in "Ebb Tide," the picture being presented at the Capitol for the first half of this week, are well-known stars. These include Noah Berry, Lila Lee, who plays the leading feminine role, James Kirkwood, Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett and Jacqueline Logan. The character portrayed by Noah Berry, who has the heavy part, is a study. It shows how the fanatic, who has a morbid idea of religion, may easily be betrayed into what are really deeds of evil. Berry imagines that he holds a mission from on high to work vengeance on sinners as the instrument of the Almighty, and on his books all members of the human family, save himself, are listed as transgressors and dealt with accordingly. He discovers on the southern seas an island, which is rich in pearls. The only white persons on the island are Berry and his daughter, and the former rules his native workmen with all the cruelty that a dispositon, naturally harsh, and worked by fanaticism, can invent. A gravestone near his home carries an inscription which tells the grim tragedy of his life, "Here lie the bodies of a faithless wife and a man who called himself her husband's friend." Both had been victims of the insane jealousy of the man who slandered them even in death.

A new chapter in the history of the island begins when a schooner, blown out of its course in a heavy storm, comes to anchor off the island. Three of those on board, one of them a derelict who was formerly a man of promise in England, are invited on shore to dine with the pearl magnate. The daughter, who has never seen a white man except her father, at once falls in love with the Englishman, who for the first time in his career realizes that the world contains something worth while. Her elopement to the schooner with her lover, the accidental burning of the ship, and the death of her father in his attempt to rescue her, and her escape, provide thrill after thrill in the recital.

There is no addition to the feature picture, a graphic chapter of Pathe News and a laughable sketch entitled "The Old Sea Dog," the whole making one of the best programmes ever offered at the Capitol.

AT THE GRAND.

FAMOUS OPERAS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 19.—Consensus of opinion here is that the Dewolf Hopper Company, including Dewolf Hopper himself is the equal of, if not superior to the famous Doyly Carte Company. The Dewolf Hopper Company's presentations of the various Gilbert and Sullivan Operas are from the standpoint of production, and principals and ensemble, are far ahead of anything Canada has had in many many years. The company deserves absolute capacity attendance at the Grand Theatre, during their engagement in your city.

"FOND PARENTS" WEARY COURT.

Eagerness For Divorce Proves "Undying Love" For Children Twaddle, Says Judge.

DETROIT, DEC. 19.—Judge John H. Goff questioned in Circuit Court today the protestations of parental love by husbands and wives engaged in divorce suits. His comment was provoked by a dispute in his court room between Thomas R. Hughes, 2246 Second boulevard, and Mrs. Sophia Hughes, regarding the custody of their five children.

"Parents engaged in divorce proceedings continually declare undying love for their children, but when they face the necessity of some personal sacrifice for the sake of their children, their undying love usually turns out to be twaddle," Judge Goff said.

"When husbands and wives are willing to break up their homes for the sake of winning freedom from a marriage which irks them, I put little faith in their protestations of genuine love for their children."

Wards of Court.

Testimony in the Hughes suit, which was contested, charged that both husband and wife are not fit guardians for the five children, who all are wards of the court at present. Mary, 16 years old, and Dorothy, 14 years, appeared in court. When questioned by the judge, Mary chose to live with her father and Dorothy with her mother. Judge Goff took the custody of three younger boys under advisement. They now are in a charitable institution. The court withheld the decree until the future of the children was determined.

HOW TO MAKE CHEAP TOYS FOR THE KIDDIES

Any Number of Wonders Producable From Next to Nothing.

Any number of toys for children can be made for next to nothing. Mrs. Column Reader, if you are a bit handy, you will get many valuable suggestions for gifts from the letters in the household column, if you will watch for them. There will be also recipes for Christmas candies and cakes of many kinds so that it will be possible to have a nice Christmas at your home for a very small outlay of money.

First of all there are patterns to be purchased for animals and dolls that can be made of scraps from the rag bag, without the cost of a cent except for the pattern. Rag dolls also amuse children, and these can be made from the rag bag, too. Also stockings stuffed with cotton can be made into dolls, eyes being made of buttons with nose and mouth formed by a few stitches. Bunnies, elephants, cats and dogs can easily be made from flannelette, bits of velvet being used for ears, and buttons for eyes. Animals can also be fashioned from wool in the same way.

If you have been reading the household column you will noticethat many women are making gifts that cost little or nothing. One told of a toy for little children made from an empty molasses can. She put a few small stones in the can, fastened the top on firmly, punched holes in the sides for wire that was made into a loop. To this a heavy piece of wire was attched for a handle. This was painted bright red, and could be run on the floor making a tinkling noise that pleased the children, and yet was not too loud.

Doll furniture can be made from boxes. Orange boxes can be made very easily into go-carts, baby carjumpers and cradles. Dolls can be made also from men's socks. If you get the kind with white toes, heels and tops you can make a doll in a skating costume that will delight any small child. These are cut with arms and legs, the leg part of one sock forming a sweater with a white border. The foot makes the head, the heel the face, and the toe the top of the cap, the foot being brought down in a tuck to make a border for the cap. The other sock is made into arms, the legs and the lower part of the body, the first sock being brought down over it to form the sweater. A face is made with black stitches, and a toy that will give great pleasure can be made for the price of the socks and the cotton for stuffing it.

ROYAL

John Gilbert in The LOVE GAMBLER

TAMING HORSES LIKE TAMING WOMEN, IT'S ALL IN KNOWING HOW!

GILBERT'S WHISTLE TAMES GIRL AND HORSE IN PICTURE

Next to acting in Fox pictures, John Gilbert, star of "The Love Gambler" which is now playing at the Royal Theatre, likes to sing. And after that, he likes to whistle.

One of the incidents in "The Love Gambler" depends on the hero's ability to whistle successfully. That piece of business was not in the original seenario. But Gilbert would unconsciously start whistling when the big moments came, so that finally Joseph Franz, who directed the picture, got the idea of how he could take the picture and still have Gilbert acting naturally.

There are two big moments in the picture; one where Gilbert tames a wild horse, and one where he tames a girl. And he accomplishes both of these difficult tasks by whistling an old circus tune. Since the picture's showing in New York City, Gilbert is said to have been deluged with letters asking him for the air of the old song.

Also Mutt and Jeff, in "Golfing," 1 reel; Fox World News, 1 reel; a western drama, "Tracked to Earth," 2 reels; comedy, "Accidents will Happen," 1 reel; educational, "Portal of the Prairies" 1 reel; high-class Toonerville Comedy, "Fresh Air," 2 reels.

The Royal is showing the best and biggest programme in the city. Come and judge for yourself, and if not satisfied money will be refunded.

Admission, Afternoon 10c and 15c Evening, 15c and 20c. War Tax included.

AUTUMN

By Bliss Carmen

Now when the time of fruit and grain has come
When apples hang above the orchard wall,
And from a tangle by the roadside stream
A scent of wild grapes fills the racy air,
Comes Autumn with her sun-burnt caravan
Like a long gypsy train with trappings gay
And tattered colors of the Orient,
Moving slow-footed through the dreamy hills.

The woods of Wilton, at her coming wear
Tints of Bokhara and of Samarcand;
The maples glow with their Pompeian red,
The hickories with burnt Etruscan gold;
And while the crickets fife along her march,
Behind her banners burns the crimson sun.

EXCLUDE PRESS FROM COMMITTEE

Ald. Hamilton's Motion Carried With Mayor's Assistance.

Circumstance played fortuitiously into the hands of Alderman Hamilton last night. A week ago, after the report of the meeting at which he referred with scorching epithets to Mr. R. R. Hall's representations and exhortations to the Council in respect to Peterborough's power affairs, Ald. Hamilton is said to have stated to some of his colleagues that if he were in the Council next year he would see to it that the Press was shut out of the committee meetings. It appeared at that time that he would have no opportunity of putting his wish into effect because of his announced intentions to retire with the expiration of his term this year and also because no more special meetings were in sight.

However, Mayor Taylor called a special meeting last night to discuss a phase of the C.G.E. company's assessment appeal, and as a preliminary His Worship held a conference between the Committee of the Whole and the representatives of the company.

And before the representative of the Examiner had reached his seat, as His Worship was about to introduce the purpose of the meeting, Ald. Hamilton quickly exercised his brief authority by moving that the Press be excluded.

Only five of the aldermen were present, and the Mayor made it a quorum. Two of the company did not vote, but Mayor Taylor declared that the motion had carried. His Worship appeared to be ignorant of the fact that according to a resolution over the Council's records the Press was to be admitted to any committee meeting. It would probably be presumptious to suggest that Ald. Hamilton was unaware of this rule, which has been in effect for years. And during that time the Examiner has never abused or violated the privilege and the Council's confidence.

Had there been anything temporarily at stake beyond Ald. Hamilton's satisfaction because a reporter had not taken it upon himself to censor Ald. Hamiltons' amiable respects to Mr. R. R. Hall at the previous meeting, the Press would have been justified in remaining in the committee meeting until the old resolution had been rescinded by the Council itself.

Ald. Hamilton's pretext was that certain features of the discussion should not be prematurely published, but similar situations have arisen many times, and the Press remained and became acquainted with details which were not reported until the time desired by the Council. However, pretexts come in handy, especially at a final meeting and its opportunity.

And then the door of the committee room was closed, and it may be that a detail of police was thrown around the building, and other precautions taken to prevent the precious secrets from passing through. With all their virtues, it is unfortunate that mayors and aldermen are too often devoid of a sense of humor. In ex-Mayor Best's time it was concluded that with their tax bills the ratepayers were entitled to all the details, and that the Council's business was also the business of the people who elected them. Last night's action was an expression of an inclination to depart from that principle—or really was it? Two of the five aldermen present did not vote, in fact the motion was thrown in so sudden they were unprepared for it.

OBITUARY

LAID AT REST.
Funeral services were held yesterday at the Church of the Sacred Heart for the late Mrs. James H. O'Shea. A requiem mass, which was attended by a large number of friends, was sung by Rev. J. J. O'Brien. Her four youngest sons were pall-bearers. Rev. Father McHenry officiated at the cemetery.

MRS. JOHN DOHERTY.
The death of Mrs. John Doherty, formerly of Peterborough, occurred yesterday morning in Detroit. The remains will be brought to the city, accompanied by her son, Lorne Doherty, on the Wednesday noon train. Interment will take place at St. Peter's Cemetery.

ERROR IN REPORT

In the report of the Comencement exercises at the Collegiate on Friday last given in Saturday's Examiner, Mr. A. A. Fowler in his opening remarks was quoted as saying that Peterboro was to be congratulated in having two such men at the head of its educational institutions as Mr. H. R. H. Kenner and Mr. J. A. McKone.

What Mr. Fowler said was, "Mr. Kenner and Mr. Mowat, P.S. Inspector"

Mr. Fowler wishes this corrected for while Mr. McKone's school is recognized as a valuable institution it does not come under the jurisdition of the Board of Eduation and he wished the credit to go to Mr. Mowat, where it properly belonged.

Society

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Simpson wish to express their deepest thanks to the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Ross for their kind sympathy given in their sad bereavement; also the many friends for the beautiful floral tributes.

Messrs. Oscar, James, Frank, Ewart, and Stan O'Shea are in the city, having been called home owing to the recent illness and death of their mother.

NO AGREEMENT YET AT PEACE PARLEY.

Conference Adjourns and the Turks Are Conciliatory.

LAUSANNE, December 19. Canadian Press. — It was reported this afternoon that a complete draft of the peace treaty drawn up as a result of the deliberations of the Near East Conference here, would be presented to the Turks on Saturday.

NO AGREEMENT.

To-day's session of the Conference body dealing with the question of the Straits was adjourned at two p.m. until to-morrow, without any agreement having been reached.

The Turkish delegates were conciliatory during the discussions but the Russian representatives maintained an attitude of oposition.

Lord Curzon announced that the discussions were dragging on too lengthly and that to-morrow's meeting must be the last for the consideration of the Straits problem.

Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of Russia made an effort during the debate to draw fire from the United States delegates. He argued that the United States' statement as to the attitude of the United States on the question of the Straits, should be interpreted to mean that only warships on errands of mercy could go through the Straits to the Black Sea. The United States representatives did not reply to the Soviet Minister.

TURKS COMPLAIN.

The inter-allied police violate the sanctity of Turkish homes, Turks tell the Minorities Commission.

JEALOUSY LIES AT THE ROOT OF THE TRAGEDY AT CHAPLEAU, ONT.

Mrs. P. D. Gibson, Suspected of Being the "Mystery Woman" in the McKee Murder, Furnishes a Complete Alibi

INTERVIEWED BY AN EXAMINER MAN

CHAPLEAU, Ont., Dec. 20. — (Special).—Bert Connaughton, the seventeen-year-old son of the self-confessed murderess of John McKee, who died with a bullet through his brain last Saturday evening, and Clara and Gordon McKee, aged fifteen and seventeen years respectively, children of the murdered man, attended the funeral of the deceased, held in the Anglican Church of the town yetserday afternoon. Bert Connaughton had been paying regular visits to the children of McKee for no other reason than to give and seek consolation for the mutual grief that is theirs as children of the principals of this tragedy.

The Mystery Woman.

Into the tragedy that fell like a thunderbolt upon this peaceful little railway town last Saturday night, when Mrs. Sadie Connaughton, wife of a C.P.R. engineers, and prominent in church and social circles, confessed to the slaying of John McKee, a widower and engineer on the road, creeps the story of a "mystery woman," whom Mrs. Connaughton claims was in McKee's house at the time of the murder. Although the alleged murderess did not disclose the name of the woman to Provincial Officer Jorgenson, Mrs. P. D. Gibson, wife of a C.P.R. timekeeper, had been named in the evidence given at the inquest. She was able to furnish a complete alibi.

Indignant Denial.

Shortly after the crime was committed, Mrs. Connaughton went to the near-by home of Mrs. Downey, a neighbor and intimate friend, to whom she disclosed what she had done, and at the same time stated that she saw Mrs. Gibson enter McKee's home, and that she was there when she did the shooting. To this statement Mrs. Gibson made an indignant denial to the Examiner when seen to-day, stating that she was at home with her husband on that night and that she had never been in McKee's home in her life.

Clara, the fifteen-year-old daughter of the murdered man, who has been living with friends since the death of her mother, some three years ago, stated that she had gone to her father's house around eight o'clock Saturday night, shortly before the murder took place, and that her father was the only one in the house at the time.

She said that she had gone to call for her skates and had not remained there over ten minutes.

Jealousy the Cause.

That jealousy lies at the root of the mystery and there was a case of mistaken identity between Mrs. Gibson and her daughter seems to be the general opinion of the folks of the town, who are still in a fur-

$500 GRANT TO RETURNED MEN

City's Contribution for G. W. V. A. Christmas Cheer.

A grant of $500 was made to the G.W.V.A. for Christmas cheer by the citys Finance Committee yesterday afternoon upon the solicitation of Mr. Sidney Whatley. He explained that there were many returned men in the city who with their families faced a lean holiday unless they received some assistance. A year ago the Council gave $1000 of which $600 was spent on gift baskets and the rest on fuel and groceries. The distribution was made through the help of the Womens Auxiliary and no distinction was made between returned men as to whether they were members of the G.W.V.A. or not.

Some members of the Committee asked whether the G.W.V.A. avoided overlapping with other organizations who gave charity at this season Mr. Whatley said the greatest care was exercised but in spite of that there had been some duplications of assistance last year. He advocated, as the surest means of avoiding that condition, the establishment of some committee through which the benefactions of all societies in the city would be delivered. In that way no family would receive assistance from different sources while others were perhaps overlooked.

Ald. Phelan said that the city's contribution to the G.W.V.A. would be taken from the special fund which was raised early in the war for relief and a short time ago was transferred to the Council's administration.

Mr. Whatey was asked whether $300 would be sufficient for the work he contemplated, but he answered that $500 was really necessary. It was pointed out that the interest on the fund would provide a sum of about $350 and Ald. McIntyre suggeste that only the interest should be used for relief leaving the principal intact.

"No person is more in sympathy with the G.W.V.A. than I am", he said, "and if it was possfible to get along with the interest I like to see it that way."

He moved an amendment to the effect but didn't get a seconder. The motion by Ald. Stocker seconded by Mayor Taylor for the $500 donation.

"And this is not given as charity, but as gratitude to returned men", Ald. McIntyre remarked.

WALKED A MILE WITH HIS FEET BADLY FROZEN

To Send Wireless Story of the Wreck of the Tug "Reliance" in Lake Superior.

PLUCKY OPERATOR

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—(Special.)—Norman Stoate, wireless operator on the tug "Reliance," which was wrecked and abandoned on Row Island, personally sent the following story by wireless last night from Sault Ste. Marie, shortly after he arrived there with a party of other survivors. The story was received in Toronto last night at the Star's radio sttaion, and is the first story for publication ever sent directly by wireless to any newspaper office in Canada, and received on its own radio equipment and by its own staff.

His Feet Frozen.

Although his feet were frozen and he was suffering from exhaustion after his terrible experiences since his ship was wrecked, Mr. Stoate walked a mile through two feet of snow from the Algoma Central Railway Station to the Marconi Wireless Station at S. S. Marie in order to get his story to "his old paper," as he phrased it, without delay. Up to April of this year Mr. Stoate was a member of the Star business office staff.

Dense Snow Storm.

"On Wednesday, Dec. 13th we left Gargantua at 8.15 in the morning in clear weather. Coming towards S. S. Marie a dense snow storm came up and Captain Williams checked down the speed. In about an hour we suddenly hit the rocks off Rowe Island. Captain Williams ordered the engines reversed and the propeller was broken on the rocks. The sea drove us three quarters of a mile over the rocks towards Rowe Island and at 1.15 in the afternoon we filled and settled in thirteen feet of water."

Launched the Boats.

"Just after we struck attempts weer made to launch the life boat and the first one got away with the nine men who eventually reached Boissineau camp after a long trip through the bush. Immediately after, when attempting to launch the big lifeboat on the top deck, a violent swell struck us and we hit the rocks with great force, throwing three members of the crew, McPherson, Johns and Regan, in the water.

Covered With Ice.

"The Reliance was covered with ice, which added to the hazard in lowering the boat. McPherson struck the tug going over and injured him self seriously. We saw him drown in a few minutes. A life belt was thrown to him, but he couldn't hear us hollering to him to grasp it.

The life boat was lowered, and an attempt made to get the other two men, but a big sea lifted it off the fall hooks and we lost it. Johns and Regan managed to get a hold of the life boat and with almost superhuman effort defied the terrific waves for a few moments. But they were exhausted and had to let go. Our final lifeboat was swamped while we were tryig to launch it and we were thus left without any visible means of saving our lives.

Built a Raft.

"A raft was hurriedly constructed

A TESTIMONIAL FOR "GALLAGHERS"

Steenburg, Hastings Co., Ont.,
Oct. 31st, 1922.

"To the Gallagher Remedy Co.,

"Gentlemen,—About three months ago I was all run down and I am sure I had consumption. I was planning on going to the Hospital. My husband happened to meet your Agent, W. R. Jackson, of Ormsby, and he bought some of your Blood Purifier and Kidney Remedy, and from the time I started to take the medicine I could feel myself improving. I gained one and a half pounds the first two weeks and I am still improving and feeling fine. I don't think there is any medicine on earth better for any one that is in a run-down condition than these Remedies. Everyone that is using this medicine are all praising it highly. Wishing you every success.

"I am, yours faithfully,
"Mrs. John Reid.

"P.S.—My mother and several of my relatives died with consumption."

Is it not true that "Gallagher's Builds the Body?"

DECLARES MR. HICKS IS OPPOSED TO CITY DEVELOPING POWER

Mr. R. R. Hall Reaches This Conclusion From the Statement of the Chairman of Peterborough Utilities—Also Scores the City Council for Evading Their Own Responsibilities.

It is quite apparent from the report in last night's Examiner that Mr. Robert Hicks, the Chairman of the local Utilities, is opposed to this city developing power on its own account and that he is prepared by every means at his command to block any attempt to do so. He magnifies every difficulty, and eagerly seeks for every obstacle that may be found.

His Policy Short Sighted.

He prays that the Dominion Government shall be so short sighted as to insist that this city shall pay $5,000.00 per year for the same water power, that the same Government only a few years ago offered to a private company for only $2,300.00 per year. He pretends that the cost of running a power plant is 80 per cent. greater than it is. He boldly says that the depreciation of electric and hydraulic machinery is 100 per cent. greater than it is in fact. He wants to provide against depreciation of cement foundations that are as stable as the hills. And lastly he wants an "obsolescence" fund to provide against loss in case water will not run down the Otonabee.

Yet, despite all his depreciations, I find, according to his own figures (and on the basis of these power plants costing $500,000.00), that this city would still get its power from these sources, at a cost of $16.65 per horse power, which is $5.85 less per horse power per year than this city is now paying to the Hydro Electric, and which represents a saving of over $26,000.00 per year to the power and light consumers of this city.

But that is not all. He is so anxious to work against the best interests of this city and in favour of the cities and towns on the Lake front, that he said, in closing, "if power could be obtained at "the figure Mr. Hall suggested he was sure the Hydro Commission "would only be too glad to develop at that price." He might well have added, and if you vote for me as commissioner, "I will see that "the natural birth right of this city is well and truly given away."

A Bad Suggestion.

An enemy within our gates could not have done a worse thing than suggest, that the Dominion Government should charge this city $10,000.00 per year for these two water powers. Why? Because the Dominion Government are making no use of them and do not propose to make any more use of them, than a miser does of his gold upon which he sits.

The 5,200 horse power from these dams, is equal in value for continuous service, to 30,000 tons of steam coal, which now costs Canada at the border at least $6.00 per ton. That is to say, Canada would have to send $180,000.00 to the U. S. to buy coal to produce the same power.

So Pound Foolish.

Is it possible that you could rake Canada over and find a set of men, so penny wise and so pound foolish, as to sit tight on such great natural resources, for the sake of exacting $10,000.00 per year when they could save for their country $180,000.00 per year?

And yet this is the position and policy the Chairman of our Public Utilities Commission asks the taxpayers of this city to support and elect him to carry out.

To cut this article short, let me say that the taxpayers of this city must give more attention to the annual Audtiors' report than they are doing. During this last ten years our taxes have more than doubled and our population is not far from the same as it was ten years ago. They will also find that it costs the power and light consumers of this city to distribute, 4,613 H.P., no less a sum than $17,287.00 in salaries alone and in all $70,000.00 per year to maintain a system that needs new blood.

Scores City Council.

Our City Council also require consideration. It is incredibtable that they referred the power question to the Utilities Commission when it was their first duty to look after it themselves. They neglected their duty. Like the ostrich, they sunk their heads in sinking sands. They forget that the taxpayers are awakened three times a year by an increasing tax bill. The voters now have a chance to ask them the questions: Are you in favour of an open, honest, full disclosure of our civic affairs? Are you in favour of this city developing power on its own account, if it can be obtained more cheaply by doing so? Are you in favour of making an honest enquiry on the power question from independent sources?

R. R. HALL.

CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR THE MOTHERS

Forty-Seven Peterborough Mothers Will Receive Allowance Cheques This Week.

Mr. T. Tooms, M.P.P., was in Toronto yesterday and while at the Parliament Buildings, had an opportunity of witnessing the despatch of over three thousand cheques to widows throughout Ontario who are on the records of the Mothers' Allowance Commission. Twenty-three of these cheques will come to Peterboro county, and forty seven will be distributed in the city making a total of seventy cheques for this city and county. Each chque represents an average of $34.50, and is payable monthly. Mr. Tooms had one local mother placed on the list for the first time She will receive a cheque for $55. This particular mother has five children. The cheques coming this week will prove a welcome gift to those who receiev them.

THE WEATHER

Early last evening the temperature was down to 4 degrees below zero, but during the night it rose considerably. Early this morning the thermometer marked 16 above, a rise of 20 degrees during the night. This is an unusual occurrence. — W. P.

EIGHTEEN CHILDREN IN NEED OF CLOTHING.

Public Invited to Co-operate in Good Work of Big Sisterhood.

In the report of the summary of the Big Sisterhood's year's work, the following were not included in the list of those who were tendered thanks for their willing and acceptable services:

F. H. Dobbin, for his splendidly written articles in the press. Dr. Allen, for dental work done for poor children free of charge. Mr. Taplin, of the Taplin Shoe Store, for his generous Christmas donation of a quarter of beef.

There are not as many families needing relief this year as last, due to the systematic way that the Big Sisterhood have taken care of the situation and of the needs of the distressed. But there is still need of money and clothing with which to carry on this great philanthropic work. The society's room is open over the Peterborough Creamery for receiving all kinds of donations. At the present time there are two families of nine children each who are in extremely great need of clothing and assistance. The Big Sisterhood take this opportunity of inviting the co-operation of the people of Peterborough in uplifting and bettering the citizenship of the city as well as helping the poor therein.

TRADE COMMISSIONER COMING TO PETERBOROUGH.

W. J. Egan, Canadian Trade Commissioner to South Africa, will address a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the Young Men's Section on Wednesday, Jan. 3rd. This meeting is being arranged by the Young Men's Section.

DROPPED DEAD AT WORK IN FACTORY

Sudden Death of John Henthorne This Morning--Was Well Known Here.

Early this morning Mr. John Henthorne, who was working in the Brinton Carpet Company, dropped dead while at work. He took ill shortly after seven o'clock and expired almost immediately.

The late Mr. Henthorne has resided in the city for many years and has taken an active part in city life. He was a member of the old fire brigade for a number of years. He was an Oddfellow being a member of the Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, for a number of years.

The deceased was 65 years of age, and has resided in the city for the last 40 years. His wife predeceased him ten years ago. He was a member of St. James Methodist church for some time.

Besides a large circle of friends, the deceased leaves two daughters, Mrs. McBain of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Miss Elizabeth at home, also two sons, Wellington of Lakefield, and Alex., of Buffalo. He also leaves two brothers, Wiliam, of East City, and James of Rochester.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 129 Maude street, on Friday, December 22, at 2 p.m. The services will be conducted by the Rev. J. F. Chapman of St. James Church. Interment at the Little Lake cemetery.

A PROPOSED

'The Peterborough College of Languages, Literature and Philosophy

As explained in yesterday evening's Examiner the opening up of a college under some such name is now a possibility, provided it is found there are a number desirious of availing themselves of its advantages. Now is the time to let it be known if you are any way interested as the work should be under way early in January or at latest by the fifteenth. Courses are being offered in French, Latin, Greek, Psychology, Logic History, English Literature, and Religious Knowledge.

Special consideration will be given to the needs of those who wish a course equivalent to the first year's work in Toronto, or Queen's Universities. Others, however, requiring a somewhat different course or courses of studies are invited to make known their names and requirements. It is hoped that quite a number whether young or middle aged might wish to avail themselves of an opportunity for self-improvement and the attainment of a deeper, and wider culture.

After all this is really the ultimate aim of education viz., the development of the mind the improvement of the character, the widening and fulfilling of life interests. The chief aim of life is not the acquisition of money. "Man does not live by bread only" but by every quickening word of knowledge and truth which expands and nourishes the inner life.

An attempt will be made also to assist teachers working for their B. A. degree.

Would all who are interested please send their names mentioning the courses they would like to one of the following supporters of the project viz., Dr. Moir Mr. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate, Principal McKone, Inspector Mowat, or Mr. Roper, Secretary of Y.M.C.A.

The expense of courses will be reasonable. There should be a future for such a work, and if the present opportunity is seized it should lead to the establishment here of an institution which would be an important addition to the city's life. Local colleges covering the first two years in Arts are almost certain to be soon established in the chief county towns of Ontario, leaving only the last two years to cover at Toronto and Queen's.

Since this is so the city that takes the lead in any good move always receives the credit and advantage it deserves and therefore it would be well for Peterboro if the proposal resulted only in such an institution with a two years course.

But all the Universities once began in a humble way and why should not Peterborough ultimately become a University-town, with full courses at least in Arts Law and Theology; if not in Medicine and Science which requires much more expensive equipment?

TURKEY PRICES FAIRLY STEADY ON THE MARKET

Turkeys sold at 40c with some lower quotations on a midweek market this morning. Poultry was generally plentiful and the price was inclined to easiness. The Toronto market is reported as comparatively dull, and Montreal turkeys have declined to approximately 40c.

NO ONE BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT CAUSING MRS. GRANT'S DEATH

But Coroner's Jury Recommended That the Grand Trunk Railway Crossing on Water St. North Be Protected—Inquest Last Night.

AUTOMOBILE AND TRAIN COLLIDED

A verdict of accidental death with a recommendation that the G.T.R. crossing on Water street north be protected, was the verdict of the coroner's jury at the inquest held in the Police Station last evening, in connection with the death of Mrs. George Grant.

O Thursday morning December 7, the deceased, who resided at 1033 Water street was on her way downtown in an automobile driven by her husband when the car was struck by the morning train to Lakefield at the Water street crossing. Mrs. Grant was thrown out and sustained injuries from which she died on the following Sunday evening. Her husband and little daughter, Anna who was also in the car, escaped with slight injuries.

The inquest last evening was in charge of Coroner Dr. T. N. Greer Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton represented the Crown Mr. W. C. Mills personal claim adjuster, for the G.T.R. appeared for the railway company and F. D. Kerr was present in the interests of the family.

Detective's Evidence

The first witness called was Detective William Meagher, who gave the exact measurements at the scene of the accident as seen by Mr. Roy Allison an eye witness of the accident. The automobile was 25 feet from the track, when first seen by Mr. Allison, who noticed the car turn, slow up, and start up again before being struck by the approaching train.

After the car was struck Mrs. Grant was picked up 33 feet from where she was struck; her daughter Anna was thrown 37 feet from where the car first came in collison with the train and the rear of the car was found 31 feet from the place of impact.

Mr. Grant's Evidence

The next witness was George Grant, owner and driver of the car who stated that he had left his home at about 8.30 in the morning with his wife and little girl, and had started into town. As he approached the G.T.R. tracks his attention was taken by a number of school children on each side of the road, some of whom ran across the road as he approached, when he turned aside to miss them, as he was travelling at the rate of from 18 to 20 miles an hour. Thinking the train had all ready passed, Grant thought nothing more of it until his wife exclaimed that the train was upon them. Mr. Grant said he at once removed his foot from the accelerator and

MINOR PROBLEM IN ASSESSMENT

Appeal to Judge to Restrict Business Assessment in Dwelling.

An interesting assessment technicality was submitted to Judge Huycke yesterday. Mr. Alex. Elliott is the owner of the dwelling at 351 Park Street, where he resides, and from which he carries on an agency business. The total assessment for land and building is $5,500, and the property is also assessed $1,375 for business. It was explained that the agency is actually located in a small room or den which is virtually an office, and Mr. W. F. Huycke, solicitor for the appellant, contended that the business assessment should be specifically for that one small room and not on the whole property. It was proposed that the assessment might be determined as in office buildings by the floor area or cubic space.

"It's a shame," said Judge Huycke, "and if I can get around it I will."

City Solicitor Widdified, representing the city and W. J. Henry, assessor, admitted that the Act was a hardship, but that it had been correctly interpreted and followed by Mr. Henry. However, he contended that many doctors and others who carried on in their dwellings more extensive business than did Mr. Elliott would be affected by any relief Judge Huycke gave.

REEVE NICHOLLS IS DROPPING OUT

Reported to Have Made Decision to Retire

Municipal nominations in the townships will be held on Friday afternoon. Smith Township selects the County Council room for its headquarters, and the taxpayers of North Monaghan hold forth in May's school, while Otonabee's citizens are meeting in the Town Hall at Keene.

It has been reported that Reeve Nicholls of Smith has decided to retire from municipal activities. He has held the Reeveship continuously since Fred. McKee stepped out of the picture, and during that time achieved the wardenship. Reeve Nicholls has given splendid service, and has been one of the leaders of the County Council.

From Monaghan come rumors that John McIntosh has no serious intention of giving Reeve Rye a battle. Mr. McIntosh said that he had taken his nose off the grindstone, and returning a short time ago from one visit, expects to start soon again on another.

SYMMETERY OUT OF SLOPPINESS MOTTO OF M. LE GORSETIER

By Margaret Rohe.

There is a man in our town,
And he is wondrous wise,
At working over figures
Of every sort and size.
He's no arithmetician,
Nor yet a bank cashier,
Yet how that man knows figures!
For he's a corsetier.

NE WYORK, Dec. 14.—We have long since ceased to life a surprised eyebrow over the bevy of men dressmakers and men milliners popping up all about, but a man corsetier does "stay" one for a bit—what?

By the term man corsetier you may gather that the stays themselves are designed to embrace the portly person of overweight stage stars, movie heroes an dprofessional lady killers whose tummies have gotten a bit beyond restraint, but you are wrong. It's the corsetier himself who is a male of the species and the scientifically evolved bits of whalebone and pink brocade which he designs are all for the ladies and for all ladies.

'Tis All the Same.

Be they wobbly of hip and slobby of contour or scraggy and skinny as a well-plucked snipe its' all the same to Isidor Baer.

Making over the human form from slobbishness to symmetry is certainly his meat— "baermeat," as it were.

For 35 years Isidor Baer has been struggling with the problem of how to fit a three-quart figure into a one-pint corset. He has stayed with the problem so persistently and stayed so many bolshevist figures consistently that now nothing that comes to him in the figure line or curve is impossible—on the contrary it is always "Baerly possible."

Harmony and Comfort..

In the velvet grip of his scientifically designed corsets the most elephantine proportions are restrained discreetly at crucial points and allowed to go plah at others until not only harmony of contour has been obtained but a remarkable degree of comfort as well.

Indeed, how to be comfortable though corseted it is Mr. Baers' mission in life to elucidate.

Though it seems tantalizingly chimerical to us portly persons, some of his clients are so skinny that he is forced to make pads to fill out their holows before he can build them satisfactory stays.

The bulk of his patronesses are bulky, however. One generously proportioned Juno, the wife of a well-known American cough drop king, orders her Baer stays annualy by the half dozen of the most de luxe material and corresponding price.

Fortunately for those whose husbands don't ocugh up so easily Mr. Baer waxes just as enthusiastic over the diaphram reduction of one whose opulence is more in the flesh than in the purse. With the zeal of a true artist he seizes upon the abominabl ycorseted frame of a new client, shatters it to bits and then, Rubiyatishly, "remolds it nearer to the heart's desire."

As a corsetier Isidor is certainly a bear.

"Barrel Hoop Bean Bag"

A game that's a great favorite whenever my six-year-old gives a little party is "barrel hoop bean bag." I cover several barrel hoops with crepe paper, suspend a small bell from the center, give each child a bean bag, and award a prize to the one who rings the bell the most times out of five throws.

GOOD MANNERS.

While the well-bred hostess always does her utmost to set at ease a guest who arrives late for a dinner engagement, yet tardiness on such an occasion cannot but cause her great inconvenience.

Therefore, it is classed among the gravest of social offenses.

The reason for it must be an excellent one to constitute a real excuse.

TURKISH FEARS MAY WRECK CONFERENCE HELD AT LAUSANNE

Allied Leaders Remain Firm That the Straits Must Be Open — Not Seeking War Facilities.

THE LAST WORD.

LAUSANNE, December 20 (Canadian Press). — Turkish fears of submarines, Turkish fears of swiftly flying military airplanes, laden with bombs, and generally, Turkish fears of aggressions from without that will put Constantinople in danger, last night placed the whole Lausanne Conference in jeopardy.

The United States is silent on the situation, but the Allied leaders said last night that they had uttered their last word on the question of the liberty of the Straits. To-day the Turks must say yes or no to the Allied project.

The British experts, Admiral Keele and General Burdett-Stuart, already have left for Britain, believing their work to have been completed, and the French experts are preparing to depart to-day at the conclusion of the "last session" for discussion of the Straits. Whether a rupture will come on the Straits problem depends chiefly on whether the Entente diplomats and their experts can remove the Turkish fears. This they were trying to do last night.

The diplomats are endeavouring to convince the Angora statesmen that the Straits project is essentially framed to meet conditions in times of peace, and that the Allies are not in any sinister, hidden manner seeking facilities for war, and especially against Turkey. They say they have only sought the equality of all the fleets passing through the Straits on peaceful errands.

The Allies have emphasised that they cannot accept the Turkish request for the suppression of submarines and military airplanes; especially they have been unable to accept the Ottoman suggestion that combined foreign fleets entering the Black Sea shall not exceed in strength the fleet of the strongest naval power of the Black Sea.

"That would make the Black Sea forbidden ground," said a French expert last night.

As the Russians are here only for the discussion of the Straits question, to-day may see the last of them at Laosanne. They still are in a fighting mood, however.

George Tchitcherin was in fine argumentative form yesterday. He tried to win American sympathy for the Russian Straits project by insisting that it incorporated the American idea of "beneficent warships."

The Allies have agreed that the Moscow Straits plan is absolutely unacceptable. Tchitcherin made a dramatic plea to the world masses. He said Russia was convinced the world's peoples were back of Russia in her attempts to secure international justice. He also bitterly condemned what he called "marinism," adding: "I mean the sea militarism which hopes to strangle Russia."

An additional fear of the Turks which the Allies must calm to-day is that with which they surround the proposed international commission to supervise control of the Straits. The Turks claim the Commission will be inquisitorial in nature, that it may infringe Turkish sovereignty, and, finally, that it may be used as a club by some Powers to threaten Turkey. Hence, their ambition to have a general guarantee pact signed at Lausanne which will assure the neutrality of the Straits and prevent acts of hostility in Turnish territorial waters.

The Turks last night seemed unruffled. They did not appear at all impressed by the ultimatum talk with which the Lausanne atmosphere is charged.

It was pointed out last night that failure of the Straits negotiations would not necessarily imply failure on other important matters on the Lausanne agenda, one of which is arranging peace between Greece and Turkey, and between Turkey and the Allies.

Marquis Curzon yesterday informed M. Barrere, of the French delegation that from a spirit of friendship for France the British Government had abandoned the idea of having the Lausanne Treaty written in the English and French languages. He agreed that French alone should be used.

As France has made no request in this connection, the British initiative created an exceedingly pleasant feeling among the Frenchmen, who like to have their language regarded always as the language of diplomacy.

FARMERS MAY FORCE BUILDING OF SHIP CANAL

Inability of Railroads to Move Crops Caused Loss of Millions of Dollars Last Year in the West.

TO CUT COST.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.— (Canadian Press.)—Farmers of the northwest and of Canada will force the international St. Lawrence project through, despite opposition of New York and other ports which would suffer by the scheme, Governor J. O. Preus, of Minnesota, predicted in an address here yesterday before the Civilian Club.

Inability of the railroads to move crops to the seaboard for exportation caused the loss of millions of bushels of potatoes and wheat in his State during the last year, Governor Preus declared, adding that similar conditions had aroused the farmers in other States and in Canada, as well, to advocacy of the St. Lawrence outlet.

Turning to the economic side of the waterway, Governor Preus asserted that half the entire cost of shipping grain from Duluth to Liverpool was consumed by railway freight charges between Buffalo, where the grain is unloaded, from lake vessels, and New York, where it is loaded on trans-atlantic steamers. Cutting a direct waterway to the seaboard would greatly reduce this cost, he declared.

"The garden spot of the world lies between the Rockies and the Alleghenies," he asserted, "but it will be ruined unless we have better water transportation."

RAIL MOVEMENT OF GRAIN IS HUGE.

Closing of Navigation at Fort William Stimulates C.P.R. Activity.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 20. — On account of severe weather conditions the closing of lake navigation at Fort William one record of the great crop of 1915 remains unbeaten, according to an official statement of the Canadian Pacific Railway handed out yesterday. In 1915 the weather remained good during December and in consequence actual marketing of grain in that year between August thirty-first and December 16, exceeded this year's marketing by 12,767,565 bushels.

All other records have gone by the board. The total cars loaded by the C.P.R. since August 31 up to and including December 16 show an increase over the figures of 1915 of 2,781 cars, or approximately 3 percent. Bushels shipped this year exceed 1915 figures by 14,827,802 bushels, or 17 percent in bushels transported.

The average loading per car this year exceeds 1915 by 106 bushels, the actual saving in cars by heavier loading being approximately 7,955 cars.

Shipments from Fort William by boat show an increase in volume moved from the head of the lakes of 86.7 percent.

Loaded east from Winnipeg from December 1 up to an including December 16 this year shows an increase of 6,565, representing 6.7 percent increase in east bound movement from Winnipeg.

Tomb of Tutenhkamun A Storehouse of Wealth

Royal Burial Place Was Built Fourteen Centuries Before Christ—Was Visited By Ancient Tomb Robbers But Very Little Was Disturbed.

LONDON, Dec. 20.— (Canadian Press.) — The Archeological treasures of the recently discovered tomb of King Tutenkhamun in the Valley of the Kings, were described yesterday by the United States Egyptologist James H. Breasted in a telegram to the Cairo correspondent of the Times from Luxor.

"I spent an hour in Tutnekhamun tomb this afternoon," wrote Dr. Breasted. "The impression is overwhelming. The despatches but feebly suggested the marvellous reality. It is a sight I never dreamed of seeing.

"The ante-chamber of the Pharaoh's tomb was filled with magnificent eqipment which only the wealth and splendor of the Imperial Age of Egypt of the Fourteenth Century before Christ could have wrought or conceived, and everything standing as placed there when the tomb was last closed in antiquity .

"Two facts are evident: First, it is evident that the place is a Pharaoh's tomb and no mere cache. Behind the remaining unopened, sealed doorway we must expect to find the burial chamber wheer the Pharaoh still lies in royal magnificence. Second, have here a royal burial place very little disturbed, in spite of the hurried plundering it suffered at the hands of the ancient tomb robbers.

"In mere quantity of furniture found it far surpasses all precedent. In quality it is an astonishing revelation of the beauty and refinement of Egyptian art at the culmination of its development in the Imperial Age, quite surpassing anything I ever imagined."

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MET IN THEIR STATUTORY SESSION

Business Preceded By a Meeting in Court of Revision—Financial Statement Adopted as Read—Special Grant of $75 to Clerk.

The North Monaghan Council had their last regular meeting on the statutory date, December 15, at the Court House. All the members were present with Reeve Rye in the chair. Preceding the regular township business the Court of Revision was held for the sidewalks constructed on McGill street during the past summer. No appeals were made and the Court accepted and confirmed the assessment roll as prepared and presented to the said Court of Revision, after which they adjourned and proceeded with regular township business.

Miscellaneous Business.

The minutes of the last two meetings were read and confirmed. By-law No. 824 was read and passed authorizing the municipality to borrow $1,903 upon debentures to pay for the construction of sidewalks on McGill street, and 120 feet on Lock street, the said debentures to be for a term of 15 years, the rate of interest to be 6 p.c. per annum.

Clem. Gordon was present and said that cetrain lots on plan 60 had been assessed as plan 43. He asked the Council to have the necessary change made and that the lots on which he had paid taxes on plan 60 appear as plan 60 instead of plan 43. A motion was passed by Messrs. Dobbin and Bell that the said correction be made and that this resolution be recorded in the minutes.

George Shields was present and compalined he was assessed for certain lots which he did not own. No action was taken by the Council.

W. H. Bradburn, township treasurer ,was present and presented his annual and financial statements. On motion of Messrs. Lillico and Bell, the township treasurer's financial statement as read was accepted and ordered published according to law.

A communication was read from the Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee and the United Farmers of Ontario asking for assistance for those who were burned out last summer in Northern Ontario.

Moved by Mr. Barnes and seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that the above communications be received and that the matter be dealt with by the Council of 1923.—Carried.

Accounts Passed.

The following bills were passed and ordered to be paid: Joe Patten, 135 yards of gravel at 15c., $20.25; Gordon Adams, 80 yards of gravel at 15c., $12.00; half the roads and bridges and half of Cavan township; Bruce Johnston, publishing the minutes $8.00, typing by-laws and postage 12.10; Archie Patterson, delivering two loads of wood, charity, $2.00; A. McDonald Lumber Co., culvert railing, $1.20; Taylor & Hall, culvert tile, $45.61; W. J. Byers, groceries, charity, $19.54; W. J. Byers, groceries, charity, $9.15; Geo. Dodson, cleaning ditch, concession 10, $21.00; Henderson Nesbitt, garnt, 8.00.

The following salaries and allowances for council and committee meetings were then directed to be passed and paid: H. B. Rye, half year's allowance, attending meetings and committee meetings, $42.00; Lillico, $42.00; R. A. Dobbin, $33.00; Joseph S. Bell, $42.00; John Barnes, $36.00; Bruce Johnston, half year's salary ,clerk, $230; W. H. Bradburn, half year's salary treasurer, $100; Bert Sanderson, half years' salary assessor, $112.50; E. A. Reck, solicitor's retaining fee, $20; Dr. T. N. Greer, medical health officer, $300; Bert Sanderson, caretaker of town hall, $7.50; Frank Pratt, township relief officer, $75; W. H. Bradburn, war tax stamps, $10.

Special Grant.

A special grant of $75 was made to the clerk for extra work during 1922.

By-law No. 826 was regularly read and finally passed, appointing deputy returning officers and poll clerks. The appointments are the same as made for last year, and the places for voting are also practically the same. The meeting then adjourned.

DENVER POLICE ARE UNABLE TO SOLVE ROBBERY

Have Found Absolutely No Trace of Bandits Who Made Get - Away With $200,000 in Daylight Raid.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — Denver State and Federal authorities last night, after a day and night spent in searching for the bandits who Monday morning shot and killed Charles Linton, stole a consignment of $200,000 from Federal Reserve Guards, and then made their escape, in one of the most daring and sensational daylight holdups ever staged in the west, were without tangible clues as to the identity of the bandits.

Police, spurred on by the offering of a reward of $10,000 for the bandits, dead or alive by the city and county of Denver, and by an additional reward aggregating $5,000 offered by the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank, admitted that they were still far from the solution of the holdup.

Last night a squad of 14 detectives were engaged in watching a rooming house in the immediate vicinity of the Government Mint, where earlier in the day a car, evidently left on the street by the bandits to be used in case of accident to their own machine during the holdup, was discovered through information furnished by a woman. The car, an investigation showed, had been stolen.

Roads leading into the mountains were thoroughly policed yesterday by details of policemen, in an effort to find trace of the escaped men, but all searching parties reported to headquarters that their trips had been fruitless.

AFTERMATH OF RAND REVOLT LAST MARCH.

It is stated that future progress of Rheims will depend in great measure, on way in which Germany fulfils her obligation to France.

Federal Fuel Committee Advises Communities to Get a Reasonable Quantity of Soft Coal.

U.S. HARD HIT.

OTTAWA, December 20 (Canadian Press). — "Hence if communities are not protected with, say, soft lump coal, no time should be lost in getting a reasonable quantity in to supplement any tonnage of hard coal received, and in addition to be able to keep the community warm for a few weeks in case weather conditions might seriously interfere with traffic movement," is the warning contained in a statement issued by the Federal Advisory Fuel Committee last night.

The warning comes as a result of a telegram received from the United States Federal Fuel Distributor that people in the United States were suffering grievously despite the production of anthracite being at a maximum. The statement follows:

"Canada at the end of the winter will have received only 40 per cent. of its usual quantity of anthracite. The Canadian public has been warned time and again not to expect more than 60 per cent. of anthracite for use this winter, and has been urged to use substitutes. As a matter of fact, no one can fix upon the exact percentage of anthracite that will be available, because much will depend upon the severity of the winter.

"It is evident from the message received that the supply may be as low as 40 per cent., though the ratio of supply is less than that. It was hoped that as soon as the requirements of the Great Lake ports had been delivered the percentage would increase.

"There is no necessity for anyone suffering from lack of fuel this winter, because there is plenty of soft coal available. There is, however, no reserve stock of hard coal in Canada, and all that can be expected is that dealers will distribute it from time to time as they receive it. Every community should have, if it already has not, a reasonable tonnage of substitutes to protect the people for a few weeks, and it is the duty of the municipal officers to keep constantly in touch with the dealer or dealers in their respective municipalities in order to see that their people are safeguarded. No one knows better than the coal dealer

CIVIC DESERTERS.

A Boston contemporary pointing out that in time of war the deserter from the army is shot, declares there were 125,000 civic deserters who were recreant to their duty at the last municipal election.

"Their sin of ommission," the article points out, "was no trivial matter for in neglecting the duty of a good citizen they aided the cause of bad government as effectively as the soldier whose desertion of his post makes a break in the line of battle and lets the enemy drive through for slaughter and pillage."

That in a sentence is what the Examiner has been endeavouring to drive home to the people of Peterborough.

Failure of a large portion of the electorate to vote tends to inefficient government, allows weaklings to get into offices that they cannot possibly fill.

Evidently they have the same problems in American cities.

How many deserters will Peterborough have on New Year's Day?

A NATIONAL MOVEMENT.

The announcement that the Federal Government proposes to submit an appropriation for the approval of Parliament at the coming session, providing for the erection of a National monument at the Capital, in honour of Canada's soldiers, will be received with pleasure by the Canadian people.

It is proposed that the monument should be symbolical in character and that it be erected in a place imposing and prominent enough to be worthy of such a tribute, although of course the details will be left to Parliament.

It is fitting that the valour of Canada's troops should be recognized by the nation in this permanent form and Ottawa, the Capital City is the logical location for the monument.

The proposal will undoubtedly be approved by Parliament for it will be recognized by all political parties represented in the House, that as a nation Canada should have a National and permanent monument that will be a striking testimony to the pride felt by the Canadian people in the exploits of their gallant army overseas.

Such a monument is already being provided for by the Canadian Government in France—it is just as desirable that a similar tribute should be erected on Canadian soil.

FAREWELL TO IRELAND.

The future historian of Ireland will assuredly say of the British troops in Ireland that nothing in their occupation of that so became them as the leaving of it. Yesterday's events must indeed have caused many a beholder to brush his hand before his eyes to convince himself that he was not dreaming, says the Montreal Star. Irishwomen embracing British Tommies, Irishmen singing "God Save the King!" and Irish Free State troops saluting a British General and British regimental colors—it almost seems like some dream of a resurrected Jules Verne. Yet it actually took place—not later than yesterday. Sunday was well chosen for evacuation, on the principle that "the better the day, the better the deed."

There is, of course, one excellent reason why the rank and file of the Southern Irish should bid the British Tommy Good-speed. He has never had any hard feelings towards them—personally. They have recognized this, and they have also realized that he has only done his duty. Hence these embraces, these shouts of acclaim, these salutes and these strange demonstrations of enthusiasm. There seems to have been in them nothing of rejoicing that the British Tommy was about to clear out in toto, bag and baggage. The Celt is like that. He will fight you for a year, and kiss you goodbye on New Year's Eve. It is his way. We have our own little indiosyncrasies also. Let us, therefore, shake hands across the water with the new-born Free State and express the hope that it may benefit as fully from the bestowal of that right as this Dominion has done in the past.

ARMIES MUST EAT.

Phrases are easy for the tongue; an "army of occupation" sounds like a simple gesture. One nation owes another nation; an army of occupation camps on the debtor's territory until the bill is paid. That looks plain and simple enough.

Yet there is another side to the idea. Soldiers want to be paid. Even 10,000 men can absorb quite a little capital in wages, as any one can discover who cares to try supporting 10,000 for a year. Multiply that many times over and you have one considerable item. Then they must eat, over and above their wages. It is surprising the amount of food 10,000 persons can put away in a single day; it is not necessary to experiment with this, just watch the commisariat of a circus some time. Then, also, they must sleep, and it takes a number of roofs, tent or otherwise, cots and simple furnishings for this purpose. Also there must be amusement and perhaps instruction.

Nor is this all. The Germans have just submitted a statement which shows that over and above the bills for wages, food, and ordinary equipment they have gone into the furnishing business quite extensively on behalf of the armies of occupation. They have furnished 1,400 parlors, 2,600 sitting rooms, 5,000 dining rooms, 10,399 bedrooms and 4,609 kitchens, all between the fall of 1921 and last summer.

This furniture went into castles and other dwellings used by the armies of occupation who spread over 207 communities compared with 36 garrisoned by the Germans before the war.

The joke in all this is that these bills, some of them continuing bills—for wages and food—are a prior claim against Germany, and the money is consumed, so to speak, on the spot. It goes neither to rebuild the destruction of war nor to rehabilitate national finances. It buys nothing useful whatever. And as some of the claims are not being paid by Germany it is conceivable that the day will come when a sizeable "occupation" bill will obstruct indefinitely the reparations bill.

It would seem that those who so desperately debate the problem how to make Germany pay might help toward a solution by examining how to reduce armies of occupation that eat up the available supplies. —Detroit News.

THE CHOOSING OF CANDIDATES.

Our system of government is a good system, but many defects are sure to come under any form of government, and under a democracy, especially in municipal government, inefficiency is promoted by the fact that the voters seldom act wisely in their election of men to hold responsible, legislative, judicial, or executive offices.

When a business man or a householder needs the services of a carpenter, a plumber, a doctor, or a lawyer, he engages a man whom he considers skilled in his trade or profession and of honorable character, so that the work may be well done at reasonable cost.

If the same plan were followed in electing mayors, aldermen, and othe officials a great improvement would eb made in the kind of city government that is found in the greater number of our cities. Occasionally we find a mayor or an alderman who in character, training and ability is well qualified for his office and rendering good service to the city, but such a man is seldom popular with the voters. The very fact that he is broad-minded enough to bear in mind that he is serving the whole city and has the courage to vote against unwise expenditures of public funds to benefit certain groups of voters does not increase his popularity. The tax payers whose interest he protects show little appreciation, and the municipal grafters ascribe unworthy motives as the reason for his opposition to their plans for emptying the city treasure.

Instead of choosing men for their fitness, the voters are more likely to elect to municipal offices men who are active politicians and clever talkers on the platform. Unfortunately too in our large cities elections are often determined on race, religion, color, or membership in some labor organization, and men thus chosen are often unable because of their ignorance or prejudice to render good service to the city.

It was more than a century ago that the Luddites in England try to prevent the use of labor saving machinery by breaking it and burning factories. For six years, from 1811 to 1817, these foolish people opposed progress, and it seemed quite appropriate that they should be designated by the name of Ned Ludd, a half-witted fellow who achieved some notoriety from breaking stocking frames.

The theory of the Luddites was that if one man could witha weaving machine could do the work of five men, each machine put in use would throw four men out of work, and they saw no way to stop this disaster excepting by destruction of the machines.

We ridicule the ignorance of these misguided people, who did not understand that better machinery would mean greater production with less manual labor, so that a benefit would come to all the community. Greater production at less cost would permit the payment of higher wages, and at the same time lower the price of the manufactured articles to local consumers, and provide a surplus that could be exported in exchange for surplus products of other countries.

Such elementary matters of politictal economy are pretty well understood today, and when we see political demagogoues advising a decrease of production and a shortening of the weekly hours of labor, without decrease of wages, in order to provide work for all in a given industry and to prevent unemployment, the question arises whether these men are woefully ignorant or wilfully untruthful.

No permanent gain can come to any branch of industry through sloth and inefficiency, and the law of supply and demand, as well as the laws of nature, is at work all the time, in spite of the misleaders of the people who ascribe all unemployment to a conspiracy of Wall Street bankers for the purpose of reducing wages.—Commercial Bulletin.

WHERE ARE THE RESERVES?

Yesterday with the thermometer at the zero mark and scores of citizens without fuel and beseiging the offices of the dealers for coal which could not be sold to them because there was none to sell should have seen the City's fuel department as the saviour of the situation.

Unfortunately the City could not pose in that role, for the fuel department had no coal to offer.

Instead of planning for the emergency that it should have seen was inevitable, the committee did nothing but bring in a few cars of coal which it sold out months ago and a quantity of wood which it could not get rid of so readily.

The Examiner urged that any supply of coal that could be obtained should be held by the City in reserve, ready to be rationed out in small quantities when the need arose.

Had that been done many families could have fallen back upon the City's reserve for the few hundred pounds of coal that would carry them over until some of the dealers succeeded in securing a suppy.

The City's coal supply would have been insurance against a fuel famine.

But there is no City supply and therefore no insurance.

The small shipments of coal that are reaching the dealers are inadequate to meet the demand.

Yesterday morning there was no anthracite to be had, after two dealers disposed of a car load in fifteen minutes.

And the warning of the American fuel controller that more drastic regulations in regard to the use of substitutes must be adopted in Canada as they have across the line, leaves the situation far from reassuring.

In the emergency the City's fuel department is merely a broken reed.

It cannot, however, be allowed to remain so, if the fuel situation does not show an immediate improvement ,and there is no indication of any change for the better.

Before long it may be necessary to give the City's police, authority to act as had to be done in the fuel famine during the war.

Even a system of rationing may have to be resorted to—and strongest meastures taken to see that the fuel is distributed as equitably as possible.

CROP REPORTS

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The comparatively empty condition of many farm wells which has been causing considerble anxiety during the last month or more, continues ,and it is feared by some representatives that the cold weather may aggravate the situation.

Grey claims that some farmers in the Meaford district had from 900 to 2,000 barrels of apples this year. As high as $4,000 was paid for the product of some of the larger orchards.

A farmer in Grey county sold his sweet clover seed at from $2.75 to $3 a bushed, and averaged about $27 an acre .

According to the Renfrew representative, local merchants are reporting that farmers are buying only necessary articles owing to the low values of agricultural products .

The Algoma representative saw plowing done on two farms on the 4th of December, with no frost in the ground to hinder the work, a record for New Ontario.

At recent sales in Waterloo, prices were better for all classes of live stock except horses, which are usually dull at this season Ordinary grade cows sold at $80 and better, while good grades were worth all the way from $100 to $125.

Bruce reports: "Shipments of choice fat cattle left several stations during the past week. Two choice baby beef calves weighing around 1,000 pounds left Chesley this week and brought around 12c at Toronto. These two calves were fed by boys in the Baby Beef Competition. A car load of heavy draught horses were shipped from Ripley recently and were purchased for $200 to $250 each."

Brant statse: "The price of fat cattle is not in keeping with the present price of feeding stock. Feeders have been sold as high as 6c per lb., although the average would be about 5½c. At the same time fairly good butcher cattle are bought around 7c. Little pigs are selling at about $12 per pair, although just now the demand has slackened somewhat, it requiring good pigs to bring that price. Some lambs were recently sold at 12c per lb. At the recent pure-bred Holstein consignment sale in the county 35 females brought an average price of $189 while eight males averaged $105. With the exception of two small females included in this sale list, the average price was well above $200."

Milk is selling at $2 a cwt. in Frontenac, and butter fat around 40c a lb. Condensary price for milk of standard quality in Elgin is $2.10 a cwt.

Peterboro says: "Generally speaking, factory patrons are letting their cows go dry. There are some, however, who are shipping either the cream or whole milk out to the larger centres."

Brant claims that the increased price of milk is shown in the improved price of dairy cows at the farm sales, good grade cows running in price from $75 to $90.

Wentworth says that a more general interest is being taken in the grading of hogs, and that many farmers are securing better sows and boars.

Peterboro states that hogs in that district have been grading around 35 per cent. selects.

Grey states that a larger number of live chickens are being marketed this year .

Rainy River says: "A busy winter is expected in the bush. A quantity of pulp wood already cut. Men are being paid $4 per double cord for cutting. A good man can cut a cord per day."

CANADA'S CROP.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Speaking of the record crop movement in the Canadian West during the past season, and the part the railways played in the marketing of it, D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, addressing the Kiwanis Club luncheon here yesterday, declared Winnipeg was now the greatest wheat market in the world in the point of receipts. He quoted figures showing that inspections for at Chicago totalled 8,275,500 bushels, the three months ending November Minneapolis 45,969,100 bushels, while inspections at Winnipeg for the same period amounted to 108,231,513 bushels.

AFTER THEIR LIQUOR.

OTTAWA, Dec. 20.—Mounted police chased a man who sold bad liquor 1,500 miles. Citizens of the U.S. are said to have chased men with any kind of liquor further than that.

MURINE For Your EYES

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

There was a sudden snigger from a nervous gentleman in the crowd at the back of the room, and the coroner put on his glasses and stared sternly in the direction from which it came. The nervous gentleman hastily decided that the time had come to do up his bootlace. The coroner put down his glasses and continued.

"Did anybody come out of the house while you were coming up the drive?"

"No."

"Thank you, Mr. Gillingham."

He was followed by Inspector Birch. The Inspector, realizing that this was his afternoon, and that the eyes of the world were upon him, produced a plan of the house and explained the situation of the different rooms. The plan was then handed to the jury.

Inspector Birch, so he told the world, had arrived at the Red House at 4.42 p. m. on the afternoon in question. He had been received by Mr. Matthew Cayley, who had made a short statement to him, and he had then proceeded to examine the scene of the crime.

The french windows had been forced from outside. The door leading into the hall was locked; he had searched the room thoroughly and had found no trace of a key. In the bedroom leading out of the office he had found an open window. There were no marks on the window, but it was a low one, and, as he found from experiment, quite easy to step out of without touching it with the boots.

A few yards outside the window a shrubbery began. There were no recent footmarks outside the window, but the ground was in a very hard condition owing to the absence of rain. In the shrubbery, however, he found several twigs on the ground, recently broken off, together with other evidence that some body had been forcing its way through.

He had questioned everybody connected with the estate, and none of them had been into the shrubbery recently. By forcing a way through the shrubbery it was possible for a person to make a detour of the house and get to the Stanton end of the park without ever being in sight of the house itself.

He had made inquiries about the deceased. Deceased had left for Australia some fifteen years ago, owing to some financial trouble at home. Deceased was not well spoken of in the village from which he and his brother had come. Deceased and his brother had never been on good terms, and the fact that Mark Ablett had come into money had been a cause of great bitterness between them. It was shortly after this that Robert had left for Australia.

He had made inquiries at Stanton station. It had been market-day at Stanton and the station had been more full of arrivals than usual. Nobody had particularly noticed the arrival of Robert Ablett; there had been a good many passengers by the 2.10 train that afternoon, the train by which Robert had undoubtedly come from London. A witness, however, would state that he noticed a man resembling Mark Ablett at the station at 3.53 that afternoon, and this man caught the 3.55 up train to town.

There was a pond in the grounds of the Red House. He had dragged this, but without result. . . .

Antony listened to him carelessly, thinking his own thoughts all the time. Medical evidence followed, but there was nothing to be got from that. He felt so close to the truth; at any moment something might give his brain the one little hint which it wanted. Inspector Birch was just pursuing the ordinary. Whatever else this case was, it was not ordinary. There was something uncanny about it.

Antony went on with his thoughts.

The coroner was summing up. The jury, he said, had now heard all the evidence. The medical evidence would probably satisfy them that Robert Ablett had died from the effects of a bullet-wound in the head. Who had fired that bullet? If Robert Ablett had fired it himself, no doubt they would bring in a verdict of suicide, but if this had been so, where was the revolver which had fired it, and what had become of Mark Ablett?

If they disbelieved in this possibility of suicide, what remained? Accidental death, justifiable homicide, and murder. Could the deceased have been killed accidentally? It was possible, but then would Mark Ablett have run away?

The evidence that he had run

"WHEN DID THIS HAPPEN?" HE ASKED.

away from the scene of the crime was strong. His cousin had seen him go into the room, the servant Elsie Wood had heard him quarreling with his brother in the room, the door had been locked from the inside, and there were signs that outside the open window someone had pushed his way very recently through the shrubbery. Who, if not Mark?

They would have then to consider whether he would have run away if he had been guiltless of his brother's death. No doubt innocent people lost their heads sometimes. It was possible that if it were proved afterward that Mark Ablett had shot his brother, it might also be proved that he was justified in so doing, and that when he ran away from his brother's corpse he had really nothing to fear at the hands of the law. Mark Ablett guilty of murder it would not prejudice his trial in any way if and when he was apprehended. . . . The jury would consider their verdict.

They considered it. They announced that the deceased had died as the result of a bullet-wound, and that the bullet had been fired by his brother Mark Ablett.

Bill turned round to Antony at his side. But Antony was gone. Across the room he saw Andrew Amos and Parsons going out of the door together with Antony between them.

CHAPTER XIX

THE inquest had been held at the "Lamb" at Stanton; at Stanton Robert Ablett was to be buried the next day. Bill waited about outside for his friend, wondering where he had gone.

Then, realizing that Cayley would be coming out to his car directly, and that a farewell talk with Cayley would be a little embarrassing, he wandered round to the yard at the back of the inn, lit a cigarette, and stood surveying a torn and weather-beaten poster on the stable wall. "Grand Theatrical Enter" it announced, to take place on "Wednesday, Decem."

Bill smiled to himself as he looked at it, for the part of Joe, a loquacious postman, had been played by "William B. Beverl," as the remnants of the poster still maintained, and he had been much less loquacious than the author had intended, having forgotten his words completely, but it had all been great fun.

"Sorry to keep you waiting," said the voice of Antony behind him. "My old friends Amos and Parsons insisted on giving me a drink."

He slipped his hand into the crook of Bill's arm, and smiled happily at him.

"Why were you so keen about them?" asked Bill a little resentfully. "I couldn't think where on earth you had got to."

Antony didn't say anything. He was staring at the poster.

"When did this happen?" he asked.

"What?"

Antony waved to the poster.

"Oh, that? Last Christmas. It was rather fun."

Antony began to laugh to himself.

"Were you good?"

"Rotten. I don't profess to be an actor."

"Mark good?"

"Oh, rather. He loves it."

"Rev. Henry Stutters—Mr. Matthew Cay," read Antony. "Was that our friend Cayley?"

"Yes."

"Any good?"

"Well, much better than I expected. He wasn't keen, but Mark made him."

"Miss Norris wasn't playing, I see."

"My dear Tony, she's a professional. Of course she wasn't."

"I'm a fool, and a damned fool," Antony announced solemnly. "And a damned fool," he said again under his breath, as he led Bill away from the poster, and out of the yard into the road. "And a damned fool. Even now—" He broke off and then asked suddenly, "Did Mark ever have much trouble with his teeth?"

"He went to his dentist a good deal. But what on earth—"

Antony laughed a third time.

"What luck!" he chuckled. "But how do you know?"

"We go to the same man; Mark recommended him to me. Cartwright, in Wimpole Street."

"Cartwright in Wimpole Street," repeated Antony thoughtfully. "Yes, I can remember that. Cartwright in Wimpole Street. Did Cayley go to him too, by any chance?"

"I expect so. Oh, yes, I know he did. But what on earth—"

"What was Mark's general health like? Did he see a doctor much?"

"Hardly at all, I should think. He did a lot of early morning exercises which were supposed to make him bright and cheerful at breakfast. They didn't do that, but they seemed to keep him pretty fit. Tony, I wish you'd—"

Antony held up a hand and hushed him into silence.

"One last question," he said. "Was Mark fond of swimming?"

"No, he hated it. I don't believe he could swim. Tony, are you mad, or am I? Or is this a new game?"

Antony squeezed his arm.

"Dear old Bill," he said. "It's a game. What a game! And the answer is Cartwright in Wimpole Street."

They walked in silence for half a mile or so along the road to Woodham. Bill tried two or three times to get his friend to talk, but Antony had only grunted in reply. He was just going to make another attempt, when Antony came to a sudden stop and turned to him anxiously.

"I wonder if you'd do something for me," he said, looking at him with some doubt.

"What sort of thing?"

"Well, it's really dashed important. It's just the one thing I want now."

Bill was suddenly enthusiastic again.

"I say, have you really found it all out?"

Antony nodded.

"At least, I'm very nearly there, Bill. There's just this one thing I want now. It means your going back to Stanton. Well, we haven't come far; it won't take you long. Do you mind?"

"My dear Holmes, I am at your service."

THE MILLBROOK COUNCIL MEET

May Establish a Milk Condensing Plant in Town—The School Question.

MILLBROOK, December 20. — The Council held their last meeting for 1922 on Friday evening, the R eve in the chair, and there were present Councillors Eakins, Sayles, Lang, and Stinson.

A communication was read from the City Dairy Company re establishing a milk condensing plant here, and the clerk was instructed to write stating that prominent farmers in the community are taking the matter up as fully as possible, and will communicate with Toronto as soon as results are obtainable.

Two hundred eight-gallon cans per day are required by the City Dairy during the winter months, and more, of course, during other seasons.

Mr. Urry waited on the Council re his business tax, asking a rebate as the showrooms had not been occupied until 1st May.

On motion, he was allowed a rebate for four months previous to that date.

The usual accounts, amounting to about $600.00, including salaries, were ordered passed.

The firemen's monthly report was submitted by Chief J. J. Clarke, showing equipment in good condition, and firemen all at practice when called for.

A communication received from the Fire Underwriters' Association re the necessary precautions in regard to equipment, fire apparatus, etc., was received and filed, required action being taken.

Collector Richards submitted his report showing a balance of unpaid taxes amounting to $590.00. The period for collecting these was extended until 1st February, 1923.

After a practical discussion of the school question in all its bearings, it was moved by Couns. Eakins and Stinson, that the final decision on the by-law to raise $30,000 for building and improvements, be laid over to be dealt with by the 1923 Council.

Moved in amendment by Couns. Lang and Sayles, that the by-law be passed and given its first reading.

The Reeve having the casting vote, the original motion carried.

DEDICATES TABLET LAKEFIELD CHURCH.

In Memory of the Late Wm. M. Graham, An Exemplary Citizen.

LAKEFIELD, December 20. — At the Sunday morning service in St. John the Baptist Church, the rector, Rev. C. Grant King, was assisted by Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, the occasion being the dedication of a tablet to the memory of the late William M. Graham.

Mr. Mackenzie, in his usual sincere and reverent manner, dedicated the tablet, and preached the sermon, the rector, to whom Mr. Graham was unknown, most kindly yielding first place to his friend.

Rev. Mr. Mackenzie compared the late Mr. Graham to Simeon, who is described in St. Luke's Gospel as a just and devout man, pointing out that it is not given to every man to be both just and devout, as the two characteristics do not always go together.

The speaker further stated that the village and the parish are the poorer for the passing of Mr. Graham, whom he had known as a personal friend for years.

The memorial is a plain brass tablet, surmounted by a small Celtic cross—a symbol the deceased greatly loved and reverenced—and contains the following words:

"To the Glory of God, and in loving memory of William Menzies Graham, who died January 16th, 1921, in his Sixty-fifth Year.

"'Faithful in that which was least.'"

The tablet was erected by the wife and daughter of the deceased.

"It is well known that car equipment in the United States to-day is inadequate to meet present requirements. Hence, if the communities are not protected with say, lump soft coal, no time should be lost in getting a reasonable quantity in to supplement any tonnage of hard coal received, and in addition to be able to keep the community warm for a few weeks in case weather conditions might seriously interfere with traffic movement. If municipal officers do not take such steps in conjunction with their dealers, it is useless to appeal to fuel controllers for relief should any municipality suddenly find itself without fuel at a time when the movement of coal may be a matter of grave difficulty owing to stormy weather."

ANNUAL CONTEST HELD MILLBROOK

Pupils of the Continuation School Take Part—The Programme.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 20.—The annual elocutionary and oratorical contest by pupils of the Continuation school, held in the Town Hall on Monday evening, drew an audience which comfortably filled the auditorium. Naturally the relatives and friends of the contestants were particularly interested and also the members of the Trustee Board and of the Town Council, as the medals being competed for were presented by these two organizations.

Mr. Allen Pitt, president of the Continuation School Literary Society, made his debut as a chairman, making a brief opening speech, and fulfilling the duties of his position most creditably. The opening number on the programme was a piano duet by Marjorie Sayles and Gladys Tucker ,and following this the various contestants were called by number, those competing in oratory being: Francis Turner, whose subject was, "If ye break faith," from Lieutenant-Colonel McCrea's poem, "In Flanders Fields," Ethel Falls, who spoke on, "The Near East Situation in some of its Outstanding Characteristics," and Florence Fallis, who had chosen the topic, "The Conservation of Canada's Natural Resources." All three of the girls handled their subjects remarkably well, the material in their speeches being full of information, and thoroughly prepared.

These entering the elocutionary contest, with their selections, were: Gwendolyn Hutchison, "How Horatious Kept the Bridge," Vera Weeks, "The Parting of Marmion and Douglas," Muriel Matchett, "Jean Val Jean," Pearl Lamb, "The Island of the Scots," Kathleen Freelove, "The Sleep-Walking Scene" from Macbeth, Roma Roberts, "Young Lochinvar," Elsie Spence, "As Red Men Die," Ida Payne, "The Cattle Thief," and Jean Burnham, "The Burial March of Dundee."

The general feeling was that all had done so well the judges, who included Rev. Canon Allen, Mr. A. A. Smith, sec'y-treasurer of the school board, and Miss Isabel Handley, principal of the Public school, would have a most difficult task in awarding a decision. While the judges retired to consider their verdict, a staff drill, by eight boys, Russell Fallis, Nelles Rowland, Stanford Gilmour, Ernest Burnham, Robert Shaw, Percy Pitt, Dickson Hutchison and Richard Matchett, and a chorus, "Land of Hope and Glory," by 9 girls, Gertie Gray, Elsie Weeks, Hazel Sanderson, Gladys Tucker, Marjorie Sayles, Muriel Lang, Celie Pople, Dorothy Armstrong and Bonna Robinson, entertained the audience acceptably, after which Miss Money presented the diplomas to the pupils who graduated last June from the Continuation school. This is the first year such diplomas have been granted by the Department of Education, and they are given to those who have passed their Lower School examinations, with eight subjects of the Middle School, including British History, English Literature and English Composition; the fortunate pupils were: Irene Patton, Kathleen Lancashire, Jean Russell, Francis Turner, Marguerite Russell, Edith Deyell, Helen Syer, Howard Lancashire, William Needler ,and Gerald Staples.

Rev. Canon Allen was then asked to come to the platform and announce the judges' decision, and Reeve W. T. Wood and Mr. A. A. Smith were requested to present the medals on behalf of the Council and the School Board. In the oratorical contest the awards were: 1, Ethel Fallis; 2, Francis Turner; and in the elocutionary competition: 1, Ida Payne; 2, Kathleen Freelove. The reeve stated that as only one boy had competed the last time a similar contest was held, and none at all this year, he thought the Council would feel obliged to offer a special prize for boys to induce them to take some part in the event.

Much credit is due Miss Money, Principal and Miss Hood, Assistant Principal, for the successful carrying out of so interesting a programme as was presented by their pupils on Monday evening, as it undoubtedly involved heavy responsibility and a very considerable amount of anxiety and preparation. The energy was well worth while, however, as the pupils themselves would reap the most lasting benefit through the effort they were obliged to put forth in becoming familiar with current events, and in memorizing selections of good literature.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the programme to a close.

CLAIMS DAMAGES FOR WRONGFUL DISMISSAL

WINNIPEG, Dec. 20.— (Canadian Press).—Claiming $50,000 damages for alleged wrongful dismissal, Professor W. G. Smith has entered suit against Wesley College here. He has registered a statement of claim in the King's Bench and the announcement is made that the College board has decided unanimously to fight the claim.

Prof. Smith, formerly a member of the Toronto University Faculty for twenty years, was appointed to the Wesley College September 1, 1921 continuing as a member of the staff to July 5 1922, when he was advised that his services were no longer required.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Capacity Audience at the Baptist Entertainment —Seymour Women's Institute Met -- Personal News.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20.—The entertainment given last evening by the Sunday School of the Baptist Church was well attended, the church being taxed to its capacity. A most interesting programme of thoruses, recitations, solos and the cantata, "Cheer Up, Cornelia," was rendered. The opening numbers consisted of choruses and recitations by the primary department, in charge of Miss Weston, and revealed careful training. An interesting feature was a physical drill by twelve young girls, and the number, "Witnessing a Wedding," by a number of junior boys and girls, merited hearty applause. Recitations were well rendered by Masters Manson Labrash, Warren Reid, Walter Twigg, Edwin Sanderson and little Helen Montgomery. The choruses by the school, "Hail the Dawning of the Fairest Morning," and crown with holly Christmastide, were well received.

The case of the cantata, which was much appreciated, was as follows: Cornelia (manager of a restaurant), Miss Helen Cairns; Norah (her cook), Miss Myrtle Hall; Boarding House Girls: Misses Mary Shore, Winnie Glenn, Eunice Richardson, Ida Adams, Mabel Howe Hilda Sanderson; Professor Moore of the College, Clifford Carter Rastus (colored waiter in restaurant), Harry Willoughby; College Boys, Gerald Labrash, Arthur Labrash and Percy Bland; Amelia and Amanda Fusitt (two maiden ladies), Misses Verna Shore and Helen Dunn; Sabrina Sellers (seller of soap who proves to be Aunt Lucy), Miss Winnifrid Carter.

Each member of the cast took his or her part with special credit, and emphasized the spirit of spreading good cheer at Christmas time. The pastor, teachers and pupils are to be congratulated upon the success of last evening's splendid offering.

Seymour Women's Institute.

The regular monthly meeting of Seymour West Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Robt. McCulloch on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 14, at the usual hour, the president presiding. The meeting opened by singing the "Maple Leaf," following by the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of last meeting were read, adopted and signed, followed by the roll call, after which some new members joined. A letter was read by the secretary from the Red Cross, thanking the Seymour West Women's Institute for the box of clothing which was sent to the fire sufferers of New Ontario. A very interesting report of the convention was given by Mrs. David Stillman, who thanked the institute for sending her as a delegate. The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King." Owing to the busy season there was not a very large attendance.

Personal Mention.

Charlie English, who is attending Belleville Collegiate Institute, is spending the holidays at the home of his mother, Mrs. I. English.

Miss Jennie Graham has been accepted as nurse-in-training at Garfield Memorial Hospital, Washington, D.C., and leaves next month to assume her duties.

Those customers of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's telegraph who desire to patronize its services during this Christmas season will do so, not on the ordinary yellow blank with its uninteresting printed rules, but on a pure white sheet that with its accompanying white envelope, resembles a very pretty Christmas card, instead of a prosaic telegram. In the season's colors of red and blue, of green and gold, an artistic design tops the envelope and blank. On both, triple golden joy bells have a background of spiked holly and mistletoe, the envelope shows an ancient hour-glass for the departing and entering years, while on either side of the telegraph form, a dying flame from the candle of 1922, and the freshly-lighted taper of 1923, symbolize in blue and gold the old and new twelvemonths.

CARNEAU ENQUIRY.

QUEBEC, Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press).—There are still some hopes that the enquiry into the circumstances surrounding the murder of Blanche Garneau, a young Quebec girl, more than two years ago, and the manner in which the Attorney-General's Department of this Province handled the case, which is being held before a Royal Commission in this city, may conclude this week.

The Commission has now been sitting for nearly five weeks, and on Monday one of the lawyers had announced he had a list of forty-five witnesses he wished to bring before the Commission.

None of the evidence produced yesterday was of a very serious nature. The majority of the witnesses admitted that they knew nothing at all about the murder, and the others could give very little information to the Commission.

AUTOMOBILE EXPORT.

OTTAWA, Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Canada spent $1,105,410 in the United States for automobile parts during November, 1922, according to a report of the External Trade branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. During the same month Canada spent $7,901 for automobile parts in Great Britain, $2,330 in Italy and $277 in Switzerland. The total expenditure, $1,115,918, shows a remarkable increase over the value of imported automobile parts during November, 1921, when importations amounted to only $415,882.

TABLET UNVEILED

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press). — A bronze tablet commemorating the war services of thirteen past members of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, was unveiled yesterday afternoon by Sir Archibald MacDonell, commandant of the Royal Military College. Among the names appearing on the tablet were those of two who made the supreme sacrifice: Second Lieutenant R. H. Ferguson and Flight Cadet G. F. Small.

MOTHERS

AND THEIR CHILDREN

GOING TO BED A PLEASURE

I never punish my children by sending them to bed. For that reason I never have to coax or threaten to make them go. Sometimes they find a little surprise slipped under the pillow—a peppermint, a picture cut-out, or some small toy.

"Tricks of the Trade in Raising Children"

Ideas for Mothers, contributed by Mothers. Ideas that really work. Ideas that will save hours of time and days of worry. Ideas that will prevent sickness and preserve health. Ideas that every wise Mother is eager to get.

"MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN" BEGINS IN THE EXAMINER

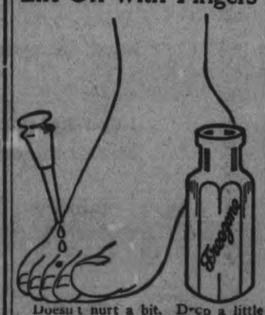
CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit. Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

A Little of Everything

LUXURY.

What is your idea of the last word in luxury? Caligula, Roman emperor, had a favorite horse named Irritatus. He fed this horse gilded oats from an ivory manager in a marble stable, and allowed him to drink only the most delicious of wines. Irritatus had a palace, with servants, in which he "entertaine" other horses. Caligula also appointed this favorite steed a counsul or honorary chief magistrate.

Fine to read about. But this luxury was supported by human slavery. So is nearly all modern luxury.

NERO.

The "Golden House of Nero" was more than a mile long. It contained artificial lakes, orchards and won drous gardens. The palace of the emperor was floored with tiles of solid gold. Walls and ceilings were inlaid with gold, jewels, ivory. The roof of the banquet hall resembled the sky at night, the stars and moon moving mechanically with astronomical accuracy. Occasionally, from this artificial sky, came a rain of perfume drops.

No, we don't have such luxuries in modern civilization. But there are several rich men in America who could have a more costly palace if they wanted it. The people do not object to gigantic wealth as long as it is kept under cover instead of goadingly flaunted before their eyes.

"BARBAROUS."

Turkey bars the importation of alcoholic drinks. Present stocks must be consumed within 60 days, or be destroyed.

At Angora the Turkish Government makes a law, all Turks must submit to medical examination before marriage.

The deposed sultan's fabulous wealth will be confiscated—but only after carefully debated legislation.

The "barbarous Turk" seems to be getting civilized, whatever that is.

No one has ever given a satisfactory and comprehensive definition of "civilization." Can you?

TABOO.

Latest inventory shows over 36,000,000 gallons of whiskey stored in distilleries and bonded warehouses. It will console wets to know that the stuff still exists somewhere, even if it's taboo.

What will be prohibited next? You never can tell. Maine begins enforcing a law prohibiting the serving of ice in any kind of drink, even water, in hotels or public eating places. The ice cannot come in contact with the fluid to be drunk. This is sensible prohibition—where ice is apt to contain germs. Individualists will object, preferring to let people decide for themselves.

PRESENTS.

An auction of unclaimed parcels from the dead letter branch of the postoffice is held in the east. It brings about $7500. The parcels, when opened, are found to contain everything from toy mice to shotguns.

Meantime, people who mailed the parcels are wondering why they weren't delivered. The answer is: They were addressed improperly and could be neither delivered nor returned to the senders.

Address your Christmas parcels carefully. Be sure to write your return address in ink, on the packages. Labels may come off.

101.

A man 101 years old in Terre Haute, Ind., submits willingly to having a guardan apponted for hm. He says he realizes he's so old that he's incompetent to handle his own affairs.

A lot of talk, about science prolonging human life. Its weak point is that it is based on rejuvenating the body, not much attention to restoring youth to the mind. One's futile without the other. The wise old man of 101 knows it.

WHEN KIDNEYS HURT TAKE GLASS OF SALTS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble.

Too much meat may form uric acid, which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Big meat eaters can flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like they relieve the bowels, removing all the acids, waste and poison, else they may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach is coated, and when the weather is bad they have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to help cleanand stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent various kidney and bladder disorders.

PACKING COMPANIES TO CONSOLIDATE SHORTLY

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press)—According to a story printed by the Chicago Tribune, Consolidation of Armour and Company and Morris and Company two of the largest concerns among the "Big Five" Meat Packing Company, is expected to be formally announced within ten days.

It is reported that the financing involved in this consolidation will be thirteen $40,000,000,000 and $50,000,000,000. Payment is to be made one third in cash and two thirds in Armour and Company preferred and common stocks it is said.

RIO EXPOSITION WILL CLOSE ON MARCH 31

Impossible to Run Event For Longer Period Than Scheduled.

RIO DE JANEIRO. (By mail to the United Press).—Officials of the Brazilian Centenary Exposition today declared to a correspondent of the United Press that the closing date of the exposition—March 31, 1923—will not be extended as has been rumored.

The officials also declared that the rumor that the exposition would close on March 31, as scheduled and then reopen later, is entirely without foundation. It would be impossible to run the exposition for a longer period than for which it was scheduled previous to inauguration on September 7. The foreign governments represented by special missions to the exposition have their delegations on a budget and extension of the exposition would, in most cases, necessitate congressional legislation. Such legislation could not be adopted in sufficient time.

JAIL WAS CHRISTENED WITH REAL MOONSHINE

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 20.—(United Press)—The first stone of Mongonalia county's new jail was put in place with a christening of moonshine. No observance had been planned, but Sheriff Yest chanced on the scene as the first ponderous stone was swung into place. The sheriff held up proceedings and dashed into his office where he obtained a bottle of "corn," possession of which had placed one man behind the bars of the old jail.

With pomp and ceremony Sheriff Yest broke the moonshine liquor over the cornerstone.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

On her marriage eve, a Persian girl's maids hold over her head a copy of the Koran for luck, and a mirror to double the length of her life.

She kisses the hearthstone on leaving home, and carries with her, again for luck, bread, salt and a piece of gold.

The slaves who form part of her dowry accompany her to the bridegroom's home, where the wedding guests are waiting.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, December 20. Canadian Press. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Demand, 4.6521.
Cables, 4.6546.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, December 20. — Canadian Press. — There was no actual change in the condition of the local cash grain market with prices firmly maintained. A firm feeling prevails in the flour market. The demand from the United States buyers for Canadian millfeed for shipment to the United States markets continues good with a steady trade reported and the tone of the local market is firm. Trade in baled hay is slow. There was no further change in the egg market and the position of the potato crop is unchanged. The volume of business in butter is smaller with a very firm feeling prevalent. There is almost nothing doing in cheese.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 20. Canadian Press. — Receipts 865 cattle and calves, 1085 hogs and 67 sheep and lambs.

With the trading extremely low, bidding on the cattle market showed no improvement this morning.

There was a restricted enquiry for all classes and grades. Butcher cows ranged from 2.50 to 2.75; heavy butchers 5.00; killing steers 3.50 to 4.25, feeder steers 2.00 to 4.00.

The hog market was slightly firmer at 9.15 for thick smooths, and salesmen holding for 9.25.

The handful of good lambs on offer were priced at 9.50 and good sheep at 5.50.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, December 20. Canadian Press. — The movement of poultry is becoming more free and it looks very much as though the present prices would hold until after the holiday season.

In Montreal turkeys were jobbing at from 45 to 48. The egg market remains practically unchanged. If anything the feeling iss lightly firmer for storage and in one instance a carload of extras is reported to have changed hands at 45.

Toronto unchanged.

Montreal specials, jobbing, 75 to 85c, storage extras 46 to 48; firsts 41 to 42; seconds 38. Turkeys jobbing 45 to 47; retailing 52 to 55; geese jobbing 30 to 32; retailing 37.

Western markets unchanged.

Prince Edward Island country points 42 to 44, retail Charlottetown 46 to 50.

Chicago fresh receipts heavier, market weaker undertone; prices unchanged.

New York firmer, fresh firsts 56 to 59; refrigerators 32 to 33.

CHICAGO, December 20. Canadian Press. — The government figures sugesting that the new winter wheat crop would be 15,000,000 bushels larger as compared with the corresponding estimates at this time last year had a bearish effect on the wheat market yesterday. The closing prices were unsettled, ranging from 5-8c net lower to 1-8c advance, with May $1.25 1-8 to $1.25 1-4 and July $1.15 5-8 to $1.15 3-4. Corn finished at 34 and 7-8c decline to 1-4c gain and oats off 1-8 to 3-4c; in provisions, the outcome was unchanged to 15c down.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, December 20. Canadian Press. — Cattle receipts were 13,000; most beef steers better; best grades, cows, stockers and feeders unevenly weak to weak; few loads of steers selling 8.75 to 11.50, around steady; top matured beef steers 12.75, weight 1350 pounds; best yearlings 10.75; choice heifers fed with top steers 10.00; bulk native beef steers 8.00 and 9.50; canners and cutters bulls and vealers around steady; spots strong; bulk bologna bulls 4.25 to 4.35; bulk veals to packers 9.25 to 9.75, a few 10.00.

Hogs receipts 48,000; early market 5 to 10c lower than yesterday's best time; closing active with some recovery on butchers; bulk 230 to 300 pound butchers 8.10 to 8.15; bulk 190 to 210 pound average 8.20; 140 to 180 pound average mostly 8.25 to 8.30; top 8.30; packing sows 7.25 to 7.80; desirable pigs 8.00 to 8.25; left over liberal at noon.

Sheep receipts 13,000, fat wooled lambs 15c to 25c lower; clipped kind mostly steady; top 15.15 to shippers, 14.90 to packers; bulk 14.25 to 14.75; bulls mostly 11.00 to 12.00; feeders steady; desirable 66 pound feeding lambs 14.65; fed 85 pound yearlings wethers 12.25; sheep fully steady; heavy fat ewes 5.00 and 6.00 slighter weights upward to 7.50; one double choice 118 pound aged wether 8.50.

NO ONE BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT

shoved out the clutch but did not apply the brakes. Seeing that he could not stop before he would be on the tracks ,he then let the clutch in and again stepped on the gas. But it was to late, for the locomotive caught the rear end of the car and threw it a distance of about thirty feet away severely injuring his wife and slightly injuring his daughter as well as himself. Both the mother and daughter were thrown out, though Mr. Grant still remained in the car. Doctors were summoned and an ambulance took Mrs. Grant to Nicholls, where she died three days later.

Physician's Evidence

Dr. A. Moir, the attending physician gave evidence in that Mrs. Grant received a large bruise at the right side of her head about three inches long and one and a half wide severely injured back and a severe shaking up. On the second day in the Hospital Mrs. Grant developed pneumonia, which in complication with her injuries caused death. In concluding he deposed that he was firmly satisfied that the deceased's death was due to the injuries she received in the accident, for he had just examined her about ten days prior, when she was in good physical health.

Other Depositions.

The following witnesses gave evidence in turn as called: Miss Anna Grant, Mr. Roy Allison, an eye witness, Miss Moffat, an eye witness, Mrs. A. Breckenridge, an eye witness, Mr. Lavoie, engineer on the G.T.R. train; Mr. Vincent Brown, fireman on the train; Mr. Chas. Hansford, conductor on the train; Mr H. B. Lockwood, trainmaster on the train; Mr. V. Graves, baggageman on the train.

The jury's finding was as follows: "We find that Mrs. Geo. Grant died at the Nicholls Hospital, Dec. 10, 1922, as the result of an accident which occurred on Dec. 7, 1922,when an auto in which she was riding was struck by a G.T.R train on Water Street, Peterboro, where the railway tracks cross Water street in the north end of the City of Peterboro.

"According to the evidence given, the railway where the accident occurred is a dangerous place, and should be protected, and we recommend that some action be taken to prevent the reoccurrence of such accidents in the future."

The jurors were as follows: J. M. Greene, foreman: C. R. Banks, Jas. Fowler, Wm. Rudkins, Fred Roseborough, Sam. Houlihan, Herb Routley, P. Bolton, George Evans, P. E. Rutherford, W. G. Reid and J. O. Fife.

SALVATION ARMY BAND SERENADING

Will Commence To-morrow Night and Will Continue Until New Year.

The Salvation Army Band, whose usual custom it is to serenade during Christmas week, will commence their serenading to-morrow evening, Thursday, the 21st.

The organization is purely a voluntary one, and gives the citizens a lot of good music throughout the year. The funds that are received are carefully spent, and no doubt the band will be just as well received as in former years.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of my little niece, Marguerite Doreen Simpson, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Simpson, who was laid to rest Dec. 15th. A touching, impressive funeral service was conducted at the house, the Rev. Mr. Ross officiating.

"Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me."

Only a precious blossom
Too pure for sin to stain,
So Jesus in love has taken her
Back to Himself again.
You dear little winsome pet
With baby ways ever new,
And your little childish prattle
Each day you dearer grew.

Only a rare, sweet jewel
For one brief season lent,
Now you have suddenly left us,
Our hearts with grief are rent.
Just a sweet ray of sunshine
Filling your home with light,
But the light has been extinguished,
And oh! how dark the night.

Of sorrow and bitter anguish
On your parents' hearts has fell.
How much they miss you, darling,
None but their loving hearts can tell
Never a day of sickness
Had our little darling known,
But Jesus came and claimed her
To cherish "As His Own."

But your parents' arms are empty
And their eyes with tears are filled,
In their hearts an aching void
For your little form is stilled.
Their loving hearts are broken
In the loss they have sustained,
You've left a vacancy in their home
That ne'er can be filled again.

Why this bitter trial
None of us can tell.
God's will be done, not our's
He doeth all things well.
Their sorrowing hearts has known,
May Christ's strong Arms of Love
Be close around them thrown.

May Jesus the Christ Himself
Who spoke peace to the storm tost sea
From the little snow-clad grave
Speak words of peace to thee.
List, He is softly speaking
Words full of hope and cheer,
"Comfort your hearts, fond parents,
Your darling is not here."

I've gently transplanted your baby
To the Homeland in the Sky
You shall see her again in the morning
In your Heavenly Home on high.
You there shall caress your darling
And clasp her again to your breast
Ne'er to be parted from her
In the Land where there is no death.

May you, in the Saviour's glad message
Warm hope and courage find,
And may the peace of Jesus
Descend on your hearts and mind.
May Jesus, the Great Physician,
With His comforting Gilead's balm
Heal your poor broken hearts,
Making the storm "a calm."

Sleep on, you sweet wee darling,
Safe in your Saviour's care,
We'll meet you in the morning
In the Homeland bright and fair,
And in the "glad re-union"
When all tears shall be wiped away
We'll forget the dark night of sadness
In the Land of "Eternal Day."

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Mrs. George Watley, who passed away December 19th, 1921, age 82:

Dear mother you have gone from here
The Saviour thought it best
To take you to his heavenly home
To dwell among the blest.

Just one year ago to-day
Your loving Lord called you away
Where you always longed to go,
From a world of sin and woe.

Her loved ones there she longed to see
And clasp their friendly hand
And join in that eternal throng
Safe in the happy land.

She was a Mother kind and true,
A patient, loving Mother, too,
She always was so kind to all
Ready to answer any call.

And all sickness she did bear,
With patience and with love,
Only trusting on her Lord
To take her home above.

In her rocking chair she often sat
Her Bible on her knee
Searching the scriptures for the light
That God has promised thee.

To Church she always longed to go
To hear God's work explained
And hear the hymns she loved so well
The sound of Jesus' name.

Is there anyone can help us,
One who understands our hearts,
Was the hymn she thought so much of
And the dearest to her heart.

Yes she's gone to that Beautiful City
Where the streets are paved with gold
To the home of many mansions
Where there are riches untold.

IN MEMORIAM.

WATLEY.—In loving remembrance of our dear Father, George Watley, who passed away November 27, 1911.

Rest in peace, your pain is ended,
Sleep in peace, your cares are done;
You are gone where those who love you,
Soon are coming one by one.

—Mrs. Wm. F. Crowe.

WALKED A MILE

despite the mountainous waves and the rolling ship. Captain Williams and Wheelsman Longlade left on this raft for the island to try to find the first boat that had got away with Currie and eight others, in order to bring it back for the rest. They had a very narrow escape in getting to the island and by the time they did get there the wind and snow had increased to such a volume that it was impossible to do any more that day."

No Sleep or Fire.

"The Reliance by this time was practically on her side and the water in her was level with the lake. We stayed on her all that night with no sleep or fire, eating what little food we could salvage from the water as it floated from the cook house. Next day, the sea having subsided a little, another raft was made and launched. Great credit is due Engineer Walsh and Mate Harrison for their work on this impromptu craft. With the exception of four men we all got to shore by means of the raft, although we were all soaked. We found the captain and wheelsman on shore in a very weak condition, they having had no food or shelter since the day previously and the weather was bitingly cold."

"Their matches were useless and their attempts to start a fire had been in vain. That night four men still remained on the wreck, because they refused to get on the raft when the others came ashore.

Made a Wigwam.

"A wigwam was made in the bush from tarpaulins. The next day, Friday, was very stormy and rough, as was also Saturday, and we were unable to get out to the wreck, although we had a raft ready. We finally succeeded in starting a fire and kept warm by alternately standing close to it and walking about. We had a ham and made soup of it.

Saved Two Men.

"On Sunday we got two men alive from the wreck. Of the other two, a Finlander named Charles Salo, died on the tug. He had been taken aboard ill at Puckasaw and was going to S. S. Marie. We got his body ashore. Before we could get the last man, Bill Gow, a fireman, away from the tug the wind and sea came up again with such force that we could not handle the raft. Gow was left stranded on the wreck alone. He made a small raft of boards and other bits of wreckage and on this he knelt and propelled himself to shore.

"The next day, Monday, the tug Gray arrived on the scene, and that's all. The Reliance was apparently very sturdily built."

Swept Overboard.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press.)— Recounting his experience on the tug Reliance, which was wrecked near Row Island, Lake Superior, one week ago, Bert Haines, fireman on the vessel, and one of the twenty-one survivors who returned to the Sault last night, stated that John McPherson, Fred Regan and Gus John lost their lives in the launching of the last of three boats. "They were on the hurricane deck," he said, "and just as they were ready to push the boat out on davits, the tug was caught by a swell and lurched to starboard with the result that they lost their footing and were swept overboard. Another swell tore the boat from its hooks and it drifted away from the tug. Regan and John grabbed a painter, but were unable to climb aboard in the tossing sea. It was impossible then to save them. McPherson hit his head on the rail of the tug as he fell overboard and lay in the water stunned. A life preserver was thrown to him, but he made no effort to grasp it. Haines added that the last lifeboat was afterwards picked up by searchers on the mainland but the bodies have not been found.

A Mystery Ship.

SAULT STE. MARIE Ont., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press.)— The crew of the Reliance, which foundered off North Lizard Island on December 18, tell a remarkable story of a mystery ship which has been seen several times this fall off Gargantua after dark. This phantom white ship has been known to those who saw it as the "ghost of Lambton," a government boat which sank with all hands when on its first trip last spring to carry lighthouse men to their posts, but the Reliance survivors are wondering if it was not an omen of their disaster, for it was only an hour and a half after they left Gargantua that they ran aground on Lizard reef.

SMOKING "BLACK DOPE" IN A PARISIAN OPIUM DEN

A Brilliant French Author Among the Dozen Men and Women Who Inhaled Fumes From the Same Pipe —How Dullness Gave Way to Repartee—Mr. Gatineau Describes His Sensations After Being 'Broke' Working His Way to The Orient—How the Last Blue Chip Won a Fortune at Monte Carlo.

By GEORGES CLEMENCEAU
Grandson of Georges Clemenceau, Ex-Premier of France.

M. Gatineau, impoverished by unfortunate business ventures and extravagant living, was forced from France by the ire of his famous grandfather, Georges Clemenceau, "The Tiger." Coming to America, he who had spent hundreds of thousands in Paris and Monte Carlo, became a laborer, shovelling coal on a Boston dock. There he was discovered and pressed into the task of writing his memoirs of Parisian gaiety and events in "the Tiger's" life.

Broke

Broke in Paris. In the Capital of luxury—where pleasure is the chief commodity, but, to bankrupts, impossible to attain.

I, who had spent fortune after fortune in the gaieties and wild revels of Montmartre; who had lost without winking a millionaire's income at Monte Carlo; who had tossed away countless francs for wine I didn't need —I was broke.

Sad is the fate of him who had and now has not. The welcome that greeted the spender is far different from that the sponger gets. Fair weather friends The storm drives them violently to shelter.

And yet I would not have had it otherwise—I mean I would not sacrifice the memory of my pleasures for the smug content and tame prosperity I might have had

My grandfather—the Tiger—obdurate, compassionless, had denied me succor. My cotton ventures, my sad investments in Russian rubles, had made a wreck of my fortune—whatever had been spared after my few brief years of whirling happiness.

Not even to pay my way out and recoup my tremendous losses would he give his sanction to my guardian's allowing me anything. I was thrown on my own resources—helpless as a fish out of water.

The old crowd passed on. Some few in the laughing throng may have looked back regretfully, but I who could not bear my share of the burden could not expect to partake of the feast.

M. Gatineau "Broke" Tells of Feeling Guilty

As I walked through a narrow side street I was hailed:

"Georges, old friend"

Let me tell you those words gave me a bit of a thrill.

Old friend, indeed Whose friend was I now? I turned and looked into the eyes of a man I had known when we were both students at the University of Paris: Marcel Grelier.

"It is very good to see you again, Marcel," I said sincerely.

I felt guilty.

Grelier had been a classmate of mine. But I had been rich and he had been poor, and we had seen little of each other.

Intent upon my pleasures, I had paid no attention whatever to him. A passing word, perhaps, but that was all.

As for Grelier I believe that he had liked me far more than I deserved. He would hear about my escapades, and I think he took a vicarious delight in my roistering.

His purse did not permit him to dip into the gay life. He had never even possessed evening dress.

"You have heard of my failing in business?" I asked.

He nodded.

"Yes The news went all over town. But where have you been man? I looked for you, to offer my sympathy but they told me you had disappeared—literally vanished."

"I'm penniless," I explained. "Isn't that reason enough for going away?"

He laughed.

"Nonsense You mustn't let trifles like that upset you—though I know it is hard for one who has been used to plenty. Come You need cheering Tonight we shall go together to some gay place in Montmartre. That is, if you are willing—"

Hang it, he was afraid that I would not care for his company

"I have no money, Marcel," I demurred.

"Georges"

Just one reproachful look that was all.

It was for me to choose, for Marcel, Parisian that he was, had only a distant acquaintance with Montmartre. I chose the Grelot, for, truly, I wanted to see it once more because of the memories that were attached to it.

As we strolled together, I studied Marcel. No, he certainly had not acquired riches. The money he would spend tonight for my entertainment would be missed.

Yet, splendid friend that he was, he made his sacrifice gladly.

I wanted to back out, but I knew that if I did, the hurt to Marcel's feelings would be far greater than the hurt to his pocket would be.

So we went. A curious couple. Neitaer of us in evening dress. There were the same women, the same dazzling gowns, the same drinking and sporting and dancing—the same mad march.

We were none too cordially welcomed. A nod occasionally from an acquaintance as she passed in the dance; a shouted salutation—intended to convey heartiness but failing because it was not accompanied by a handshake or an invitation—that was all.

We quietly sipped our wine. My heart was gone. The actor who had gloried in the spotlight was a spectator—a spectator from the last row in the topmost gallery at that.

A few hours dragged by. To Marcel the scene was a revelation and he got from it a "thrill" that was almost pitiable. After a time a girl I knew spied me and came up.

She had heard of my financial reverses and was sympathetic.

"Come with me," she invited. "I'll show you how to forget your troubles."

"What Do You Want?" She Asked.

"Black Dope," The Girl Answered

She took me to a luxurious apartment on the Rue St. Senoch, in one of the finest sections of Paris. The elevator took us up to the Fifth floor. There she stopped at a door and knocked.

A little peep hole in the panel opened.

"The duke is out" said my companion. It was the pass word.

The door opened, and we were confronted by a woman of 50, pudgy, fat with gray hair and an unwholesome yellow face.

A young woman came in. I gave a start of surprise.

It was Mlle. D————, one of the most popular dramatic singers in Europe. She was all in black.

"What do you want?" she asked.

"Dope," said my companion.

"Black or white?"

"Black."

Marise nodded.

"The seance does not begin till two in the morning," the woman explained. "If you wish to wait I'll give you a dress right now. You may drink champagne."

She vanished, and reappeared carrying two silk kimonas, one white, one pink.

"You will undress," she said, "and put these on."

Screens were furnished, and because it was evidently the rule of the place I complied.

Then I rejoined my companion.

About two others arrived. A dozen in all—no more, But what dozen They comprised some of the most famous actors, actresses and authors in France

There was one man in particular whom I noticed. I knew him well by reputation. A brilliant French literary genius, whose works are barred in America. His novels are noted for the spirit of life he puts into them, for their wit, for the uncanny knowledge of people that is put into them.

But now Here, waiting for the hour of the seance he was a pitiful sight He sat in his chair, slouched forward, his head hanging, his eyes dull and unseeing. If there were others in the room he did not know, did not care. And most of them were in the same condition as he.

The Gloomy Author Brightens As He Inhales the Fumes

Victims of the world's most deadly vice.

At 2, Marise gave the signal, and we all retired to the smoking room. "Black" means opium, the pipe.

The smoking room was very low decorated in peacock blue, and brightened by only two dim red lights. A sombre, sleepy looking place.

We lay in a circle about the lamp, all clad in kimonas, men and women.

The pipe was lighted. One man smoked—one puff. The pipe was passed to his neighbor.

And so on, about the circle of twelve There was only one pipe. A single inhalation was a smoke.

Seven pills is as much as the novice can take. For the more experienced smokers, the number is larger.

It was a unique evening. With the first pipe, the whole scene changed.

The famous author who had worn such a hand-dog look brightened perceptibly. His eyes lost their dullness.

Little by little the gathering became vivacious. There was quick, witty repartee.

The popular topics of the day were discussed, absent men and women were mercilessly, brilliantly torn to shreds.

So fine were the bon mots that even the victims themselves could not have helped laughing

Throughout it all I remained silent. It was my part to let the smokers do the talking.

But it did not last. Gradually the flow of wit died. The steady fumes had their effect. The smokers dropped off to sleep, to dream whatever dreams the poppy gave them.

I do not envy them these dreams. Life contains dreams far sweeter, dreams of reality.

A man is very foolish to smoke opium. He forsakes all that is worth while in life for a mirage. He wastes his body. He shortens his years. He makes a travesty of human existence.

It was an experience. Yet a dangerous one, for the opium smoking habit is easy to acquire, and once it has its grip on you it is all but impossible for you to save yourself—or to be saved.

"And The Pipe Will Kill Him"

I do not want to see that famous author again, to see him, at least, as he sat in the salon waiting for the seance to begin.

He was revolting And now his destiny is beyond his control.

He is at the beck and call of the poppy. His writings are still wonderful, but it is because he writes only when he smokes. At other times he could not write a single line.

How much satisfaction, then, can he feel when praises are raised upon him?

It is not he who writes. It is the pipe.

And the pipe will kill him. He has not long to live.

I left Paris immediately. Where to go? I hadn't a notion. But get away I must. I could stay here, penniless, meeting those who had been my friends in the days of my prosperity, and being ignored by them, I went to Genoa.

For four days, on the boat that had carried me there I cleaned brass. Then the ship was ready to leave port, and I was not needed.

I was fired

For the next four days I slept on the city's benches. At night I watched the crowds. Down the Via Victoria Emmanuele the gay night parade passed, spendthrifts such as I had been, and the women whom they decked with jewels.

Now I hadn't a decent bed to sleep in. At a distance I contemplated these happy fools. No, I did not belong

Back to Gaby's Home Land

There was the Olympia, the wildest place in Genoa, like the Grelot in Montmartre, but far, far cheaper.

For the price of a simple supper for two at the Grelot you could entertain an entire party at the Olympia in Genoa.

The dancing was vulgar—had not even the reckless abandon of my haunts in Paris.

I shrugged as I studied the women who went there—and I thought of wonderful Gaby, and of Delysia.

I did not belong.

Onward, then—anywhere I shipped aboard the Pisco, worked my passage. I went to Egypt, to India, to Colombo, Shanghai.

Then back to Marseilles.

It had been Gaby's home-land

What was Gaby's home like, now? Across the city I went, and to the great white marble palace that commands the dazzling blue waters of the Mediterranean.

I saw children playing on the lawns, children, happy, laughing. And my mind went back to Gaby.

Gaby was gone. But what a glorious monument she had left. Scorned by the haute monde, she had shown that she had a greater heart than any of her scorners.

Millions she had, and to the poor of Marseilles it went. Her palace, a home for poor children.

I do not believe in a future life, but it may be that I am wrong; and if I am—well, perhaps Gaby is smiling now, a smile not of triumph, but of love ascendant.

There in that palace by the sea there are children who love, her, who pray for her .....

I thought then of a visit to Monte Carlo long ago. Gaby, Scaramanga, Pilcer and I.

As we were about to leave the hotel to return to Marseilles we found we had not enough money with us to pay the bill.

"You are the treasurer, Gatineau," they had cried. "It's up to you"

I felt uncomfortable. When I returned to my room to sit and puzzle the matter out, I found my valet holding a coat of mine in one hand, and a chip in the other.

I gave a lusty cheer.

The chip represented 500 francs at the casino And here it was popping out of my pocket, in my hour of need.

But did I cash the chip and pay my bill? I did not

It was about half past ten. The Casino opened at ten. I hurried there and, as I entered the croupier cried to me:

"Play number eight, M. Gatineau"

The wheel was already turning.

"Right, maximum" I cried, and flung my chip on the table.

And eight it was Croupiers, my experience has told me, are remarkably apt at choosing winning numbers.

Of course, I did not win on my whole 500 francs. The maximum bet on a single number was nine louis, or 180 francs. But I won 6,480 francs.

With that I went to the tables of trente-et-quarante. I was through with roulette.

At trente-et-quarante I bet on red, and red came up for me 17 times in succession Oh, well, if it were fiction it might be "believed," but as a real story .....

At any rate, I left the Casino with 52,000 francs more than we had started out with at the very beginning.

The Casino at Monte Carlo has many rooms but the "Cercle" is for the well-known people.

It is decorated entirely in white and gold, with dim lights.

In the centre is a large roulette table covered with green baize, and at the ends of the room are two trente-et-quarante tables.

The Women of Monte Carlo

The women there are decked with jewels, false and real. It is impossible to tell. Women of the haut women of the demimonde.

Till they speak it is impossible to tell them apart.

A countess may stand beside a woman born in some gutter, whose silks and jewels have been bought at the price of herself.

Respected women, condemned women, they dress exactly alike—perhaps I should say undress, for at that time, in the Casino, very very little was worn.

As for the man—aristocrats, nouveaux riches and cultured crooks For the poor man, there was no place.

For what would the "citizen of France" do in the Cercle of the Casino?

At the roulette table, I remember one old woman. Her face was thickly painted. Now and then, under emotion, the muscles of her face moved. Through the paint her wrinkles showed. It was horrible.

During all my time at the Casino, I was on the alert to avoid Mme. de Plun Rett, a friend of my grandfather's. But on the morning of my winning, she caught me.

"Don't be afraid, Georges," she smiled at me. "I shan't tell your grandfather."

But I know that she wrote to him that very same day and detailed everything I had done

(Copyright 1922, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

This is the fifth of a series of articles by M. Gatineau. The sixth, which will appear in The Examiner shortly is particularly interesting in view of the visit to this country of M. Georges Clemenceau, ex-Premier of France. It will describe "the Tiger's" early romances; and his marriage to pretty Mary Plummer will tell of his "slap" at Napoleon III., and how it put M. Gatineau's grandfather in prison, and of the war with Prussia.

Help to Make the Leisure Hour More Comfortable for Someone

Give House Slippers

THE BAREFOOT BOY knew real foot comfort. Many men and women are barefoot boys and girls at heart, but it is not being done. The next best thing is to get the feet into a pair of comfortable house slippers. We have selected many styles that we know will give the maximum of comfort and yet maintain a good appearance.

The newest of our felt lines displays a turned-down collar of quilted satin, and also an oval-shaped panel of the same covering the instep. Two pretty color combinations —Alice blue and grey and American beauty and grey. Price, $2.50.

Felts in "Cosey" style with ribbon beaded edges and large silk pom-pom come in light blue, old rose, pink and American beauty. Price $2.00.

A very dignified number is of black patent leather with black pom-pom and purple quilted satin lining. Price, $2.50.

Another series comes in Felts and Suedes, with rubber heels and pom-pom. The felts are procurable in pale blue, pink or black and the suedes in grey and old rose. Price, $1.95.

The Moccasin Slippers surround themselves with a cosy air that is very inviting. They are hand-made by Indians, who have adorned the vamps with their native bead work and porcupine quill patterns. The edges are trimmed with fur. Grey or brown at $2.55 and old rose or brown at $3.

Children and misses have not been forgotten. There is a dainty little number for them. It is of Alice blue felt, "Cosey" style. The edges are outlined with a yellowish gold braid and a pretty rosette on the vamp is of blue and henna tones. The contrast is pleasing and entire effect charming. Sizes 8 to 10, $1.49. Sizes 11 to 2, $1.59.

Unfolding the Beauty of Some Glorious Blouse Models

That Any Wardrobe Would Be Glad to Receive

The Jacquette Blouse with its many pleasing ways is exemplified in captivating form. It has chosen navy crepe de chine to cast its spell and summoned tangerine crepe to form the long, rolling, cross-over collar. A lacy-like design done with black threads over-patterns the tangerine. The cuffs of the short kimona sleeves have insets of the color. Also obtainable in sand with jade. Price, $12.50.

The woman possessing a figure just a little above the average size will rejoice in this number of black Canton. The front and back are formed of two wide panels of black lace done in Silk and Wool. The short kimona sleeves have a deep lace cuff. A narrow girdle of black moire is draped around the waist. Price, $17.50.

The lover of the Beaded Blouse here finds her object of admiration, exploited in a winsome new casaque model. Black Canton is its material and the elaborately beaded pattern runs in perpendicular fashion. The lower edge is a series of graceful scallops, the sleeves are short and kimona fashion and a narrow belt of the Canton restricts the fullness at the waist. Also obtainable in cocoa with dull gold beads. Price, $11.

A delightful number of crepe de chine is in over-blouse style with ties at the sides and little fancy ornamental balls dangling from the corners. The round neck is finished with a narrow string tie of self. The sleeves are kimona style. Choice of honeydew or jade. This model is admirably adapted to bead work, if you feel inclined to express your own ideas and handiwork. Price, $7.75.

There's something mysterious about this Blouse. It's the price! It is of tricolette and a casaque over-blouse model with a V-shaped neck finished with a pretty little crochet-like collar done in squares of various colors. This same trimming forms a wide band around the bottom and makes cuffs for the sleeves. Obtainable in honeydew, sand and flame. Now for the surprise! Priced at $4.95.

We know a clever maker who has turned his attention to the manufacture of White Voile Blouses. He copies hand-made ones so well that it is difficult to tell which is which until the price is quoted and then one immediately knows that genuine hand-made ones could not be so inexpensive. We have a series of thm that display real filet and Irish crochet laces, combined with drawn-work. Made with tuxedo collars and long sleeves. Priced at $6.50, $7.50 and $8.50.

A tailored creation of a fine white English voile, has a convertible collar with a wide group of fine pin tucks on both sides of the row of pearl buttons down the front. Long sleeves with turn-back cuffs. Price, $4.50.

RULES FOR FUEL CONSERVATION IN HOMES ARE HERE SUGGESTED

A Little Careful Attention and Experimenting With Furnaces May Result in Fuel Saving of From 10 to 20 Per Cent.

The conditions brought about by the strike of the coal miners coupled with the lack of transportation have again made difficult the problem of supplying a proper amount of fuel to the American home. The high price paid for such fuel as is obtainable again emphasizes the necessity for the greatest economy in its use. Users of fuel in homes have acquired certain habits as regards the character and size of fuel which they wish to use and they are loath to experiment with any different kind or size than they have been burning.

During the war a considerable number of members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers helped in one way or another to set forth the various ways in which fuel could be burned with economy. There resulted a number of well formulated rules and suggestions, which were found to be extremely helpful, and it was with the belief that the conditions now existing would warrant the revision of such rules that the following suggestions have been drawn up.

People must be willing to give some little attention to the operation of heating furnaces in their homes. They must be willing to experiment a little just now in order to see what it is possible to do with the furnaces they happen to have. If this is done there is no doubt but that a saving of from 10 to 20 per cent of the fuel usually required can be expected.

It has seemed to the Executive Committee of the Fuels Divisions that these rules and suggestions might be of value in homes. They are of the simplest nature and are for the most part suggestive of a little careful attention and experimenting for each individual case.

There are on the market certain types of furnaces in which soft coal cannot be expected to give satisfactory results. These furnaces are the ones which are cleaned with difficulty. In such cases the Fuel Administrator ought to make some allowance when the delivery of various kinds of fuel is under consideration.

Preparation of Equipment

a. See that the grates are in good order.

b. Seal air leaks in ash pit and around clean-out doors.

c. Cover steam and water pipes to prevent unnecesary radiation.

d. Provide clean-out tools for boiler flues.

e. Prepare for supplementary heat in mild weather, fireplaces, gas logs, kerosene heaters, etc.

f. Prevent air leakage as far as possible by weather strips and storm windows.

g. Provide for recirculating air in hot-air furnaces by convenient slides in the pipes.

h. Arrange coal bins so that two kinds of fuel can be kept separate, if desired.

Kinds of Fuel

a. Stove and nut anthracite are ideal fuels for heating homes. Scarity and cost of these fuels will restrict their use in the future. Small sizes of anthracite should be used whenever possible.

b. Gas coke in connection with anthracite pea or buckwheat coal. This is an excellent combination, as the fire will keep well, but will give heat when required.

c. Block wood in conjunction with anthracite pea or buckwheat coal. This is a good combination where wood is available, equal to coke for producing heat, but requiring more attention.

d. Bituminous coal can be used in most furnaces designed for hard coal. The exceptions will be found in cases where the flue passages are small and not easily cleaned. Bituminous coal demands more attention, and unless this is given will give less heat. Best results will be found where the furnaces is rather large for the house, so that the fire does not have to be pushed.

Management of Furnace

1. Rules for burning Anthracite Coal (large size)

a. Carry a deep bed of fuel, at least level with the fire doors.

b. Shake the grate to remove ashes and lower the fuel bed but stop when the first live coals appear.

c. Fresh fuel should be spread evenly, over the entire grate area. A heavy firing, say 6 to 8 in. deep, can be made if desired and will last for 6 to 8 hours. For quick kindling, the fire bed should be made fairly hot before adding fresh fuel.

d. After firing keep the dampers wide open until blue flames appears, then check off the draft as much as necessary to keep the fire burning at desired rate. The proper setting of the dampers must be learned by experience for each furnace; this is because of the variation in the draft available for different installations.

2. Rules for Burning Coal and Anthracite Pea or Buckwheat.

e. Carry a deep bed of fuel, even above the level of the fire door.

f. Shake the grate to remove ashes and lower the fuel bed but stop when the first live coals appear.

g. Spread a thin layer of anthracite over the entire grate and allow a few minutes for this fuel to ignite. Next fill the fire pot wth coke, and allow this to burn until blue flame appears, then add another layer of anthracite.

h. After firing and seeing that the charge is ignited, check off the draft to the desired point for slow burning.

i. When burning the fire for the night, use less coke and more anthracite, but otherwise fire in the same manner.

j. Anthracite pea or buckwheat can often be used alone with success. This will happen when the draft is unusually good and the furnace is amply large. Small-size anthracite ignites slowly. It is best to fire one-half of the grate at a time, allowing the first half of the charge to iguite before adding the second half. Small sizes may be used in the fall and spring if not in the winter.

3. Rules for Burning Wood and Anthracite Pea or Buckwheat.

k. Follow the rules for coke and anthracite, substituting block wood for coke. It is highly important to see that the fuel is properly ingnited and giving off flame before closing off the drafts.

4 Rules for Burning Bituminous Coal.

l. Bituminous, or soft coal will as a rule give out less heat than anthracite when fired in the ordinary residence heater. Hence more attention will usually be required when using soft coal.

m. A deep fuel bed is desirable, also, as a rule, more draft by the dampers.

n. After the fuel is partly burned, more heat can be obtained by breaking up the fire bed with the hoe or poker if the fuel bed is caked.

o. Stir up the fire and get it hot before adding new fuel.

p. Preliminary to firing a new charge, push the burned fuel to the back or sides of the fire-box, heaping it high up on the sides of the fire-box walls. Fire fresh fuel into the hole in the hot fuel bed, making it level with the heaped-up burning fuel.

q. After firing check the draft to make the fire burn slowly, setting the dampers as found best by experience.

r. A large charge of soft coal will burn slowly for several hours, giving out moderate heat. If more heat is demanded it can be secured by breaking up the partly ignited mass with the fire tools.

s. A little air should be admitted through the slides in the fire door when burning bituminous coal.

REVEAL THE PLACE OF O'MARA'S IMPRISONMENT

NEW YORK, Dec 20—(Canadian Press)—Supreme Court Justice Mullan to-day continued until Wednesday of next week his ordering calling upon the Irish Free State to show cause why the place of imprisonment of Stephen M. O'Mara, Irish Republican leader, should not be revealed to the attorneys for O'Mara and Eamonn De Valera. Justice Mullan ruled that the Free State lawyers must come to court next Wednesday with assurances that O'Mara's lite would not be taken until a commission to be appointed by the court, had on opportunity to go to Ireland and take his testimony in the $2,500,000 Irish Republican Bond Suit, which has been in New York Court for more than year.

TO TEST STEEL SHAFTED CLUBS

U. S. Committee Says the Refusal to Permit Use of Steel Clubs Was Misconstrued.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.— (Canadian Press.)— Asserting its refusal to permit use of steel-shafted golf clubs in national championships had been misconstrued, the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association issued a statement yesterday explaining its attitude and announcing that official tests of the new style shaft would be authorized.

"A number of people seem to have misconstrued the action taken by the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association with regard to the steel shaft," a statement said. "We were asked to approve its use; we felt that it was a distinct departure from the accepted form and make of golf clubs, and that no one at that time knew enough about its possibilities to be sure that its use was for the best interests of the game.

"We, accordingly, refused to permit its use in the national championships. Our feelings are still the same. The Executive Committee itself will try out the shafts and request that a number of the leading amateurs do the same and report their findngs to the committee. They also will request that all other players who use the shaft and who desire to, should submit their views to the committee."

"Would Wake Up Screaming"

"The Least Sudden Noise or Loud Talking Would Startle Him."

"Up to the age of eight, my boy was a strong, healthy lad, full of life and energy. While playing leap frog one day with some boys of his own age, and, while in a stooped position, a big boy jumped on his back and in falling my boy caught his foot in an iron grating and dislocated his hip. The pain was so great that he fainted and the other boys were so frightened they ran away. For hours he suffered terrible pain and when found and brought home was very weak, with his thigh and leg swollen twice its size. The doctor set the bone but the pain and exposure were too much for the poor boy and he became unconscious. A high fever set in and for weeks he lay between life and death raving for hours at a stretch. One day he opened his eyes and murmured 'Mother,' but this is the only word he could utter he was so weak, but I knew the worst was over. He got stronger but for months was in a nervous condition. The least sudden noise or loud talking would startle him and he would begin trembling. He was quite lame and the swelling still remained. The doctor gave him a tonic and told me to rub the leg with olive oil. This reduced the swelling and took away the lameness, but the nervousness remained. The poor child would waken in the night screaming at the top of his voice. The doctor gave him several different tonics but they were no use. I found a circular about Carnol and it seemed so different from other tonics I had heard of, that I thought I would get a bottle. Three bottles were all that was needed to make my boy like his own self again. It is hard to convince my friends that the change in him now is entirely due to Carnol. Of course I still have to watch him and give him Carnol occasionally but I know that he will soon be as strong again as ever he was."

Mrs. P., Montreal.

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. 2-622

NEWS FROM CAVAN AND THE DISTRICT

Friday Will Be a Big Night For the Cavan Kiddies—Home for the Holidays.

CAVAN CENTRE, Dec. 20.—It seems a pity that so many of the Christmas entertainments in Cavan are taking place on the same night.

Cavan, Mount Pleasant, Cavan Centre and Fairmount Sunday Schools are having their annual Christmas tree and concert on Friday, December 22.

The students are already arriving at their homes for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Eber Syer is attending Toronto University and Helen and Kenneth Syer who are attending Peterboro Normal school, came home on Friday evening. They will have holidays until the beginning of the New Year.

Mrs. R. Matchett visited her home at Lifford over the week-end.

Mrs. J. W. Hall, South Monaghan passed through and called on friends in Cavan and Millbrook as she was returning from a week spent with her sister Mrs. Staples Lifford.

There have been a number of shooting matches lately.

Fowl seems to be plentiful this year. Doubtless this is owing to the fact that large quantities are being shipped in from other provinces and countries.

Many from Cavan attended the Peterboro market on Saturday and helped to swell the volume of fowl displayed on the market. It is probable there will be many more next Wednesday an dthe Saturday before Christmas.

The Cavan Women's Institute which met last week at the home of Mrs. Creighton Carr was not so well attended as usual owing to the icy condition of the roads. The January meeting will be held at the home of the president, Miss Bertha McNeil. A full attendance is asked for. Mrs. Sutton will give her paper on the Institute Convention held in Toronto.

DIED—In Millbrook Saturday, December 16, Edwin Thorndyke, eldest son of Mr. Chas. Thorndyke.

Mr. Percy Martin, and old school friends of the late Edwin Thorndyke, who came all the way from Windsor to see the deceased, has taken a position with the Cressman Co. of Peterboro. Mr. Martin was formerly of Millbrook.

Miss Hattie Barnard of the Fowler Pendry staff spent the week-end at her home in South Monaghan.

Vegetable Stains.

Dip your fingers into very strong tea for a few minutes and then wash them in clear warm water and the stains from preparing vegetables will be removed.

A BOY PINNED UNDER SLEIGH

Painful Accident to Charlie Couch of Campbellford—News Paragraphs

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20. — Charlie Couch, aged 6 years, son of George Couch, of the Hydro power house, met with a serious and painful accident on Tuesday morning at 10.30 on Market street. The little lad was driving in Gordon Fox's bread sleigh which turned the corner of Oliver road too sharply and upset, and pinned the unfortunate child beneath the box, fracturing his collar bone. Charles Palliser, who lived nearby, rushed to the scene and conveyed the boy to his home. Dr. Andrew Haig was called and set the injured member, and last reports state that he is doing as well as could be expected.

Open Air Rink.

Some of the boys have cleared away the snow on the river just north of the lift bridge, and made a dandy rink. The ice is as smooth as glass and the present management is not charging any admission fee.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gould of Morganston, were visitors in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Stewart Nelson has gone to visit his brother, Mr. John Nelson at Clifford, Ont.

Mr. W. A. Diamond reports the sale of a Master Six to Arthur Trip of Campbellford.

Joe Coulton and son motored to Toronto on Monday and reports the roads in great shape, the snow having filled in all the ruts.

NEWS FROM BETHEL AND THE DISTRICT.

BETHEL, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Robinson of Peterborough, is spending a few days at the home of Mr. J. H. Pallin.

Miss Effie Reid has returned home from Peterborough, where she has been attending the Normal school.

G. W. Fife was in Peterborough on Saturday on business.

Mrs. B. Reid has returned home after spending the past two weeks with her sister in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Reid and Miss Annie spent Saturday in Peterborough shopping.

H. J. Nelson visited W. Fife on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. J. H. Pallin, Miss Fanny and Mrs. Robinson spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. Edwards.

Mr. and Mrs. H. McKay were in Peterborough Tuesday on business.

W. Fife of Lang, spent a few days with his brother, E. Fife.

Mrs. D. McAdams spent a couple of days visiting her sister.

G. Fife and Miss Maud Eason visited Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Nelson on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Davidson and family spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Nelson.

The Rev. Andrew McLauchlin will preach a Christmas sermon next Sunday. His subject will be "The Christmas Message." Special music will be provided by the choir.

TO CROSS ATLANTIC IN FORTY FOOT KETCHES

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(Canadian Press).The Duke of Leinster, Irish sportsman, reached here yesterday to arrange with William W. Nutting editor, whose challenge he accepted, details of a Trans-Atlantic race in forty foot ketches, planned for next summer. Two will man each boat. "Casey" Baldwin, Canadian yachtsman, will accompany, Nutting and the Duke of Leinster will be acompanied by his servant.

SLAPPED THE LAWYER'S FACE

Blows Struck in Altercation Between Lawyers in Lindsay Court.

LINDSAY, December 20. — At the sittings of the General Sessions of the County Cout here yesterday, presided over by His Lordship Judge Swayze, an altercation took place between County Crown Attorney Anderson and Mr. I. E. Weldon, lawyer, in which blows were struck.

An appeal case was being neard, in which Mr. Weldon appeared for the accused.

County Crown Attorney Anderson, in examining a female witness, told her that she was lying, and that he did not believe her story.

This aroused Mr. Weldon's anger, and he approached the County Crown Attorney gesticulating and protesting vigorously, and in what the Attorney considered a menacing attitude.

The latter, believing an attack was to be made upon him, gave Mr. Weldon a couple of slaps in the face.

This had a tendency to add fuel to the flames.

The presiding Judge, as well as the other members of the legal profession present, gazed in open-eyed astonishment at this unusual procedure in a Court of Justice, and finally Mr. Frost, a lawyer, acted as peacemaker.

SEIZED BOTTLE GIN IN COURT

Aged Bailiff of Whitby Establishes a Precedent at Oshawa.

OSHAWA, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Frank Rogers the aged bailiff of Whitby, yesterday established what is believed to be a precedent, when he walked into an Oshawa Court and seized a bottle of gin which was about to be submitted as evidence by the Crown against Frank Kubernick, who appeared to answer to three charges of violating the Ontario Temperace Act.

Just as the Crown was about to enter the bottle of gin as an exhibit the bailiff walked in. No one recognized him as he walked over to the valise in the prisoner's dock, opened it and extracted the bottle from with in, placed it in his pocket and departed.

The Chief of Police Friend of Oshawa was first to recover from his astonishment and immediately demanded the bottle of gin. The official refused to comply and stated that he had a writ of replevin. No action could be taken and the bailiff departed.

The incident is the result of the ruling of Chief Justice Meredith who quashed a search warrant because the local inspector had failed to give his reasons for believing that there was liquor on the Kubernick premises.) The Courts replevin order was issued on Monday by the County Judge, and the bailiff acting on it, seized the liquor.

Kubernick was allowed out on bail for one week.

Noon Briefs From Wires

HAMILTON, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Word was received here at 8.30 o'clock this morning of a big fire raging in Cayuga, and the Hamilton Fire Department has been asked for assistance.

SUPPORT LACKING.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan and Co., declared last night that the reason his company had refused to extend a loan to Germany at this time was because the American public would not lend its support. "I want to deny the report that the State Department sent the German Ambassador to my firm, for such was not the case," he added. "The State Department had nothing to do with it."

A FAST FIGHT.

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press). — George Fife, 134 pounds, Toronto, defeated Roy Chisholm, 126 3-4 pounds, Halifax, here last night in one of the fastest ten-round bouts seen here for many months. The bout was featured by a terific slugging, with Chisholm receiving the most punishment. He was greatly handicapped from the sixth round until the finish because of a stream of blood which flowed from a deep cut over the right eye. He was full of fight, however, and was always dangerous.

TWO MEN ARRESTED.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press). — Two men, whose names the police decline to divulge, were apprehended here yesterday afternoon and are held in custody as material witnesses in the claw hammer murder of John Penny, aged 74, whose body, with arms and legs pinioned and head and face battered in by a hammer, was found at 627 Yonge Street yesterday morning.

WILL TAKE NO PART.

WARSAW, Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press).—It is highly probable that Jewish members of the National Assembly will take no part in the balloting for a new President of Poland. The question of participation has been the subject of protracted debates in the Jewish Deputies' Club. A strong argument against participation advanced by conservative Jewish deputies is that the almost unanimous support the Jewish group mustered during the agitation against Gabriel Narutowicz was the direct cause for excesses against Jews, frequently leading to bloodshed and generally verging on a pogrom movement.

POPULAR ORGANIST GETS READING LAMP.

Coupled With Expressions of Appreciation as Leader of St. James' Choir.

The popularity of Mr. A. Nicholls, who recently severed his connection with the choir of St. James' Methodist Church, after four and one-half years' service as organist and choirmaster, was evidenced by the numerous expressions of appreciation and good-will tendered him by organizations connected with church work.

At a surprise party given for Mr. Nicholls, a number of the choir members presented him with a handsome reading lamp, accompanied by an address. Expressions of praise and appreciation, of gratitude for Mr. Nicholls' "splendid services" and willing co-operation in all choir and church undertakings, were contained also in addresses tendered him by the Treasurer, Seekers' Bible Class and the Gleaners' Bible Class of the church.

Mr. Leslie Unitt has assumed charge of the organ at St. James' Church.

THE INTEREST OF THE STATE IN AUTO-SUGGESTION POINTED OUT

Kleptomania and Homicidal Tendency Cured—Moral Taints and Ailments, Either Congenital or Acquired, Treated By Suggestion — The Economic Side of it.

(By Dr. Emile Coue)

Neurasthenia, so common nowadays, generally yields (as I said earlier in this chronicle) to suggestion constantly practiced in the way I have indicated. I have had the happiness of contributing to the cure of a large number of neurasthenics with whom every other treatment had failed.

One of them had even spent a month in a special establishment at Luxemburg without obtaining any improvement. In six weeks he was completely cured, and he is now the happiest man one would wish to find, after having thought himself the most miserable.

Neither is he ever likely to fall ill again in the same way, for I showed him how to make use of Conscious Autosuggestion and does it marvelously well.

But if Suggestion is useful in treating moral complaints and physical ailments, may it not render still greater services to society, in turning into honest folks the wretched children who people our reformatories and who only leave them to enter the army of crimes.

Let no one tell me it is impossible! The remedy exists and I can prove it.

I will quote some cases which are very characteristic, first inserting here a metaphor which make it easier to render clear my point, a few remarks in parenthesis.

To make you understand the way in which Suggestion acts in the treatment of moral taints I will use the following comparison. Suppose our brain is a plank in which are driven nails that represent the ideas, habits and instincts, which determine our actions.

If we find that there exists in a subject a bad idea, a bad habit, a bad instinct,—as it were, a bad nail —we take another, which is the good idea, habit, or instinct, place it on top of the bad one and give a tap with a hammer.

In other words we make a suggestion. The new nail will be driven in, perhaps a fraction of an inch, while the old one will come out to the same extent.

At each fresh blow with the hammer—that is to say at each fresh suggestion—the one will be driven in a fraction further and the other will be driven out the same amount, until ,after a certain number of blows, the oil nail or evil will come out completely and be replaced by the new one.

When this substitution has been made, the individual obeys it.

Let us return to our examples: Little M....., a child of eleven living at Troyes, was subject night and day to unpleasant accidents. He was also a kleptomaniac, and, of course, untruthful into the bargain. At his mother's request I treated him by suggestion.

After the first visit which he and his mother paid me the accidents ceased by day though they continued at night. But "Little by little they became less frequent until finally, a few months afterwards, the child was completely cured.

In the same period his thieving propensities lessened, and in six months they had entirely ceased.

The Boy Who Hated his Brother.

This child's brother, aged eighteen had conceived a violent hatred against another of his brothers. Every time that he had taken a little too much wine, he felt impelled to draw a knife and stab his brother.

He felt that one day or other he would end by doing so and he knew at the same time that, having done so, he would be inconsolable.

I treated him also by Suggestion, and the result was marvelous. After the first treatment he was cured!

His hatred for his brother had disappeared, and they have since become good friends and got on capitally together.

I followed up the case for a long time, and the cure was permanent.

Since such results are to be obtained by suggestion, would it not be beneficial—I might even say indispensable—to take up this method and introduce in into our reformatories?

I am absolutely convinced that if Suggestion were daily applied to vicious children, more than 50 per cent could be reclaimed .

Would it not be an immense service to render society, to bring back to it sane and well members of it who were formerly corroded by moral decay?

To show that the field in similar cases is not limited to youths, let me cite the following. Please note the length of time that has elapsed since the subject was first treated and cured and please note too the economic advantage of such a cure.

Case No. 7.

M.A—G—, living at Troyes, has long suffered from enteritis for which different treatments have been tried in vain.

He is also in a very bad state mentally, being depressed, gloomy, unsociable and obsessed by thoughts of suicide.

Preliminary experiments easy, followed by suggestion which produces an appreciable result from the very day.

For three months, daily suggestions to begin with, then at increasingly longer intervals. At the end of this time the cure is complete, the enteritis has disappeared, and his morals have become excellent.

As the cure dates backs twelve years without the shadow of a relapse ,it may be considered permanent.

M.G—, is a striking example of the effects that can be produced by Suggestion, or rather by Autosuggestion. At the same time as I made suggestions to him from the physical point of view, I also did so from the mental, and he accepted both suggestions equally well.

Every day! his confidence in himself increased, and, as he was an excellent workman, in order to earn more, he looked out for a machine which would enable him to work at home for his employer. A little later a factory owner, having seen with his own eyes what a good workman he was entrusted him with the very machine he desired.

Thanks to his skill he was able to turn out much more than an ordinary workman, and his employer, delighted with the result, gave him another and yet another machine, until M. G—, who, but for suggestion, would have remained an ordinary workman, is now in charge of six machines which bring him a very handsome profit!

Surely the State ought to utilize this tremendous force. Think of the thousands and thousands of citizens, now perhaps even burdens on the Community, who might be restored to their communal usefulness by its application!

(Copyright 1922 By The American Library Service)

"Something on the Moral Aspects of Auto Suggestion will be Discussed in Dr. Coue's next Article.

FRANCE HOPES TO SPEND A BILLION ON POWER PLAN.

Project For Electrification of Agricultural Regions Being Prepared.

PARIS, Dec. 20 (U. P.). — A vast project for the electrification of the agricultural regions of France is being prepared by the Government Under the scheme, as outlined by Minister of Agriculture Cheron, the State would arrange credits and aid in placing electric power at the disposal of every farmer.

Under the projected law the nation would advance to individuals and regional syndicates the sum of 600,000,000 francs. The syndicates and individuals would furnish an equal amount—making a total of 1,200,000,000 francs.

The basic object of the scheme is to intensify domestic farm production, to modernize the machinery on farms and thus elleviate the shortage of man-power resulting from France's war-losses. If the scheme is successful, within a few years the country-side would be a network of electric power lines reaching tens of thousands of farms and furnishing them with power for labor-saving machinery.

Cheron's idea is that France must garner from her own soil the means of rehabilitating the country and rendering France economically independent and the only method is to modernize and intensify production.

According to the tenative plans the State loans would be for a period of not under thirty years at a rate not to exceed four per cent.

Agricultural authorities predict that such electrification would immensely increase France's production of food stuffs and enable her to become a big exporter, because at present, despite the fertility of the soil, and toil-some labor by the peasants, production is unsatisfactory, owing to the use of old-fashioned farm machinery. In many places oxen are still used in plowing with the same style of plows that were used a hundred years ago.

COMPILATION OF THE FIELD CROP FIGURES.

OTTAWA, December 20 (Canadian Press). — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics issued yesterday a preliminary estimate by Provinces of the value of this year's field crops, as compared with the final estimates of the two previous years, 1920 and 1921.

The value per unit asigned to each crop, represents the averages received locally by farmers. They are subject to revision after the compilation of final returns from crop correspondents in January, 1923.

For the whole of Canada, the total value of the principal field crops of 1922, as now preliminarily estimated, amounts to $984,139,500, as compared with $931,863,670 in 1921, and $1,455,244,050 in 1920.

PRIME MINISTER EXTOLS HEROISM OF FIREMAN GOW

Was Instrumental in Saving Lives of 24 of Crew and Passengers of "Reliance."

OTTAWA, Dec. 20. —(Canadian Press.)— The Prime Minster has forwarded a telegram of congratulation to Billy Gow, fireman of the Tug Reliance, whose heroism in swimming ashore with a rope when his vessel grounded on Row Island in the Lizard group, 85 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, on Lake Superior, was instrumental in saving the lives of 23 of the crew and passengers.

"Your fellow countrymen," says the message, "have read with feelings of admiration and pride of your heroic achievement, and on their behalf I venture to extend to you sincere congratulations. Deepest sympathy goes out to the crew of the Reliance, who have endured hardships of past few days, and especially to relatives of those whose lives have been lost."

moil of excitement. The resemblance between the fifteen-year-old girl and Mrs. Gibson, whose age is given as twenty-eight, is far from striking, but it is explained that the identity might be easily confused by the accused from the fact that both parties wear seal coats, and that the evening was dark.

Mrs. Gibson and her husband were seen by the Examiner in their flat in the Queen's Hotel. The wife is a beautiful French-Canadian type with big brown eyes and snow-white skin that seems to bring out in bold relief her jet black hair. In broken English she greeted the reporter after she had learned who he was: "You are the very person that my husband and I want to see, for I want my name cleared immediately from this awful crime into which they have me implicated. I did not know that my name was connected with the affair until I was sent for to attend the inquest."

In the sitting-room she was joined by her husband, and again she related what she had said, stating further that she had only a passing acquaintance with McKee through her husband, who was a great friend of his. The little French-Canadian woman became so worked up in recalling and denying the charge that had been made against her that she threw herself back in her chair in seemingly exhaustion and allowed her husband to carry on the conversation.

The Husband's Story.

The husband told of his acquaintance and respect for McKee, whom he had met for the first time two or three years ago while he and his wife lived at White River. Since they had moved to Chapleau they still kept up their friendship, and McKee was often a visitor for supper and for the evening at their home. He had always acted the gentleman.

That the crime was not predetermined was stated to the Examiner by an intimate friend of both families, who said that Mrs. Connaughton had been getting ready for Christmas for the last week or so. She had baked her Christmas cakes and puddings and had made many of her presents. She had never mentioned a word of any immediate trouble arising in her family. She had always been a good friend to McKee and to McKee's wife, up until the latter's death three years ago. During her illness she waited on her all the time, and was with her up until the last. Since then she has always been friendly with McKee, and they exchanged visits frequently. In fact, on the afternoon of the day of the tragedy McKee had visited her at her house. Nobody thought anything of it.

Fond of McKee.

"She always admitted that she was very fond of McKee. In a joking manner she often said that he would make a fine catch for somebody."

She was described as a woman possessing a very strong will and temper, which kindled instantly in certain moods. Other times she was the happiest of mortals and was always out with the younger people.

Up to the last two months when she had been complaining of pains in her head, her activities varied from active church work to taking in the dances of the town.

When the Provincial officer was with her waiting for the train to take her to Sudbury the night of the tragedy, she wanted to know if they still hanged people in Canada. Drifting away from the tragedy, she joked and talked about local topics. When her husband met her on the train she greeted him with a kiss and showed no remorse at the sight of her heart-broken husband. The husband accompanied her to the jail in Sudbury, and when all her particulars were taken she turned around to her husband, and, without saying anything, she kissed him good-bye and left for her cell.

Paid Up Insurance.

On the day of the tragedy, the life insurance policy of the murdered man had become overdue, and it was only on the morning of the day of his death that he paid it up. Further than that, he was booked for his regular run as engineer on a train going to White River. For some unknown reason he cancelled his trip and his engine was taken by Mr. Connaughton, the husband of the woman who that evening was to take his life.

Christmas Party Was Held at the Y.W.C.A.

The senoir girls of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium classes gathered last night for their Christmas party. The regular class work was enjoyed the first hour, then games and a very funny basket ball game by the all-star team in which every rule was broken. Santa Claus again paid a visit to the party and brought each girl a little package. During the refreshments the physical director urged the girls to bear in mind the coming campaign for new gymnasium members which will take place the first of the year. Nearly three hundred now enjoy our gymnasium classes but the ambition is to make it four hundred and fifty. All classes will be resumed Tueday the second of January. Every girl is invitde to visit the Association on New Year's Day and to bring any friends with her.

THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES HELD AT OMEMEE HIGH SCHOOL

Interesting Programme Provided—Fifty Students Took Part in the Proceedings—New Principal Introduced.

OMEMEE, December 20. — The High School Commencement to which many of the people of this locality look forward with keen interest each year, was held in Coronation Hall.

A packed house greeted the fifty students who made a pretty picture as the curtain rose on the opening choruses, the girls wearing white while the boys wore white trousers and dark coats. The clear young voices thrilled the audience to great enthusiasm as they sang, first, "O Canada," followed by "Omemee O. H.S." responding to an encore, the "Cheery Chorus" was given, followed by the High School yell.

Who are we? Why, can't you guess?
We're the boys of the O.H.S.
O.H.S. Sir, boom, bah!
Omemee High School,
Rah! Rah! Rah!

The programme was now off to a good start and was continued without one dull moment from 8.30 until 11.30 p.m. In the absence of Mr. F. G. Sandy, M.P.P., who could not be present for the opening exercises Mr. T. C. Ivory, chairman of the school board made a most efficient chairman.

The Misses Laura Shea and Lillian Race rendered a very pretty instrumental duet and graciously responded to an encore. A group of girls danced the Highland Schottiche amid rounds of applause.

Mr. Ivory then introduced to the audience the new High School principal, who in a brief and witty address spoke in glowing terms of our High School, what it had achieved in the past and what it could do in the future. Mr. Leighton then called forward the valedictorian, Miss Mabel Weir, to whom he presented her diploma. Miss Alderson, the assistant High School teacher, was then called forward and presented with a handsome bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums, Miss Helen Johnson making the presentation on behalf of the High School students.

Miss Alderson replied in a happy little speech of thanks to the students for their remembrance, and also for their hearty cooperation in preparaing the evening's entertainment.

Following is the Valedictory Address given in a clear voice by Miss Mabel Weir:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen—

As an ex-student of the Omemee High School I am very pleased to be present on this occasion and read for you the valedictroy address.

Education is of paramount importance in any country. In the march of progress, China has become isolated because that country, after achieving in ancient times one of the highest civilizations in the world was contented with her past achievements, ceased to strive and failed to educate her people. If education were necessary in ancient eras of aristocratic government, it is doubly essential in modern democratic times.

Long ago, education served the individual principally, for his own pleasure, or were he studiously inclined and mentally gifted, he sometimes left the world richer by his contribution to its literature of poetry or prose. To-day, we graduates of Omemee school can serve our community in more ways than the people of ancient times could, with the education we owe our local seats of learning.

In a democratic country such as Canada the opportunity for ambitious boys and girls are infinite in number and variety. People's responsibilities in any land are always commensurate with their opportunities. Our responsibility in our democratic state is great because, unless the people in it have wide visino the nation cannot surpass the individuals composing it. Our country will be great in proportion as its people are great.

To the Omemee schools we owe the educational equipment which will enable us to grasp the opportunities that Canada affords its young people. We must on our part give service to the community and country in return.

In war time heroes died for their country. It is no less essential that in peace times we should live worthily and devote ourselves to her interests.

Canada being a comparatively new country lacks the historic traditions of older lands. Schools, such as the one here in Omemee, which is one of the oldest in Ontario, provide one of the best links we have with the past and one of the most hopeful beacons on the road to the future.

Graduates of Omemee at this festive season of the year, consider it in order to give the school of the future their best wishes and the school of the past to which they owe their training their most sincere thanks.

It is natural that it should be on our school friends that memory lingers and not on subjects, examinations, or the facts we gleaned at school, necessary though the latter were.

The alphabet from first to last,
Was formed in Form III this year past,
Adams, Miss Daisy, heads the roll,
Courtney, Miss Rhea, continues the scroll.
Connell, Miss Marjory, is tall and fair,
When mischief was afoot she always was there.
Corneil, Mr. "Bob," with his golden locks
Cut up so much that the teacher he shocks.
Faulkner, Miss Mary, comes next in line,
Who always in dialogue took part so fine,
Lowe, Miss Vera, who worked just so,
When she was singing she sang alto.
Spiers, Miss Gladys, with waves in her hair
Didn't learn Latin so had many spares.
Wilson, Miss Mabel, with industrious look,
You never saw her without a book.

And as in years past and to come
A. Weir's name 'ere roll call is done.

Following the valedictory address the Sailors' chorus, given by the 17 boy students in sailor costume elicited rounds of applause ("All the nice girls love a Sailor.")

Three little maidens, Helen Johnson, Genevieve Sandy and Katy Weir appeared in Scotch costume and delighted the audience with the "Highland Fling."

Campbell Mackey, in a comic song and later in a Jewish skit with Geo. Morton, was a real mirth maker.

The Old Maids' Tea Party given by six young ladies was very quaint and funny; costumes of 50 years ago were worn; the minuet was danced with stately grace and the young ladies were forced to respond to an encore.

Play.

The play entitled 'Mr. Bob" lasted one and a half hours held the undivided attention of the audience from first to last. The cast of characters was as follows:

Mr. Bob—Ruth Stillman.
Philip—Campbell Mackey.
Brown—George Morton.
Aunt Beckey—Mary Faulkner.
Patty—Evelyn Rea.
Jenkins—Arthur MacFarlane.
Katharine—Jean Sandy.

Plot.

Aunt Beckey, an eccentric maiden lady of means, living in a beautiful home with servants at her command, has living with her a niece, Katharine, and a nephew, Philip, the latter a keen yachtsman, who has entered his trim little sail boat for the races. Aunt Becky has a pet hobby of building a great addition to her home for the purpose of housing stray cats; an architect from the city has been summoned to draw out plans for the new building while the servants combine their efforts with those of Katharine and Philip, to frustrate the plan. "Mr. Bob," a particularly attractive young lady, a friend of Katharine, who Philip believes to be a young man, arrives on a visit to Katharine, Philip still believing "Mr. Bob" to be a boy tries to play his part as host by placing sundry little comforts such as cigars, tennis shoes, and racquet, etc. in the guest room. Philip is expecting a colleeg chum, who is unknown to the household. The city architect arrives, is taken for the college chum, when Philip gives a shouted greeing through the bedroom door to Katharine's friend. He is answered in what sounds to him like a sissy voice and he is thoroughly disgusted with Katharine's ideal; later meeting the city architect he believes him to be "Mr. Bob" and insists on him taking a dose of medicine. Seeking out Aunt Becky Philip tries to induce her to give up her scheme of housing cats, which she finally consents to do if Philip will give up the boat race. This is a great inconvenience to the young man, who has already entered his sail boat. He finally consents to drop the race which is to take place that day and he starts off, pleading a sudden call to the city. "Mr. Bob" enters the boat race with Philip's boat and wins the race. Aunt Becky gives up her pet hobby, Philip on meeting "Mr. Bob" recognizes a former sweetheart and all ends happily.

To print pretty speeches about any one character in the play would not be doing justice to the ability of all. Suffice it to say every character was a star and lived the part played.

Mr. Leighton who had charge of the play, and Miss Alderson, who trained the first part of the programme are to be heartily congratulated on the success achieved. The proceeds amounted to $151.00.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

SUPERB FASHION REVUE SHOWN IN "NICE PEOPLE"

All American Costumes From Pilgrim Days to the Present Worn in William DeMille's Big Production.

A revue of American fashions from the days of the Pilgrims to the present! This is one of the distinctive pictorial features of William de Mille's Paramount production of "Nice People," which will be seen at the Capitol Theatre, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The occasion is a Fourth of July masquerade ball and the guests appear wearing costumes remiscent of every important period of American history. No two costumes are alike. Colonial grand dames, maids of the first revolutionary period, Civil War beauties and dozens of other types are presented with their masculine counterparts.

Julia Faye, in the role of the hostess, is gowned as Columbia. Bebe Daniels, charming in the huge skirted gown of 1840, and Conrad Nagel as an early Colonial cavalier, are the other principals of this episode.

Wallace Reid, who is the other member of the quartet of principals in the all-star cast of "Nice People" does not appear in this sequence of scenes.

The introduction of this masque ball is an original idea for which William de Mille and Clara Beranger, who adapted the story from Rachel Crothers' play, are the sponsers. In most other important respects, the Paramount screen adaptation follows the original play closely.

Avery strong supporting bill has been booked for this engagement embracing that funny fellow Harold Lloyd in an uproarious comedy called "Just Dropped In" as also the Sherlock Holmes adventure, No. 3, "A Case of Indentity". A Pathe Review rounds out this brilliant program.

PRINCE OF DENMARK RETURNS TO FRENCH ARMY

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 20.—(Associated Press)—Prince Aage, son of Prince Waldemar, of Denmark, who renounced his throne to marry an Italian countess, has accepted a commission as major in the French Colonial forces.

Prince Aage, some years ago, was an officer of the French Foreign Forces, but left to join his own regiment of the Danish Royal Guard. He will be sent to Morocco, and will be accompanied by his wife and little son.

London shopgirls are said to be more courteous than those in the large American stores.

ROYAL

John Gilbert in The LOVE GAMBLER

TAMING HORSES, LIKE TAMING WOMEN, IS ALL IN KNOWING HOW!

GILBERT'S WHISTLE TAMES GIRL AND HORSE IN PICTURE

Next to acting in Fox pictures, John Gilbert, star of "The Love Gambler" which is now playing at the Royal Theatre, likes to sing. And after that, he likes to whistle.

One of the incidents in "The Love Gambler" depends on the hero's ability to whistle successfully. That piece of business was not in the original scenario. But Gilbert would unconsciously start whistling when the big moments came, so that finally Joseph Franz, who directed the picture, got the idea of how he could take the picture and still have Gilbert acting naturally.

There are two big moments in the picture; one where Gilbert tames a wild horse, and one where he tames a girl. And he accomplishes both of these difficult tasks by whistling an old circus tune. Since the picture's showing in New York City, Gilbert is said to have been deluged with letters asking him for the air of the old song.

Also Mutt and Jeff, in "Golfing," 1 reel; Fox World News, 1 reel; a western drama, "Tracked to Earth," 2 reels; comedy, "Accidents will Happen," 1 reel; educational, "Portal of the Prairies," 1 reel; high-class Toonerville Comedy, "Fresh Air," 2 reels.

The Royal is showing the best and biggest programme in the city. Come and judge for yourself, and if not satisfied money will be refunded.

Admission, Afternoon 10c and 15c Evening, 15c and 20c. War Tax included.

BANQUET HELD FOR PLAYERS IN THE MEN'S SOFT BALL LEAGUE

Knights of Columbus Presented With Cup and Shield For Winning the City Championship.

MANY PRESENT.

Members of the local Softball League brought the fall schedule to a fitting close with a banquet last evening at Hooper's. The officers of the league, umpires, members of the championship team and two representatives from each of the other teams who took part in the schedule. Mayor Taylor, who presented the cup for the winners of the schedule, was the guest of honor. The party, numbering about fifty, gathered promptly at 7 o'clock and an excellent dinner was served.

Jack Sullivan, President of the league, acted as chairman and toastmaster for the occasion. He outlined the object of the organization and said that since September 25 over 250 men had taken part in one or more of the seventy-five games played. The interest taken in the games by the players and clubs was well indicated when an examination of the records showed that but two games had been defaulted.

The present athletic activities of the P.A.A.A., under which the league was organized, are, he said, just about the biggest in Canada. The various games which this organization is fostering have done a great deal to build up both the body and stamina of the individuals, and also to foster a better spirit of comradeship and neighborliness among those who had taken part in them.

As far as the Softball League was concerned, he said, it is greatly indebted to a number of different people for its success. Colonel McPherson had allowed the use of the Armoury for the games, Mayor Taylor had come to the fore and presented a cup to be played for, Chris. Graham had presented a shield for the championship of the club section, Alex. Kay had gathered together a staff of efficient and capable umpires and the various members of the Executive Committee had worked together whole-heartedly for success. The season had been opened with twelve teams, comprising two sections, but many other applications were received and another section had been added. Plans are already under way for the spring schedule, and even more teams are expected to enter.

Cup Presented.

Mayor W. H. Taylor, in presenting the cup to the Knights of Columbus congratulated the members of the team on the great efforts they had put forth both individually and collectively for the success of their team. They had always played good sportsmanlike games and their ultimate victory was a credit to them. Sports, he said, are one of the best things the city can possibly have, and the P.A.A.A. in fostering and guiding the work of the various leagues in all branches of sport has done and is doing a wonderful dork. The past season had been a good one for the Softball League, and the indications he had seen so far pointed to an even more successful schedule in the spring.

James J. Dorris, President of the Knights of Columbus softball team, accepted the cup on behalf of the championship aggregation. In expressing his appreciation for the efforts of Mayor Taylor to promote this branch of sport, he said that the team was proud to win the cup, and proud also to be the first ones to secure the coveted trophy. It was, he said, the first prize the K. of C. had ever won in this city in any athletic contest. In addition to the feeling of elation over having won the trophy against some exceptionally strong teams, the games in themselves had provided a good healthy sport for many of the members, who found themselves unable to enter as heartily as they wished into outdoor athletic activities."

The Club Shield.

The shield donated by Chris. Graham for the championship of the club section also went to the Knights of Columbus. In presenting the prize Mr. Graham said that the schedule just ended had prevented an opportunity for many of the players to show that they were not all in the "has been" class. The greater part of the success of the league was due, he said, to the efforts of the President, Jack Sullivan, and the Secretary, Walter Fitzgerald. He was more than pleased, he said, to present the trophy to the Knights because they had played some good games in order to win it.

The shield was accepted by M. F. Sharpe, manager of the team, who briefly expressed the thanks of the team for the trophy and to the league for the banquet which had been given.

Jack Primeau's very true-to-life rendition of "Le Habitant" was next on the programme and was very well received.

Presents for the Umpires.

J. M. Hardie, a member of the Executive Committee, had a few words to say in appreciation of the work done by the umpires. On their work depended, he said, much of the success of the league, and they had been efficient and just in every game. He then presented the five umpires who were present, Alex. Kay, Curley LeBarr, Walter Jackson, Bill Jackson and Ted Jackson, each with a small token from the players and officers of the league in recognition of their work during the schedule.

In replying on behalf of the staff of umpires, Alex. Kay said that the past schedule had been a pleasant experience for them all, and expressed the willingness of himself and his staff to assist in any way in forwarding sport of any kind in the city. He also gave a brief history of the development of softball in this Province during the past ten years, and the successful efforts during the past year to standardize the rules. There are, however, he said, a few changes necessary and he advocated an age limit for the local league.

P.A.A.A. Ready to Help.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, President of the P.A.A.A., was present and spoke briefly. He congratulated players, umpires and officers of the league for the successful schedule which had just been finished. The work of the Executive Committee came in for special commendation, for a good, hard working executive was necessary to carry the schedule to as successful a close.

In speaking of the P.A.A.A., he said that this organization was ready to back up every legitimate branch of sport in the city and that there is work in the P.A.A.A. for everybody in the city to do, for the organization needs the wholehearted support of the entire public.

In order that the schedule which is to be run off in the spring might have every prospect of success, the chairman asked for any suggestions of constructive criticisms from the A number of valuable suggestions were received and will receive the attention of the Executive Committee.

ANOTHER PITCHER FOR TORONTO CLUB

Two Semi-Pros. and Two M.-O. Graduates With Reis Will Require Some Coaching.

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—Toronto has signed Pitcher Fred Lynch, a right-handed semi-pro. from New Jersey. He is six feet two inches tall, and 22 years old. The other semi-pro. pitcher for Toronto, Dick Collins, of Salem, Mass., has forwarded his signed contract to local headquarters. Two from the M.-O. League—Summers and Glasier—with Reis, makes five young pitchers to date, requiring some care and attention and looking over. Manager Howley's decision to have his pitchers report a week in advance of the rest of the team next spring is a wise one, even without the addition of any more young heavers. Johnny Enzmann should prove invaluable as an assistant coach to these youngsters, especially as Catcher Driscoll is rather new himself. It looks like a busy spring following on an active winter for Manager Howley.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL MAY FACE PUCK AT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Dec. 20.—The Ottawa Senators will open the local professional hockey season here tonight, when they meet the Toronto St. Patricks, Stanley Cup holders. Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Byng of Vimy have extended their patronage to the local games, and will be present. It is likely that Lord Byng, who is an enthusiastic fan, will face the puck in the opener.

The locals will have a chance to climb back into the running on Wednesday night, and Petie Green, strategist of the Ottawa crew, is confident that his charges will defeat the Stanley Cup holders. The Senators held a private practice and another last night to round them off for their encounter with the Queen City team.

PRESENTED SOFT BALL TROPHIES.

RETAINS TITLE IN BOWLING WORLD

Jimmy Blouin of Chicago is Still the World's Champion—Won a Close Match.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.— (Canadian Press.)—Jimmy Blouin, of Chicago, world's champion bowler, retained his title here yesterday when he defeated Jimmy Smith of Milwaukee, in the sixth block of their sixty-game match, Blouin's total points being 278 for the six blocks, while Smith was credited with 273, 27-50.

Blouin by winning the championship retains permanent possession of the worlds' championship medal for which the bowlers were contending.

The final block of ten games opened with Smith holding a fractional point lead over the champion. The bowlers won and lost this slight advantage during the first few games, but after the 56th game, Blouin retained it and kept adding to it.

Blouin knocked down 12,300 pins, while Smith was credited with 12,277 for the 60 games. In yesterday's games Blouin bowled over 2,095 maples and Smith had 2,008 to his credit. Blouin had an average for the sixty games of 205, and Smith 204 37-60.

MALONE MAY GO TO THE CANADIENS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20.—In view of the fact that Joe Malone has taken up his residence in Montreal and cannot get leave of absence to play hockey in Hamilton, an exchange of players between Hamilton and Canadiens may be made. While in Hamilton, Leo Dandurand was approached by Percy Thompson of the Hamilton club regarding the exchanging of Bouchard for Malone. The Hamilton club management does not look on Malone as a holdout, and rather than keep him out of hockey will trade him for Bouchard for this winter.

BANQUET CHAMPS TOMORROW NIGHT

Presentation of Trophies to Canadian Generals and Maple Leafs.

The programme for the complimentary banquet to the Intermediate and Midget baseball champions of Ontario at the Empress Hotel tomorrow evening ,when the winning teams will be formally presented with the spoils of the season. The medals for the Midget champs has not arrived, but the Ontario Association will hardly dare to refuse the youngsters their share of the honors.

It is likely that President Pat Kennedy of the O.B.A.A. will be here for the festivities.

For those who wish to attend the banquet, tickets will be available at the Empress Hotel.

ARRANGE GAMES FOR O.H.A. TEAMS

Fans May See the Local Players in Action Next Week.

Real hockey weather is with us again and the hockey players may be able to take to the ice at Brock Street Rink tomorrow evening. The opening practices promises to bring out a large number of Intermediates and Junior players, many of whom will have the benefit of indoor training.

Secretary Frank Convery is endeavoring to arrange exhibition games for next week, and is now in communication with one of the Toronto senior O.H.A. teams. An effort is also being made to arrange a game for the Jun. rs.

Both teams are scheduled for league fixtures, the first week in January.

ROBERTSON RELEASED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—Davy Robertson, utility outfielder of the New York Giants, has been released unconditionally, it was announced to-day.

BENTON DEAL CLOSED.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — The deal by which Rube Benton, southpaw pitcher of the St. Paul American Association League champions, becomes a Red, may be considered closed, August Hermann, president of the Cincinnati National League Club, said yesterday. He said that details have been settled to the satisfaction of the St. Paul club, and that Benton himself was pleased with the deal.

Skating on C.C.M. Chrome Nickel Steel Is Exhilarating

As one enthusiastic skater said: "Skating on C. C. M. Automobile Skates is just like flying. You glide along with hardly an effort."

Much of this exhilarating difference is the result of the steel used.

C. C. M. Automobile Skates are made of Special Chrome Nickel Steel as used in the costliest motor cars and the finest edge tools.

This steel takes a hard, keen, knife-like edge that grips the ice so you get full power out of every stroke. And it glides along the ice with marvelous ease and swiftness.

While hard as glass on the outside C. C. M. Skates are not brittle. The ingenious C. C. M. heat-treatment leaves an interior "core" of tough steel, that makes C. C. M. Skates practically unbreakable.

You've maybe skated on your old skates a long time now. Why not put on a pair of C. C. M. Skates and enjoy the thrill of skating on Special Chrome Nickel Steel?

Models and sizes to fit ladies, men, girls and boys.

Here and There in Sportdom

Junior hockey teams are reminded of the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce to-night to organise a junior series to be played at Brock Street Rink. It will be necessary to have at least four well-balanced teams, manned by officers who will not be afraid to work, in an effort to bring about success. There will be some financial obligations to be assumed by the clubs. The meeting is called for eight o'clock.

The appointment of Alan Campbell, of Bowmanville, to look after the interests of Central Ontario teams in the Ladies' Hockey Association, will meet with the approval of the Peterborough entry. Mr. Campbell is a former Peterborough athlete, and is well known throughout the district of which he will be in charge.

This city is about to lose a popular athlete in the person of Chris Bergoine, who is moving to Windsor. He will be missed in baseball, basketball, and hockey circles.

Belleville Intermediates will entertain the Smith's Falls team in an exhibition game next Friday night, and Port Hope Intermediates have arranged a home game with Leaside. The Port Hopers will be managed this season by our old friend "Skid" Janes, who did a turn in the nets for the Petes some years ago.

Secretary Dulmage has sent his regrets and has passed the buck to other officers of the O.R.A.A. It is likely that President Pat Kennedy will represent the Association at the banquet to the Intermediate and Midget champions here to-morrow night.

LOOK OUT FOR THE REDS IN 1923

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(United Press).—"You boy 'll be back in this neighborhood next fall," Garry Herrman, boss of the cincinnati Reds, said to a party of eastern writers at the recent gathering of the minors in Louisville.

It was Garry's way of saying that the Reds are going to do the National League's end of the entertaining in the World Series of 1923.

Herrman isn't alone thinking well of Cincinnati's chances in the coming pennant race. The Reds look very good from this distance, and if they get away to a good start, they have a grand chance for the title.

The Reds made a smart deal when they secured Rube Benton from the St. Paul American Association Club.

Benton is not only far from being through, but he is as good as he ever was, according to good judges who saw him working in the association.

John Conway Toole, President of the International League, said his work against Baltimore in the "little world's series" was the second best he had ever seen on the mound. He regarded the first game pitched as one of Dick Rudolph's against the Athletics in the 1914 series.

Benton had a bad foot and his arm was going bad when he left the Giants. His foot was brought around by the St. Paul trainer and his arm weakness was found to be the result of a collection of pus under his shoulder, and it was removed by an operation.

* * * * * *

Four major league clubs were after Benton—two in the National League and two from the American League.

Both American League offers were withdrawn when Ban Johnson, President of the league, declared that Benton could not pitch in his organization.

The old Herzog-Benton story was given as the reason.

John W. Norton, President of the St. Paul club, wrote Johnson and suggested that if Benton was not clean enough to play in the American League, he was not good enough for any club in organized baseball. He demanded that Johnson prove his charges, but Johnson replied that if St. Paul wanted to fight about Benton it should fight with the Giants and not with the American League office.

* * * * * *

Benton appeared before Commissioner Landis and stated his case during the Louisville meetings and letters from the National League office and the Giants' office were presented, showing that Benton had not been found guilty of any off-color work.

Norton was going after Johnson again, when Cincinnati bobbed up with a good offer and the sale was made.

The deal was made, it is understood, with the consent of Commissioner Landis and say much as he and Garry Herrman were formerly such fast friends.

* * * * * *

After the Reds got straightened away from a miserable start last season, one more good pitcher was about all they needed to make it most interesting for the Giants.

Peter Donahue, about the best young pitcher in baseball, was out for weeks also with a bad arm.

Golden Footballs For Queen's Team

KINGSTON, Dec. 20.—Queen's football team, national champions, were Monday evening presented with souvenir gold footballs by the City Council in Memorial Hall. The presentation was made by Mayor Corbett, the token being small footballs of solid gold for watch fobs or chains.

George Awrey, director of athletics, hobbling about with the aid of a cane, was the recipient of one of the footballs, together with Billy Hughes, the trainer, while the players so honored are "Red" McKelvey, "Red" Batstone, Carson, Delehay, Dave Harding, "Pep" Leadley, Lewis, Muirhead, "Chick" Mundell, "Pres" McLeod, Reynolds, "Bud" Thomas, "Smut" Veale, "Liz" Walker of the regular squad, and the substitutes, Saylor, Nickle, McNeill, Johnston, James, Kennedy, Grondin, Burns, Bond, Abernethy, together with Manager Houston, Johnny Evans, "Doc" Campbell, Coach Billy Hughes and Cheerleader Holdcroft were absent and the tokens will be sent to them.

PREPARATIONS FOR SKI TOURNAMENT.

MINNEAPOLIS Minn., December 20. — Work has begun on the 100 foot steel ski slide at Glenwood Park here, on which the skiers of the country will participate in the National Ski Tournament to be held in Minneapolis on February 10 and 11.

Cooperating with the board of park commissioners the Municipal Ski Club of Minneapolis and the Odin Club, another local organization, have subscribed towards the erection of the slide. The tournament will be conducted under the auspices of the three bodies.

The outstanding feature of the opening day will be the boy's national championship meet, in which all boys under 16 years of age are eligible to participate. In addition a dual meet between the University of Minnesota and the University of Wisconsin will be held on that day.

On the following day Class A and B skiers from all parts of hte United States and Canada will compete.

"The Minneapolis tournament will be the biggest in the history of the ski sport and will take on an international aspect with entries coming from Canada," states L. J. Sverdrup, secretary of the National Ski-Association.

Among the list who already have made arrangements to attend are delegations from Dartmouth College, Ironwood, Mich.; Grand Beach Club, Michigan; Denver, Col.; Revelstoke, B.C.; Canada, Winnipeg, Montreal, Toronto and Quebec, according to Secretary Sverdrup.

"There is a revival in skiing, and more clubs are organizing now than ever before in the history of the 19 years of the existence of the National Ski Association," Mr. Sverdrup states.

KEEN COMPETITION IN YACHTING CIRCLES

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.— (Canadian Press.)— Forecast of a keen season of international yachting competition in 1923 was seen yesterday in an announcement that the first event between United States and British craft had been scheduled, a series of six races between six-metre yachts, to be sailed in August in British waters for the historic Seawanhaka Challenge Cup.

This trophy was captured last year by Coila III., owned by J. G. Stephens, of the Royal Northern Yacht Club of Scotland, and went overseas for the first time in its twenty seven years' history.

CARPENTIER'S MANAGER IS UNDER SUSPICION.

PARIS, December 20 (Canadian Press). — The film of the Siki-Carpentier fight shows that Descamps, manager of Carpentier, went to Siki's corner in the fourth round and spoke to Hellers, manager of the Senegalese, according to L'Auto to-day.

Vice-President Boubariat, of the Boxing Federation, told L'Auto that for the manager of a boxer to speak to another during a fight constituted a very serious fault.

DEMPSEY-WILLARD BOUT.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 20.—W. H. Klepper, principal owner of the Portland Pacific Coast League Baseball Club, last night telegraphed Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, an offer of $350,000 for a ten-round boxing match for the heavyweight championship of the world between Dempsey and Jess Willard here July 4 next. Willard, who is here, said he was agreeable to the proposal.

RE PETERBOROUGH POWER SUPPLY

Mr. R. R. Hall—

Dear Mr. Hall,—A number of citizens of Peterborough are interested in having the local situation with regard to power in this city as set out by your several letters in the press discussed.

In accordance with a suggestion of these citizens, I invite you to meet me at a meeting to be arranged some time next week in the Great War Veterans' Hall, to discuss the local power situation in all its angles so far as it has or will effect Peterborough and the Central Ontario group of municipalities. This debate is to be confined to local conditions in this district, the city's activities with regard to power, and any extracts from your several letters which deal with thes econditions.

If this suggestion meets with your approval, kindly publish your acceptance in to-morrow's issue of the Daily Examiner.

Your sincerely,
ROBERT HICKS,

LONDON MURDERESS AND HER BACHELOR LOVER MUST HANG

Appeal Against Sentence is Dismissed and There's No Hope That Mrs. Edith Thompson and Bywaters May Escape the Gallows.

WOMAN'S HUSBAND STABBED TO DEATH

LONDON, Dec. 21.—(Special).—Mrs. Edith Thompson and Byswater, her lover, must hang for the murder of the woman's husband, as the Lord Chief Justice has dismissed their appeal against sentence.

STORY OF THE CRIME.

As strange a story as ever was told in fictional form has been read into the criminal records in the trials of Mrs. Edith Thompson and Frederick Byswater, who are charged with the murder of Percy Thompson ,the woman's husband.

He was stabbed to death last month as he was returning home from the theatre with his wife.

At first the killing was believed to have been the act of an assassin bent on robbery, but after an intrigue between Mrs. Thompson and Byswater was discovered, the police searched the woman's house and the man's quarters on the steamship Morea and found hundreds of love letters.

Poison Plot Hinted.

The police assent that the letters of the woman prove she and Byswater had been plotting for longer than a year to kill Thompson that they might marry.

It is charged that they reveal how Mrs. Thompson attempted to kill her husband by poisoning his tea, by using ground glass in his meat and by more than a score of other methods.

In one of the letters Mrs. Thompson, it is declared, refers to her husband suspecting that a scheme was afoot to kill him, and quotes him as saying that he was like "a cat with nine lives." The prosecutor contends that he was finally slain with a knife after every insidious method failed.

Mrs. Thompson was directed in her work, it is charged, by written instructions from Byswater. The man's letters to her have not been found but her letters to him are voluminous.

Fought to Keep Conscious.

One of the most important letters of Mrs. Thompson to Byswater reads:

"He says to his people he fought and fought with himself to keen conscious. He declared he would never die except naturally, and that he was like a cat with nine lives.

"He detailed to them an occasion when he was young and nearly suffocated by gas fumes.

"I wish we had not got electric light. It would be easy. I am going to try the glass again, occasionally, when it is safe. I have an electric light globe this time."

In a later letter addressed to Aden

May Visit Germany And See Conditions

LONDON, Dec. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Request made by German Trade Commission that a committee of United States' business men, headed by Herbert Hoover, visit Germany to undertake a thorough survey of economic conditions that would be used as a basis of new reparations treaty, was seen here today as perhaps the starting point of a flock of rumors as to United States' intervention in reparations problem.

It is semi-officially learned that Britain has informed the United States' Government of its consent to such a plan. It is expected that France will also assent.

UNUSUAL APPEAL TO KIND HEARTED PEOPLE FOR HELP

For the First Time the Salvation Army Seeks Help for Their Annual Christmas Tree.

For years Mr. R. C. Braund as superintendent of the Salvation Army's Sunday school, has been the moving spirit not only in its general work but also in the annual 'Christmas tree' festival at the Temple for the little folks. Heretofore he has been able to provide for this event, with the help of his assistants, by entertainments and other means of raising a small special fund. This year, however, the new building has taken up all his time for months and has also required every effort to meet expenses. The 'Christmas Tree' fund had to give way to the urgent demands of the financing of the new annex on Simcoe street, and with the great festival only a few days away, the prospect appears gloomy for hundreds of children who have met Santa Claus at the Salvation Army Temple in other years.

Believing that many good friends throughout the city would be glad to help the Army this year, Mr. Braund is appealing to them through the Examiner, for little gifts for distribution from the Christmas tree. The fact that the new building has been put into commission to assist in the developing boys and girls along the lines of good citizenship, that this improvement has exhausted the Army's funds, and further that the members of the local Corps have given to the limit of their means, Mr. Braund feels confident that the people of Peterborough will generously contribute to the Christmas tree which is the big event for Wednesday, December 27.

The list of articles needed, as prepared by Sergeant Major Braund, is as follows: 100 pair of stockings for boys or girls, 75 pair mitts for boys or girls; 35 pair boys' boots; 35 pair girls' boots; 50 pair boys' and girls' rubbers ;200 handkerchiefs; 50 sweaters for boys or girls; 40 pair boys' bloomer pants; 30 girls' overcoats ;30 boys' coats; 50 neck ties; 75 pair rubbers; 100 lbs. candy and nuts; 150 small toys and dolls; 100 small story books; 500 oranges; some winter underwear for boys girls and babies.

If you can give any part of this list or anything else useful, communicate please with Adjt. Smith, 'phone 1929, or Sgt.-Major Braund, 'phone 2129. Your help will be appreciated.

I JES' P'TEND.

I jes' p'etend my Dad's alive.
'At Mama doesn't have to work
'At she can stay at home all day,
An' doesn't have to go an' clerk
In 'at ol' store—I jes' p'etend!

An' I p'etend 'at we all live
In a b-i-g house in a fine street,
An' 'at we have a dra' big car,
An' lots of 'licious things to eat,
An' lots of close—I jes' p'etend!

I jes' p'etend the kids at school
Don't laugh at my ol' close and shoes,
An' 'at they all like me—a lot—
'At sometimes in the games they choose
Me, too, to play—I jes' p'etend!

An' after school, I jes' p'etend
When I go home again an' cook
An' sweep an 'dust till Mama comes,
'At I'm a princess in a book!
It's lots of fun jes' to p'etend!

An' me an' Mama, we p'etend
'At we are eatin' gold plates,
'At we have turkey an' ice cream,
An' cakes an' raisins, nuts an' dates—
An', oh, yes—butter!—we p'etend!

An when I go to bed at night
I jes' p'etend 'at I am not
So awful cold. I snuggle down
An' make believe 'at I'm too hot—
Sometimes all night, I jes' p'etend!

An' when I hear the kids all talk
'Bout Santa Claus an' his reindeer,
An' all the things he's goin' to bring
I jes' p'etend 'at he'll stop here!—
I wisht he knew how I p'etend!

WILL DEBATE THE POWER SITUATION

Mr. R. R. Hall Accepts Mr. Robert Hicks' Invitation to Publicly Discuss Vital Issue

Mr. Robert Hicks—

Dear Mr. Hicks — I beg to acknowledge receipt of your open letter addressed to me through the columns of The Daily Examiner in last evening's issue.

I have very great pleasure in accepting your invitation to meet you at a meeting to be held any day next week in the Great War Veterans' Hall, to discuss the local power situation on the lines indicated in your letter.

I would suggest, but subject to your entire approval, inasmuch as my views have been widely published, that at the outset of the meeting, you indicate the grounds on which you oppose them, with the fullest opportunity to you to reply.

A full, fair and frank discussion of this great vital question to this city is greatly in the public interest, and I desire to thank you for your kind invitation to take part in it.

Yours Faithfully,
R. R. HALL.

OPPOSE RETURN

LOS ANGELES, December 21 (Canadian Press). — Following the announcement that Will Hayes, film arbitrator, had given Roscoe Arbuckle permission to play again in the movies, the Federation of Women's Clubs here met and adopted a motion opposing his return to the movies. The motion contained the words, "until as club women, we will do all in our power to prevent it."

The Federation has a membership of about two million, the majority of whom are mothers.

COMMISSION TO REPORT

LONDON, December 21. Canadian Press. — The royal commission which recently investigated the system under which honors are bestowed, again declares that the speculations, which have appeared concerning its findings are all wide of the mark. The commission promises a report in a few days.

The impression is gaining that the views of the members of the commission are very divergent.

TAKE EXCEPTION RECENT ATTACK CIVIL SERVICE

W. C. Good, M.P., Suggested Overhauling of Civil Service Salary List

OTTAWA, December 21 (Canadian Press). — When W. C. Good, M.P. for Brant, launched his attack in Brantford recently against the Civil Service, he stirred up a hornets nest. Mr. Good was quoted as stating, during his address before North Brant Progressive Association recently, 'that millions of dollars were being thrown away on Civil Service and that the entire salary list needed overhauling.

Vigorous exception to Mr. Good's sweeping attack has been taken by the Ottawa branch of the Dominion Postal Clerks' Association, who discussed Mr. Good's remarks at their recent meeting.

"When men of unquestionably genuine calibre of Mr. Good, M.P., give vent to the defamatory utterances against the Service which, from obvious lack of knowledge, they have no right to discuss, we must conclude that they are victims of erroneous information rather than men who would want only to mislead the public for no better reason than to have something to say," stated the president of the Ottawa Branch of the Dominion Postal Clerks' Association.

"Had Mr. Good known that lower paid classes of Civil Service manage to eke out only what must be termed a 'hand-to-mouth' existence, he would probably have been as ready in our defence as he was in our misrepresentation."

THE ANNUAL REPORT LIQUOR COMMISSION.

QUEBEC, Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press).— Annual report of Quebec Liquor Commission for fiscal year ending April 30 last shows that sales of year amount to $15,212,801.21 and net revenue to $4,000,974.50.

QUIET PRECEDES THE NOMINATIONS

Morning and Evening Sessions at the City Hall on Friday.

Nominations for Mayor, Utilities Commissioner, and Board of Education will be received at the City Hall on Friday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock, and for aldermen between made by the Right Hon. Mackenzie.

What the day will bring forth can only be surmised from this stage in the quietness and seeming apathy that has marked the consideration of municipal affairs during the last three weeks, when ordinarily candidates would be freely mentioned, and even slates formed.

These activities have been conspicuously absent this year, although the nominations may produce surprises.

Wagner's Piano, Long Lost, 'Is Found

The most famous piano in the world, the instrument presented to Richard Wagner by King Ludwig of Bavaria and on which the famous musician composed his greatest music dramas, has been found and is now in New York. Long lost, it was discovered in Germany by Robert H. Prosser, American soldier. Arthur Bodanzky, first conductor of the Metropolitan Opera House, is shown playing.

BIG LOSSES BY PETERBORO'S RADIAL ROAD

Drops $119,788.86 Since the Year 1917—A Deficit Also From the Gas Services.

WITNESS' EVIDENCE

TORONTO, December 21. — That the Peterboro Radial Railway has been a losing proposition every year since 1917, was revealed in the report and evidence of Mr. W. D. Bonthron, of the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants for the Gregory Commission, at Toronto.

The total losses by this railway, after 1917, Mr. Bonthron declares, has reached the big figures of $119,788.86.

For the period from March, 1916, to October 31, 1917, was a small profit of $1848. From October, 1917, to 1918, there was a loss of $12,323; to 1919, $20,779; to 1920, $21,205, to 1921, $33,031; and for the last year, namely to October 1922, the loss was $34,218.

The net result of all the years stands as a total loss on operation of $119,708.86.

On the operation of the gas works in Cobourg, Napanee, Oshawa, and Peterboro, there had been a loss from March, 1916, to October 31st, 1291, of $104,674.

Quite Illuminating.

This report was replete with illuminating information concerning the operations of the Central Ontario System since it was taken over by the Hydro-Electric Commission, in March, 1916.

That there have been heavy losses on the system, that in some municipalities large profits have been earned which have been used to wipe out deficits in others and that if certain municipalities were to exercise their right to take over the hydro plants that serve them the Ontario government would have to suffer big losses, are among the features which data submitted by Mr. Bonthron reveals. In view of the facts as given in the accountant's testimonw, the Central Ontario System has been, like the Nipigon, one of the ventures which has had a troublesome career.

On more than one occasion municipalities where profits on operation are shown have asked that they might take their local plants over, operate them and have these turned into their own treasuries. This request has not been granted, and the report of Mr. Bonthron would seem to offer an explanation.

The losses on the lame contracts have had to be made up and the moneys earned by Peter have been taken to pay Paul.

The Central Ontario System, as it is called, was purchased by the Province of Ontario in 1916 for $8,350,000 and paid for with par value 4½ per cent debentures due in 1926. The properties comprise two sections, the Nipissing, which included a generating plant and distributing system, principally for North Bay, but also supplying power for three other small communities, and secondly, a system comprised of power developments, transmission lines and local distribution electrical systems within 15 municipalities, four gas works, two water works, the Peterboro Radial Railway, and the Campbellford pulp mill.

In the deal there was a difference between what were tangible assets, and what the government paid of over two and a half millions of dollars. In other words the sum of $2,677,342 was allowed to be charged up as representing intangibles. Asked by the Gregory Commission if the government had to pay interest on the intangibles as well as the tangibles, Mr. Bonthron answered that it does, that is it has to pay interest on the whole of the purchase price of $8,350,000. He further said that those using the system would therefore have to pay high enough rates to take care of interest on the intangibles as well as the tangibles.

Cannot Recover.

Under the terms of the purchase certain municipalities named by Mr. Bonthron as Bowmanville, Belleville, Deseronto, Lindsay, Orono, Millbrook and Port Hope, were given the right to take over the plants if they wished at their cost price. Asked as to how the government could recover the sums paid for intangibles if these municipalities exercised their rights under the agreement the witness answered that he did not see any way in which the government could recover. It would follow from this that were the demands of the municipalities to be

Does Not Approve Open Door Policy

MONTRREAL, Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press.) — An open door policy of immigration, allowing anyone who wished to settle in Canada to make this country his home, is not favored by Dr. T. A. Drisson, who spoke at some length on this subject yesterday before members of the Chamber De Commerce. He declared that the Government should first try to stem the exodus of emigrants from the Dominion which is rushing to the United States. He warned against undesirables which are not being invited to people Canada. Without strict surveillance, he declared radicals, prospective paupers, riff-raff of European cities and criminals would find their way into larger Canadian cities to fill our asylums and our jails and become a burden upon the present populace.

BLUE CHRISTMAS IN BURNED AREA

Youth Replies to Farmer's Note in Bag of Oats to New Ontario.

When he contributed a quantity of oats to the Northern Ontario Relief Commission, Chas. Coughlin, of Norwood, put a slip of paper in one of the bags, giving his name and address and requesting an acknowledgment. He received the following reply:

Kenabeek, Ont.,
Dec. 2, 1922.

Mr. C. Coughlin, Norwood, Ont.

Dear Sir,—As I found a slip of paper with your name and address on it and asking to write I thought I would drop you a line and let you know how things fared here. I found that slip in an oat bag I got at the relief station as I was feeding the horses last night and was very glad to get it. All our crop, barn, houses and everything was burned; everything swept clean. It was a sad sight when the whole country was on fire to see everything that you had been working up all these years all going up in flames and everybody running to save their lives.

My father's place and my brother's place and my brother-in-law's place were all burned and many more so we didn't have anywhere to go and it turned cold just after the fire so we very nearly froze to death. We drove about a mile through high flames on both sides of the road and we very nearly got trapped in a trap of red death. One of the horses got a big burn on the back, the young colt, King, but still he ran on and almost dragged the ot her horse with him, or we would have got caught in the flames.

Well it is very near Christmas and there isn't much fun or a Christmas tree or anything and everybody lost everything, but the most I miss is my violin and other musical instruments. I miss my violin the most. it seems so lonesome without it. Everybody is always grumbling about how to get the work done the quickest and nothing to cheer them up with so you can imagine how it is.

I have got three brothers and two sisters and half of them are away because there isn't room in the little shack we are living it. It is just like a dog coop. We have a kind of a stable up now but we are just starting on the house. We have five head of cattle and three horses so it is pretty hard to get feed for them all. They only grant feed for two horses and three head of cattle. All the stock we lost was seven hens. The rest pulled through all right.

Well I guess I will have to close for now so good-bye. I am 16 years old. will be 17 the 4th of February.

Write soon as I am anxious to hear from you.

H. M. Robertson.

P.S.—If you see anybody that has a violin too many pass it on to me, eh! Everything is down flat so there is not a day's work to earn a dollar to buy anything with. There is a relief out here but the clothes they got are only worn out rags so you are half froze all the time when you are outside. The only thing that's worth anything is the groceries and stuff to eat. I guess there won't be any Christmas this year, but I wouldn't mind so much if I only had my violin. Is there a town around your place or only a farming country? Would there be a chance for a young fellow to get a job around there anywhere?—H. R.

THINKS PLOT TO BURN R.C. INSTITUTIONS

Is There a Mysterious, Secret, Oath-Bound Order at Work in Quebec Province?

FIVE DESTROYED

MONTREAL, Dec. 21.—Is there a mysterious, secret, oath-bound order in Quebec province sworn to destroy by fire every Roman Catholic institution in Canada?

MARTIN

Mayor Martin of Montreal thinks so following the burning of five Roman Catholic institutions within a few days apparently by incendiaries and the receipt by the mayor of a threatening letter when he started a thorough probe.

The first institution to be burned was the Roman Catholic church at Three Rivers near here, reduced to ashes at a loss of $100,000.

Then followed—

FIRE in the main building of the University of Montreal.

DAMAGE of $500,000 by fire to the St. Boniface College, Winnipeg.

DESTRUCTION by fire of the Laval University Dental College Montreal.

BURNING of the church monastery and presbytery of the Sulpician Fathers at Oka.

Besides, the village of Terrebonne, 25 miles from here has been swept by mysterious flames, rendering more than 1,000 homeless.

The total damage from all these blazes mounts to more than two and one-half millon dollars.

Undismayed by threats against his life made in anonymous letters, Mayor Martin is pushing his probe.

The Mayor is is a member of the Legislative Assembly at Quebec and he is making every effort to induce that body to undertake a sweeping investigation.

THE WEATHER

This is the shortest day of the year, and, according to the almanac, the first day of winter. From this day onward the evenings will begin to lengthen a little, but in the mornings there will be no perceptible change for several weeks. The lowest the temperature went last night was 28 degrees, comparatively mild.—W. P.

PREMIER ATTENDS OPENING OF HOTEL

Made Plea for National Unity and All That Goes With It.

MONTREAL, December 21 (Canadian Press). — A plea for national unity and international amity was bade by the Right Hon. Mackenzie-King, Premier of Cnada, at the opening of the new hotel here last night.

"We are glad to find ourselves, both as regards those who are of our own number and strangers within our gates as one large family. Can we carry into the larger thought of our social life as citizens of this Dominion that vast thought, can we make this gathering the symbol of what we would have Canada in her national relations be, according to the desire of the traveller who, passing through, may leave this record for future generations to read? No thought, surely, can be better worth striving for, no aim higher or better, than that we should seek in every relationship of life to develop that spirit of national unity and international goodwill which has been the records of the past, which is the record of the moment, and which, under the guidance of God, will make of our country and for the Empire to which we belong, a great forward moving agent for the good of humanity, provided we can keep to this one purpose of unity among ourselves, whatever race or creed, unity as Canadians with goodwill to one and all, dome from whatever part of the world they may."

BIG LOSSES

granted and the plants turned over to them large sums, as represented by "intangibles" would have to be borne by the provincial government as losses on the transaction, for as far as shown in the figures quoted above the total amount allowed for intangibles was no less than $2,600,000 odd.

Since the system was taken over and came under Hydro management in 1916 the net losses sustained have been exceedingly large. There have been substantial profits earned by some municipalities as the statistics given by Mr. Bonthron show, but moneys from the various sources have been combined so that the profitable plants have had to make up the deficits on the bad ones.

Profits and Losses.

The results of the retail of electric power for the period from March, 1916, to Oct. 31, 1921, stand as follows:

Place.	Profit.	Loss.
Belleville	$115,142	.....
Bowmanville	.....	$1,355
Brighton	2,800	.....
Cobourg	47,100	.....
Deseronto	.....	738
Lindsay	32,406	.....
Millbrook	.....	320
Napanee	.....	4,441
Newburgh	.....	3,388
Newcastle	1,057	.....
Orono	1,093	.....
Oshawa	79,274	.....
Port Hope	12,149	.....
Trenton	62,978	.....
Tweed	6,900	.....
Peterborough	.....	174

The totals including cents in each case and not given above stand at $35,402.88 profits and $17,410.71 deficits.

There were certain fixed contracts for the supply of energy when the Hydro took the system over to operate it after it had been bought by the Ontario government. On some of these there were profits, on some losses. The records as given to the commission by Mr. Bonthron show:

Name.	Profit.	Loss.
Sundry Companies, Campbellford	.....	$20,000
Canada Cement Co.	.....	72,000
Canadian Pacific	$ 140	.....
Chemical Products Ltd. (1920)	.....	490
Canadian Woolen Mills Ltd. (1917	.....	700
Deloro Smelting Co. (1920)	.....	11,800
Sundry Companies in Frankford	3,000	.....
Ontario Rock Co. (1920)	5,300	.....
G. M. Peebles 1919	.....	1,000
Point Anne Quarries (1921)	.....	6,000
Sheehy & Sons (1921	500	.....

In Kingston the loss is given as about $3,500. This has been on a contract which the Hydro itself made in September 1916, for a period of twenty years. In Omemee there has been a loss of $1,500; in Stirling about $125 and on two rural lines a loss of about $7,500.

The total losses estimated by Mr. Bonthron for all these fixed contracts is about $169,000 for three years. The estimated operating deficit on the whole system for the year ending 31st October, 1922, is given as $38,200 and the total net losses on all operations up to October, 1922, are put down as $207,168. This, of course, includes the estimated deficit for this year.

ALLIED AND TURKISH DIPLOMATS ARE NOW WORKING TOGETHER

The Turks Accept Fundamental Principles For Control of the Straits But Ask Greater Protection.

DISCUSS DETAILS.

LAUSANNE, December 21 (Canadian Press). — Both Turkish and Allied delegations relaxed in their attitude yesterday and discussed the control of the Straits in such a conciliatory spirit that there is every indication that some sort of Straits convention may be signed in a very few days.

The note of the United States that it does not regard an international commission as necessary undoubtedly bore fruit, as Lord Curzon gave careful consideration to Ismet Pasha's plea that Turkey would consider international interference with Turkey's affairs as "worse than death."

An agreement will likely be reached exempting the demilitarised zone along the Straits from control by the proposed international commission which will have jurisdiction only over navigation of the Straits leaving even the pilotage to the Turks.

Ismet Pasha also pleaded for further guarantee for the safety of Constantinople than those which would be offered by the League of Nations and proposed additional guarantees similar to those given to the Aland Islands. He insisted that Turkey must have further assurances from the important Powers individually and collectively that her territory will not be violated. He accepted in principle the fundamental provisions for control of the Straits outlined by the Allies, but pleaded that Turkey must have her sovereign rights thoroughly safeguarded.

Lord Curzon, M. Barere, Baron Hayashi, M. Spalakovitch, and other speakers expressed great satisfaction over Turkey's conciliatory attitude.

Baron Hayashi said he was especially gratified to see the conference —which had almost reached the stage of ultimatums, settle down into such calm and reasonable consideration of the Straits problems.

Lord Curzon, after hearing Ismet's statement of the Turkish position, said that Ismet's acceptance of the general principles of free passage as outlined by the Allies, now made it possible to discuss details of the practical application of those principles. He expressed sympathy with Ismet's anxiety lest Turkey's sovereignty should be affected by the proposed treaty, but pointed out that in a measure every Power surrendered some of its sovereign rights when it negotiated treaties.

He mentioned the Great Lakes Treaty between Canada and the United States as one which, in a sense limits the sovereignty of the two Governments, but is in no sense an offence against the sovereignty of either, and contended that the proposed regulation of the Straits was the same.

As it is clear that the United States will accept no seat on a Straits control commission, regardless of how much the Powers of this proposed international body are limited, the members of the American delegation were asked last night whether the United States would in any way be bound to respect the regulations imposed by this body, and if the United States would negotiate a treaty immediately with Turkey. To this, Ambassador Child made no answer.

Ismet Pasha also objected to the various nations retaining ships at Constantinople, and this matter was referred for discussion to the experts, who explained later that station ships are really used only as taxicabs for the High Commissioners or Ambassadors.

No date has been set for continuation of the consideration of the Straits question, which generally is regarded as virtually settled.

WOMAN ACQUITTED MAN FOUND GUILTY.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., December 21. — Canadian Press. — Mrs. Doris Brunen was last night acquitted and her brother, Harry C. Mohr, was found guilty of murder in the first degree in connection with the slaying of the former's husband, "Honest John" T. Brunen, circus owner. The jury recommended that Mohr be sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor.

Charles M. Powell, the confessed slayer, said that he shot Brunen at his home in Riverside, N. J., on March 10th, at the instigation of Mrs. Brunen and Mohr.

CHATHAM, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Sylvester Parks, aged 55, was drowned in cistern at rear of her home here. It is said that in past six months she had threatened to jump into river when suffering from depression. Corner Mc Critchie has decided that she committed suicide and will not hold an inquest.

NEW PRESIDENT OF POLAND TOOK OATH OF OFFICE

Stanislaus Wojciechowski Was Sworn in Last Evening—Enthusiastically Greeted By the Populace.

WAS AN EXILE.

WARSAW, December 21 (Canadian Press). — The new President of Poland, Stanislaus Wojciechowski, took the oath of office last night.

He was elected to the presidency with 298 ballots of 519 cast by the National Assembly.

Although the police forbade demonstrations, President Wojciechowski was greeted enthusiastically as he emerged from the Parliament Building.

While he is supported by the Radicals, he nevertheless is highly respected by the Nationalists.

Born in 1869, Wojciechowski entered the Kalish University, but his studies were interrupted in 1891 by his expulsion from Poland by the Russian police for belonging to a secret political organisation. The following years he spent in Switzerland, France, and Britain, and he worked with his old friend, General Pilsudski, unremittingly for Poland's independence.

In 1905 he abandoned politics and obtained permission to return to Poland, where he initiated the Polish co-operative community organisations. He was a strong pro-Ally during the war, and took a large part in relief work. He was Minister of the Interior in the Paderewski and Skulski Cabinets, and recently was professor in the Warsaw High School of Commerce.

ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO DESTROY COLLEGE.

Presbyterian College Had a Narrow Escape Last Evening.

MONTREAL, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press). — According to statement made by Chief Boullanne, head of Police and Fire Department of Municipality of Pointe Aux Trembles, an attempt was made Tuesday night to burn down Presbyterian College at that place, where 250 French boys and girls receive religious instruction. Officials of College admitted that outbreak was of inexplicable origin, but they refused to commit themselves by declaring that it was incendiary. Students, most of whom are children, were aroused from their slumbers by the masters, but it was not necessary for them to leave the building. Fire occured in a stable at rear of College and for time flames menaced it but timely arrival of fire brigade prevented this.

BISHOP LATULIPPE LAID AT REST TO-DAY.

Obsequies were Impressive and very Largely Attended.

COBALT, Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press).—The funeral of his Lordship, E. A. Latulippe, Roman Catholic Bishop of Temiskaming, was held this morning at 9 o'clock, the Bishop of Pembroke officiating. Solemn high mass was sung exactly at nine o'clock in the French Church, beneath the alter of which the remains were laid. Members of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, acted as Pall Bearers. Those in attendance included municipal officials of the towns of Haileybury, Cobalt and New Liskeard, besides number of church dignitaries of Northern Ontario. Notable among the prelates present were Monsigneur Pietri Dimaria, Papal Delegate, Archbishop Emard of Ottawa, Bishop Limoges of Mount Laurier, Bishop Ryan of Pembroke, Bishop Scollard of North Bay and Bishop Hale of Hearst. Priests were present from every parish in the Diocese of Temiskaming, besides a number from Quebec, Hearst and the Soo.

TWO SUSPECTS TAKEN IN THOROLD SLAYING.

Mayor Receives a Letter Signed By a Ku Kluxer.

ST. CATHERINES, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Arrests of two suspects and reception of "Ku Klux" letter by Mayor of Thorold threatening extermination of Italian section of Thorold, if guilty man is not apprehended by January 2, are new developments in Truman murder case. Names of those placed under arrest are Jim Cicovichi and Frank Cachano. Letter received by Mayor was signed "Chief Kleagle.' Text is as follows: "Mr. Mayor, if foreigner who shot and killed our fellow human, Officer Trueman, is not apprehended on or before January 2nd, Clansman of fiery cross will take initiative in Thorold Italian section. Eighteen hundred armed men of scarlet division are now secretly scouring this district and await the word to exterminate these parts. This warning is on joke.

Crude Oil Will Be Piped Into Canada

LETHBRIDGE, Dec. 21—(Canadian Press). —Announcement is made in Caspar Wyo., that Illinois Pipe Company will build a pipe line from the Sun burst-Kevin Oil fields in Northern Montana to Coutts, Alta. a distance of ten miles, to connect up with the Imperial Oil Company tank farm at Coutts, which means that the crude oil from the new border oil field in Montana will be practically marketed in Canada. Announcement has also been made at Billings, Montana, that the Senator Hogan interests which recently brought in a 500 barrel well at Sunburst is planning a thousand barrel refinery in Southern Alberta.

OLYMPIC BATTLED A TERRIFIC STORM

Big Vessel Docked Ten Hours Late After Encountering One of the Worst Storms Seen in Many Years.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.— (Canadian Press.)— When the Olympic was warped into her pier, almost ten hours late yesterady, her skipper reported he had battled with one of the wrost storms he had encountered off the coast in many years. As proof he pointed to port-holes smashed in and a small section of the pilot bridge that had been washed away by giant waves.

The steamer ran afoul of a blizzard off Nantucket Island Tuesday and the snow was so thick that she did not report to Nantucket Lightship, except by wireless. The Olympic crawled along at the lowest possible speed for hours.

She brought 10,091 sacks of mail, a record. Most of the mail, it was said, was Christmas mail from Britain and France. She also brought $3,250,000 in gold, most of which was consigned to J. P. Morgan and Co.

NEW KIND OF LIGHT

Inventor Discovers Way of Producing Whiter Light than Electric from Kerosene Oil

A new lamp has recently been invented which burns common kerosene oil and produces a soft, white light said to be even better than electric or gas. Tests by the Government and leading Universities prove this new light is superior to ten ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise, is simple and economical, requires no pumping up and has been approved by the Underwirters for insurance.

The inventor F. S. Johnston, 246 Craig St., W., Montreal is offering to send one of these new lamps on ten days' free trial or even give one to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for particulars. Also ask him to explain his agency proposition.

BOLSHEVIKI ORIGINATE PLAN TO SEPARATE INDIA FROM EMPIRE

Full Plans Will Be Presented at the Annual Session of the Indian National Congress at Gaya.

SOCIALIST SYSTEM.

LONDON, December 21. Canadian Press. — A full programme for the separation of India from the British Empire and the establishment of "the Federated Republic of India," will be submitted to the Indian National Congress at the annual session of that organization at Gaya, British India, next week, according to information receied in British circles.

Great interest in the programme is evidenced in official circles where it is said to be the direct work of the Bolsheviki. The Indian National Congress is the oragnization which Mohandas H. Gandhi headed until his arrest and imprisonment in the present year.

The separation scheme, said to have originated with M. N. Roy, an Indian Communist living in Berlin, employs the famous Communist terminology. It declares the Nationalist movement has reached the stage where adoption of a definite programme as well as definite action can no longer be deferred.

The ambiguous term "Swaraj," it says, is often to many definitions, therefore a militant programme of action is indispensable in order to mobilize all available revolutionary forces. The theory of "equal partnership in the British Commonwealth," is held to be but a "guilded version of imperialism," as only the upper classes, the document says, have benefited.

The programme goes on to state that British Imperialism will never be changed, and that the Indian upper classes will never risk their comfortable present and promising future for real freedom. Therefore the Indians' immediate task is to involve those elements whose welfare hangs upon a realization of the Nationalists' programme.

The hope is expressed that the militant peasantry and workingmen will be organized into Soviets, and the unions will accomplish the fulfillment of the programme, which includes national independence, freedom from all supervision, abolition of the landlord system, confiscation of the large estates without compensation, and the nationalization of the public utilities which would be owned and operated by the State under the control of workingmen's committees.

The programme provides for an eight-hour day, workers' councils in all the big industries, free compulsory education and a national militia with every citizen obliged to undergo a period of military training. There would be no standing army but the entire people would be armed to defend the national freedom.

According to the British, Roy's real name is Narendra Nath Bhattacharji, and he has been a fugitive from California since 1917. They charge that he was a conspirator with the Germans in Java in 1915, and a Bolshevist propagandist in Mexico. Since 1920 they allege he has been an agitator in Berlin, Moscow and Tashkent, depending for his living upon work done for the Russian Communists.

Radio Fans Quiet For Next Ten Days

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press.)— There will be "quiet air" in the United States and Canada to-night and for nine nights thereafter while all amateurs will cease transmitting and listen for signals from amateur stations in England and France, it was announced at American Radio League headquarters here yesterday.

The British and French Governments have accorded amateurs the special privilege of transmitting with high power on these ten nights of test.

TASCHEREAU SAYS HE BELIEVES BINET GUILTY OF MURDER

Quebec Premier Thinks Raoul Binet Was the Actual Assassin of Blanche Garneau Two Years Ago.

UNCLE TELLS STORY.

QUEBEC, Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press).—That Raoul Binet, one of the men who was arrested for the murder of Blanche Garneau is the actual assassin is the belief of Premier L. A. Taschereau.

Hon. Mr. Taschereau was the principal witness yesterday afternoon before the Royal Commission which is investigating all the circumstances surrounding the mysterious murder which has for more than two years agitated public opinion in all parts of the province.

"I believe Binet guilty" said the Premier, " but I do not say 'he is guilty' there is quite a difference between saying one 'believes a man guilty and saying that he undoubtedly is guilty'."

Hon. Mr. Taschereau swore that the Attorney General Department had done all that was possible to discover the murderers and that no person had ever been protected or shielded in connection with the crime.

He was submitted to a very long and close examination by Armand Lavergne, K.C., counsel for John H. Roberts, who is in custody for violating the dignity and honor of the Quebec Legislature by publishing an article in his paper.

Coroner Jolicoeur of Quebec and Jules Garneau, an uncle of the murdered girl were the principal witnesses at the morning session of the commission. The coroner explained many of the statements which had been made about the manner in which the inquest had been conducted and Jules Garneau created somewhat of a sensation when he stated that he had visited the spot where the girls body had been found, a couple of days after she had disappeared, and had not found anything The body was found in a clump of bushes eight days after Blanche Garneau had failed to return home from her work.

Returned Men to Muster Forces

CALGARY, Dec. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—"It rests with the returned men of Canada to muster all their forces and show definitely what is needed to properly re-establish veterans so that theer can be no doubts in the minds of the members of the Royal Commission on re-establishment at the next session," stated C. G. MacNeil, Dominion Secretary of the Great War Veterans Association here yesterday. Mr. MacNeil made the above statement during the course of an address at the provincial conference of the Alberta Great War Veterans' Association, which is preparing evidence for presentation to the Royal Commission.

SKEPTICAL ABOUT THE ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—All the high officials of the Federal and State Governments were called upon yesterday by Representative Upshaw, Democrat, Georgia, in a speech in the House, to "sacredly declare" that they will not themselves "build up a bootleggers barbarous business by drinking illicit liquor," at the same time that they were denying the privilege to "the poor devils among the masses."

Referring to the recent prohibition conference of Governors at the White House, the Georgia representative asked that the State Executives, "led by the President and Vice-president of the United States and all the members of the Cabinet walk out in the open," and take a new oaths of allegiance to the Constitution.

He added that "the plain people are just skeptical of many of these high officials" urging prohibition enforcement, and "laughs at their high-sounding pronouncements because they doubt their sincerity."

URGED RERESENTATION

BILLY GOW WAS HERO OF WRECK OFF LIZARD ISL.

Didn't Swim Ashore As First Reported But Sailed in on the Cabin Door — Looked After the Grub.

LAST TO LEAVE.

S. S. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 21.—Billy Gow, fireman of the tug Reliance which grounded off Lizard Islands on Dec. 13, did not swim to the island to carry a rope to the remainder as announced from the Spanish River Paper Company offices on Tuesday, apparently through a misinterpretation of a wireless message relayed from the rescuing tug Gray, but his story is a remarkable one for all that. Gow himself took the place of the fireman on the Gray, who took ill, but Joe Menard, Walter Longpre and Adelard Richard tell an interesting story of how Billie Gow got to the island from the tug on Sunday.

"Gow didn't swim ashore with a rope aorund him or anything else," said Menard. "He took two doors off the pilot house which measured 2 1-2 feet by three inches by six feet long .He put them on top of each other and tied them together with a string. Then taking a lifebuoy from the boat he put it on the raft he had made and placing his knees on the lifebuoy and sitting on his heels he made his way to the shore. He was in the water up to his waist even then. The wind was blowing toward the island and that's how he got there."

"Gow was the last man to leave the Reliance" Longpre said, "And much credit is due him for staying there. He just stayed there so that he could hand out the grub to the fellows who were coming to the shore on rafts and he was one of the main ones to see that we had all the grub we could possibly find. He just stood on the tug and handed each passenger on the rafts all they could carry across." All speak in great praise of Gow's thoughtfulness and endurance. "He was the toughest of the lot," they said.

SHORTAGE OF FUNDS

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press).—National Bank Examiners it was announced yesterday afternoon have discovered a shortage of $70,000 in the First National Bank of Chicago, the second largest banking institution in the city.

Seth Anderson, manager of the bank's out clearings department, was arrested on a warrant obtained by R. S. Newhall cashier of the bank. Mr. Newhall said the bank was fully protected by insurance.

A NEEDED PROTECTION.

Large quantities of wood are being sold in Peterborough at the present time, not only by the regular dealers, but by farmers and others, much of it being sold on the market.

It is a welcome addition to the City's fuel supply and nothing that would hinder this importation of wood should be attempted.

At the same time, however, it would be decidedly in the interest of the people generally, were wood vendours required to have the number of feet in their load marked plainly where it could be seen by the prospective customer.

Many buyers are unable to "size up" a load of wood with anything approaching accuracy.

They do not know how much they are getting when they purchase a load.

Sometimes they get little more than a half a cord. Sometimes the sleigh contains three quarters of a cord.

Buying by the load, there is no protection for the purchaser.

The price of wood at the present time is high enough surely to make such protection desirable.

It could be affected easily if the number of cubic feet in the load were to be as suggested, marked upon the load.

If the city regulations do not provide for this being done, it might be well to have them amended.

TOMORROW'S NOMINATIONS.

Nominations for the various vacancies in the City's governing bodies take place tomorrow, the nominations for Mayoralty, Board of Education and Utilities Commission in the morning and for the Council in the evening.

The situation in regard to the Mayoralty is not quite clear, although the indications so far point to a fight between Mayor Taylor and ex-Ald. J. J. Turner, who were the contestants last year.

Mr. Robert Hicks Chairman of the Utilities Commission is the member of that body who has to seek re-election, and according to current report he may be opposed.

Of the Board of Education, Dr. Neal and Messrs. Roland Denne, J. A .McKone and A. A .Fowler, find their terms expired and will ask the ratepayers for another mandate.

The aldermen whose time in office is coming to an end are: Ald. Jas. Hamilton, Harry Gainey, Robert Morrison, Robert Jones and Joseph Crowe. Ald. Hamilton has stated he would retire from the civic arena, Ald. Gainey is undecided and the remaining aldermen will likely be candidates.

The ratepayers are urged to interest themselves in tomorrow's proceedings.

Usually the duty of nominating candidates is left to a comparative handful of citizens, some of whom have for many years officiated at such occasions.

There is no logical reason why there should not be more general interest in the annual nominations, which decide the composition of the various fields of candidates.

Tomorrow should so far as Peterborough is concerned, show an improvement in this respect over other years.

THE G.W.V.A. GRANT.

The grant made by the Finance Committee of the City Council to provide through the G.W.V.A. Christmas Cheer for the families of Peterborough's veterans who may be in need of assistance is carrying out the wishes of the community, especially as the work of distributing such cheer has been very efficiently looked after in other years by the G.W.V.A. and no distinction has been made between members and non-members of the organization.

The people of Peterborough will be glad to feel that no soldiers' family will be without some of the good things that are associated with Christmas and the passing of the grant will be generally welcomed.

The suggestion made by Secretary Whatley in his appearance before the committee, that there should be a central committee to act as a clearing house for all Christmas benefactions by the various societies in the city, coincides with the Examiner's views on this question.

Peterborough does not fortunately lack organizations and individuals ready to lend their services whenever help is needed.

The danger is, however, that without proper co-operation and co-ordination, overlapping cannot be avoided, some families receiving assistance from two or three sources while other deserving cases may possibly be reached by no one.

Some such a committee as suggested by the G.W.V.A. Secretary offers a solution to the problem and while it is too late to do anything along that line this year, the plan should be kept in mind.

TIME FOR ACTION.

The warning of the Dominion Fuel Controller that all municipalities which have not already set up a reserve of soft coal for emergency purposes should without delay proceed to take this precaution, is one that should be heard in Peterborough.

The statements issued by the United States and Canadian fuel administration show that the situation may prove to be even worse than pointed out by The Examiner yesterday.

Canada was to have received 60 per cent. of her normal allotment of anthracite coal this winter, but this proportion has not been reached in the shipments so far received, and there is no chance that the shortage will ever be overcome.

Indeed, all indications point to an even greater falling off, for although the United States authorities have been treating Canada with the utmost fairness, great pressure is being brought to bear to cut down further shipments and these may have some effect.

But the most alarming menace is the weather.

Let an old-fashioned blizzard come along and tie up the railways for a few days and Ontario will know what a fuel famine means.

The dealers, of course, have no reserves. The comparative small shipments they receive are disposed of in a few minutes and there is nothing upon which to fall back.

So far as soft coal is concerned, it is claimed that an adequate supply can be obtained.

The City's fuel department would be well advised in going into this aspect of the situation at once, preferably in consultation with the dealers and in arranging for n emergency supply of bituminous coal .

As for the public it might as well realize now as it will have to realize later on that there will not under any circumstances be enough anthracite coal to supply every fuel want, even if the less frequently used sizes are employed and that it is utterly beyond the question to hope that there will be adequate supplies of the favourite sizes of anthracite.

A three-day storm followed by a period of below zero weather would leave Peterborough in a serious conidtion so far as fuel is concerned.

While there is yet time, let us at least make sure there is enough soft coal available to avert suffering and distress.

The matter should not be delayed for even another day.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

"It's only seven days the shortest days in the year, till Christmas." In a practical way it is well to remember that the chief festival of the Christmas world is only a little way down the road. Santa Claus' outline is almost visible over the chimneyed horizon, the sound of the tinkle of his sleight-bells is nearly audible. It is a time for doing what there is to be done in preparation for the holiday, says the Kingston Whig. Shopping early is a good piece of business; early in this last week, early in the morning of each shopping day. It will be to the advantage of the buyer, to the pleasure of the seller and for the relief of the overworked store forces.

All the systematic work done in advance of the rush to avoid the confusion that sometimes makes the Christmas Eve a horror and the Christmas day one in which there is no rest and delight because one is all in and tired out—will not be its best unless there is a flavor of the Christmas spirit through it all. In the rush and confusion, if there must be such, in the crowds that surge through the stores, in the jam and push of the street throngs, take the Christmas lesson to heart for use in the advance days—and be pleasant. Be patient with the clerks and the delivery men; be courteous to the folks you buy from; be pleasant to the jostlers who almost knock the parcels from your arms as they stumble, themselves package-laden, on the street; use the smile that helps everybody over every stressful time and some distressfu ltimes.

Indeed, there are opportunities this week for more effective and beneficient use of the Christmas spirit in its fine, unselfish expression, than there will be next week—after the day's climax is over. It will not be regarded by Santa Claus as in any violative of his rules of "don't peep" to use before Christmas the same cheer, the same unselfishness, the same courtesy the same thoughtfulness, the same spirit of giving happiness that you will use on Christmas day. Perhaps the good saint will allow a liberal discount for the real and genuine Christmas manner if it is put into circulation "before" Christmas day, when it is needed most.

A CANADIAN IN IRELAND.

It is perhaps not generally known that among the editors of the Dublin Freeman's journal, just ordered by Republicans to leave Ireland under pain of death, is a well known Canadian, says The Ottawa Journal. Mr. H. N. Moore, son of the Rev. T. Albert Moore, the prominent Methodist divine, has been managing editor of the Freeman for the past four turbulent years. His offices have been raided in turn by Sinn Feiners, Black and Tans, and Republicans, the paper's presses have been destroyed, the building riddled with bullets, but Moore, with a threat of death constantly hanging over him, has steadfastly kept his course. When the Republicans smashed the Freeman's press, Moore and Martin Fitzgerald got out the edition on a hand bill and defied their enemies. Later on an emissary of O'Maille, the most desperate of the Republicans, called at Moore's residence and placed into his wife's hands an ultimatum to the effect that his failure to change the policy of the Freeman would be punished by certain death. The only reply was an editorial calling for a more ruthless policy toward O'Maille and his associates.

It is this spirit that is saving the Free State. Men like Cosgrave, Mulcahy, O'Higgins, and their associates pursue their duties dogged by the shadow of death. That they go on, steadfast and unafraid, is the best proof that Ireland has within her the spirit that will guarantee her future life.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If good men are not nominated they cannot be elected. The nomination proceedings tomorrow are almost as important as the election.

The Federal Fuel controllers warning cannot be ignored by the City Council. Peterborough should have a reserve for protection against emergencies.

The stores are open each evening for the rest of the week. That should relieve the crush on Saturday and give the farmers an opportunity to finish their buying.

The announcement of a duel between Belgian deputies indicates that they take their politics seriously in Belgium.

Christmas apparently is regarded in Chicago and New York as a fitting time for an outbreak of crime. The Christ spirit does not seem to be very evident in either city.

The Chinook wind is a western institution that we wouldn't mind adopting in this part of Canada.

There is only one argument that the Turks can understand apparently. That is an ultimatum.

It looks as if Peterboro people will have to wait until the time limit for candidates to qualify has expired to know the field of Mayoralty aspirants.

The biggest problem that Peterboro is facing just now is that of school accomodation. It is a problem that demands solution within the next few month and that vitally affects hundreds of our boys and girls.

Electors are reminded of the nomination proceeding on Friday. Greater interest in the nominations would arouse a deeper interest in the campaign.

The City's Fuel Department has completely fallen down. There is absolutely no reserve against the emergency which is developing.

Diamond Distinction

The greatest consideration that enters into the purchase of a Diamond is the question,

"Where to Buy."

Reputation is the outcome of past service. Confidence is created by a good name, maintained through long service.

For many years we have served an ever-increasing patronage, until we developed the greatest Diamond business in Eastern Ontario.

SHERLOCK HOLMES PROVES SKILL IN AFFAIRS OF HEART

"I've Lost My Angel, Please Help Me Find Him," Was the Appeal.

"I've lost my angel; please help me to find him."

Sherlock Holmes' visitor, Mary Sutherland, looked at him with appealing eyes. In them showed all the agony of the simple girl's heart. Her fiance had led her to the altar and then disappeared.

"My stepfather," she told the great detective, "was always afriad some unscrupulous man would want to marry me for my little income, of which he and mother have the use, and he wouldn't let me associate with other young people.

"When I insisted on going to the gasfitters' ball he became very angry,, but he was called to travel for his firm before the day of the ball, and I went ahead with my preparations. On the morning of the ball we got a letter from him saying his friend, Hosmer Angel would call to take me, as he did not want me to go alone.

"Mr. Angel was a splendid young man, and within a week we had plighted our troth. When I broke the news to father, instead of being angry, he said that I was a lucky girl.

"Father was called away again on the morning of the wedding, and we started to church without him. Hosmer put mother and me in a cab and said he would follow in the next cab. But when we got to the church there was nobody in the cab, and I have not heard from him since."

"And your stepfather was away every time Mr. Angel called?" asked Holmes. He then obtained a description of Hosmer, who was about the same height as her stepfather but wore a beard and dark glasses. He then asked his visitor for any letters she might have from Angel and found that they were all written on a typewriter and that even the signature was so written. The machine on which the letters were written had several peculiarities, such as two or three letters being slightly out of line.

Holmes then wrote to the girl's stepfather, Joseph Windibank, and shortly after he received his reply, also received a personal call from that gentleman. Windibank seemed to know very little about his friend, Hosmer Angel, of whom he had spoken so kindly to his stepdaughter. When Holmes showed him that the typewriter on which he had written his reply had the same peculiarities as the machine on which Hosmer Angel had written to Miss erland, Windibank declared angrily that he had no time for such chatter and abruptly left the room.

That night Holmes called in disguise at the girl's home. When she announced that she had found her Angel her stepfather seemed much excited and rushed into the reception room, where he demanded to know how the caller dared to pretend to be Holmes Angel. He then tore the disguise from Holmes' face.

Holmes then asked the girl to call a policeman, declaring that Windibank's certainty that he could not be Angel proved that Windibank had killed his stepdaughter's fiance. Under the blow Windibank broke down and confessed that he had donned the disguise himself and pretended to be Hosmer Angel, making love to his own stepdaughter and exacting a vow of faithfullness from her so that she would not marry anybody else and take away her income from the family.

THE CHRISTMAS WIND.

You may say you can't afford it—
Money for the Christmas cheer,
You may think you've got to hoard it
Till a rainy day appear ,
Yet in spite of bills that fret you—
And you stagger at their sums!
Still the Christmas wind will get you
When the Christmas season comes

Do not think you can evade it
By the thought of livings' cost;
Do not say that you're afraid it
Will your little pile exhaust .
No use sparring—'twill not let you,
You will all your vows rescind
And the Christmas love will get you
When you feel the Christmas wind

DISCUSS ELECTION RESULTS AUSTRALIA.

Times Declares Mr. Hughes Was Spoiled By Power.

LONDON, Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Daily News discussing Australian election results, expresses surprise that Premier Hughes should have lasted so long in Premiership in that land of free and independent democracy. The news says:—"In office he represented all that was hysterical, vulgar, fussy, self important and over-bearing in a modern political life and war gave him priceless opportunity of which he was quick to take advantage to display all those qualities at their worst and to spread himself with unctious gusto over the face of British Empire." The Times, this morning, points out that "Hughes must go" was cry out only of Labor party, but of country party. "Even in this hour" says Times, "It is impossible to forget magnificent services he rendered to Australia and Empire in wartime. It was given to him as it is given to few statesmen to rise above chaos of party politics and lead his countrymen to victory. In him, Australians found leader in whom they reposed so much confidence that, over and over again they forebore to question means he employed so long as he brought about the end which was universal desire."

Continuing Times says, "Mr. Hughes was spoiled by powers granted to him under stress of danger. Autocrat of wartime became bureaucrat of peace."

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

Antony gave Bill a smile and was silent for a little, thinking.

"Is there another inn at Stanton—fairly close to the station?"

"The 'Plough and Horses'—just at the corner where the road goes up to the station—is that the one you mean?"

"That would be the one. I suppose you could do with a drink, couldn't you?"

"Rather!" said Bill, with a grin.

"Good. Then have one at the 'Plough and Horses.' Have two, if you like, and talk to the landlord, or landlady, or whoever serves you. I want to find out if anybody stayed there on Monday night."

"Robert?" said Bill eagerly.

"I didn't say Robert," said Antony, smiling. "I just want you to find out if they had a visitor who slept there on Monday night. A stranger. If so, then any particulars you can get of him, without letting the landlord know that you are interested—"

"Leave it to me," broke in Bill. "I know just what you want."

"Don't assume that it was Robert—or anybody else. Let them describe the man to you. Don't influence them unconsciously by suggesting that he was short or tall, or anything of that sort. Just get them talking. If it's the landlord, you'd better stand him a drink or two."

"Right you are," said Bill confidently. "Where do I meet you again?"

"Probably at the 'George.' If you get there before me, you can order dinner for eight o'clock. Anyhow, we'll meet at eight, if not before."

"Good." He nodded to Antony and strode off back to Stanton again.

Antony stood watching him with a little smile at his enthusiasm. Then he looked round slowly, as if in search of something. Suddenly he saw what he wanted. Twenty yards farther on a lane wandered off to the left, and there was a gate a little way up on the right-hand side of it. Antony walked to the gate, filling his pipe as he went. Then he lit his pipe, sat on the gate, and took his head in his hands.

"Now then," he said to himself, "let's begin at the beginning."

* * *

It was nearly eight o'clock when William Beverley, the famous sleuth-hound, arrived, tired and dusty, at the "George," to find Antony, cool and clean, standing bare-headed at the door, waiting for him.

"Is dinner ready?" were Bill's first words.

"Yes."

"Then I'll just have a wash. Lord, I'm tired."

"I never ought to have asked you," said Antony penitently.

"That's all right. I shan't be a moment." Half-way up the stairs he turned round and asked, "Am I in your room?"

"Yes. Do you know the way?"

"Yes. Start carving, will you? And order lots of beer." He disappeared round the top of the staircase. Antony went slowly in.

When the first edge of his appetite had worn off, and he was able to spare a little time between the mouthfuls, Bill gave an account of his adventures. The landlord of the "Plough and Horses" had been sticky, decidedly sticky—Bill had been unable at first to get anything out of him. But Bill had been tactful; lorbleesyou, how tactful he had been.

"He kept on about the inquest, and what a queer affair it had been, and so on. Then I said carelessly that it must be very hard to remember anybody whom you had just seen once, so as to identify him afterward, and he agreed that it would be 'middlin' hard,' and then—"

"Give me three guesses," interrupted Antony. "You asked him if he remembered everybody who came to his inn?"

"That's it. Bright, wasn't it?"

"Brilliant. And what was the result?"

"The result was a woman."

"A woman?" said Antony eagerly.

"A woman," said Bill impressively. "Of course I thought it was going to be Robert—so did you, didn't you?—but it wasn't. It was a woman. Came quite late on Monday night in a car—driving herself—went off early next morning."

"Did he describe her?"

"Yes. She was middlin', Middlin' tall, middlin' age, middlin' color, and so on. Doesn't help much, does it?

IN THE MORNING THERE WAS A LETTER FOR HIM.

But still—a woman. Does that upset your theory?"

Antony shook his head.

"No, Bill, not at all," he said.

"You knew all the time? At least, you guessed?"

"Wait till tomorrow. I'll tell you everything tomorrow."

"Tomorrow!" said Bill in great disappointment.

"Well, I'll tell you one thing tonight, if you'll promise not to ask any more questions. But you probably know it already."

"What is it?"

"Only that Mark Ablett did not kill his brother."

"And Cayley did?"

"That's another question, Bill. However, the answer is that Cayley didn't, either."

"Then who on earth—"

"Have some more beer," said Antony with a smile. And Bill had to be content with that.

They were early to bed that evening, for both of them were tired. Bill slept loudly and defiantly, but Antony lay awake, wondering. What was happening at the Red House now? Perhaps he would hear in the morning; perhaps he would get a letter. He went over the whole story again from the beginning—was there any possibility of a mistake? What would the police do? Would they ever find out? Ought he to have told them? Well, let them find out; it was their job. Surely he couldn't have made a mistake this time. No good wondering now; he would know definitely in the morning.

In the morning there was a letter for him.

CHAPTER XX

"My Dear Mr. Gillingham,

"I gather from your letter that you have made certain discoveries which you may feel it your duty to communicate to the police, and that in this case my arrest on a charge of murder would inevitably follow. Why, in these circumstances, you should give me such ample warning of your intentions I do not understand, unless it is that you are not wholly out of sympathy with me.

"But whether or not you sympathize, at any rate you will want to know—and I want you to know—the exact manner in which Ablett met his death and the reasons which made that death necessary. If the police have to be told anything, I would rather that they too knew the whole story. They, and even you, may call it murder, but by that time I shall be out of the way. Let them call it what they like.

"I must begin by taking you back to a summer day fifteen years ago, when I was a boy of thirteen and Mark a young man of twenty-five. His whole life was make-believe, and just now he was pretending to be a philanthropist.

"He sat in our little drawing-room, flicking his gloves against the back of his left hand, and my mother, good soul, thought what a noble young gentleman he was, and Philip and I, hastily washed and crammed into collars, stood in front of him, nudging each other and kicking the backs of our heels and cursing him in our hearts for having interrupted our game.

"He had decided to adopt one of us, kind Cousin Mark. Heaven knows why he chose me. Philip was eleven; two years longer to wait. Perhaps that was why.

"Well, Mark educated me. I went to a public school and to Cambridge, and I became his secretary. Well, much more than his secretary as your friend Beverley perhaps has told you. Mark could never live alone. There must always be somebody to listen to him. I think in his heart he hoped I should be his Boswell. He told me one day that he had made me his literary executor—poor devil. And he used to write me the absurdest long letters when I was away from him, letters which I read once and then tore up. The futility of the man!

"It was three years ago that Philip got into trouble. He had been hurried through a cheap grammar school and into a London office, and discovered there that there was not much fun to be got in this world on two pounds a week. I had a frantic letter from him one day, saying that he must have a hundred at once, or he would be ruined, and I went to Mark for the money.

"Only to borrow it, you understand; he gave me a good salary and I could have paid it back in three months. But no. He saw nothing for himself in it, I suppose; no applause, no admiration. Philip's gratitude would be to me, not to him.

"I begged, I threatened, we argued; and while we were arguing, Philip was arrested. It killed my mother—he was always her favorite—but Mark, as usual, got his satisfaction out of it. He preened himself on his judgment of character in having chosen me and not Philip twelve years before!

"Later on I apologized to Mark for the reckless things I had said to him, and he played the part of a magnanimous gentleman with his accustomed skill, but, though outwardly we were as before to each other, from that day forward, though his vanity would never let him see it, I was his bitterest enemy.

"If that had been all, I wonder if I should have killed him? To live on terms of intimate friendship with a man whom you hate is dangerous work for your friend. Because of his belief in me as his admiring and grateful protege and his belief in himself as my benefactor, he was now utterly in my power. I could take my time and choose my opportunity. Perhaps I should not have killed him, but I had sworn to have my revenge—and there he was, poor vain fool, at my mercy. I was in no hurry.

"Two years later I had to reconsider my position, for my revenge was being taken out of my hands. Mark began to drink. Could I have stopped him? I don't think so, but to my immense surprise I found myself trying to. Instinct, perhaps, getting the better of reason; or did I reason it out and tell myself that, if he drank to death, I should lose my [illegible] on my word, I cannot [illegible] for whatever motive, I [illegible] to stop it. Drink [illegible] ctly thing, anyhow. D

Salvation Army Commissioner Sowton and Mrs. Sowton Gave Interesting Address.

COBOURG, Dec. 21.—(Special.)—Cobourg had two distinguished visitors Sunday and Monday, in the persons of Commissioner Sowton and Mrs. Sowton, of the Salvation Army. Commissioner Sowton has spent nearly forty years in Salvation Army work in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, the United States, India and other countries. He and Mrs. Sowton were recently appointed by General Booth in command of all Salvation Army operations in Canada East Newfoundland and Bermuda. On Sunday afternoon General Sowton gave an interesting address in the opera house on "Glimpses of Missionary Work in Other Lands." Mr. A. W Young occupied the chair. In the evening a mass meeting was held in the opera house.

On Saturday evening the officers addressed a meeting in Port Hope. The local corps of the Salvation Army here, with Capt. and Mrs. Godden in charge, expect to erect a new hall here in the near future.

In Sunny France.

The Cobourg Primary Chapter of the I. O. D. E. netted about $475 from the three nights' performance of the humorous comedy, "In Sunny France," which was put on here by Mr. Wilson Macdonald, under the auspices of the Chapter. The Chapter has in view the erection of a new library and community hall in Cobourg and will meet early in January to thoroughly discuss the project.

OF RED SATIN.

Red satin, of a particularly vivid shade, is made into the smartest of frocks for a debutante, and trimmed with bands of black monkey fur. The lines are long and unbroken.

MANY SOCIAL EVENTS HELD IN MILLBROOK DURING PAST WEEK

Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas Church Had a Successful Bazaar — Visitors Home For the Christmas Holidays.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 21. — The bazaar which was held on Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the W. A. of St. Thomas Church, at the residence of Mrs. J. C. Kells, who kindly gave the use of her home for the occasion, proved a most successful event, over $100 being netted for the church funds. Mrs. Kells and her daughter, Miss Anna, were the most attentive of hostesses, and throughout the afternoon and early evening a continual stream of purchasers kept coming and going, so that those in charge of the various tables had few idle moments. In the reception-room the table of aprons of all varieties, which was well patronized, was looked after by Miss M. Collins, while the second table, holding a most attractive display of useful and fancy articles, was under the direction of Misses M. Money, M. Wood and Lottie Vance. One could not help wondering if the quality of home - made candy, most temptingly displayed in the large living-room, with Mrs. J. Dawson and Miss Annie Kells ready to attend to the wants of all-comers, would ever be disposed of, but, as usual, both it and the abundant supply of appetizing cakes for which Mrs. E. Whyte, Mrs. C. Needler and Miss Lillie Clarke were successful sales-ladies, as well as the large table of bread, buns, biscuits, pies, etc., in the dining-room, with Mrs. John Allen in charge, were all completely sold out before the closing hour.

Many were glad to enjoy a cup of hot tea and a delicious lunch at the dainty tea-tables as the afternoon advanced, Misses Muriel Smith, Janet Needler and Anna Kells proving the most attentive of waitresses. Altogether the general feeling was that it was one of the most enjoyable and successful of the several bazaars and domestic sales which have been held here this season, and that being held in a home added greatly to its attractiveness.

Among the Winners.

Amongst the athletic prize-winners for the year at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, the name of Boyd Craw, eldest son of Rev. G. I. and Mrs. Craw, of Springville, is listed as having won the boys' senior championship medal. The prizes were distributed at the annual commencement day exercises which were held on Friday, the 15th inst., in the Institute, with Mr. A. A. Fowler, chairman of the Board of Education, presiding.

Pneumonia Victim.

Much sympathy will be felt for Mr. F. C. Dawe, of Bethany, whose father, Mr. Isaac Dawe, a well-known resident of Roseneath, where he had been in business for 60 years, passed away recently, following an attack of pneumonia. The late Mr. Dawe was born in Cornwall, England, in 1843, coming to Cobourg with his parents when only nine years of age. He became associated with his brother, John, in the boot and shoe trade, later setting up in business for himself, and after a time adding the harness business to his other lines. Besides Mr. F. C. Dawe, of Bethany, two other children, Mrs. Frank Blake, of Hastings, and Mr. George A. Dawe, of Roseneath, survive their parents.

An Entertainment.

The lantern slide entertainment held in the basement of the Methodist Church on Tuesday evening was a well-attended and most enjoyable event. Rev. S. T. Tucker acted as chairman, and after an opening hymn and prayer, the following programme was carried out:

Piano duet, by Misses May Byam and H. Barnard.

Song—"His Smile," by Nelles and Lawrence Rowland.

Slides—"The Night Before Christmas" (given especially for the little folk).

Piano—duet, by Misses Gladys Tucker and Marjorie Sayles.

Song—"Away in a Manger," by Jean Burnham, Marjorie Sayles and Gladys Tucker.

Recitation—"When Santa Claus Comes," by Jean Stinson.

Slides—"The Other Wise Man," by Van Dyke, the story read by Miss Burnham.

The last number took about one hour to present, the illustrations being particularly beautiful, and giving an impression of the appealing story such as had not previously been gained simply from the reading of the little book, vivid as the word-pictures of the Eastern narratives are. So keenly was the reverent atmosphere induced by the story felt throughout the gathering the pastor deemed it most fitting to simply close the evening with a brief prayer. A generous offering to defray expenses was placed upon the plate by the door as the audience passed out.

Carmel Church.

The Carmel Methodist Sunday School held their annual Christmas Tree and entertainment on Monday evening, the pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, being the chairman for the occasion. The church was filled to capacity, and the following programme was rendered by scholars of the school and other local talent:

Superintendent's address—Mr. F. Hard.
Recitation by Vera Olan.
Duet by Audrey Bristow and Robina Challice.
Recitation by Wilfrid Lunn.
Chorus—"Luther's Cradle Song," by the Junior Classes.
Recitation by Louie Olan.
Doll Drill—Primary Children.
Chairman's address—Rev. S. T. Tucker.
Instrumental selection, by Mr. and Mrs. A. Strong.
Recitation by Virtle Kennedy.
Fairy Drill, by 6 little girls.
Dialogue, "A Christmas Session."
Chorus, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," by the Junior Classes.
Recitation by Stella Olan.
Motion song, "A long, long way off from here," Primary children.
Recitation by Pearl Kennedy.
Bo-Peep and Boy Blue Drill.
Recitation by Edna Olan.
Instrumental by Mr. and Mrs. A. Strong.
Recitation, "Christmas with Mrs. Ruggles," by Eileen Armstrong.
Motion Song by 8 Boys.
Recitation by Verna Kennedy.
Chorus by the Senior Girls.
Recitation by Thelma Armstrong.
Dialogue, "Scene in a Railway Station."
Instrumental by Mr. and Mrs. A. Strong.
Recitation by Luther Olan.
Instrumental Duet by Audrey and Alma Bristow.
Play, "The Old Maids' Convention."
Song by Elvin Beggs.
Instrumental by Mr. and Mrs. A. Strong.
Arrival of Santa Claus and distribution of gifts from the tree.
Refreshments served, and social hour enjoyed.
God Save the King.

Santa Claus was represented by Mr. W. Lunn.

PRESSURE ON LUNGS CAUSED BY GAS

Often a dull, full feeling in chest is caused by gas from undigested food pressing upwards towards lungs. Sometimes gas presses on heart and is mistaken for heart trouble. Simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, expels gas and stops pressure almost INSTANTLY in many cases. Removes surprising matter from BOTH upper and lower bowel which formed gas and poisoned stomach. Adlerika is EXCELLENT to guard against appendicitis. McDermid & Jury; and E. L. Payne druggists.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

ELECTRIC POWER FOR COLBORNE?

Ratepayers to Pass on By-Law Authorizing Contract.

COLBORNE, Dec. 21.—(Special.)—At a well attended meeting of the live stock shippers of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company held recently here, a shipping association was organized for Colborne and district. Addresses were made by F. S. Milburn, Peterborough, Mr. F. S. Fulthorpe of the Union Stock Yards, Toronto and Mr. C. E. Merkley of Morrisburg.

R. H. Rutherford of this place, who has been spending a few days in Montreal expects, it is understood, to open a fruit commission house in that city.

J. J. Sayer, it is stated, will move shortly to Charleston, West Virginia.

The ratepayers of this village will be asked to vote upon a by-law in January, authorizing the village to enter into a contract with G. R. Keys, executor of the G. M. Peebles estate for the supply of electric light to the village. The contract will also provide for electric power for industrial purposes.

MILLBROOK NEWS

Mrs. J. D. Deyell of Peterborough was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell on Tuesday, coming out to attend the funeral of the late Edwin Thorndyke, who was a member of Mrs. Deyell's Sunday School class during her residence here.

Mrs. W. Armstrong, of Lethbridge, Alberta, accompanied by her little granddaughter, is visiting her brother and sister, Mr. D. and Miss A. Hampton, arriving from the West on Saturday.

Mr. Alvin Richards, medical student of Toronto University, is spending the Christmas holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Richards.

Mr. W. Forsyth, of Galt, is spending the holiday season with his mother, Mrs. W. Forsyth, Sr., and his sister, Mrs. G. H. Harrington.

Mrs. Edgar Burnham and daughter, Miss Pearl, of Peterborough, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Burnham this week.

The A. Y. P. A. of St. Thomas Church are holding their Christmas meeting to-night, a social time to be spent after the usual business session is concluded.

The Spirit Of Yuletide

The spirit of Yuletide is in the air,
In hearts, in homes, aye everywhere,
Ringing glad bells, in merry strain,
Hark to the glorious refrain:
"Glory to God in highest heaven,
Who has to us a Saviour given."

Echoes that song o'er vale and hill,
On earth be peace, to men goodwill,
That Spirit, first came down to dwell
On earth, what time Emmanuel,
A kingdom, and a throne, resigned
To be the Saviour of mankind.

He fills our hearts with gratitude,
To God, the Father, great and good,
His only Son, who freely gave,
The world, from Satan's power, to save,
And bids us to His temple bring
Oblations to our Saviour, King.

He spreads the board, with Yuletide cheer,
And gathers round it loved ones dear,
Or sets our thoughts aroving free,
To where our absent friends may be,
With lavish hand, o'er careworn earth
He scatters joyous, social mirth.

Hate, discord, envy, wrong and guile,
Vanish before His heavenly smile;
We, in His presence lay aside
Our sordid selfishness and pride,
And find true happiness abound,
And bliss, in blessing those around.

Spirit of glad festivity,
Who decks the laden Christmas tree,
Fair holly wreathed ,to Him we owe
In homes entwined with mistletoe,
And these bright blessings, far above
True hearts aglow, with Yuletide love.

Spirit benign, who to and fro,
'Twixt friend and friend, are wont to go,
With gifts and greetings, which are due
To the story old, yet ever new,
Best wishes, warmest love convey,
To all our friends, now far away.

Blest Spirit, with us still abide,
Beyond the joyous Christmas-tide,
A welcome guest the whole year through,
With influence sweet, our hearts endue,
And in our souls Thy song, instill,
"Glory to God, to men good-will."

A CRITICAL DAY IN LIFE OF CONFERENCE.

Must Settle the Straits Issue At Once, Declared Lord Curzon.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press)—On eve of what threatened to be critical day in the life of the Lausanne conference, United States Ambassador Child had a long conversation with Ismet Pasha about straits problem, which Lord Curzon yesterday declared must be disposed of immediately.

It has become known that United States observers at conference believe that an international control commission associated with League of Nations is unnecessary. They hold that freedom of straits should be an actual freedom guaranteed by treaty between Turkey and other world powers.

WARSAW, Dec. 21.—Nathan Bell is able to be around again after his recent illness.

Mesdames Joe Matthews and Wm. Crowe visited at Mrs. J. A. Crowe's last Friday.

Rev. Girard Graham attended the meeting of Presbyte:., last Tuesday.

Mr. Joppling of Peterboro was out buying fowl, last week.

Miss Bertha McMurray has returned after visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Leonard, Peterboro, for a week.

The Warsaw stores are quite prettily decorated for the Christmas trade. Christmas fruits are down in price. There are some gift goods of a class that have not appeared for some years.

Lumber has been cut and work is going ahead for the new Rink.

Woman's Institute.

The regular meeting of the Warsaw Woman's Institute was held in the Town Hall, on Thursday afternoon. The Library is to be located where it can be used at the meetings.

Word was received that the clothing, etc., sent by the I. stitute to the fire sufferers had been gratefully received. Miss Ferna Cooper gave a report of the Convention in Toronto. She was much impressed by the spirit that prevailed and the community singing. Most of the addresses had been very interesting and she had several thoughts that might be directly applied to our own Institute.

Church News.

At the Bible Class on Thursday Evening Mr. ,Weir took up the subject of "The Home," dealing largely with the subject of divorce.

There was the regular service in the Baptist Church, last Sunday.

The Methodist Sunday School was well attended. The preaching service was withdrawn in compliment to Rev. Girard Graham.

Mr. Graham preached to a capacity congregation in the Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening. Mr. Weir was invited to read the scripture lesson and lead in prayer.

The regular fortnightly service, will be held in the Anglican Church, next Sunday.

The Guild meeting was held at the home of Mrs. MacIlvena, on Friday afternoon.

School Meeting

The Annual School Meeting will be held on Wednesday of next week, Dec. 27, one o'clock p.m., in the School House.

WARSAW, Dec. 21.—(Special).—The congregation of the Warsaw Presbyterian Church together with their pastor Rev. Graham assembled at their House of Worship and after supplying their physical needs with a bountiful supper proceed with the work of the evening.

After the appointment of the ever genial Mr. John Rose as chairman the meeting commenced by Rev. Mr. Weir of the Methodist Church of this place, leading in prayer. There followed the singing of ,Oh God our Help in Ages Past", after which Rev. G. Graham performed as he remarked the very pleasing duty of Baptism of two of David Rose's little boys. Then a purse and the following address were presented ev. G. Graham. Edward Hawthorne reading the address and Mrs. Alex. Calder making the presentation. The address read as follows:

"Dear Mr. Graham:—

"We, the members and adherents of the Warsaw Presbyterian Church, meet with you on this occasion to say farewell, before your departure for your new field of labor. We ask you to accept this purse, not merely for its intrinsic value, but as a slight token of our deep appreciation of and gratitude to you for your faithfulness to duty, thoughtfulness for and kindness to all. We would now say "God be with you," and we trust that you may be very efficient in winning souls for Christ in your new charge. We feel that our loss will be their gain.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,—Mrs. Alex. Calder Mrs. Thos. Miller, Mrs. David Taylor, Mrs. Geo. Russell."

Mr. Graham replied in a very pleasing and suitable manner, giving expression to the happy associations he had enjoyed while here.

Here followed a series of short eulogistic speeches from two of the elders Edward Hawthorne and John Rose and from Dr. I. Munro and Rev. Mr. Weir. The programme ended with the singing for "Blest be the tie that binds" and "God be with you till we meet again."

The ladies provided the refreshments.

Rev. Mr. Graham, who has been pastor of the church here the last two and a half years, left on Tuesday for his new charge at Newcastle.

MOUNTIES CANNOT GO TO MINE STRIKE AREA

EDMONTON, December 21. Canadian Press. — Attorney General Brownlee has received a reply from the Minister of Justice, at Ottawa, to his wire asking for the cooperation of the mounted police in the local strike, the purpose of which is that the Royal Canadian Mount Police will not be available for this purpose, and that instead, recourse should be had to the militia.

As to calling out the militia, Mr. Brownlee says that there is no need for such a step as yet.

All was reported quiet at the mines yesterday morning.

An injunction has been granted the Cardiff mine, restraining United Mine Workers of America officials or their representatives, from trespassing on the company's property.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

How Cold Light Is Produced from the Sun

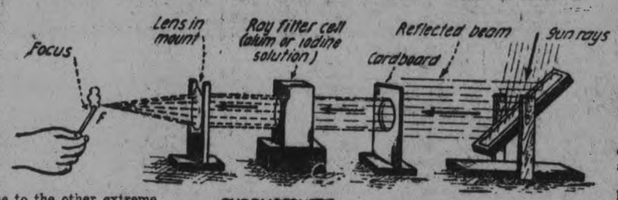
EVERY child who, during summer evenings, has caught fireflies, knows that the light produced by these insects is heatless. Scientists have made exhaustive investigations of the firefly's method of producing its cold light to the end of perfecting a similar system for the use of human kind. Now they have gone to the other extreme—the production of a cold light from the sun, itself. In no slang sense this is, in some ways, about the "hottest" problem scientists have ever tackled.

While the sun, as the source of heat, light and energy, is complained about for the high temperatures of some summer days, yet the amount of solar heat that actually reaches the earth, according to astronomers, is infinitesimal. Perhaps the clearest way to explain it is this: Suppose the sun's heat to be worth twenty-two and a half million dollars, then the amount of his fortune that Old Sol bestows upon the earth, as scientists have estimated, is just one cent.

In undertaking to produce a cold light from the sun the first step scientists took was to show that the energy, which comes from the sun, consists of several parts—one visible manifestation, which is called light, and an invisible constituent which gives heat. The total emission is known as radiant energy, the invisible portion as radiant heat and actinism.

The apparatus required to make the experiment of producing cold light from the sun, which L. B. Kirby describes in Science and Invention, consists of a small, flat, framed mirror of good quality, a double convex lens—the larger the better—several used dry plates 4x5 inches and a piece or two of stout cardboard.

Prepare an adjustable frame for holding the mirror as shown in the diagram. The uprights and pivots should fit so as to hold the mirror fast in any position. Remove the film from the dry plates with hot water, and clean thoroughly. Then cut two pieces of wood, as shown, from a smooth board one inch thick, and cement the glasses to each side of them to form the cells. A waterproof cement is made by adding 10 parts of a concentrated solution of potassium bichromate to 10 parts of gelatine dissolved in 100 of water—keeping the whole mixture always in the dark. Paint the wood exposed inside the cell with this and it will harden in the light and not leak water.



Arrangement of Apparatus and Detail of Glass Filter Cell Used in Producing "Cold Light" from Sunshine.

A piece of cardboard is mounted on a base; a circular hole is cut in it slightly smaller than the lens. At least two cells should be prepared.

"The experiment may be performed anywhere under cover, but preferably in a dark room," says Mr. Kirby. "Place the mirror in the sunlight and direct the reflected beam horizontally to the apparatus table. Place the perforated cardboard in the path of the light. A circular beam now passes on through the lens and can be focused on a screen at 'F.' It is well known that the focus is hot as well as bright, for if the lens is sufficiently large it will instantly set fire to paper, ignite gunpowder, or a piece of magnesium.

"If a cell is filled with water and put between the cardboard and the lens, the focus loses nothing in illumination but becomes much cooler and the tank hotter.

"Now add some clear solution of common alum to the water in the cell and test the focus with the mercury thermometer. It will be found to be simply at room temperature—that is, the alum cell has almost entirely cut off the radiant heat and left a point of cold light.

"The question now rises—is is possible to screen out the light rays and allow the radiant heat to pass through the lens? The answer is yes! This is done by filling a cell with a solution of iodine in carbon disulphide so that the light will be completely shut off. At the dark focus (in the same place as before) we may now observe the startling phenomena of a match taking fire, powder burning, ice melting rapidly, etc. In short, we have focused the radiant heat.

"Solutions of sulphur and of phosphorus act similarly to the iodine and are said to be diathermal substances. Glass and air are also diathermal although they are permeable to light.

"If the unfiltered light is all focused on a prism so as to produce a spectrum, an examination with a thermometer (of fair delicacy) will show that the heat rays are at the red end of the spectrum and mostly out in the dark region beyond the red. The temperature rises steadily, going from the violet to the red, and is highest in the dark space of the ultra red. It can be shown that the invisible spectrum of this region (radiant heat) represents four times the energy of the visible or luminous spectrum.

"From these simple experiments we can see that the radiant energy of the sun passes comparatively undiminished through the atmosphere without greatly heating it, but that the heat is absorbed by solids and at the surface of bodies of water, warming them. Part of it is reflected back from the earth, heating all objects near its surface."

If anyone should ask you if you have seen the sun you would be inclined to question his sanity, yet science has been able to make its discoveries about that great luminary without even actually seeing it, in spite of the great heat and glare of light which the earth receives from the flaming centre of the universe.

What you do see, astronomers explain, is the "photosphere," the outer layer of incandescent clouds which surround the sun's vast orb. Each of these white-hot clouds is estimated to be some five hundred miles in diameter and to float in a medium which is darker compared with them.

Outside the photosphere comes the "reversing layer," about a thousand miles thick, and above that again, the "chromosphere," which is perhaps five thousand miles in thickness. This last is a sea of leaping, blazing gas, so hot that we simply cannot imagine a temperature so high. The photosphere is visible to the eyes of men through the chromosphere.

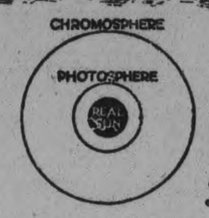


Diagram at Left Shows Why the Real Sun Cannot Be Seen, as It Is Always Enveloped in "Photosphere" and "Chromosphere," Which Are Layers of Clouds Thousands of Miles in Thickness.

What Pains in Your Muscles Mean

PAINS in the muscles, frequently mistaken for neuralgia, often miscalled rheumatism, sometimes simulating sciatica or angina pectoris, is a suffering which most of us undergo at some time, especially as we grow older, and it is well to know something about them. Dr. J. Madison Taylor, professor of applied therapeutics at Temple University, Philadelphia, tells in the Lancet (London) how these muscular pains might be differentiated from other troubles and also cured.

Dr. Taylor says these pains are caused by fibromyositis, which is really a condition in which the fibres of the muscles become thickened with connective tissue, which makes them stiff and less pliant than usual, thereby pressing when moved on the nerves that pass through them. The trouble is not with the nerve, but with the muscle.

If it were in the nerve (neuralgia), painful points could be found along its course, especially where it emerges from bone. In the muscles (myalgia), the pain is in the body of the muscle, especially at its thinnest part, where most expanded.

"Favorite seats of myositic thickenings are the head (scalp), neck, in and about the knee, hip, shoulder and ankles, wherever muscles overlap; inside of the elbow; insertion of the pectoralis major; the latissimus dorsi into humerus, the intercostals, of the abdominal wall, the crest of the ilia, the glutei," writes Dr. Taylor. "Indeed, the buttocks are a fertile ground of fibromyositic complexities variously named, but always hindering locomotion.

"The means of diagnosing latent forms of fibromyositis is largely by expert tactile apperception (an educated finger-tip). The relief and cure lie in two directions—digestive regulation and the varied resources of reconstructive measures. Especially useful is heat, pressure, manipulation, separation of fibres by hand or counter-irritation by blistering or cautery. Indeed, if the condition has lasted long and complications have progressed far enough there is only one reliable means of emancipation—viz., through the resources of revised conduct, personal hygiene, improving habits, notably by attention to skin and muscle training, passive and active."

When it comes to treatment, massage by a real expert is necessary. The muscle must be forced to empty itself of vitiated blood and lymph, but the massage, which will be painful at first, must not be continued more than two or three minutes at a time and repeated two or three times after a rest. It may be repeated the same or the following day, according to the "soreness" produced. And the patient must follow up the massage with active movements of the part.

Dr. Taylor holds it to be bad advice to tell a patient to make no movement which causes pain. "The truth is," he says, "when a movement causes pain that movement should be repeated with increasing force."

And the skin must be educated by friction with a dry towel on rising and going to bed, and by alternations of heat and cold as by hot and cold douches.

The patient must be taught to eat and drink and practice hygienic habits essential to his particular constitution. He must also be urged to lead a life that will keep his brain and body in useful activity.

Paraffin from Rice Hulls

ONE of the most useful things the world has learned in the last hundred years is how to make use of by-products which it used to throw away. Now comes the news that another former waste product—rice hulls—is to be turned into profit.

As everyone knows, the hard outer surface of rice grains is polished off before they are put on the market. This by-product, which totals one-third of the rice crops, has usually been burned or destroyed, though part has been used as an adulterant of powdered sugar, according to The Forecast Magazine. Tests of the new idea, which is a German invention, have been made in Berlin, but it will see its first commercial use in a factory at Cremona, Italy.

A simple chemical reaction is used for deriving products from the rice hulls. According to the inventor, the application of high temperature after washing and boiling the raw material produces cellulose for the manufacture of paper, linoleum, coke filter material, such as is used in sugar manufacturing, paraffin, phenolin, carbonic acid gas, carbon monoxide, hydrogen and acetic acid. The recovery of these materials calls for a relatively cheap installation.

"POISON PIE" INSURANCE Is the NEWEST FORM of POLICY

POISON pie insurance" is the newest form of policy designed to protect hotels, restaurants, lunchrooms, and others manufacturing or dealing in food against damage suits brought by dissatisfied customers.

The name of the insurance was taken from the recent case of a New York restaurant which served pie and pastry containing arsenic, which caused the death of 11 people and severe illness of more than 50. Damages of more than $100,000 have been claimed by the victims.

Scores of damage suits are filed against restaurants, delicatessens and cafeterias every year, according to insurance brokers, while thousands of other claims are settled by business men rather than undergo the injurious publicity resulting from the filing of formal charges.

Several hundred thousand dollars a year, and possibly one or two millions, change hands on such claims, according to the study made by a New York insurance firm before deciding to issue the "poisoned pie policies."

The average market price of a stomach ache is between $50 and $100, according to the record of the settlement of such claims. Many of the claims are believed to be false, while two or three persons have fallen under the suspicion of being professional claim bringers and of having cultivated the power of throwing themselves into a fit of illness every time they enter a restaurant. There is nothing that the average restaurant owner fears more than the claim of this nature, and it is asserted that hundreds of fictitious claims bring prompt settlements, to avoid a public rehearsal of fantastic stories. Scores of cases of real poisoning, however, do occur, while occasional deaths from botulism, arsenic, ptomaine and other poisons in food cause a substantial death roll annually.

Not only pie but every article of food on the bill of fare is covered by the new insurance, according to the pioneers in pie insurance. Everything from soup to nuts is regarded as a risk.

The growing tendency among New Yorkers to get their meals in restaurants and hotels, or at the nearest delicatessen store and the comparative ease with which manufacturers and purveyors of food may be held responsible for damages suffered by patrons are cited as reasons for establishing the new policy.

"For every case that gets into court there are hundreds that the public never hears of," says James Gibbs, a New York insurance man. "Under the law there is an implied warranty in the manufacture or sale of food that the food is fit for public consumption. If that warranty is violated the persons responsible are subject of damages. Hotels, restaurants, bakers, and food dealers of all sorts are constantly in danger of suits when anything goes wrong. Rather than have these come to court, they are only too eager to settle with their patrons outside.

"One of the best known pastry bakers made a wedding cake a while ago. When the cake was opened it was found to contain a dead rat. The faux pas cost the baker $11,000. A hotel served a dead mouse in a ragout, and it had to settle with the customer who got it. Another hotel made reparation for serving bad oysters to a patron.

"Only the other day in Chicago there was another poison pie case. There was a green hand in the kitchen. Several orders for pie came in. The cook started to shake powdered sugar on the pie and found the shaker empty. He told the green helper to fill the shaker. The helper proceeded to put roach powder containing arsenic into the shaker and several patrons were poisoned.

"Again, there was the case of the school children in New Jersey who were made sick from eating candy containing sawdust and broken glass.

"No fixed schedule of rates had been established, as each restaurant or food manufacturing establishment had to be considered by itself. In the case of bakeries, especially the larger modern shops, the risk was extremely slight, six cents on a hundred dollars being the present rate. In general, the rates were lower than most other forms of liability insurance."

Why METALS Make FATS RANCID

SOME definite conclusions as to what makes butter, lard and other stable fats and oils turn rancid are presented in the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry by James A. Emery and R. R. Henley of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Washington. Their paper records experiments on the effect of metals on the development of rancidity in fats and oils.

A resume of the article says that "fats, even when kept in contact with metals, exposed to light and at summer temperatures, did not become rancid provided that air was excluded. However, the development of rancidity was not prevented when fats, alone and in contact with metals, were kept in a navy jar through which carbon dioxide, presumably airfree, was passed continuously.

"Fat stored, with and without contact with metals, in an atmosphere of oxygen developed rancidity at an earlier date, and the development of rancidity progressed more rapidly, than when the same fats were held in an atmosphere of air, all other conditions being the same.

"The development of rancidity was hastened when the fats or oils were in contact with metals, provided there was free access of air or oxygen. Some metals, however, acted more energetically than others. Metals hastened the production of rancidity in fats even when the metals themselves were not attacked.

"Light was necessary for the development of rancidity in fats exposed to air and not in contact with metals, but fats stored in contact with metals developed rancidity even when protected from light. In other words, light in the absence of metals appeared to exert the same effect as was exerted by metals in the absence of light.

"In one test it was indicated that the direct part taken by moisture in the development of rancidity, at least in comparison with the other factors discussed, is negligible."

PYRAMIDS Were First SUN DIALS

THE evolution of the calendar, from the days when man could count only from day to day, through the time when the lunar month was reckoned as a "year," to the present time of an almost universally used time counting system, is a romance of the history of man.

Piecing together the few known facts of the calendar's life story, scientists have found different interpretations and uses for well known facts and remains of early life. For instance, according to Moses B. Cotsworth, writing in a recent publication of the Pan-American Union, the well-known Egyptian pyramids were not erected by early monarchs of that realm as monuments to their greatness, nor as tombs for their bodies, but were huge sun dials with the aid of which the yearly procession of the equinoxes was discovered and the calendar devised.

The pyramids were constructed by mathematicians and astronomers, Mr. Cotsworth holds, the size, height and slopes of each being determined to aid astronomy. Each of the piles in lower Egypt was built at a different period, until the last was found to be the more nearly perfect for studying the sun and stars on the meridian of Egypt. Not until each was abandoned for a better, he claims, was a pyramid given over to the uses of a royal tomb.

The pyramid was the result of the Egyptians' efforts to get a sufficiently long shadow to measure the months and years more accurately, and along its sides the early astronomer gazed to mark the movements of the stars and planets.

The primary reason for the calendar in early days was the need of knowing when to sow and reap, how to handle cattle and to determine other propitious days. All peoples, it is supposed, used the periods of the moon as their longest time space, but this was varied and unequal through the year. Noah, it was said, adopted the early Egyptian calendar of a five-month year, 30 days to the month and three 10-day weeks, as a better way to ration the tribal supplies.

So accurate were the measurements of the early Egyptian astronomers, according to Mr. Cotsworth, that they were able to determine to the third decimal point the exact length of the year, which they set at 365.242 days.

DISEASE Secrets MUMMIES TELL

MUMMIES many thousand years old—among them some of ancient Egypt's greatest Pharaohs and Queens—are now giving up to science the secrets of the diseases from which they suffered when alive. And many curious things are being learned from these parchment-dry and withered people of old Egypt. For instance, Sir Marc Armand Ruffer, M. D., one of the greatest anatomists, has found, upon the microscopic examination of the lungs of persons who died in the 20th Egyptian dynasty, 1200 B. C., that two of them had died of pneumonia.

Dr. Ruffer asserts that kidney diseases were more or less common among the Egyptians of over 3000 years ago, and that the cause of hardening of the arteries in those far-off days is as obscure as it is in modern times.

Alcohol played a part in Egyptian social life, in so far that on festive occasions some of the old Egyptians certainly became the worse for drink, as shown by the pictures found in Egyptian tombs. Beer was a common beverage, and wine was not only made in the country, but also imported. It is clear, however, that the Egyptians as a race are not, and never have been, habitual drinkers.

The English scientist concludes that "rickets" has existed 5000 years, and that the deformities due to club-foot and Pott's disease existed 4000 years ago.

How Cheese Is X-Rayed

WHILE the proof of the pudding is the eating of it—a test which also applies to cheese—science has perfected what is claimed to be just as sure a method of determining quality, and without any need of relying at all upon the olfactory sense.

Mr. K. J. Matheson, a dairy manufacturing specialist connected with the United States department of agriculture, recently perfected a method of examining the interiors of cheeses, both large and small, with the aid of the X-ray. Just what Mr. Matheson's invention looks like and how it is operated to reveal all the hidden secrets within the skin of a cheese, is shown in the accompanying illustration. By this means, says the inventor, although he smells not and tastes not, he can accurately determine the quality of any cheese upon which he directs the penetrating X-ray.

How ANT ARMIES WAGE WAR

THE lives and habits of ants show that these tiny creatures have gifts rivalling any of those possessed by human beings. In warfare especially they exhibit wonderful powers of organization. Every ant has its own duties to perform, and each insect helps its comrades.

At certain intervals an ant colony becomes overcrowded, and to find living room for the surplus population another colony is attacked and captured. First of all, scouts are sent out. Before long they come into conflict with the sentries posted outside the enemy's nest.

Some of the scouts may be captured and taken down into the underground nest, where they are killed and given to the baby ants for food, but the rest escape, and bring up their main army. After a fierce struggle the nest is captured.

Then the victors begin to pull down the captured nest, and take the wood and so on of which it is built to their own nest. When the pieces are too heavy for a single ant he calls to some of his friends and together they carry it away. The insects possess enormous strength, and their lifting powers, scientists have found, are very much greater than that of human beings in comparison with their size. A colony of ants has been known to move a hundredweight of wood in little more than a week.

When the nest has been completely destroyed the ants seize the babies belonging to the defeated side, and carry them to their own nest, where they are brought up with the young already there. Any of the enemy that are still alive are also "adopted."

In Africa it is a bewildering sight to see a colony of ants on the move. They advance in perfect formation in lines about three inches wide, a column of them often extending for nearly a mile. They are led by a regiment of warrior ants, commanded by a large ant twice the size of the rank and file. After them comes a body of small ants carrying various loads. These are the porters, whose duty it is to transport eggs, babies, sticks, leaves and so on.

How to Make Postal Scales

THE habit of guessing at the weight of a letter instead of accurately determining the amount of postage, is something to which every one must plead guilty at some time or another. Postal officials say that more often an insufficient amount of postage is affixed rather than too much.

If the cause of this guessing habit is due to the absence of postal scales, that is a necessity easily supplied from within the walls of your home.

Make your own postal scales. All you need is a long piece of wire which, when twisted around a pencil, will give in the manner of an elastic spring. One end of this spring is attached to a nail and the other end is holding a piece of cardboard on which is indicated a scale of weights, as shown in the accompanying drawing. By experimenting with letters of different proved weights anyone can find a scale by which the weight of letters, newspapers, etc., can be determined.

WHO WILL PAY?

Who will pay for broadcasting? This question is already bothering manufacturers, although they are getting good financial returns through interest in broadcast programs. But when the radio market is saturated and there will be no more demand for receiving sets, will it pay the manufacturers to maintain their broadcasting stations?

RULES GOVERNING THE RECEIPTS TAX

Measure Applies to Receipts of $10 and Upwards—Effective Jan. 1

OTTAWA, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press).— A Canada Gazette extra issued last night contains the regulations governing the stamp tax on receipts of $10.00 and upwards. This tax becomes effective on and after January first.

The regulations follows:

"Counter sales slips and cash register tickets are not taxable, provided no words implying or stating acknowledgement of the receipt or the payment of money appear thereon.

"Payrolls signature of employe thereon being receipt for wages taxable in respect of each such signature.

"Receipts for payment of legacies are taxable. A receipt for money in a deed or mortgage is taxable.

"Receipts for payments of taxes except those given to or by the Dominion Government or a provincial government, are taxable.

"Individual freight bills and periodical statements of same, acknowledging receipt of payment, are taxable.

"Customs House brokers receipts are taxable.

"Letters forwarded by mail also postcards acknowledging the receipt of money, are regarded as letters and cards and are not subject to this tax.

"All insurance policies whether fire marine, life or casuality, wherein the payment of money is acknowledged, are taxable.

"All insurance receipts, acknowledging the payment of money, are taxable.

"Receipts drawn out of Canada, but ot valid until countersigned in Canada are taxable.

"Voucher cheques, and cheques with receipts endorsed thereon when drawn up on or addressed to a bank, are not taxable as receipts.

'Remitters counterfoil, being part of a taxable express money order is not taxable as a receipt."

Persons violating or evading the regulations are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100.

THE MACHINE GUN CO. MADE FINE SHOWING.

Inspected in The Armouries by Brigadier-General Elmslie.

I nthe armouries last evening No. 3 Company of the 4th Brigade, C. M.C.G., now permanent militia, commanded by Major L. Frazer, M. C., was inspected by the officer commanding Military District No. 3, Brigadier General Elmslie, C.M.G., D.S.O., of Kingston, accompanied by Lt.-Colonel. A. P. Miller, D.S.O., M.C., Brigade Commander.

The company made a fine showing in their attendance and after a period of foot and machine gun drill, the General addressed the company, congratulating them on their appearance, smartness, and good discipline. He also stated that he was pleased to see such a large percentage of returned men in the local unit.

At the conclusion of the inspection refreshments were served to the men of all ranks, and through the courtesy of Mr. McGrath, they enjoyed a radio concert from Newark, New Jersey.

MANY FIRE ALARMS DURING THE MONTH.

The number of fires for the month are still increasing, making a total number of 38 for the first twenty days of the month. The following fires occurred Tuesday evening:

5.18 p.m., a chimney fire at the residence of T. Burke, 153 Smith street.

6.25 p.m., smoke from the Dominion Bank. There was no fire.

9.00 p.m., a transformer burned out at the corner of London and Water streets. No damage done outside of the transformer.

11.25 p.m. to a chimney fire in the Taylor apartment house at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. This was one of the livliest chimney fires that has occurred in the city for some time. The strong draft caused the sparks to mount high in the air and fall like falling stars. No damage was done.

ASSERTS THAT NATIONAL OWNERSHIP IS DOOMED.

Fernand Rinfret Says Public-owned Canadian Railways Must Go.

MONTREAL Dec 21.—(Canadian Press). That Sir Henry Thornton was not administering so much as he was holding a sort of an enquiry on the status of the Canadian National Railway System, and that after a year or two he would probably tell the people of Canada; "We have done what we could, nothing more can be done," was the statement of Fernand Rinfret Liberal M.P., for St. James division of this city, in addressing members fo the Perron Liberal Club here last night.

He gave it as his view that at the expiration of that time, "We must give up National Ownership as ... cannot continue ad infinitum to lose $75,000,000 yearly".

A BIRTHDAY PARTY IN HONOUR OF MISS WADE.

Many Friends Celebrate Coming of Age of Their Hostess.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hill, 581 Chamberlain street, was the scene of a very happy party on Tuesday evening, Dec. 19, when many friends met with Miss Trixie Wade to celebrate her coming of age.

Songs, dancing and games were the order of the evening, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Hill and her mother, Mrs. Wade, who is visiting here from Akron, Ohio. The party

Baby's First Christmas and Santa Claus Has Left His Bags of Infants' Things With Us!

THE LITTLE NEWCOMER will be initiated on December 25th to Christmas No. 1. It's up to the older folks to see that he has plenty to wear as well as amuse. Gifts of apparel are really the most practical. Even though the infant is unconscious of their loveliness, they certainly afford the mother many moments of pleasure, for all mothers take a righteous pride in the daintiness of their child's wardrobe.

Tiny Bathrobes of Eiderdown
To Keep the Shivers Out

They possess all the pretty little touches so inseparable from baby garments. One of white boasts of a pink silk collar, a pink silk cord girdle and a tiny pink cord edging the breast pocket. Other combinations are white with blue, blue with white and pink with white. Priced at $4 and $4.95.

Mittens, as Brimful of Warmth
As the Best Ones Can Be

At 75c you can procure a closely knitted pair with ribbed wrists. At $1.19 they are of Angorine with ribbon ties. At $3.50 they are of Angora wool with wide ribbed wrists.

Padded bibs with lace edges, 20c, 35c and 39c. In double style with muslin cover, 50c. Feeding bibs of pink jacquard towelling, 35c. Plain white padded bibs, large size, 39c.

Carriage Robes for that Regal Little Person

When She Takes to Her Carriage.

They are made of long haired, white goat skin and are lined with white felt. Like a bag in shape. Two sizes, $9.75 and $10.75. Quilted silk ones come at $4.95. They are well padded and beautifully quilted. Plain blue or pink on one side and the other an all-over floral pattern on white ground.

Knitted Sets of White Wool

A set comprises bonnet, boottees and jacket. All three pieces are adorned with a white silk stitch on the edges. The jacket has a turned-down, close-fitting collar and a Tuxedo front. Silk sprigs done in blue and pink are judiciously placed on collar and front. Priced at $8.50.

Another at $5.50 is of white wool, has pink stripes, and trimmings on the various pieces

Woollen veils in semi-circular sha pe and pretty mesh patterns. Priced at 35c and 50c.

DOLLS WITH KNITTED COSTUMES

Celluloid dolls dressed in quaint knitted costumes. Priced at $1.50.

He Has Little Hair
So Must Have Much Bonnet

There is none other quite so warm as one of Angora wool. These are not only genuine Angora, but heavy and closely knit. Price $5.75. White in color. Others of Angorine at $1.50 and $1.75. White satin ones with warm interlinings and tiny frilled edges are $3.39.

One Little Pig Went to Market
The Other Little Pig Stayed at Home

Whether they go to market or stay at home they need bootees. Heavy crocheted knee-length ones with pink or blue trimmings are $1.35. A variety of fancy crocheted kinds in ankle length are priced from 45c to 75c.

Eiderdown Crib Blankets

Pink or blue eiderdown with all-over animal patterns — chicks, pussy cats, doggies, teddy bears, etc. The edges are finished with an over-cast stitch. Price $1.25.

A heavier weight eiderdown is priced at $2.25. It is presented in pink or blue with plain centres and a Grecian Key border. The edges are bound with satin.

White Wool Pull-Overs

There is a long range of prices in these—$1.25, $2.50, $2.75 and $3.29. Each price represents a different knit, weight or quality.

See to It that Baby Has a Warm Jacket

If Not He Might Give You the Cold Shoulder.

Cunning little affairs of cream flannel with silk linings. The edges are worked with a silk stitch and in the corners are French knots done in pink and blue. These are $4.50. White wool knitted jackets have pink silk stripes knitted into the Tuxedo collar. They fasten with pearl buttons aided by pink silk cords. Price $2.50. If you have a preference for padded silk, such as little Japanese babies wear, then we can supply them in pink or blue. Price $2.75.

LONDON GROWING LIKE NEW YORK.

But Can Never Evolve Into a Twin City.

By DAVID L. BLUMENFELD
(Written for the United Press)

LONDON, (By mail to United Press).—London can never, by any stretch of imagination, become twin sister to New York in outward appearance, but just the same, London is becoming more and more New Yorkised—if one can make such a word.

In the first place, neither London, nor any other European cities, can ever resemble the big towns of the United States, for the simple reason that European towns have never been laid out with streets and avenues criss crossing on the American plan— they have simply grown, according to the whims and housing demands of the various ages.

Only in the new buildings which are springing up in big towns over Europe can there be any likeness to American cities.

Victorian structures in London and New York were seemingly erected only to be razed again. Today in London, just as the brownstone homes and houses of New York have given place to the steel girdered skyscraper, so the Victorian buildings and the small Georgian houses are making room for similar American type buildings on a smaller scale.

These new buildings are gazed at by Londoners with awe. They vary from eight to ten stories and are fitted with the latest in elevators and modern office building conveniences. Of course, London has not yet reached the stage where buildings have reached any height worth speaking of.

The law so far will not allow any structure to rise higher than ten or eleven stories, which in itself forbids any Woolworth, Metropolitan, Singer or Equitable buildings, with their attendant restaurants, terminal barber shops, fire brigades and Heaven only knows what not else.

Such luxuries with which the New Yorker of today is almost contemptuously familiar, are not for London—yet.

But the time is not far off when things will become a reality even in the staid old capitol.

Changing Slowly.

London is very much in the position of a man who is approaching middle age and doesn't realize it. Change in a subtle manner is altering him and yet he goes about his everyday business unknowing and unrecognizing. Twenty odd years ago London newspapers seldom sold a whole page for advertising space, while the man who was far seeing to prophesy that the "Times" would one day not only sell whole pages for advertising space, but would devote one whole page to pictures, was laughed at.

Today, of course, that prophecy is perfectly true. All the big London newspapers will see a whole page for advertisments, the "Times" prints a pictorial page, and several papers the other day came out with full page blasts advertising a chewing gum. If that isn't Americanizing up to date, I don't know what is. Where twenty years ago London streets bore practically no advertising signs, boardings today shout "ads" at you all the way from Hampstead to Hackney and from Bermondsey to Belsize park.

"Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion" orders a beautous American flapper from a board on Fleet Stree, while every motor omnibus in five carries a large advertisement for California Raisins.

In ten years from now Piccadilly may very conceivably rival part of Broadway as another "Great White Way." Piccadilly Circus, since the war, has succumbed to the whirling electric signs of America, and every night crowds of Londoners stare upwards in wonder at a motor car whose lighted wheels revolve while the scarf of one of the lady occupants wriggles (electrically, in the wind.

On Oxford Street there is a sky sign which could not be bettered in New York. It is an enormous 'gramaphone' with a dog listening to the notes which hop out in all colors from the gramaphone. A man also in many colors, removes and puts on the records. This sign which is only a block away from Selfridge's famous department store, lights up the whole roadway, and seen from the top of Bond Street, which the lights stealing up around Selfridge's Grecian pillars, one is reminded of Fifth Avenue or any big street at night in America.

Traffic control can never be the same in London as in New York. What suits one city in this direction is utterly unsuitable in the other. There is no such things as "up town" or "downtown" in London, or any other European city, for that matter. Traffic in London is moving in different directions all the time. The very nature of the streets forbids a traffic regulation for through and cross-town traffic.

Although London has no actual resemblance to New York, the resemblance is somehow there just the same. The average American who comes back to London after a visit to the Continent feels that he is almost home again when he sees the lights of Piccadilly and hears the rush and roar of the big red omnibuses crashing down the Strand.

HINTS ON STEWS

By Bertha E. Shapleigh
of Columbia University

There is nothing better and more appetizing than a good stew, especially on a cold day. Some people think of a stew as merely to use up left-over meat.

While such a stew may be excellent, a dish of freshly cooked meat is as important and dignified as a cooking meat in water at a temperature slightly below boiling.

By this method, tough meat may be made tender and the juice become rich and thick. To this vegetables and seasoning may be added.

National Stew

Every country has some kind of a stew, the meat and vegetables differing.

Oriental countries use lamb and pork more than beef, while English stew is usually made with beef. An Irish stew has lamb in it and is seldom a brown stew.

Chicken is used a great deal, although not entirely, in France and Spain. The Mexicans stew beef, chile peppers, and beans together.

A cury is really a stew, very highly seasoned, and may be made of fish, veal, chicken, lamb or beef.

Fresh pork makes an appetizing stew, and in some countries beef, veal and pork are combined. Where fish is plentiful a fish stew is used as much as meat in other places.

Brown Stew Best

One important point is to have a beef or lamb stew brown in color. A white stew is less attractive and not as appetizing. Chicken may be left light in color, but almost all persons enjoy a fricasse more than just plain stewed chicken; a fricasse means that the chicken is fried before or after being stewed.

Sometimes it is advisable to cook the stew in a casserole, and serve it in the same dish. The dish is attractive and the heat is retained until the moment of eating.

If vegetables are plentiful in the stew, and dumplings are served with it, it becomes a one-dish meal, saving time as well as money. It is well to serve a salad with it— a light desert, and, of course, no soup.

Dumplings

Many cooks do not have success with dumplings, yet they are easy to make as anything can be— and should always be light if one or two rules are followed.

Do not put shortening; do not handle them, but have the dough soft enough to drop from a spoon.

Have the stew boiling when the dumplings go in; be sure hte cover of the kettle fits closely and do not lift the cover for at least 10 minutes.

A stew made in a kettle is more attractively served on a platter surrounded by the dumplings. Small potatoes and onions may be left whole, the carrots cut in strips and other vegetables in uniform pieces.

Tomato adds color and flavor, and one or two tablespoons of chopped parsley sprinkled over the top adds to the stew's beauty.

EXAMINED SPEEDERS.

DETROIT, December 21 (Canadian Press). — Twenty-one persons charged with speeding, and two others charged with driving through safety zones, were examined yesterday by Dr. A. Jacoby, city psychiatrist, as to their sanity.

Three were found inferior in intelligence, another was found unable to read English, and could not differentiate between "stop" and "go" signals, while still another of low intellect was also hard of hearing and had poor eyesight.

Fourteen found mentally sound were given pail sentences, and fined.

IRISH GOVERNMENT TO UNITE THE RAILWAYS.

DUBLIN, Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Free State Government, it is learned, has decided on unification of Irish Railways in either one or two groups. Legislation with this object in view will be introduced in Parliament within next six months.

MANY 'QUAKES IN 1923, SAYS A PARIS SCIENTIST.

Chilean Earthquakes Were the Forerunner of Many More to Come.

By WEBB MILLER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(United Press)—The year 1923 will witness an usual number of earthquakes througout the world ,according to the prediction of Abbe Moreux director of the Bourages observatory. The Chilean quakes were only the forerunner of many more, he believes.

According to the computations of Moreux ,the 'quakes will be most sever in the Mediterranean regions, Turkestan, Mexico, Central America the Antilles and Japan. In case the earthquakes are very severe the effects may be felt in North and South America.

After a study of more than twenty years, Abeb Moreux has evolved the theory that earthquakes have some connection with solar electrical activity or inactivity. He has demonstrated that extraordinary solar activity occures in cycles or about eleven years. The middle of the present cycle is due in 1923.

While convinced that solar activity and earthquakes have some connection Moreur has not yet decided in exactly what manner. His statistics show that quakes are most frequent in winter and more apt to occur during the night than during the day.

Apropos of the Chilean quakes Charles Nordmann the scientific writer, has some interesting speculations. In common with most scientists he agrees that quakes are caused by the cooling of the interior of the earth. He points out that certain rocks in the heated liquid state expand in process of cooling thus forcing a displaceemnt in the interior of the earth, which reached the surface.

He assumes that perhaps this was the cause of the Chilean earthquake, citing the statement of a British sea captain, who sounded the sea-bottom at the moment when the tidal wave struck his ship. Instead of 10,000 feet depth which the charts indicated, the sounding showed only 500 feet. Nordmann believes the sea-floor may have been heaved up by the displacements in the interior of the earth.

Nordmann states that the earth's crust is in motion practically continuously, but the movements are so slight as to be unnoticed. Seismographs in several parts of the world record as many as 30,000 quakes per year, of which only a few are perceptible.

One of the Finest Park Sites in the City Can Be Purchased if Ratepayers Endorse By-law.

WONDERFUL ASSET

A good citizen must have two considerations ever before him. First, he must consider the best interests of his family—his wife and children. He must ever keep in mind not only their present welfare, but also their equally important future. Secondly, he must consider the best interests of his city; and here, also, he must keep in mind not only the present, but the future. He must have vision; he must be able to imagine the growth and development of his city, and provide for the needs of its future. This is what our forefathers did for us. They exercised the vision that they had, and provided for the future to the best of their understanding of its needs; and we are sure that any man among them, when he did understand the needs of the next generation, was quite willing to sacrifice himself and his own desires and comfort to provide for those needs.

The Armour's Hill proposition is a glimpse of the future. Any one with sufficient vision can see that the day will come when such a property would be an invaluable asset to the city, and he can also see that when that time arrives the Hill would cost so much that the city would be unable to buy it.

Peterborough is bound to develop into a great city. It has better natural advantages in many ways than any other city in Ontario. I need not enumerate these; they are well known. But, with these, and situated where she is, she is certain to grow large.

It is not enough, however, for any city to merely grow large. Such cities are apt to grow ugly as they grow big; to develop slum conditions that are festering sores in the side of the body politic. It must grow as harmoniously as a healthy body. Beauty and utility must grow hand in hand.

This Hill is the highest point anywhere in the city. The view from its top is magnificent. The possibilities of developing such a hill into a mount of wondrous beauty are enormous. And the present cost is small, the purchase price being $3,000, to be paid for in thirty years, which, including interest and sinking fund charged, would be $218.50, payable yearly. This amount represents an added twelve one-thousandths mill on taxation, or on a $3,000 assessment the actual amount to be paid per year would be three and six-tenths cents (3.6 cents) and in thirty years totalling one dollar and eight cents ($1.08). To let such a chance slip would imply a total lack of vision on the part of the citizens, for never again will the city get so much for a dollar.

The beautifying of the Hill is entirely a matter of the future, and could be done gradually. The cost would be very small in any one year. The Ontario Government will supply free as many thousand evergreen trees as will be needed. The planting could be made a matter of love as far as the older school children are concerned. These trees, of course, would be planted under adequate supervision, and it is likely a landscape artist would be lent by the Ontario Government, the expense being very small, and the advice and help almost invaluable. Such things are a matter of detail; they need not cost much beyond what citizens would be glad to do for nothing but the pleasure of giving an added beauty to our city.

In the planning of every city in Ontario the mistakes of the past have not been in buying properties for parks in excess of the needs of its future; they have been made in buying too few; in lack of vision of the future. We have their mistakes to guide us; let us not err as they did.

We are sure if the electors in this city fully understand the smallness of the cost of providing this wonderful asset for the city's future delight, there will be an overwhelming vote for its purchase.

E. E. Harvey,
Chairman City Planning Committee, Chamber of Commerce.

ONE OF WAR HEROES

LONDON, Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Behind a desk during business hours in an unpretentious but spotlessly clean restaurant in Marlborough Court, Carnaby Street, London, stands the proprietor, no less a personage than Brig.-General W. B. Hulke, D.S.O., one of the heroes of the Great War. The restaurant was recently opened by the General. It is appropriately named "The Venture," and so far it is not known whether it may prove a profitable one or not. It's proprietor, however, seems to have faith in it, and this is a big part of the battle.

When the war began, Brig.-General Hulke was a retired officer, farming in British Columbia. He left everything in Canada and went to France, where he had a brigade in the 38th Division. He was wounded in the knee, and, in fact, only recently ceased to be under medical treatment.

"My property, which deteriorated during the war, is over in Canada waiting to be sold," General Hulke told an interviewer here recently. "I cannot climb and jump now, because of my knee, and like tens of thousands of others, I cast around to look for a means of livelihood. My wife is assisted by Mrs. Wailes, the wife of a Colonel; my chef is an ex-soldier and, perhaps, our circumstances have impressed us with the need of a place where people of refinement may obtain lunch, tea or supper, served on lines akin to their home life, at reasonable prices."

Simply decorated, "The Venture," with tables covered with snowy white tablecloths, with serviettes, serves a really well-cooked and substantial lunch for 1 shilling and 6 pence. The General is not too dignified to go out and obtain for a customer a bottle of Guinness, if asked.

Strong Liquid Position of Royal Bank of Canada

Total Assets Stand at $479,362,366—Of This Amount Liquid Assets Are $216,048,331, Equal to 49.37% of Liabilities to Public—Savings Deposits Show Canadian People Practice Thrift.

The Annual Statement of the Royal Bank of Canada for the fiscal year ended November 30th discloses the strong and sound position of the bank. With its large and complete organization throughout the Dominion, the report of the Royal Bank of Canada reflects in a special manner the general conditions of the country. On this account there will be satisfaction to find that following the readjustment period for industry and trade, the general trend of business is evidently on the upgrade.

Of the greatest importance from the public standpoint is perhaps the manner in which the savings deposits have been maintained in the face of lessened industrial activity. The substantial total of these deposits indicates that a very great proportion of the people have been adding materially to their savings. This is a healthy sign, particularly in view of the large amount that small investors have placed in Victory Bonds during the past few years. Total deposits amount to $372,003,961, of which $277,595,882, bear interest.

Bank's Cash Position.

The Bank has fully maintained its usual strong liquid position, the percentage of actual cash on hand and in bank to liabilities to the public being 28.20%. Of total assets of $479,362,366, liquid assets are $216,048,331, being 49.37% of liabilities to the public. Of this amount cash on hand and Dominion notes total $63,935,920. Other principal items included in the liquid assets are Call Loan on bonds, debentures and stocks of approximately $48,000,000; cheques on other banks $20,573,642; balances due by banks and banking correspondents $27,893,715; Canadian Municipal Securities and British, Foreign and Colonial Public Securities, other than Canadian $7,901,927; Railway and other bonds, $13,462,068.

Profits Well Maintained.

The Profit and Loss Account shows that profits have been well maintained, the total for the year after deducting charges for management, accrued interest on deposits, making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, having amounted to $3,958,409, which equals 19.40% on the capital. This amount, added to the balance of Profit and Loss carried from the previous year, made the total amount available for distribution $4,863,514. From this was paid in dividends and bonus $2,856,000; there was transferred to Officers Pension Fund $100,000; appropriation was made for Bank Premises of $400,000; Reserve for Dominion Government Taxes, including War Tax on Bank Note Circulation $500,000; leaving an amount to be carried forward to Profit and Loss of $1,007,514.

That the Royal Bank of Canada has come through the period of business depression in such splendid shape is an evidence of the stability of our Canadian banks and of the business sagacity of those in charge of them.

RECIPFS

CHEESE TIMBALES

One cup milk, ½ cup bread crumbs (soft bread crumbs), 1 cup grated cheese, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Cook milk and bread crumbs until a paste is formed; then add cheese, seasonings, and eggs slightly beaten. Turn into buttered timbale molds or cups, and set these in a pan of hot water. Bake until firm, or when a pointed knife is inserted in the center none of the custard clings to the knife. Turn onto serving dish, and pour around the timbales a

Pimiento Sauce

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 2 pimientos finely chopped or rubbed through a sieve, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt. Make as any cream sauce is made.

MACKEREL OR BLUEFISH BAKED WITH TOMATOES

All dark fish, as mackerel, herring, bluefish or carp, are rich in fat, and while they are always delicious when well boiled the cooking may be varied. The following is a good recipe:

Two large mackerel or 1 bluefish, 6 strips bacon or 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tomatoes peeled and cut in pieces, 1 onion thinly sliced, 1 cup water, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika or a little pepper, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley.

In a baking pan, preferably granite, not tin, place three strips bacon and one-half the onion. The fish may be split or left whole. After thoroughly cleaning place it on the bacon.

Over it sprinkle salt, paprika, the remaining slices of onion and bacon, the tomatoes and water.

Place in a moderately hot oven and cook 35 minutes. Remove to a platter, sprinkle the parsley over, and serve the gravy and vegetables around the fish.

CHEESE AND PEPPER SALAD

One cream cheese or 1 cup cottage cheese, 2 green peppers, ½ teaspoon finely cut onion, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 red pepper (canned) rubbed through a sieve, 1 head lettuce, French dressing.

Mash cheese and if dry moisten with cream or French dressing. Add seasonings and red pepper. Wash, cut a slice from the top, and remove seeds from the green peppers. Fill soldily with the cheese mixture, and chill. Cut in slices, and serve on lettuce with French dressing.

CREAM CHEESE DRESSING

One cream cheese, ½ teaspoon onion, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons oil, 1 tablespoon vinegar.

Mash cheese, add remaining ingredients and beat until smooth. Serve with lettuce.

BOAT ON ROCKS IN LAKE ERIE

Steamer Blowing Her Whistle and Wirelessing for Help.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 21. — A large boat is on the rocks off Kingsville, Ont., in Lake Erie, apparently in distress, according to a wireless message picked up by the Detroit News station. The message said the boat was about three miles off shore and could be seen plainly with glasses, but that it was impossible to make out her name.

Harrow, Ont., reported over the 'phone late yesterday that a big boat was in distress about six miles from Harrow and was blowing her whistle for help.

Three big steamers are known to be in Lake Erie between Colchester and Kingsville. They are the City of Bangor the Phillip Minch, and the Nineveh. The three are part of the grain Argosy bound down the Lakes from Fort William to Buffalo, which has had terrific battles with the ice. A local marine reporting agency said to-night that these three vessels have been reported stuck in the ice.

JURY DISAGREES IN LIBEL ACTION

Action by E. W. Backus Against Toronto Telegram Closed.

TORONTO, December 21. —Canadian Press. — "The jury is hopelessly disagreed." This statement made at nine o'clock last night by the foreman of the ju.y, which had been deliberating for nearly seven hours, brought to a close the 17th day of the trial in the action of E. W. Backus against the Evening Telegram for $100,000 damages on the ground of alleged libel.

After Justice Orde had ascertained from the foreman that there were no points upon which the jury agreed and by which a special verdict might be brought in, he discharged the jurors.

Farmer's Dollar Valued at $1.30 Buys Him Only 64 Cents Worth

HERE IS THE TROUBLE

Howard's statement of the diminishing value of the farmer's dollar is borne out in the following statistics from federal market reports.

The farmer's purchasing power is based on $1. The wholesale price of products is a composite of 32 farm products.

By ROY J. GIBBONS

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—" Continued shrinkage in the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar is heading agriculture toward certain destruction via the rocks of the auctioneer's hammer and reefs of the mortgage for closure route."

This is the opinion and prediction of James R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, given in an exclusive interview with NEA Service here.

Howard, as the recognized mouthpiece of more than 2,000,000 practical dirt farmers scattered over the country and knit together through their various county bureaus into a formidable national body which he heads, bases his prognosis—pessimistic as it may seem—on the following factors:

First—The inevitable and disastrous effect which he says will follow further decline in the farmer's ability to convert his produce into other commodities below the present 64 per cent level of his dollar's purchasing power.

Second—The continued shrinkage of the agricultural dollar since 1913 (taken as the normal year) and its recent terrific plunge from 71 per cent in July to its present rock-bottom position of less than 64 per cent.

Year Marks Crisis

Howard, who is coming more into recognition as the man who really conceived and planned the now famous congressional "farm bloc," says:

"This year will mark a turn in the agricultural crisis. But a turn for the better will be ushered in upon the scene too late to save an unprecedented number of farms all over the country from being lost to their owners.

"While business men are wondering what is the matter with business, the farmer isn't puzzled. He has only to open his pocketbook to find the startling answer. He has only to note the exchange figures denoting the purchasing price of his dollar.

"By the purchasing price of his dollar is meant, the farmer's ability to take a load of merchandise to market—produce that he has grown—and sell it say for the sum of $100.

Farm Dollar Shrinks

"In 1913 a farmer could take a hundred dollars earned in such fashion and turn around and buy $100 worth of material—tractors, seed, shoes for himself and children and other necessary items.

"But since 1913, this converting power has gradually shrunk, until today, the same farmer taking the same load of produce to market gets more—$130—but he is able to buy only $54 worth of return merchandise.

"His purchasing power has dropped from 100 per cent to less than 64 per cent. Constantly facing that situation, with mortgages to meet and short-time notes, hundreds of farmers have lost their farms.

"Now is the time for the city man to realize what is happening because the city man depends on the farms, and when they're hit, he is hit too—only probably worse than the farmer.

"In co-operative marketing rests the cure-all for most of America's agricultural trouble. Aware of his own predicament the farmer holds to the co-operative pathway as his saving beacon light.

"Through the establishment of stable and profitable markets the recurrent dilemma such as now faces our farmers will be solved. Great strides are being made in this direction.

"And as I have said, the farmer's own method to this end is co-operative marketing, and a revision of short and long-time credit to an intermediate credit.

"The last-named relief will permit him to hold and store in his own bins and warehouses whatever surplus of production is on hand until such a time as he may market it to advantage—both his own and the general public's.

HERE IS A REMEDY

The American Farm Bureau Federation is launching a big campaign to bring about the amendment of the Federal Land Bank act, by abolishing the limitation of $10,000 placed on farm loans.

Thereby, it is contended, hundreds of farmers who must settle on March 1, 1923, on loans contracted five years ago, will be saved from bankruptcy.

The proposed amendment, which is starting a national furore, would grant farmers loans on an unrestricted basis, in keeping with the value of the average farm.

The plan carries a big agricultural appeal. Howard, who is president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and sponsor of the move, sees in it the farmer's final hope to avert destruction and his means for recuperation.

Crisis Is Near

"The farmer is not a master of high finance. But if he is to survive as the backbone of the country, high finance must come to his rescue.

"For that reason I am appealing to the business man to help his rural brother. If the farm goes the city will follow. We must have farms.

"If the coming crisis does not drive the individual farmer from the land, and into the hands of big syndicates, then a reversion back to primitive farming may come about.

"By this I mean, that the farmer will be forced to grow only those things necessary for the support of his own household such as obtained in the practice of 50 years ago when there were no agricultural specialists, and farming was done mostly for the family or the nearest settlement only.

"I am hoping that this will never happen. A reversion is something never to be thought of. So I am appealing for the farmer still left. Help him to keep his land. You can do this by co-operating with him.

"Your interest is the farmer's interest. His interest must be yours, because without the farms there can be no country—no city. Realize the danger now threatening!

"Stable markets, which will make profitable return for farm products and the means of marketing these products co-operatively are what the farmer wants. And for these two things—and for the latter especially—I ask the sympathetic support of all business men.

"Save the farm and you will save all. Let's get back to the highroad of prosperity."

ANECDOTES OF CLEMENCEAU

By NORRIS QUINN.

EN ROUTE WITH CLEMENCEAU, Dec. 21.—Two things are indispensable to Georges Clemenceau —his gloves and his valet.

The gloves are black ones and the former Premier always wears them, even when he's eating—at least when he's eating alone in his private car "Bethlehem," lent him by Chas. M. Schawab.

The valet is Monsieur Albert Boulin who speaks but one language, French, and on but one subject, Clemenceau.

Boulin is what the stage has taught Americans to regard as a typical Frenchman. He has dark brown curly hair and a little brown mustache that curves upward at the tips.

He always wears a vest of lighter shade than his coat and trousers resplendent in row of glass-like buttons. And he carries a bright green handkerchief in his upper coat pocket.

He bows often. He takes off his hat snappily whenever you speak to him—or upon any other pretext.

"Oui, oui, le Premier," says Boulin. "I go all around the world with him —sweet France (ah) the rest of Europe, India, and now Amerique.

"Here I am so confused. I worry so. Diable! In New York I get lost. I try to find the Premier and his friends. But I see only people, people, people. They rush here, they rush there. I speak to many but no one understands me.

Ah, a Disaster!

"I struggle for hours. At last I reach home. But, Dieu, the Premier he already has retired. And without the aid of Albert! Ah, monsieur, quel desastre!"

Then Albert jumps up and runs to the window of the private car and looks nervously outside. He does that every five minutes. Why? He doesn't know.

Then Albert pulls from his pocket a straight-stemmed briar pipe, crams it full of tobacco and starts puffing nervously. The pipe goes out every two minutes, but Albert lights it again.

Master a Hero.

"Oui, I have heard 'no master is a hero to his valet.' But le Premier, he is different. He is my greatest hero. He is a real tiger.

"Yes, I sometimes leave my bed at 3 in the morning to help him dress. But what cares Albert?

"Le Premier he is full of la sympathie. He—"

Albert rushes to the window again and looks up and down the railway yards.

"I remember once an elderly widow was looking for a pension. Her son he was killed in the war. She went to one government bureau, to another bureau. Everywhere they turn her away.

"Le Premier he hears of it. He calls her to him. He gets her pension. That is le Premier.

"Oui, oui, it's true he eats with his gloves on. It's true he picks up grape fruit and eats it from his hand as one eats the orange. What does he drink here? Why, the charged water! Sometimes—"

But Albert has heard a noise in the other end of the car and he has nervously rushed forward to learn its cause.

The little valet is as great a hero to his master as his master is to him. That has been especially true since Clemenceau fell a prey to fever in India two years ago and Albert nursed him back to health with the tenderness of a woman.

Clemenceau has granted his valet's wish to hear all his speeches and sometimes he permits Albert to sit on the platform though the valet understands not one word of the speeches which, of course, are delivered in English.

RETURN TO ENGLAND

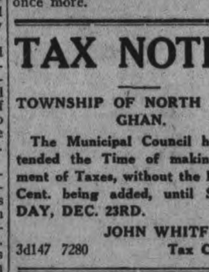
NEW YORK Dec. 20—(By Canadian Press).—Mrs. Alice Muriel Williamson, the British novelist and co-author with her husband, the late C. N. Williamson, of many books, has just returned to England after exhibiting here what she believes is convincing proof of spirit communication. It is a reconstruction picture of Glastonbury Abbey, England, automatically drawn by Capt. John Alleyne Bartlett of Bristol, England. The artist's hand is supposed to have been guided by the spirit of a monk who lived in the abbey, before it became one of the country's most noted ruins.

Some years ago Capt. Bartlett, a retired army officer, experienced a series of automatic writings, which are embodied in the book "The Gate of Remembrance." His home is near Glastonbury Abbey in that section of England famed as the seat of King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table.

The automatic writings were followed about two years ago by visions in which Capt. Bartlett saw certain portions of the abbey reconstructed, and which came as though painted on a blank wall. The officer is not an artist, in fact he cannot even draw passibly well, but his hand automatically began to move and he decided to try to depict the paintings as they appeared to him.

His first efforts were in black and white. They were found to be architecturally correct, according to British authorities, and he was urged to attempt pastels. Twenty-six of these pictures, including the two shown here, were brought to the United States last August by Mrs. Williamson.

Although she declared the paintings as original drawings of an amateur, and not for sale, the customs authorities refused to admit them on that basis. They declared the paintings must be the work of an artist. A short time ago Mrs. Williamson was allowed to have the paintings which had remained in the customs men's hands three months.



One of the first of Capt. Bartlett's drawings was a plan of the abbey as it was in the time of the monk whose spirit has guided him through this work. Following this plan, Mrs. Williamson says, excavators were able to uncover the chapel of King Edward the Confessor, which had been sought for many years. The monk visits Capt. Bartlett about every fortnight, acccording to the novelist.

The uncovering of the chapel was all the more remarkable as the ruins are fragmentary and the work of destruction has descended in many places to the very foundation. The abbey obtained charters in the seventh century, but the finest part of the ruins shows transitional work of the twelfth century.

As early as the beginning of the eleventh century the tradition that King Arthur was buried at Glastonbury took shape. In the reign of King Henry II the Abbot Henry de Blois is supposed to have caused a search to be made which resulted in the discovery of a massive oak trunk with the manuscript inscription: "Hic jacet sepultus inclitus rex Arthurus in insula Avalonia."

After the fire of 1184 the monks asserted they were in possession of the remains of St. Dunstan, which had been taken from Canterbury after the Danish sack of 1011 and kept in concealment ever since.

The loss is placed at $175,000.

VARSITY BEATEN.

TORONTO, December 21 (Canadian Press). — Outplaying the University of Toronto team in the last two periods, Kitchener Seniors won last nights game by 4 goals to 2 and became the holders of the Sportsman's Patriotic Association Trophy.

The blue and whites played as well as in any previous game this season, and led at the end of the opening period by 1 to 0, but their best on this occasion was not good enough to defeat the mystery team organised by Harry Wismer.

CLEMENCEAU'S GRANDSON MEETS THE GREEN-EYED MAN WHO KILLED RASPUTIN

M. Gatineau Describes Scenes in Paris Where Profiteers, Ladies of the Stage, Unfortunate Aristocrats and Exiles Met—Prince Youssoupoff and the Wonderful Jewels—Financial Disaster as Roubles and Cotton Break—The Tiger Coolly Hears Bullet Smash Windows of "The Chained Man."

By GEORGES CLEMENCEAU GATINEAU

Grandson of Georges Clemenceau, Ex-Premier of France.

M. Gatineau, impoverished by unfortunate business ventures and extravagant living, was forced from France by the ire of his famous grandfather, Georges Clemenceau, "The Tiger." Coming to America, he who had spent hundreds of thousands in Paris and Monte Carlo, became a laborer, shoveling coal on a Boston dock. There he was discovered and pressed into the task of writing his memoirs of Parisian gaiety and events in "The Tiger's" life.

Good Americans, when they die, go to Paris So runs the old proverb, inferring that the beauties, gaieties and light-heartedness of our Capital is the Americans' idea of Heaven.

Somehow, sooner or later one must meet any of the world's most prominent people in Paris. It was, in my time there, the rendezvous of those who sought pleasure at its brightest and it attracted from every end of the world people of all sorts, from the brilliant crook to the sight-seeing tourist of awe-struck mien.

Paris, To All Is Heaven!

The wonder of it was that Paris and its joys never palled on the people of whatever taste or station in life, once they had become acquainted with it. Night after night one might see the same faces if one went far enough abroad. Famous people, wealthy people—those who one must credit with having their choice of all the world's menu of amusements—night after night chose the cafes and entertainment of Montmartre.

Fancy the scene and the hum of conversations in all sorts of languages. Here a profiteer from America or England getting what joy money can purchase; here a bronzed Colonial, magnate of cattle or sheep or rubber plantation; here a South American, clanking gold at every step.

At their sides the beauties of the capital of beauty—the charming women of the theatres; adventuresses; aristocrats looking for a chance to recoupe fallen fortunes; blase Parisiennes looking for a new thrill in the love-making of the half-barbaric outlanders.

The war had left many wealthy persons poverty stricken; the high tide of Republicanism had swept into exil hundreds of the old ruling class and of these latter, who by foresight or good luck, had saved something from the deluge, Paris had her full share. They added color to the picturesque scenes. They lent spice to the piquant descriptions habitues of the cafes gave breathless visitors.

"There, with his arm about that dancer, in green, stands Baron So-and-So," one might hear. "He was careful to save both his skin and his fortune in the war. He is persona non grata in his own land now, but is enjoying life here" Or:

"The tall lady, with the Spanish lace—she managed to escape with some of her jewels before the mobs got them. Now, having pawned them and being without means of support, she would match her title and blue blood against the millions of the swarthy Brazilian who is buying the champagne for her."

The Scene At The Grelot

It was at the Grelot, one of the most notorious resorts in Montmartre, that I first met the man who is perhaps Russia's greatest exile.

I was seated at a table there with Loulou Delorme and Peggy Vere, the English actress. We were waiting for Count Ivan Vorontzoff-Dachkoff to join us.

Singing, drinking, dancing—oh, it was just once more the reckless night life of Paris' rich Women in flimsy silks and sparkling diamonds—paste, most likely—flirting with the great city's tireless wild oat sowers.

Young men, with the dark circles of night play about their eyes, scattering their patrimony upon the favorites of the day who would smile upon them only as long as the stream of wealth, continued to flow

But I do not criticise That would be truly amusing. I was one. I should like very much to be back there again.

"What eyes" breathed Loulou Delorme.

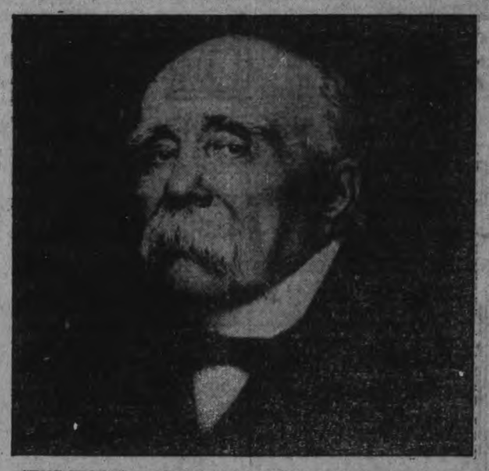
I turned cautiously. There in a corner sat three men—each with a bottle of champagne in a cooler beside him. To the riotous throng they were oblivious. Women there were who gave them side-long glances, but they ignored it all.

Alone, incongruous they seemed in this joyous, riotous room—they were not even in evening dress, just ordinary sack suits.

"Alias Mr. Elston"

Of the three, though, there was one who was not ordinary. As young as myself—24 or 25, perhaps, slim, but with a look of power that impressed itself on every eye.

And those eyes of his Green-piercing—eyes that commanded. Set



"THE TIGER" — GEORGES CLEMENCEAU, the ex-Premier of France, whose comment when a bullet crashed through the window of his office was, "What a stupid thing to do!"

in a hatchet face, they dominated the little group. He was the leader. Of that there was no doubt.

His air was supercilious. Nothing interested him, but the words of those who talked with him—and it is possible even that their talk bored him a bit.

"Who is he?" I asked.

Loulou did not know. Nor Peggy.

We called the head waiter. He was sorry, but all the others were as puzzled as I. A stranger, but by no means an ordinary stranger.

M'sieu had noticed? A man of rank

Count Ivan came at last.

"Who is that man?" I asked him, for I believed the stranger to be Russian.

Ivan looked over to the table, and then jumped to his feet and hastened to the green-eyed man.

With a cry they embraced and kissed. The great room was actually struck the momentary silence.

But that was the end. For a few moments Ivan talked, and then he returned.

"Who is he?" I insisted.

"Mr. Elston," he replied.

"Mr. Elston" I snorted. "Don't try to deceive me, Ivan. That man is no mister He is someone"

But Ivan refused to talk, and I decided that he must have been sworn to secrecy.

That evening I joined "Mr. Elston" in a walk in the Boise. I accepted his "incognito" and we had a most interesting talk. He was a bit reticent as to Russian affairs, but when we spoke of France—of Paris, he talked eagerly.

A compelling man, I found him, but a lovable one for all that. He was accustomed to accomplish things.

He was one of the world's doers; and yet it pleased me a bit to know that he liked me, liked to play.

The next day I went to see Count Ivan.

"I insist on knowing his name, Ivan," I said. "If it's a secret, I'll keep mum. But I've scarcely been able to sleep all night, wondering who in thunder the chap is."

Ivan nodded.

"Well, it's all right, of course, for he has invited you to the present at a small dinner he is giving at the Hotel Vendome this evening. But you must never talk of him. He is Prince Felix Youssoupoff"

"Youssoupoff?" . . ."

I was beginning to see light.

"Yes," said Ivan, "the man who killed Rasputin"

Rasputin's killer

Now I could understand those steady green eyes—that appearance of tremendous energy and dominance in a man so young

Kin Of The Czar in Paris Revels

"He's a notable, certainly," Ivan went on, and, taking a slight dig at my money-spending: "He makes you seem somewhat of a pauper, my dear Georges. Did you know that a short while ago when he ran temporarily short of ready money, he sold a small fraction—a very small fraction of his possessions for 120,000,000 francs? "Fortune, eh? And he's just using it for pocket money"

A notable—rather At the Vendome that evening I met the Grand Duchess Irene, Prince Youssoupoff's wife; and also the Grand Duke Andre (who is Youssoupoff's brother-in-law) and his wife, and the Grand Duke Theodore.

The Grand Duchess Irene, by the way, is the daughter of the Grand Duke Michael, the Czar's cousin, and the refore, was the late Czar's second cousin.

The jewels of Andre's wife caught my eye—in fact, they quite "knocked my eye out."

She was literally covered with them.

"A great collection she has, is it not?" Youssoupoff asked me, when we had a moment alone together.

"That puts it mildly" I exclaimed.

Youssoupoff smiled.

"Yes," he agreed. "They are all false."

Prince Youssoupoff, in fact, was one of the few Russians in Paris who had any money. Out of his wealth, he supported his brother-in-law and Andre's wife—and very probably a number of others less fortunate than he.

It was after I had met the Prince that I was caught in a current—a financial whirlpool. I clutched at straw after straw. No man likes to drown.

"Buy Russian roubles," Prince Youssoupoff had advised me.

It was, perhaps, the worst advice Youssoupoff had ever given me or anyone. He had faith in the restoration of the old order in Russia and steadfastly expected to see himself and others restored to their old places of authority.

But roubles as you know, dropped and dropped in value with the Bolshevik regime.

They have been dropping ever since. Now they are far less expensive than a fair grade of wall-paper.

Then, as a dealer in cotton, I had bought large quantities of African cotton through my broker. Moreover, I had bought at high prices.

And the bottom dropped out of the cotton market

I sold my cotton for what I could get. It was a fraction for what I owed my brother. I conected all the moneys I had on hand. Even that was not enough.

A week before the crush, my grandfather had called six members of my family together for the purpose of placing a guardian over me, lest I squander my entire fortune.

I was not responsible, he declared. It was high time my extravagance was stopped.

The conference was at 11. By 1 in the afternoon I had a legal guardian. I could not get a cheque cashed at my bank without his permission.

My grandfather's political influence had hurried the matter.

I needed my money.

I rushed to my grandfather.

"My guardian will not allow me to draw money from the bank," I said. "I am in financial straits. If I do not get money right away I shall be compelled to sell my roubles at a tremendous loss. I want you to remove my guardian"

He coldly declined to do as I asked.

"You will not give me any help at all, grandfather?"

"None."

I left angry, though scarcely broken hearted. Troubles, at that time, troubled me a little.

I sold my roubles, because on the coming Friday I must meet all my debts. When my broker was paid, I found myself possessed of 5000 francs.

"How stupid it is," I thought, "for the cotton market to break when I am in such a fix."

"Stupid!" Says Clemenceau as Bullet Breaks Window

Unconsciously, I had stolen one of my grandfather's expressions, and when recollection came to me, I laughed.

It was at the time I was his secretary, on the Chained Man as he called his paper. We were in his office, where he was talking with a number of his friends. Suddenly a shot rang out, the window glass splintered.

Clemenceau looked around, frowning.

"Dear me," he complained, "who in the world can be amusing himself by shooting a pistol? What a stupid thing to do"

Five thousand francs.

I laughed at the idea.

What could I do with 5000 francs? I couldn't live on that sum, so much was certain. It wasn't even enough to provide a good party.

A party That was it

If I was to be snuffed out, I'd see to it that the snuffing was done quite in Parisian style

Dead henceforth as far as the night life was concerned, my funeral would be a gala affair

I gathered my friends together. We made a night of it.

Again, wine, women and song—

Fair Weather Friends

The next evening I went to Henry's bar. Henry, you know, was accused of having been a German spy, and committed suicide to avoid disgrace. I do not believe that Henry was a spy. I have known him for many years.

At the bar I found my friends.

"Gentlemen," I announced, "something extraordinary has happened"

Came a volley of guesses.

"You're in love" cried Albert, who believed that I was absolutely love-proof.

"You have signed the pledge You are a prohibitionist" Jacques ventured.

"You have decided to sleep at night" accused Colas.

For a while there was high glee. Each made a guess, all preposterous, in their opinions, and some involving personalities. I listened in silence, and when they had finished I said quietly:

"I'm broke."

There was one cry:

"What"

At first they wouldn't believe. Then they all laughed. There were drinks around, and I left.

The next evening, I went there at 6:30. The same group. Not one knew me. Not one offered a glass to me. They were all very busy. Then, I think I learned a lesson.

I hastened away, and left Marseilles for Paris—just for one last look at the town before I departed from France perhaps forever. I was dressed in a shabby suit. My extreme poverty was obvious. Still, though I studiously avoided streets on whic I might encounter old acquaintances, walked with head erect.

You must understand that I was not at all downhearted. Losing wealth is unpleasant, bothersome; but on the other hand, the experience of being broke was a novelty and I found enjoyment in life, despite the fact that I was often hard put to it to pay for my dinners.

"Black Dope" is the title of M. Gatineau's next article—the fifth of this series. It describes, with complete frankness a luxurious opium den in Paris—its kimona clad inmates, including a famous author—the effect of "dope" as one by one of those seeking its solace smoke from the same pipe. M. Gatineau tells of working his way on shipboard to the Orient and as a contrast describes the brilliant scenes at Monte Carlo where he and Gaby Deslys won a fortune on a single blue chip. BAVARIA REGARDED AS THE CENTRE OF MONARCHIST PLOTS

Careening on a Stormy Sea, Men at Helm.

MUNICH, Dec. 21.—(Associated Press)—When the world war swepts Ludwig III. from his throne, Bavaria' ship of state went careening on a stormy political sea, the turbulence of which has forced a rapid change in the men at its helm. Dr. Eugen von Knilling, who became head of the government last month, is the fifth premier this Southern German state has had during the four years since monarchism was abandoned in November 1918.

The revolution which put the last of the Ludwigs into the discard at the same time installed the Socialist, Kurt Eisner, in charge of the new regime. Eisner's radical ideas and practices embittered many Bavarians who clung to things imperial, and his term of office was cut short in February, 1919, by assassination at the hands of Count Arco-Valley.

Johannes Hoffmann, a Majority Socialist who had been minister of education under Eisner, next took up the reins of power, but fled the capital in April, 1919, in the face of a "Red Republic" uprising. This movement was crushed about four weeks later and Hoffmann returned to the premiership. Under his tenure of office, a new constitution declaring Bavaria a free state, was adopted the following August.

A surge of reactionary feeling carried in Gustav von Kahr, a Nationalist, as Hoffmann's successor, dating from May, 1920. Von Kahr figured prominently in various public capacities, one of which was coorganizer of the Bavarian military force known as the Einwohnerwehr, in company with George Escherich. Political circumstances necessitated a new vote for premier on July 16, 1920, and von Kahr was retained in office, forming a Coalition cabinet of the bourgeoise parties.

Differences within the Bavarian People's Party over negotiations for special considerations of Bavaria within the republic, led to the selection of Count Hugo von Lerchenfeld, a member of this party, as premier in September, 1921. Count Lerchenfeld is married to an American. He resigned from the head of the government early last month following criticism of the Rightists that he had been too weak and submissive in the face of the Berlin government.

The new premier comes from the same political party as did his predecessor and has always lived in Bavaria. Doctor von Knilling was born in Munich, August 1, 1865, and was educated here in the public schools, the academy and the university. In 1892 he assumed public office, and has been in the public service almost continuously ever since. His opinions at the present time are said to be representative of the middle classes.

Today, with the second largest state in the new German republic, noted as the hotbed of Germany-s reactionaries, von Knilling takes over the administration of its 76,429 kilometers and 7,140,333 inhabitants during a period of most trying politics. His selection has been opposed in the press of the extreme right on the grounds that Bavaria's present-day needs demands rather an economist than an educationalist as premier.

About him, within the state, nationalists and socialists alike have been actually arming, each faction claiming this action necessary for self-protection. Reports have been frequently circulated during the past few months that a "putsch" was contemplated for the purpose of restoring the monarchy. The Socialists declared November 11 had been selected as "the day" and urged reinforced watchfulness over the reactionaries after November 5.

The Nationalists, who have come to be known as Bavaria's "Fascisti," assert they have armed themselves merely to defend the sovereignty of the state and to guarantee public order. Of late their activities have become more open and more vigorous, due to encouragement from the success of Fascistism in Italy. A comparatively unknown agitator named Hitler has arisen as a candidate for the "Mussolinship" of the state.

Munich has long been a bee-hive for the monarchical elements of the republic. The notorious Organization Consul, which spread its nationalist tentacles all over Germany, was found to have its headquarters here. It is in the south that the socialist government at Berlin sees its greatest danger from domestic quarters, and any coup started here, if only for a Bavarian monarchy, it is feared, might easily prove all the spark that is needed for the reactionary tinder lying about in other parts of the country.

Von Knilling's selection was born of a desire on the part of the politicians in power to present a stiffer backbone to Berlin. This attitude already has found a pointed expression in the state's opposition to the way in which the federal government wished to administer the new law for "defense of the republic," which was framed after the assassination last June of Dr. Walter Rathenau, then foreign minister. Bavaria stood out for the right to try in her own courts such offenders as were found within her borders, and only receded on the point after the central administration agreed to do nothing impinging upon the state's rights.

It remains to be seen to what extent the new premier will carry on the previous policy. In his inaugural address on November 9, the anniversary of the German revolution, he reiterated Bavaria's loyalty to the republic. In the same speech, Dr. von Knilling admitted there was some basis for the fears that the state was threatened with disturbances, but cautioned against believing sensational rumors.

SHIP ADRIFT AGAIN WITHOUT ANY FUEL.

HALIFAX, N.S., December 21. — Canadian Press. — The United States Shipping Board steamer Westharway, for more than a week fuel-less, is again adrift in the Atlantic, about 540 miles east of Halifax and south of Cape Race, after being in tow of the Shipping Board Steamer Argus for two days.

The tow line between the vessels parted yesterday and the Argus apparently unable to render any further assistance, proceeded to New York.

This information was contained in messages yesterday from the Captain of the Argus to J. M. Dodge, the Shipping Board representative here.

The Argus was attempting to tow the disabled vessel to Halifax.

BIGGEST STILL IN MANITOBA.

WINNIPEG, December 21. — Convicted of operating the largest still yet revealed in Manitoba, Matthew Pennings, of Grosse Isle, 25 miles northeast of Winnipeg, was yesterday fined $1000 and H. and F H. Plohman, his two assistants, were fined $400 each.

The still was valued at $15,000.

This is the first picture to be taken of them and was snapped while they were having their morning airing in the park.

JUNIOR HOCKEY CLUBS IN LINE.

Prospects Are Bright For City League of Four Clubs.

Junior hockey clubs were well represented at a meeting held last night to organize a junior series. The teams represented were: De Laval, Sacred Heart, Duffus Devils, Falcons, Maple Leafs and an entry from Auburn Mills was promised.

In order to get down to a working basis it was decided that the league membership be confined to four clubs; that the age limit for players be eighteen years, and that the entrance fee be $25.00. It was felt that season tickets should be supplied the clubs, the sale of which would assist them in financing the league.

Another meeting will be held on Friday night to receive applications for membership. Four strong teams are available to make a well-balanced league.

PROCEEDS DISTRIBUTED.

CHICAGO, December 21 (Canadian Press). — Baseball Commissioner Landis yesterday announced that the proceeds of the World's Series tie game at New York on 5th October, amounting to $121,056.30, has been distributed.

The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, and Disabled Veterans of the World War, each received $20,352.10, and the remainder was distributed by joint act of the two New York clubs to charitable organisations.

LADY FRASER GETS A DIVORCE FROM HUBBY.

Separation Granted on the Grounds of Misconduct by Husband.

LONDON, Dec. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Lady Helen Mary Fraser, wife of Sir John Foster Fraser, widely known lecturer and newspaper writer, was granted a divorce from her husband to-day on the grounds of misconduct.

LONDON MURDERESS

said Mr. Lewis, the statement was included:

"By the way, what is aromatic tincture of opium?"

Yet another letter dated May 1 stated:

"I was glad you think and feel the same way as I do about the 'New Forest.' I don't thing we are failures in other things, and we must not be in this. We must not give up, as we said.

"We Must Fight Fate."

"No, we shall have to wait if we fail again. Darling, Fate cannot always turn against us, and if it is we must fight it. You and I are strong now. We must be stronger. We must learn to be patient.

"Well, wait on, darling, and you will try and get some money, and then we can go away, and not worry about anybody or anything.

"You said it was enough for an elephant. Perhaps it was. But you don't allow for the taste making only a small quantity to be taken. It sounded like a reproach—was it meant to be?

"Darling, I tried hard—you won't know how hard, because you were not there to see, and I cannot tell you all, but I did, I do want you to believe I did for both of us.

"I was buoyed up with the hope of the light bulb, and I used a lot—big pieces, too—not powdered—and it had no effect. I quite expected to be able to send that cable, but no nothing had happened from it, and now your letter tells me about the bitter taste again.

Lying and Scheming.

"Oh, darling, I do feel so down and unhappy. Would not the stuff make some small pills coated with soap and dipped in licorice; try while you are away. Our boy had to have his thumb operated on because he had a piece of glass in it; that is what made me try that method again—but, I suppose, as you say, he has got normal. I know I feel I shall never get him to take a sufficient quantity of anything bitter.

"No, I have not forgotten the key, I told you before . . . . If ever we are lucky enough to be happy, darling, I will love you such a lot. I always show you how much I love you for all you do for me."

Another paragraph read:

"All that lying and scheming and subterfuge to obtain one little hour in each day—when by right of nature and our love, we should be together for all the twenty-four in every day."

Mrs. Thompson's letter to Bywaters, addressed to Marseilles, which was read, contained a reference to purchasing clothes for a Mrs. ——. It added:

"There are some widows' hats and veils at the back, and nobody, including Mrs. ——, had the pluck to try them on.

"They all say it is unlucky, so, because of it being unlucky to them, I thought it might be lucky for me to try them on."

Efficiency of Poison.

At the top of another letter to Bywaters, post-dated May 16, 1922, said Mr. Lewis, was the following quotation:

"It must be remembered that digitaliers is a cumulative poison, and that the same dose, harmless if taken once, yet frequently repeated becomes deadly."

"Darling boy," the letter commenced "the above passage I have just come across in a book I am reading, 'Belladonna' by Robert Hitchens. Is it any use? . . . ; The book I am reading 'Belladonna,' is about Egypt.

"I think you would be interested in it, although I don't think you would like the book—at least I hope you wouldn't. I don't."

A further letter, dated June 13, 1922, contained the passages:

"Darlingest Boy — I am trying hard, very hard ,to B. B. I know my pal wants me to. On Thursday he was on the ottoman at the foot of the bed, and said he was dying, and wanted to — he had another heart attack—through me.

"Darling, I had to laugh at this, because I knew (understand) it could not be a heart attack. When he saw this had no effect on me, he got up and stormed.

"I said exactly what you told me to, and he replied that he knew that was what I wanted, and he was not going to give it to me —it would make things far too easy for both of (meaning you and me)."

The Final Letter.

The final letter read, found at Bywaters' address, Norwood, contained the passages:

"Yes, darling, you are jealous of me—I want you to be .He has the right by law to all that you have the right by nature and love.

"Yes, darling, be jealous so much that you will do something desperate."

One letter bore the date on the envelope January 3, 1922, but the letter itself was undated. This, said Mr. Lewis, was addressed to Bywaters at Plymouth, and contained the words:

"I am going to leave everything to you, only I would like to help you. Of course, he knows you are due on the 7th, and will be very suspicious of me from then. So I suppose I won't be able to see you, will I? You know, darling. Don't have the slightest worry and thoughts about letters, as, to be careful, I have been cruel to myself. Immediately I have received a second letter I have destroyed the first. The only one I have is the 'Dear Edie' one."

Mr. Lewis read the "Dear Edie" letter, which was alleged to have been written by Bywaters to Mrs. Thompson with reference to Christmas, and then continued reading the first letter, which said:

"I have surrendered to him unconditionally now. Do you understand me? I think it is the best way to disarm any suspicions. In fact, he has several times asked me if I am happy now, and I have said, 'Yes, quite,' but you know that is not true, don't you?"

RECIPES

SALAD.

(By Bertha E. Shapleigh)

This salad is to be arranged individually and for each service the following ingredients will be needed:

3 heart leaves of lettuce
6 white grapes, seeded
¼ cup celery, cut into small pieces
⅓ apple, pared, and cut into thin slices
½ green pepper, parboiled, and cut into strips
½ tomato, cut into lengths
2 tablespoons oil
1 teaspoon vinegar
¼ teaspoon sugar
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Mix white grapes, apple and celery. Mix oil, vinegar, salt, sugar and pepper. Pour over the fruits, separately, and serve in lettuce leaves. Pass mayonnaise. An attractive arrangement is to put the grapes, celery and apple mixture into one lettuce leaf, the tomatoes in a second, and peppers in the third. Arrange these on plate, having the stems of the leaves toward centre. In this centre place a spoonful of mayonnaise.

SOUP.

(By Bertha E. Shapleigh.)

50 oysters or 1 quart oysters
3 pints water
3 stalks celery
1 onion, thinly sliced
½ bay leaf
1 clove
½ cup raw rice
2 cups milk
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Few grains cayenne
Few gratings nutmeg
1 cup cream
Yolk 1 egg
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Parboil oysters, strain, reserve liquor and finely chop the oysters. To the liquor add the water, celery, onion, seasonings, oysters, rice and milk. Simmer one hour, rub through a sieve. Add egg yolk and cream and cook without boiling for five minutes. Season more if necessary.

TIGER AND LEOPARD.

Tiger and leopard fur are said to be very popular in Paris for short jackets and for trimming on tailored suits and coats. They are f'ked, too, for top coats.

M. VENIZELOS ATTACKS ANGORA GOVERNMENT.

Protests Against Turks Deportation of Greeks from Anatolia.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 21.—(Canadian Press).—A wordy altercation between ex-Premier Venizelos of Greece and Riza Nur Bey, Turkish Nationalist delegate, caused Signor Montaona, President of the Near East Conference Commission on Minorities, to bring this morning's session of the Commission to an abrupt close.

The dispute was over the question of the liberty of emigration, and M. Venizelos bitterly attacked the Angora Government and protested against the alleged deportation of Greeks by the thousand from Anatolia.

Riza Nur replied in the same vein, charging Venizelos with being responsible for the Turkish-Greek war and its consequences.

"JAZZ" GIRL HEROINE OF FINE PICTURE

Her Career Vividly Portrayed by William de Mille in Picture "Nice People"

What may happen to the modern jazz girl in her pursuit of pleasure-at-any-cost, is vividly portrayed in William de Mille's latest Paramount Picture "Nice People" which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

The producer has achieved the unique distinction of presenting a vital problem of today in a manner that is entertaining, amusing and artistically perfect.

Rachel Crothers' play, of the same name, furnished the theme for Mr. de Mille's latest screen drama. Clara Beranger who adapted the story for the screen, followed the original play in most important matters while adding several valuable scenes sequences which the limitations of the stage forbade in the original story.

A truly all-star cast is seen in "Nice People." Wallace Reid plays the role of the young American who is unacquainted with the modern and sophisticated girl. Bebe Daniels is delightful as the girl. Conrad Nagel gives one of the finest characterizations of his career as the male counterpart of the "jazz girl." Julia Faye is the villainness if such a term can be applied to the catty young woman, who does her best to ruin the romance of her friend because both happen to love the same man.

The supporting cast is equally notable. Claire McDowell, Edward Martindel, Bertram Johns, Eve Sothern, William Boyd and Ethel Wales are uniformly excellent in their respective roles.

The story of "Nice People" has to do with a modern girl who resents the sudden assertion of parential authority. In a fit of pique she finds herself accidentally in a seemingly compromising situation. The other man does not always understand but he is always loyal. With his aid and the assistance of a sympathetic aunt, the girl does a right about face that brings happiness in the end, but only after some trying experiences for the young woman.

You will enjoy "Nice People." And if you are young or have youthful daughters, sisters or other feminine relatives, you will do well to take them with you.

Also on the bill will be the No. 3 adventure of Sherlock Holmes entitled, "A Case of Indentity" a very interesting story and Harold Lloyd will be seen in the "Just Dropped In" comedy.

ANITA STEWART SEEN AT HER BEST IN "A QUESTION OF HONOR."

Anita Stewart's admirers have renewed cause for upholding their favorite in the production of "A Question of Honor," the First National attraction that opens at the Royal Theatre to-day. The star has succeeded in giving a story of a society girl an amazing twist. This is perhaps to be expected in an adaptation of a Ruth Cross novel; and still it is questionable if any one but Miss Stewart could have made the character as distinctly individual as she has done. She has taken the role of Anne Wilmot and draped it in the gorgeous freedom of the West and crystallized it in an emboldened spirit of womanhood.

In the foothills of the Sierras Bill Shannon is putting across a big irrigation project that means salvation to hundreds of weary settlers who have toiled away at an unproductive soil. At the moment when his plans seem about to be realized in the construction of a big dam, financial interests decide that the property is essential to their plans for a railroad right-of-way. Failing to win the engineer over to their plans they bring Anne out as a bait for him.

From that juncture the cross currents of the plot rise to a swift climax, culminating in a general riot and an attempt to blow up the dam. Anne finds herself in the crisis and risks her own life to make good the debt against her conscience.

The story is full feature-value, with the added advantage of Anita Stewart's talent, and glorious exteriors taken in the West. The star is more captivating than ever in her buckskin attire. "A Question of Honor" has registered as a distinct hit. It remains a question only as to how far it will surpass Miss Stewart's previous film ventures.

P.A.A.A. Financial Statement For Riverside Park Rental Shows Balance for Season

Balance, However, Had to Be Used Up For Other Obligations—Assistance Given to Other Sports.

OPEN SIX MONTHS.

The Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association pubilshes herewith a statement covering the operations at Riverside Park for the season. The statement shows a balance of $577.32. There was no actual cash balance, as the Association had to make expenditures arising out of obligations undertaken prior to, and after leasing Riverside Park, one of these obligations being the salary of the Dircetor of Athletics.

The Association received 25 p.c. of the gate receipts, less amusement tax, from all Central League schedule games, and 50 p.c. of the receipts from games played in the local leagues, less amusement tax.

Towards the close of the season, when the three teams competing in the Intermediate, Junior and Midget series of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association found themselves in need of financial assistance, the Association made grants to these clubs, and in some cases did not charge for the use of the grounds. In several instances, other clubs, were given the use of the grounds free of charge. The Association also assisted in financing the intermediate O.R.F.U. team, entered in the Interscholastic series.

The item of $2,957.80 appearing as receipts covers all games played by the Peterborough Central League team. This item as well as that showing receipts from the Belleville-Hillcrest game, includes the amusement tax.

Sundry receipts cover the games of the local leagues.

Like the majority of statements presented to the public, this statement does not contain an item showing the amount of splendid service given by the Park committee of the Association. The grounds were opened on May 13 and were closed on November 25. During all this time, the members of the Park committee, A. C. Kay and F. E. Convery, were on the job, and nobody will say the task was an easy one. Thi sservice was given free and willingly.

The statement follows:

Receipts.

Central Ontario Baseball League	$2957.80
Belleville-Hillcrest play-off	243.89
Sundry	784.65
	$3986.34

Disbursements.

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR JESS WILLARD

Muldoon's Prohibition to the Mountainous One May Be Raised By New Men.

NEW YORK, December 21. — Besides giving a number of loyal sons of Tammany some rather good jobs, the new boxing commission of New York may do other interesting things.

The successors of Czar Muldoon and his solons for one thing may look with favour upon another Dempsey-Willard fight, and they may revoke the Rolling-Fall rule, which killed the trade of 'rasslin'" in the state.

Two or three rules aimed directly at shutting the doors of New York against Jess Willard are now on the books, but it will be a simple matter to remedy them and permit the former heavyweight to work around here again.

Tex Rickard keeps talking about another match between the mauler and the mauled of Toledo, and of late he has been intimating for general usage that he doesn't think much of a Dempsey-Wills fight.

Rickard keeps his ear well to the ground, and perhaps he has learned that something has gone wrong with some pre-election promises that were said to have been made to Dempsey and Wills.

To keep the race talk out of the campaign issue, it was understood that the leaders of the Republican parties asked all interested in Dempsey and Wills to keep quiet till after election and they could fight next year. It was taken for granted that a liberal Democrat in the chair at Albany would not be hard on them.

Passing Away.

However, the Dempsey-Wills talk is passing away. Dempsey, from California, is speaking of a trip to Europe to tap Carpentier and Beckett on the chin, and the New York promoters keep their conversation around Willard.

Apparently there is some fire back of the smoke. Willard is coming east soon, prepared, it is understood, to prove that he can still stand up.

While the tin ears are all listening for the good things that are to come their way from a new commission, the rasslers, who have gone back to piano tossing, are also expecting better times.

With the exception of those who patronise the six-day bike races and a few that yelled themselves hoarse over toe-holds and flying mares, New York thought that the Rolling-Fall was fine, inasmuch as it stopped wrestling.

The wrestlers themselves, however, and their organiser and dictator, Jack Curley, would have some more of it, and they think they'll get it from a new commission.

RULES LAID DOWN FOR HOCKEY RINKS

All Rinks Where O. H. A. Games Are Played Must Have Standard Design.

The Ontario Hockey Association is this season sending out to the clubs playing under its jurisdiction a diagram and instructions on the marking of the ice surface. All the rinks where O.H.A. games will be played must have the ice surface marked as per diagram. Instructions follow:

Minimum ice area .....160 x 60
Suggested ice area .....175 x 75
Ideal ice area .....185 x 85

Goal nets must be set out at least five feet and no more than fifteen feet from end of rink, that is, to the goal posts. Goal width six feet, height four feet.

Rinks must install regulation goal nets. The official goal net has a covered top extending 17 inches from the goal posts to the back bar on a line, and extending at the base along the ice 22 inches from the goal posts.

Goalkeeper's territory—A semi-circle in front of net, extending one foot on each side, with a radius of four feet from middle point of the goal line.

Defending side's area, where there is no offside, 20 feet out from goal line—draw dark distinguishing line on the ice.

Referees are instructed to see that the ice is properly marked as per diagram, and no game is to be played unless the ice is so marked.

RIVALRY HIGH IN N.Y. BASEBALL

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(United Press).—With both New York ball clubs in their own parks next season there will be tremendous rivalry for the patronage of the Manhattan fans.

While nothing is yet known about the schedules, it is taken as a foregone conclusion that both the Yanks and the Giants will have some conflicting dates at home.

The desire for more Sunday dates caused the Giants to terminate the arrangement which gave the Yankees the use of the Polo Grounds for half the season, and when the Giants want more Sunday games the schedule makers most likely will grant them, as one other club will profit also.

The same is true of the Yankees.

New York, of course, is big enough to support two Sunday games, but one is bound to draw a little better than the other, if they succeed in developing a partisian following.

In Babe Ruth, the Yanks have the greatest drawing card in baseball, and if the big fellow does what he promises to do this winter he ought to hit them again next year.

In addition, it would be no surprise to see Eddie Collins working around second base. The greatest of all second basemen would be a great gate attraction, as he is very popular in New York, and it would give the Yanks a "million-dollar" infield to compare with the Giants. Erin Ward isn't the worst second baseman in the league, and considering that he has time to come along, while Collins is about through, the deal would not seem logical were it not for the fact that Miller Huggins doesn't like Ward and Ward doesn't like to play under him.

There is also a strong possibility that the Yanks may have little Dicky Kerr to pitch for them in another year.

* * * * * *

One of John McGraw's bitterest disappointments was his failure to land and develop Babe Ruth. Because he turned the Swat King over to the Red Sox McGraw turned against Jack Dunn, the Baltimore manager, so strongly that he didn't speak to him for years.

McGraw perhaps was not thinking of Babe from a commercial standpoint, as he would have considered it the crowning glory of his career if he had been the one to bring out the greatest hitter of all baseball.

The Giants will be handicapped as long as Ruth does his stuff. The world's champs are willing to spend any kind of money, but drawing cards like Ruth come only once in a life time.

McGraw has as two good attractions next season—Jack Bentley, a $70,000 Baltimore star, is the nearest to Babe Ruth that has ever come up. Bentley is a left-handed pitcher, first baseman and outfielder, a great homerun slugger and a fine hitter.

* * * * * *

Jimmy O'Connell, a $75,000 youngster from the Pacific Coast, is another good prospect. He also is a first baseman and outfielder, a daring base runner and a fine hitter.

Bentley and O'Connell, however, will be up against it. They will have to deliver before an ultra-critical audience of the type that did everything but razz George Kelly out of baseball.

Ruth was made when he came to the Yanks and he stepped right into the hero's role. If the Babe is back on his stuff next year, Bentley and O'Connell are bound to look poor in comparison.

BELMONTS WON FROM ROTARY

Spurt in the Last Few Minutes Gave Belmonts a Good Lead at Basketball.

The Belmont Club took the large end of an 18 to 11 score from the Rotarians in the opening game of the basketball schedule at the Y.M.C.A. gym. last evening. The game, though rough in spots, was a fast one from the start, and until the last few minutes of the game the Rotarians always had a chance to win, the Belmonts seldom having a lead of more than three points.

The Rotary Club opened the scoring in the first half and accumulated five points before the Belmonts found the basket, but once the Belmonts got their eye on it they kept it up, and the half ended with the score 9 to 6 with the Rotarians on the short end.

The Rotarians also opened the scoring in the second period, but were unable to overcome the lead obtained by the Belmonts. The latter team managed to keep two or three points to the advantage at all times, and in the last few minutes of play put on a scoring rally which put them seven points ahead when the final whistle blew.

The Rotarians played a good guarding game and covered their men well, a fact which broke up many good combination plays on the part of their opponents and was a big factor in keeping the scoring down. The Belmonts, on the other hand, had a fine combination game and played well together, a fact which told in the end and was responsible for their victory.

In the first period no one stood out with any exceptional brilliance on either team, though DeGraw made a good showing, but in the second Nichols came to life and covered the whole court with all his old-time speed and effectiveness. With a total of eight points to his credit, he held the high score of the game. Batten, Jackson, Mathews and MacDonald in the guard positions of both teams showed up strongly.

YOUNG MEN'S CLUB SWAMPED KIWANIS

Second Game on the "Y" Schedule Last Evening Was a Very One-Sided Affair.

The Young Men's Club completely swamped the Kiwanians in the second game on the basketball schedule at the Y.M.C.A. gym. last evening. The final score was 49 to 19. McLean, Elliot and Hardill led in the attack and scored almost at will, McLean being the highest scorer with 21 points to his credit. Pogue, Young and Doughty were the whole strength of the Kiwanis aggregation, but were unable to do any effective work against the superior combination and defence of the ultimate winners.

The Kiwanians got in their best work in the opening session, scoring 12 to the 27 piled up by the Young Men. In spite of their commanding lead, the Young Men showed no let up in the second period, and were evidently out to make it as complete a snowing under as possible. The Kiwanis defence, however, showed a little more strength and held them to 22 tallies in the final session.

BURKE TO AID CHANCE.

CHICAGO, December 21 (Canadian Press). — Jimmie Burke, of St. Louis, will act as assistant to Frank Chance, newly appointed manager of the Boston Red Sox, Chance announced yesterday.

Burke was formerly manager of the St. Louis Americans, and last season served as coach of the Red Sox under Hugh Duffy.

Chance also announced that Jack Quinn, pitcher, had signed his contract.

TAIT-WALKER BOUT.

NEW YORK, December 21 (Canadian Press). — Clonie Tait, the fast Canadian lightweight, will hook up with Archie Walker to-morrow night in a ten-round bout at the Rink Sporting Club of Brooklyn.

Tait will have to be at his best to win a decision over Walker, who has been going great guns since he turned professional. Walker held the national amateur lightweight title three years ago.

LOST FINGER WILL FORCE TILDEN TO LEARN NEW TENNIS STROKES OR FALL

Remaining Portion of His Finger Is So Stiff He Cannot Use It to Grip the Racket—Cannot Use Trick Shots.

By JOSEPH WASNEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 21. —(United Press)—William T. "Big Bill" Tiden 2nd, world's tennis champion, expects to start practicing on indoor courts early in January to offset the handicap caused by the amputation of the upper portion of the middle finger of his right hand.

Undaunted by the fact that his finger has become very stiff, Bill has decided to build up an entirely new grip to conform with the limitations of his mained hand.

"I am now certain that what is left of my middle right finger will be so stiff it will be virtually useless in gripping the racquet," Tilden told the United Press.

"This means I will have to remodel my game on orthodox lines and the trick shots that have meant much to my game will be a total loss. My backhand drive and my forehand drives probably will be the only strokes that will not be affected by my injury."

Tilden's finger was injured in a tennis match early in the autumn when he ran into a wire netting. The finger was slightly scratched and infection spread so that he lost the finger from the distal joint.

In diagnosing his own game Tilden claims he will retain the two great offensive strokes that carried him through matches to the championship.

"While retaining these two shots, absolutely all my other strokes with the possible exception of my service, will have to be changed. And, with regard to the service, I can't see how the finger is going to affect my high bounding delivery on which I depend principally in match play," the champion continued.

"I know that the volley shots and the delicate little cut shots that I have depended on so much are lost to me, for I make all those plays with my fingers.

"What I have to regain now is confidence in my play. In the last five years I have really never lost confidence in my ability to return a ball that I could reach. In the future I know this is going to be reversed, but I may be able to overcome this in time. Just what is bothering me more than the mere matter of stroking."

"As to my game next summer I have said and will repeat it, that I will be lucky to get into the first ten for 1923, and I mean it.

"However, I am of the opinion that each succeeding champion has the right to the crown by winning in a match and if I am playing tennis of a calibre that warrants competition, I will be more than willing to defend the championship."

Meanwhile "Big Bill" is working out his game on paper. He is studying just what plays he will make when he starts playing again.

There is still a chance the champion may have to undergo another operation on his injured finger. His physicians however, are trying to avoid this .

CANADIENS WON FROM HAMILTON.

National Hockey League Opened in Montreal Last Evening.

MONTREAL, December 21 (Canadian Press). — By the score of 7 goals to 3, Canadiens inaugurated the local National Hockey League season last night with a victory over Hamilton here.

Many brilliant plays marked the game here, and the Canadiens excelled in every department, with the possible exception of goal.

On defence they were impregnable, and only in the last minutes of the play, when Carry got close in to score, did the French-Canadian guard allow the visitors' attack to get anywhere near striking distance of Vezina.

The Tigers' first two goals were scored on long shots from near the centre ice. Hamilton were outclassed by the speedy Canadien forwards, who combined in three-men rushes.

To Billy Boucher went the evening's honours. The useful Canadien forward was all over the ice. He led the majority of the Canadiens' attacks, and was well assisted by Odie Cleghorn and Aurel Joliat.

To the credit of the Hamilton team, they worked hard, and never let up until the final gong.

Roach, Arbor, and Prodgers rushed in time and again, but their efforts were rendered ineffective by lack of combination.

Corbeau, last year with the Canadiens, was the outstanding player on the Hamilton team, breaking up many rushes.

Forbes, who turned in such a stellar game for Hamilton when they defeated Ottawa last Saturday, was again at the top of his form.

Four thousnd enthusiasts of the great Canadian winter sport were in attendance for the local opening of the season.

OTTAWA HOCKEY SEASON OPENS

The Ottawa Senators Won From St. Patrick's of Toronto.

OTTAWA, December 21 (Canadian Press). — By defeating St. Patricks of Toronto by the score of 7 goals to 2 at the Arena last night, Ottawa Senators obtained sweet revenge for their overtime defeat at the hands of Hamilton in the opening game of the season.

The game was not fast hockey, at times being particularly listless, but occasional flashes by the different players served to keep up the interest.

The game was played under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Byng.

Lord Byng then came out to the centre of the rink, and by dropping the puck between the sticks of Jack Adams and Frank Nighbor, officially opened the season.

The Governor-General and 6,000 persons were kept shivering for half an hour, as the train carrying the Toronto players was late. The all-day trip had its effect on the visitors.

Roach, of St. Pats, found the going rather tough, and did not appear to be at ease. Both Babe Dye and Noble have been seen to better advantage.

Jack Adams, last year's leading goal-getter in the Pacific Coast League made his initial eastern appearance this year.

Nighbor bore the brunt of the attack for th Senators, his chief assistant being Broadbent.

It was the concerted attack of the Ottawa defence, led alternately by Eddie Gerard and George Boucher, that led to the undoing of the St. Patricks.

Lounging Robes

Those who want to give something fine, something out of the ordinary are choosing these Robes. They make impressive, lasting gifts. Really a good deal better than giving a lot of little things. Lounging Robes of corded velvet in rich colorings are

$10.00 $16.50

Giving Shirts?

Of course, a man doesn't look upon the gift he gets with a critical eye—but it's good to know when you give these Shirts that they have all the little niceties he looks for when he buys himself. They are of unusually serviceable and good - looking Madras, some with fine silk stripes, others corded.

$1.50 $2.00 $3.00 $4.50

You Bet He'll Like

A Brand New Suit

You'll see him make one big dive for it if you put it under his Christmas tree, and for the time being he'll forget about everything else. Our Boys' Suits are finely tailored. They have "style." They wear exceptionally well, because they are made of strong all-wool fabrics.

Everybody Likes Silk

Every man likes Silk Hosiery—even Friend Husband. If he hasn't a full supply of it, it's because he has been willing to deny himself a bit of enjoyable luxury. If you give him a box of it "he'll tell the world." In plain shades and fancy colorings.

$1.25

Wool Union Suits

Underwear may seem like a rather ordinary gift, but when you get Wool Union Suits of this quality it really isn't. It's a practical gift, but it isn't common place. These Wool Union Suits are plenty warm enough and have a beautiful finish and texture; rather luxurious.

$4.00 $5.00 $5.50

Ties Worth Giving

When you give one of these Ties for Christmas, there is no danger of it looking like a tie you just happened to pick up somewhere. They are of pure silk in a variety of distinctive colorings. Every one has individuality; every one is a masterpiece.

PUBLIC HEALTH OF CITY

Following are the annual reports for this year submitted to the local Board of Health by M.O.H. Dr. Young, Sanitary Inspector Stapleton and Plumbing Inspector Metheral:

M.O.H.'s Report

Gentlemen:—I herewith present to you my annual report for the year 1922 ending November 30th, 1922.

I am pleased to inform you that at the present time the health of the city is better than at any other period since I assumed the position of M.O.H. Also that the sanitary condition of the city is much improved.

The establishment in this city of a branch of the Provincial Laboratories is of untold value not only to the Medical Profession but to the general public also.

The number of tests made in this laboratory since its opening has been 4071.

All city water is now being filtered.

Monthly tests are made of milk and there has been a marked improvement in every way.

The meat shops of the city are well kept and clean.

The hotels and restaurants are a credit to their owners.

There might be some improvement in some laundries.

More houses have been connected with the sewer this year than for many years past viz: 187, i.e. 125 old houses and 56 new and 6 old ones repleaced by the more modern type.

At the annual inspection of the city school buildings I find them very satisfactory with the exception of that on Rubidge street South Central, which I have reported to the Provincial Board of Health as unfit.

The number of Contagious and communicable cases is as follows to November 30th 1922):—

Typhoid 1; Diphtheria 71; Measles 5; Chickenpox 21; Smallpox 0; Scarlet Fever 126.

At the present time there is only one case (Scarlet Fever) in the Queen Mary Hospital and only one house under quarantine in this city.

It gives me great pleasure to inform you that there has been much done in way of improvement at the Isolation Hospital.

Two fire escapes having been placed one on the north and one on the South side. The north side has been decorated and painted. The South side will require this next year.

The Chief Provincial Health Officer recommended that this hospital should be connected with the City sewer system. This council now has this matter under consideration and in all probability this will be completed next year.

The number of cases admitted to this hospital 1922 ending Nov. 30, is as follows:

In hospital January 1st—18—as follows:—Scarlet Fever 11; Diphtheria 6; Mixed Infection, 1.

Admitted to November 30th, 1922—100—as follows:—Scarlet 59; Diphtheria, 41.

Out of city cases—6—as follows: Scarlet Fever 3; Diphtheria, 3.

Cases discharged 112
Deaths 5
Case in Hospital now.. 1

The fees paid to the City Treasurer to date amount to $2310.00.

Since a training school has been established in connection with this hospital two of the nurses have graduated.

And Gentlemen, I wish to bring to your notice that many of the Medical Men of this city are giving lectures during the winter months to the nurses, a kindness and consideration which I greatly appreciate.

The Sanitary Inspector's report is enclosed and will speak for itself.

Respectfully submitted,

T. W. H. YOUNG, M.D., M.O.H.

SANITARY INSPECTOR'S REPORT

Dr. T. W. H. Young,
Medical Officer of Health,
City of Peterborough, Ont.,

I m pleased to report sanitary conditions of the City have much improved especially re earth closets which you (as M.O.H.) ordered to be connected with sewers which has been done in many instances. A great number still remain to be connected as there are many who have not complied with the notices given. I still find that most of the people have not proper receptacles for their garbage and do not drain it which gives the men at the incinerator much trouble to keep the fires alight.

The following list of some of the complaints will give you some idea of the work being done by the Sanitary Inspctor.

MUTINY AT SEA OFF ST. JOHN'S

Captain Shoots Down Three of His Fighting Sailors.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 21. — (Canadian Press.) — A disturbance on the deck of the Danish schooner Centaurus, which Captain Rasmussen said was a mutiny, was quelled by the skipper when he shot down three of his fighting sailors. One of the men, Seaman Zorenson, died. The other two wounded men are expected to recover.

The trouble broke out when the little schooner, a 95-ton boat that has been making trips between Denmark and this colony, was entering Harbor Buffet, in Placentia Bay, on the southern coast, Tuesday. The brief despatches from there said that the entire crew of five had turned against the captain.

MADE IT EASY FOR THE YEGGS

A Sign Nailed the Burglars That the Safe of Laura & Mack Was Open

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Dec 21 —(Canadian Press)—Burglars entered the offices of Laura & Mack here prepared to blow the safe, received a pleasant surprise last night. The doors of the safe were closed but unlocked and on a strong box was the sign This safe is open." The yeggs took $101.50 and an automatic pistol from safe and stole the typewriter.

Officers of the company explained that there was seldom much money in the safe and the sign was left on it each night so that yeggs would not blow it and damage it. They say it is cheaper to lose a small amount of money in a safe than to pay out a large sum for repairs after it has been dynamited.

INCIDENT CLOSED

Commenting upon an article that appeared in Tuesday's Examiner, which left the impression that Alderman James Hamilton was mainly responsible for the exclusion of the press at a committee meeting on Monday evening, Alderman Hamilton said yesterday that the incident had no relation to, nor was it the outcome of, any other matter.

This being the case, the article referred to was unnecessary, and is, therefore, willingly withdrawn, which closes the incident.

Society

Lt.-Col. A. P. Miller D.S.O., M.C., and Mrs. Miller, entertained at dinner last night at the Empress Hotel in honour of Major-General Elmsley, C.B., C.M.G., of Kingston.

Mrs. Giles Stone, Bethune street, has returned home from Richmond Hill, where she has been staying with her daughter, Mrs. Madeleine Hick, since the death of the latter's husband, Reginald Hick. Mrs. Hick's friends will be glad to hear that she has somewhat recovered from the shock her husband's sudden death caused her.

Mrs. Wallace Madill, of Toronto, has returned to the city after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. F. McBain, Rubidge street.

Dr. E. S. Ryerson of Toronto will address the Medical Society on Thursday evening in the Public Library.

THE ROMAINE STREET SEWER IS COMPLETED

Plant Being Moved in Readiness For Work on Park Street.

The Romaine street sewer was completed Tuesday morning at nine o'clock and the moving of the construction plant down to the powder magazine at the foot of park street was started. The plant will remain there until needed for the continued construction of the Park street sewer.

The George street pumping station has been dismantled and the motors and equipment stored. This pumping station is not now required ,due to the new Romaine street sewer and thus a great deal of expense will be saved the public.

PRISONERS IN MOUNT JOY TO BE RELEASED

Irish Republicans Sign Allegiance to Free State and Will Get Freedom at Christmas.

LATE DESPATCHES

DUBLIN, Dec. 22. — (Canadian Press).—A large number of Irish Republicans held prisoners in Mount Joy Prison, will, it is understood, be released at Christmas, having signed a declaration of allegiance to the Free State. For the remainder, no holiday parole will be granted.

VICTIMS OF CRIME.

MER ROUGE, La., Dec. 22. — (Canadian Press).—It was reported here this morning that the bodies of the two missing men, believed to have been victims of hooded men last August, had been brought to the surface by fishermen in La Fourche Lake, 12 miles from here. A military detachment in automobiles was immediately despatched to the place.

BERLIN DENIES HAND IN THE LATEST MOVE

Proposed Cook's Tour to Germany May Have Originated in Berlin, Papers Declare—Press Views Proposal With Frank Skepticism.

LONDON, December 22 (Canadian Press). — Considerable caution, amounting sometimes to frank scepticism, is manifested by this morning's newspapers in their discussion the proposal for the United States Commisison to visit Germany.

Some of the papers bring forward the semi-official denials that Britain has received, much less accepted, the proposal, and warn against putting faith in these "American canards."

In quarters where it is admitted as probable that Germany initiated such a proposal, the idea is received with strong suspicion of Teutonic motive.

"It would be most unwise," writes the official editor of the Post, "to allow this constant rumour of American intervention to divert attention from one undoubted fact of the situation, namely that next cash instalment of reparations is due on 15th January, and that it behoves the Allies to come to a definite conclusion in the meantime regarding the course to be adopted, unless Germany previously presents satisfactory proposals."

PETERBORO'S GROWTH DEPENDS LARGELY ON POWER NORTH OF CITY

From Combination of Dams Number 4 and 5, and Raising of Burleigh Falls to Sufficient Height to Drown Out Lovesick Lock, 5200 Horse Power Would Be Available.

The future growth and development of this City to a large extent, depends upon the attitude that the Dominion Government is going to take respecting the Water Powers that lie immediately North of this City.

From the combination of Dams Numbers 4 and 5 under one head and the raising of Burleigh Falls to a sufficient height to drown out Lovesick Lock, it is confidently asserted that at least 5200 horse power can be developed for every hour of every day in the year.

What does the development of 5200 horse power under these conditions mean to the Canadian people? There is available in the City of Peterborough a market for the sale of at least 4600 horse power which now costs this City $100,000 per year.

The Cost of Production.

In order to appreciate the real value to Canada of the development of that quantity of power, it is necessary to consider what is would cost to produce the same power by the use of steam coal. On the basis of the consumption of 1 1-3 pounds of coal per horse power per hour with the cost of steam coal at $6.00 per ton at the border, it means that the Canadian people have to pay to the United States the sum of $182,208, per year to obtain the same power.

It is suggested that the Dominion Government should charge a rental of $10,000 per year to this City in order that that power may be developed or otherwise the Dominion Government will sit as they have done for generations on this water power and see it daily run to waste. Such a wilful waste means a woeful want, and let me say hundreds of honest working people have and are being forced into desperate straits by such wilful waste.

The course that the Dominion Government should take is clear. They should either develop this water power to its full capacity at their own expense and save this Country an annual payment to the United States of $182,208.00 a year or in the alternative they should permit this City to develop these water powers on its own account at a nominal rental of $1.00 per year. It would mean an immense saving to Canada. It means much to this City. It means a double blessing to both.

City a Docile Taxpayer.

So far as the Dominion Government is concerned, this City has been a docile Taxpayer for over fifteen years to the extent of one million dollars a year through the collection of Customs Duties alone. When compared with the amount of revenue, that has been collected from Customs Duties, the real advantages that this City has enjoyed during this last fifteen years amounts to a few miserable crumbs. The time has now come for this City to assert its rights.

To take advantage of the Tourist Traffic that will pass through the Trent waterway it is necessary that the Canal should be completed and that the trip can be taken with as few delays as possible. With that end in view the Dominion Government should reduce the number of lockages that have to be made wherever possible. The immediate demand is that they should substitute one lock at Dams Numbers 4 and 5 instead of two. They should raise Burleigh Falls dam so as to dispense with Lovesick lock and thereby substitute one lock in place of two. Immediate action should be taken by the incoming Council to see that proper representations are made to the Government to carry out these improvements.

A Two-Fold Advantag.

The incidental advantage that this City would derive would be two-fold, namely the opportunity of obtaining cheaper power than we are now obtaining and affording better facilities to attract tourists to this district and incidentally new industries to locate in our midst.

To fight and quit is to play the craven's part which only the craven seeks. To give an instance of fight and win. Mr. T. E. Bradburn, ex-M.P.P. and I worked for over two years and in the face of great discouragement but we finally induced the Provincial and Dominion Governments to adopt a new policy and to adopt and carry out the policy of conserving of the Kawartha Lakes upper waters so that today the whole Trent water power system is 70 per cent more efficient than it was when a man could wade across its waters.

I merely mention this to encourage our public men to greater activity in our City's interest with ever-increasing earnestness from red fervent glow to white electric heat. If each and all were kindled by such a spirit, our City would take its proper place in broadcasting news of plenty instead of news of shortage.

ACTIVITY THE KU KLUX KLAN IS SUSPECTED

Rumored That Secret Order Responsible for Burning of the Basilica at Quebec.

LOSS $1,000,000

MONTREAL, December 22 (Canadian Press). — Flames from the Basilica threatened the cardinal's palace and the Quebec Seminary.

The loss in the church alone is over a million dollars.

Ku Klux Klan activity is strongly suspected.

SECOND IN DISTRICT.

QUEBEC, December 22 (Canadian Press). — The destruction of the Basilica is the second bad fire in sacred edifices in this district this year, the great shrine at Ste. Anne De Beaupre being destroyed early last summer, while most of the churches in this locality hav been destroyed by fire during the past ten years.

Citizens of Quebec worked heroically last night in trying with the firemen to save the church or some of its contents.

Men were to be seen rushing into the blazing pile and returning with the sacred vestments and ornaments.

The danger of working near the fire was increased by the avalanches of snow and ice, released by the heat, which fell off the roof.

Several firemen had narrow escapes while working on the roof when the snow gave way. They were, however, prevented from falling into the street by an iron railing.

A feature of the fire was the fall into the street of the great tower containing the chime of bells.

Looking For Suspect.

QUEBEC, Dec. 22. — (Canadian Press.) —Monsignor Laflamme has made an anonuncement in the following statement, which he gave the press.

"At 11:20 last evening, less than an hour before the discovery of the fire, a man, whose description has been supplied to us, was seen coming out of the church by Edgar Champoux, advocate, who communicated this information to us. It must be remembered that our caretaker had just made his tour of the interior of the building at the time and had closed all doors. At 10:30 he went to the furnace and found everything all right. It is hardly creditable than in less than an hour from that time the fire would have developed to the extent it did. There are several doors which lock automatically from the inside, and it would thus be easy for a man to be in the church and leave it any time. This information we have given to the police, who are investigating.

His Lorship Bishop Farthing, of the Anglican Dioecese of Quebec, and Rev. George Adam, chairman of the Protestant Ministerial Association of Montreal, have wired Cardinal Begin, expressing deep sorrow at the destruction of the sacred edifice.

Announcement that evidence which may indicate that the fire which destroyed the basilica here this morning was started by an incendiary has been placed in the hands of the police for investigation was made this afternoon by Monsignor Laflamme, Cure of the Cathedral.

It is also stated that a choir boy who went up into one of the church galleries yesterday evening to get an object he had forgotten, saw a man

THE WEATHER

Lowest temperature last night, 22 degrees; at noon 30 degrees — mild for this time of year. A year ago to-day it was 8 below zero. Yesterday I mentioned as an item of interest that it was the shortest day of the year. A legal gentleman has asked me if I was n.. in error and if the 22nd was not the shortest. He is right, and I was wrong. I had accepted the general belief that Dec. 21st was the shortest day. I find it usually comes on the 22nd, and sometimes on the 23rd. Popular beliefs are not always to be depended upon. The fable (and it is a fable) about the ostrich hiding its head in the sand on the approach of danger, dates from Bible times, and is almost universally believed. Naturalists and hunters who have investigated the habits of the ostrich, say that the bird has been grossly maligned, and that it never does act in the foolish manner ascribed to it. — W. P.

HER MARRIED LIFE WAS 29 STORMY DAYS

Pretty Canadian Bride Bares Tragedy in Which a 50-Years-Old Husband Figures.

DIVORCE ACTION

DETROIT, December 22. — From out of the realm of the mysterious, the weird, the trackless paths of the occult, strangely mingled with the jazziest plumes of to-day comes the story of Albert W. Ryerson and his wife, Mazie, central figures in a divorce action filed by the wife. Turbaned Hindus, echoes of long dead and gone love cults, 12 cylinder motors, wine, an artists' Bohemia, reincarnation, hypnotism, liquor parties—all are woven into the fantastic pattern of the tale and the most jaded of novel readers will find a filip for their imagination, while mere writers of melodramatic movie thrillers must turn pale with sheer envy.

The stories differ so radically as told by the pretty and stormy eyed young wife—she is only 18—and by the man of past 50, that to gain even a semblance of smoothness one is forced to accept the story of one or the other as correct, Either abound with thrills, mystery, threats, erotic love affairs, charges and counter charges. In respect to ancient chivalry the lady may tell hers first.

A Lady of Lines.

Picture Mrs. Ryerson then as being a trifle below medium height, brown eyed and—her profession is that of artists' model—a young lady of "lines." She talks vivaciously and with a careless disregard of what the world may think of what she thinks of the man who is still her husband.

She was born she says in Windsor and up to the time she was 15, led a normal little girl life. Her mother died, her father re-married, and Miss Mazie was pitchforked into life with a suddenness and completeness that may explain somes of the things that followed. She took to the profession of dancing. From dancing she wandered into posing, with side excursions into more prosaic fields.

A year ago she went downtown with a girl friend. The girl friend asked her to stop at the office of a friend. The friend turned out to be Ryerson. The girl wife says that Ryerson differing from her former acquaintances, did not confine his first moments to praise her beauty, but rather engaged her in conversation touching what at that time she believed to be "deep subjects," the occult, fate, religion, temperament, psychology.

The subtle compliment worked well, she says, and she became interested in the man "old enough to be her father." She asserted that he urged that she and her friend come to his home and live, and declared that he would take out adoption papers and make her his daughter, and heiress. He saw and talked to her father, she says, and the arrangement was entered into.

Enter the Hindu.

The same day she was introduced to Maneck Anglesaria, his secretary, a Hindu. And now listen to Mrs. Ryerson.

"I had never met a Hindu, and I had known them only in story and play. I was a young girl and he interested me, not as a prospective friend but only as a representative of a romantic race. His attitude towards me was that of a friend, of an employee. It always remained so, unless in time he came to pity me in my unhappiness and feel toward me as a protecting brother.

"Why we even had our pictures taken together, a bit of girlish impulsiveness that a moment's thought would have prevented. The photographer grouped us and as I sat on the arm of the chair, the only normal pose was to rest my arm on the back of the chair, and only the most evil minded of men could interpret the picture as anything else.

"As time passed, he continued to

TAYLOR, TURNER AND GAINEY NOMINEES FOR THE MAYORALTY, A. G. GRIER OPPOSES ROBT. HICKS

THREE NOMINEES FOR MAYOR

The municipal nominations this morning produced the following prospective candidates:

FOR MAYOR

JOHN JAMES TURNER — Proposed by D. F. Drummond and J. Mendell Greene.

WILLIAM HENRY TAYLOR — Proposed by George H. Duncan and George H. Savigny.

MICHAEL HENRY GAINEY — Proposed by Thomas Tooms and S. Houlihan.

FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION.

ROBERT HICKS—Proposed by W. J. Oke and G. H. Giroux.

ARTHUR GORDON GRIER — Proposed by Roland Denne and C. B. Coones.

FOR BOARD OF EDUCATION.

JOHN A. McKONE — Proposed by G. L. Hay and E. S. Martin.

J. MENDELL GREENE — Proposed by Roland Denne and G. H. Savigny.

ALBERT ALLEN FOWLER — Proposed by Wm. Scott and S. Taylor.

ROLAND DENNE — Proposed by G. H. Savigny and G. H. Duncan.

ALEXANDER DICK — Proposed by A. A. McIntyre and Thomas Tooms, M.L.A.

Alex. Dick Nominated With Old Members of Board of Education—Mr. Hicks Reviews His Record as Utilities Commissioner—Proceedings Were Tranquil.

OTHER SPEECHES

The municipal nominations this morning indicated a public desire for a contest all along the civic front. Three names were entered in the Mayoralty list, two for the Utilities Commission and five for the Board of Education.

As in Toronto, where Mayor Maguire faces a fight at the end of his first year, so Mayor Taylor apparently will have opposition when the candidates go to the polls. He was proposed this morning, together with J. J. Turner, who has been in the field for several weeks, and Ald. Gainey, who has been receiving all kinds of advice while keeping his own counsel and at the same time his intentions to himself.

Mr. Robert Hicks, the veteran chairman of the Utilities Commission, whose term is expiring this year, is encountered by A. G. Grier, an engineer in the employ of the C.G.E. Company, and for the Board of Education Mr. Alex. Dick is proposed with the four old members, Messrs. J. A. McKone, R. Denne, A. A. Fowler and J. M. Greene. Four of the five are to be elected.

After the nominations were closed at 11 o'clock this morning, City Clerk Armstrong was appointed chairman of the customary meeting of ratepayers to hear the addresses of the aspirants for office. The proceedings followed the usual order, but seemed quieter than usual. Nominations for Aldermen will be received to-night.

Mayoralty Candidates.

Called upon in the sequence of nomination, Mr. Turner simply thanked his mover and seconder and said that the ratepayers would probably be more interested in Mayor Taylor's review of the Council's accomplishments this year.

Mayor Taylor was almost as brief in his remarks. The Council had endeavored to carry on the city's business this year without

THIS IS SHORTEST DAY OF THE YEAR

Sun Reached its Most Southern Point at 8.57

Most of us feel that winter sets in when the mercury takes its first decided drop below the freezing point, when the first snow flies. We feel that it is well on its way by Christmas time. But the astronomer figures it out quite differently.

Winter begins in the northern hemisphere when the sun reaches its greatest southern declination, or, in other words, its greatest distance south of the equator. This time does not vary from year to year by more than a few hours, and it falls generally on December 22 or 23. This year the sun reached its most southern point and winter began to-day at 8.57 a.m., central standard time. After that moment had passed the sun turned imperceptibly northward. Spring will begin when it crosses the equator once more in March.

The Shortest Day.

The day on which winter begins is also the shortest day of the year. The sun rises on this day at the farthest point south of east, sets at the farthest point south of west and crosses the meridian at its lowest altitude above the south point of the horizon. Its diurnal arc, therefore, which is the path that it traces across the heavens from its rising to its setting is on this day the shortest for the year. The sun's altitude above the horizon at noon on this day for any latitude is equal to ninety degrees less the latitude of the place less twenty-three and a half degrees. In forty degrees north latitude, for example, the altitude of the sun at noon on this day is twenty-six and a half degrees which is its lowest altitude for any day of the year.

Were we at the Arctic circle on this day we should see the sun at the south point of the horizon at noon, but for the remainder of the day it would be below the horizon. Refraction would elevate it, however, and give a very brief period of sunlight, that would otherwise be lacking. There would be a long twilight period as the sun skirted along the southern horizon at midday just below the range of vision.

Summer in the South.

The beginning of winter in the northern hemisphere is also the beginning of summer in the southern hemisphere, and on this day the sun passes through the zenith or directly overhead in 23½ degrees south latitude, and at the south pole makes a complete circuit of the heavens in twenty-four hours at a practically unvarying altitude of twenty-three and a half degrees above the horizon. After this date it begins to wend its way slowly and almost imperceptibly downward along a spiral curve toward the horizon, which it reaches at the beginning of spring in March.

After the beginning of winter in our mid-northern latitudes the sun's diurnal arc increases in length gradually as the sun turns northward. The sun rises each day a little farther to the north, crosses the meridian at a little higher altitude and sets a little farther to the north. At the beginning of spring in March when it crosses the equator, it will rise due east and set due west, and day and night will be equal in length.

ONLY $1,523.05 FOR NEW BOOKS

An Item From the City Auditor's 1920 Report of the Public Library — Modest Demand From this Public Utility.

Citizens who enjoy the advantage of the Public Library would probably be surprised to learn that the expenditure for books last year was $1523.05, as shown in the city auditor's report. This was a slight increase over the $1404.35 spent in the previous year. Magazines and other periodicals for the reading department amount to an additional $332, but the attention of the library patron perusing the auditor's statement would be naturally arrested by what appears to be a comparatively small outlay for new books.

The lists of new publications that are put into circulation from time to time probably leave a satisfactory impression upon those who scan them in the columns of the Examiner, and it may be concluded that the shelves are left well stocked and replenished. But any person who reads the book reviews in the English, American and Canadian papers that have special literary departments realizes that the lists of local purchases for the Public Library indicate many omissions. It is in fact a rather gratifying discovery that the library is so well maintained on the small allowance. One of the principal problems and worries of the librarian and the library board must be the elimination and selection of new issues to trim the expenditure to the appropriation, while at the same time maintaining the very commendable literary standard of the library, its comprehensiveness of subjects and the general efficiency of the service that is given to the public free, that is if book holders do not incur the penalty of fines.

And incidentally the fines in 1920 ran up a total of $490.86 in the aggregate receipts of $9703.81 of which $8,000 was the city's grant, $260 was received from the government, $627.26 interest on debentures and $325.69 was a forwarded credit balance.

The big item in the payments column was $5,575 for salaries, new books came next, furniture and re-

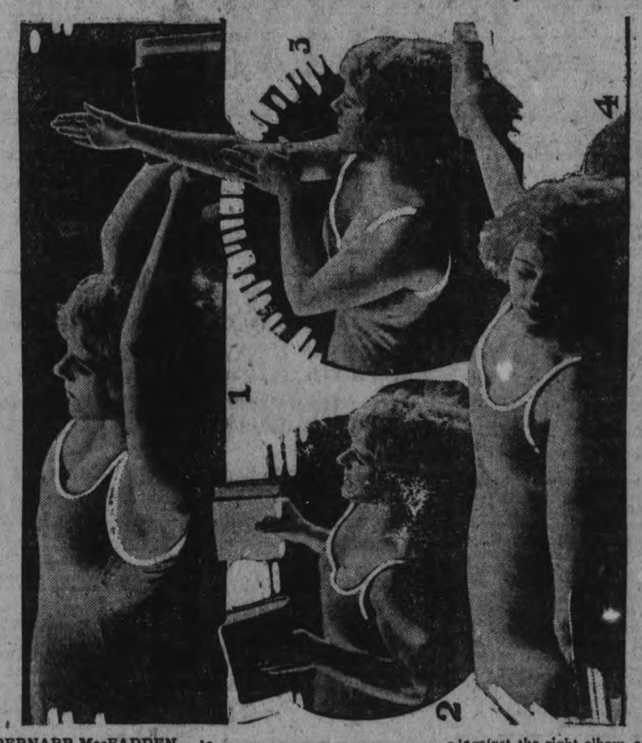
How Women Can Gain Grace of Bodies



By BERNARR MacFADDEN

Beautiful womanhood is impossible without a well-developed, symmetrically formed bust and chest.

This particular area of a woman's body indicates her vital condition. A strong chest in nearly every instance insures a heart that is vigorous and capable of satisfactory functioning and well-developed lungs that are in turn responsible for a clear, smooth, healthy skin. A flat, under-developed bust, or an over-flat one is equally undesirable and unlovely.

The following exercises will make a decided improvement in the contour of your chest and bust, and will bring it to the point of perfection nature intended it to attain.

First Exercise

For exercise one, lie flat on a couch and hold two books over the head in the position shown in the picture, keeping the elbows rigid. Bring the books immediately over the head. Return and repeat until tired.

Then hold the books in the hand as shown in figure two. Raise them straight up overhead. Return and repeat until tired.

With the left hand firmly placed against the right elbow, as in figure three, bring the right arm toward the left, the left are resisting the motion. Return and repeat. Then take the same exercise with the position of the arms reversed.

For exercise four, hold the books in each hand, the hands spread apart as shown, with the elbows rigid. Bring the arms upward, touching the books together immediately over the head. Return and repeat until tired.

Then take the same position as in figure three, except that you place the left hand against the right wrist, instead of the elbow. Press backward slightly at the same time, bringing the right arm, with elbows rigid, upward to a position immediately over the chest. When returning bring the arm as far back as possible. Repeat the exercise until fatigued. Take the same exercise with the position of the arms reversed.

BERNARR MacFADDEN, well-known writer on and teacher of physical culture, urges the women of this generation to develop their bodies to the point of beauty and symmetry of which they are capable. In his article, which follows, he tells how to gain health as well as beauty by building up the chest and bust.—Editor.

USE OF FUR.

Hats, neckpieces, bags, scarfs, sahes and sofa pillows are being made of fur this season. Yet many of the loveliest evening wraps are entirely free from it.

The New Zealand Government has came to the conclusion that many parental objections to the marriage of their daughters on account of age are unreasonable. Since early marriages are advocated by that State, the Government has decreed that if a girl under twenty-one years of age can't get her parents' consent to her marriage, she can cite her father or mother before the supreme court to give reasons for the withholding of consent.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER.

MINEILA, N.Y., Dec. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Hazel Hirsh, charged with shooting her husband after a party last summer at the home of Miss Reine Davies, motion picture actress, last night was acquitted by a jury, which accepted her defence that Hirsh was shot accidentally when she tried to prevent him from committing suicide.

Crime is neuter, but acquittal is feminine.

READY-MADE GIFTS SEEN IN PROFUSION

Making of Preesnt is Restricted By Scarcity of Time.

Through lack of time it is not always possible to make all the gifts one wishes to give. This is a busy season for the home folk. There are in the stores many things which will be appreciated for personal wear or home comfort; for the kitchen a carving set, a wear-ever aluminum double boiler or pot, pyrex dishes, casseroles, a meat chopper, crumb tray, one of the modern dustpans, which requires no stooping, a self-wringing mop, o'cedar mop, a dumb waiter, potato ricer, toaster, wringer, etc.

For the dining room, linens for the table, the sideboard or buffet; china, silverware, pictures, a pretty plant; jardinieres and jardiniere stand; for the living room, an easy chair, footstool, cushions, a reading lamp, interesting books; and, of course, if an expensive present is in mind, a book case would be an excellent one to the home where there is not already one, or even one section. The sectional book cases are a wise investment, as additional sections may be purchased as required by the owner.

Something to wear is always acceptable, and mother would surely appreciate a warm kimona, house or bedroom slippers, a cosy muffler, gloves; dad, too, might like a pair of slippers, a silk or woollen muffler, a pair of fur-lined gloves, a knitted vest or sweater; and for the young girl or boy there is a host of things, skates, toboggans, skis, tams, and all the woollen comforts that accompany the sporting outfit; hockeys, sleighs, kodaks, fountain pens, etc.

Of course, with the little ones Christmas giving is no problem, in so far as knowing what they would appreciate. They have handed out suggestions long ago, and even Santa Claus knows what they want.

SCULPTOR DIES.

BOSTON, Dec. 22. — (Canadian Press).—Alexander Doyle, sculptor, died here yesterday at the age of 65. Since his retirement in 1911 he had made his home at Dedham, where he completed a statue of President Lincoln, his last work.

UNITED STATES WILL BE ASKED TO RENDER AID

Plan Is Advanced For U.S. Commission to Decide How Much Germany Should Pay.

UNDER DISCUSSION.

WASHINGTON, December 22 (Canadian Press). — A plan under which a United States commission would determine how much Germany should be required to pay the Allies in reparations has emerged from the effort to find a way for extending American aid toward the solution of the economic troubles of Europe.

Although discussions of the proposal have been kept thus far outside the formal channels of diplomacy, the exchange of views has developed a thorough understanding in authoritative circles, that the United States, Great Britain, and Germany all are willing to assent to the creation of such a commission.

Th plan now is before Premier Poincare of France, and he is expected to make a decision after he has concluded a series of conferences with industrial leaders of his own country and of Germany. It is assumed that it will be communicated later to all the nations interested in reparations payments.

Officials of the Washington Government, who from the beginning of the present discussions, have been unwilling to do more than hint that a way was being sought to render aid toward a European settlement, refused yesterday to discuss the plan for a United States commission. Secretary Hughes, however, did issue a statement saying that the "government" had presented no proposal on the subject.

The plan for an American commission first was disclosed early yesterday in an Associated Press despatch from London, where the proposal has been actively under discussion. The despatch credited the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with having first laid the suggestion before Secretary Hughes, and it was stated here yesterday that much of the actual discussion which has taken place since that time has been conducted on behalf of United States industry by officials of the Chamber.

HOW GOES THE CHRISTMAS SHOPPING?

Have you finished yet? No, of course, not; it can't be done in a minute. But you are getting there. You have something for every one down to a squeaking doll for Baby. Choosing littler Sonny's gift took the most time; you had made up your mind to get him a No. 1 set of Meccano, but decided at the last minute that he was not old enough as yet. Next year that is what you will buy him though. Next year!!! What guarantee have you that you can or will be able to buy it? How if you became disabled during the year? What if you are not here—will his Mother be able to buy it?

How would you like in any case to guarantee Santa's visit to your home and family next Christmas and the Christmas's to come? A Confederation Life Policy will assist you to do it. Look down the list of a few of them and see if there is not one or more which will help you do this:

A WAGE OR SALARY POLICY—Will guarantee your wages or salary upon attaining a certain age or pay your family in case of death.

AN EDUCATIONAL POLICY—Guarantees an education for your boy or girl.

A MORTAGE POLICY—Protects your home or farm. Pay off the mortage in case of death or retire it at a definite time.

A CAPITAL POLICY—Provides money to commence business for yourself or strengthens your present business.

A BUSINESS POLICY—Will protect your business investments, strengthen your credit, retire a silent partner or buys out a partner's interest.

A THRIFT POLICY—Is systematic saving plan with protection combined.

A SUCCESSION DUTIES POLICY—Pays your succession duty and keeps your estate intact.

A MONTHLY INCOME—Guarantees a monthly income to your wife and family for ten, fifteen or twenty years or for life. It will protect their means of support from unscrupulous stock sellers.

Further information regarding any one or more of these policies will be furnished free upon request.

The Confederation Life Association desires to wish its numerous policy-holders throughout the district the Compliments of the Season.

We will forward you one of our attractive Calenders upon request.

Saskatoon Utilities Show Large Profit

SASKATOON, Dec. 22.— (Canadian Press.) — Saskatoon's public utilities show how a net profit of between $55,000 and $60,000 for the year closing December 31, according to an estimate made yesterday morning by City Commissioner Andrew Leslie. All utilities save the street railway department show a surplus. It is hoped that the end of the year will show the bank loan reduced by $237,000. Of this $118,750 was done by the sale of debentures and the rest represents the city's stride toward placing its financial affairs on a cash basis.

IRRIGATION HAS GREAT FUTURE

Alberta Will Soon Be Raising Vegetables Which Now Must Be Imported —To Raise Sugar Beets.

LETHBRIDGE, Dec. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, declared at the irrigation conference in session here that the time would come soon when the irrigated districts of Alberta ought to raise all the corn, peas and other vegetables for canning that are now being imported into the province. He saw the possibility for a great future in sugar beet growing and the sugar industry as soon as irrigation farming was stabilized and this branch of production would be taken up with some assurance that the farmers would support it.

The convention drew up in detail the methods which will be recommended to farmers undertaking irrigation next year for the first time and rules will be laid down for preparation of land, construction of ditches, the kind of crops recommended and the need of forage crops for the feeding of dairying and beef cattle. It was agreed that the first year's crop will be devoted largely to grain, but alfalfa will be seeded commencing next spring and increasing each year so that along with other forage and root crops wheat growing will practically cease as a wet farmer's industry.

JUDGMENT WAS FOR ONLY $100

Inadvertent Mistake in Heading and Lead to Griffith Decision.

In the publication on December 5th of the judgment against Wm. E. Griffith, the Examiner in the heading and introduction to Judge Huycke's written review and decision, was in error in saying that judgment was for $200 and that Mr. Griffith was ordered to make restitution in that amount. On the following day a correction was made saying that the award in favour of the County Council was $100. This mistake arose out of a misinterpretation of the judgment in the rush of preparing the copy for publication, and the Examiner regrets that any embarrassment was caused Mr. Griffith thereby. The $100 mentioned in the award has been paid into court by Mr. Griffith and in reference to it Judge Huycke said:

"The money was given to the defendant as a commissioner to expend for certain purposes; this he did not do and the purpose being unfulfilled, and the gift of the township incomplete, the plaintiff county is entitled to recover back the money, which to all intents and purposes the defendant had converted to his own use. The rest of the money has all been sufficiently accounted for with the exception of this $100.

Judgment will therefore be entered for the plaintiffe against the defendant for $100 and costs of action. The money in court will be paid out to the county treasurer or his solicitor, and he applied on this judgment."

From the repetition of the amcunt $100 the error arose that the judgment was for $200 instead of $100, and although the Examiner made immediate and voluntary correction it regrets that retraction of an inadvertent mistake did not meet with the satisfaction of ex-Warden Griffith.

V.C. IN COMMAND OF THE SOUTHERN ARMY

LONDON, December 22 (Canadian Press). — Lieut.-General Sir Walter Norris Congreve, V.C., has been appointed Chief of the Southern Command of the Army, succeeding Lieut.-General Sir G. M. Harper, who was killed last week in a motor car accident.

General Congreve earned the Victoria Cross in the South African War by rescuing, along with Lord Roberts' son, the British guns at Colenso. He commanded the 7th Corps in France in the Great War, and latterly has commanded the Egyptian Expeditionary Force.

FIRE BUG AT WORK.

WINNIPEG, December 22 (Canadian Press). — Working on the theory that a fire bug is at work, Provincial Police and fire officials are conducting an investigation into the fourth mysterious fire in the last six weeks at the Knowles Home for Boys, East Kildonan, near this city.

The fourth fire was discovered in a heap of rubbish under the main stairway by the night watchman on Wednesday night. All the fires were discovered in time to prevent any serious damage.

FRANCE NO LONGER FORCED TO WAIT ON ACTION OF AMERICA

President Poincare Says France is Ready to Go Ahead With Reparations Problems.

DEBTS PAYMENT.

PARIS, December 22 (Canadian Press). — France is no longer "forced to wait upon America for a solution of the Inter-Allied European debts, which are closely bound up with the question of reparations," Premier Poincare told the Senate yesterday in a re-statement of the country's position.

The inter-Allied debts, he said, would be discussed at the resumption of the Premier's Conference here on 2nd January. France had found a freer field in this respect than before, as she no longer met with a flat refusal from her Allies to discuss the question. It was for this reason that she was no longer forced to await action by the United States for a solution.

The Premier began his declaration after a question by Senator Japy, who said the occupation of the Ruhr District of Germany as a guarantee for payment of reparations would be useless, as it would be sufficient merely to prevent anything leaving the Ruhr without the permission of the Allies.

M. Poincare asserted that Germany had persevered in her faults, and had obstinately continued to abuse her opportunities; the industrial magnates had become wealthy at the expense of the nation.

Germany had systematically ruined herself to escape the payment of reparations. She had failed to fulfill her engagements and the schedule of payments agreed upon in May, 1921, had become a dead letter.

"We cannot continue to leave our fellow-citizens without sufficient shelter," exclaimed the Premier, raising his voice. "The work ordered ought to be continued and finished, and for this Germany must pay us. She has State property which the Versailles Treaty sanctions being allotted for reparations under an article which forbids her to send any gold from the country without the authorisation of the Reparations Commission. But this article she has not respected."

M. Poincare treated the idea that France desired to stifle Germany as ridiculous calumny. "We have no wish to ruin Germany," he said; "but we are not willing that sheltered to-day behind her apparent poverty, she may jeer at our real poverty in a few years' time. He added that France welcomed the idea of Germany raising loans, internal or external, "but it is desirable for Germany to pay morsels of her capital instead of crumbs or annuities."

"This," he continued, "does not mean to say that payment of reparations should be put in the hands of bankers. It ought to be regulated by the Governments interested, aided by the Reparations Commission. This question will be treated with on 2nd January."

M. Poincare recalled that war expenses were left to the belligerents. France's amounting to 145,000,000,000 francs. But, he added, "reparations were a privileged debt, and therefore would be inadmissible if France were summoned to pay her debts to Britain before receiving payment for the damages she has suffered."

The Premier closed with a reference to the feeling of mutual confidence which marked the recent London conference of the Premiers.

"If divergencies of view exist," he said, "we shall watch to see that they are never transformed into disagreements."

M. Ribot, former Premier, said he would view with a certain uneasiness France entering the Ruhr alone, but there were other guarantees besides the Ruhr. "I have named none — The Ruhr no more than any other," interrupted M. Poincare.

The discussion ended by the Senate giving a vote of confidence in the Government by a show of hands.

Danish Families to Come to Canada

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 22.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—On account of the great unemployment in Denmark 200 families, all farmers, of the northern part of Jutland intend to emigrate to Canada. It is stated that the Canadian Government has promised to place land and facilities for farming at their disposal. Representatives of the emigrants have asked the Danish Government for financial help to make the voyage to the Dominion, but they have not yet had an answer to their request.

STATION RAZED IN CHICAGO FIRE

Crossed Wires Believed to Have Started Blaze That Made Eight Railroads Homeless in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.— (Canadian Press.)— Fire, starting a few minutes before four o'clock yesterday afternoon, destroyed the Dearbourn street railroad station, formerly known as the Polk Street Depot, and left eight railroads homeless in Chicago.

The building, erected in 1884, was valued at $300,000, but will cost more than $1,000,000 to replace, it was said.

Within a little more than an hour after the traffic policeman saw smoke issuing from the roof, the flames swept through the 38-year-old brick and wood structure and left only a smoke-blackened brick behind.

Hundreds of passengers and 200 men and women clerks fled to safety. Postal clerks with motor trucks rescued 150 tons of holiday mail and railroad employes saved all passenger cars in the train sheds.

The station was owned by the Chicago and Western Indiana Railroad and was used by trains of that line, and the Santa Fe, Monon, Erie, Chesapeake and Ohio, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Wabash and Canadian Grand Trunk.

Crossed wires are believed to have started the fire.

NEW CHURCH FOR CAMBORNE SOON

Present Building is Inadequate For the Attendance.

CAMBORNE, Dec. 27.—(Special). — It is probable that the Methodist congregation at Zion on this circuit will erect a new building in the near future. The present church is a very old one and has served a good purpose in the community. There are fifty families attending this church at the present time and the capacity is being taxed about up to its limit.

Winter School

The Camborne Epworth League as decided to send five delegates to the Bay of Quinte Winter School which is to be held in Cobourg in January.

The Tuxis Boys will be represented also, it is reported.

Tugs to the Rescue Of Ice Bound Boats

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 22.—(Canadan Press.)—The tugs Harding and Oregon of the Great Lakes Towing Company left Sandwich, Ont., yesterday afternoon to go to the rescue of the three steamers held in the ice off the Canadian shore of Lake Erie at the mouth of the Detroit river. The vessels are the City of Bangor, the C. B. Nienaber and the Philip Minch.

Reports from Kingsville, Ont., on Wednesday night that a large steamer was in distress three miles from Colchester, were found yesterday to relate to the Minch. It was at first thought the Minch might have gone aground on an arm of Colchester Reef, but it was learned yesterday that she has plenty of water under her.

HE MADE ONE SPEECH.

LONDON, (By mail to The United Press).—During his campaign in connection with the general election, Harold Stranger, Independent Liberla candidate for Newbury, offered to give $25 to a local charity if any member of his audience could prove that General Brown, the Conservative M.P. in the last parliament, had ever spoken in the house. A man in the audience rose and declared that General Brown once said: "It's stuffy in here; please open the window." Mr. Stranger paid up. Incidentally, Gen. Brown was re-elected.

Authorities at Manchester Get But Scant Thanks For Their Efforts to Aid Unemployed Hikers.

SOME NOT SOBER.

LONDON, Dec. 22. — Canadian Press Cable.)—Some curious revelations concerning the sojourn in Manchester of the Scottish unemployed hikers who recently tramped to London, are forthcoming.

Believing that they were unfortunate men out of work and in need of food the poor law authorities of Manchester accorded them special treatment but in some cases received scant thanks for their efforts. Some of the men from Alexandria, Dumbartonshire were so contemptuous of the fare provided that they left untouched a breakfast of porridge, fresh milk, bread and margarine.

Some of the Glasgow hikers were late in getting to bed and one who

THE PARK BY-LAW.

In his illuminative letter to the Examiner last evening endorsing the Armour's Hill Park by-law, Dr. E. E. Harvey, Chairman of the City Planning Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has set forth the desirability of the securing of this property so eloquently that any doubt in the minds of the ratepayers in regard to this project must have been dissipated.

Of especial importance is Dr. Harvey's analysis of the cost of the undertaking.

There are citizens who declare this is no time for spending money, who stand out for rigid economy on the part of the city.

In the main they are right; it is time for a halt in civic expenditures.

But there is no sense in carrying out such a policy to a degree that is absurd.

Here is a proposition that would cost the average taxpayer on an assessment of $3,000 only, 3.6 cents a year, or a total of $1.08 for the thirty years necessary to finance the deal.

Citizens who would not undertake an obligation of spending a dollar in thirty annual payments to secure a magnificent asset such as Armour's Hill can be made are surely not plentiful in Peterborough.

The proposition should be viewed not as an undertaking that involves the spending of $3000, but rather as one that provides Peterborough with a park located on what Dr. Harvey declares can be made "a mount of wondrous beauty."

THE COAL HOARDERS.

There are evidences that the coal emergency is being aggravated by the selfishness or thoughtlessness of citizens who, although they have sufficient reserves of fuel for a month or even longer, are constantly endeavoring to add to their supply whenever a fresh shipment of coal is received.

Such people forget or are careless of the fact that hundreds of citizens are without coal, or in danger of being without any in a day or two.

The coal hoarders who attempt to secure more fuel at the expense of other citizens who are without coal, are an element that should be dealt with.

Fortunately the majority of dealers are playing fair with the public in this respect.

They are limiting the amount supplied to any one customer and are careful to inquire as to the condition of the applicant's coal bin before accepting the order.

It may be necessary to make this rationing generally if the situation does not improve.

In the meanwhile those citizens who have fuel enough on hand to leave them without worry just now, should do their share in relieving an emergency by remaining away from the coal dealers and giving less fortunate people an opportunity to secure a much needed supply of coal.

There need be little suffering if the Golden rule be followed by the public generally.

THE MAKING OF A PREMIER.

A most interesting and valuable contribution toward the list of Canadian non-fiction books is "The Making of a Premier," a fascinating study of the life and personality of the Right Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, by Mr. Owen E. McGillicuddy, and just published by the Musson Book Company.

The career of Canada's premier contains splendid material for a work of this kind.

Young as he is—his 48th birthday was celebrated only this week—Mr. King had a colourful life.

The author of "The Making of a Premier" dubs him a seeker after facts"—a particularly happy description, for since his earliest manhood he has devoted himself to a study of the problems by which humanity is particularly affected.

Mr. McGillicuddy has wisely dwelt at some length upon this feature of the Premier's life and the readers will follow his development of the subject with keen interest.

The volume is not long, only ninety-one pages in all, and the author has shown splendid judgment in so arranging and setting forth his facts that the most striking incidents in the career of Right Hon. Mr. King are included.

The story of his early life, his interest in economics and sociology, his acceptance of the position of Deputy-Minister of Labour, his promotion to the head of that department, his work with the Rockfeller Foundation, his book, "Industry and Humanity", his choice as leader of the Liberal party and his elevation to the premiership, form the principal topics in Mr. McGilliardy's study of Canada's premier.

"The Making of a Premier" promises to be widely read by Canadians.

It is an excellent bit of biography, presented in a form that is entirely attractive.

MISSING.

How easily the great war is forgotten but how tragically it comes back to us, even in the form of dry statistes, says Barron's. Great Britain ascertained loss by death during the war, excluding the colonial troops and taking only those of the British Islands, was little short of a million men. But there was another loss which even as late as September 30, 1919, a year after the war, had not been definitely ascertained. This was in the casualty item of "Missing." At that time there were 9362 officers and 244,814 men or non-commissioned officers included under that caption. How considerable such a loss is may be realized from the fact that four years after the Armistice 4147 officers and 95,728 men, or a total just 132 short of 100,000, are still missing and have to be written off the national books forever.

When a great shell bursts it blows its victims to unrecognizable fragments. Soldiers carried indentification tags, but these were continually lost or destroyed, and it says something for the industry of those entrusted with the task that they cleared up the mystery in regard to about 60 per cent. of the missing soldiers. There is a tragedy and even a romance attached to each of these hundred thousand men. We hear of the prominent examples, as for instance the son of Rudyard Kipling, a subaltern officer is one of the guard regiments of whom nothing has ever been heard although the most lavish expenditures for traces were made. But all the others had relatives and friends. They were equally dear to somebody. How easily we forget the horrors of the war.

It is the function of this column to trace more directly the financial loss of the irreparable draft upon manhood rather than the pitiful and pathetic stories implicit in these tragic figures! What might not have been our own fate if the blessing of Providence had not situated us so far from the scene of conflict? How lightly we talk of the mere debts incurred by the war and fail to think how paltry those billions are compared with the enduring misery entailed?

THE POSITION OF THE FARMER.

A conference to consider the state of agriculture in the Western provinces and to devise measures for its betterment is offered by the Edmonton Journal as the first step in finding a solution to a problem that directly affects practically every Canadian.

Conditions are not as they should be with the Western farmer.

He has to contend with many disadvantages and handicaps that are holding him away from prosperity and success.

As the Journal puts it in pointing out that the Canadian farmers are better off than those of any other country, "this does not alter the fact that they are having a very bad time of it and that the general interest demands that everything possible should be done to improve conditions for them."

It must be recognized that this is not purely a Western problem.

We in the East have a clean cut responsibility toward our fellow Canadian in the West.

Our prosperity depends to a great extent upon their prosperity.

The industries of the East look to the people of the Western provinces for a large part of their market, for the industrial establishments of Canada began their forward move with the settlement of the prairie provinces.

Recognizing the truth of the Journal's statement that the country can make no substantial progress with agriculture in a state of discouragement, the Examiner feels that the following quotation from the Journal's article should be of great interest to its readers:

"While recognizing that we are largely in the grip of worldwide economic forces, and that the chief need of the moment for Canadian as for people everywhere, is to have the work of after the war readjustment speeded up, we ought to be able to accomplish much on our own initiative, which will put western agriculture on a better basis. The chief responsibility lies with the government at Ottawa. Why should it not summon immediately a conference at which all the interests of the dominion would be represented for the purpose of considering the state of western agriculture and devising measures for its betterment? If this were summoned without delay, it could make recommendations on which parliament, which will meet at a later date than usual could act.

Those who believe that the establishment of a wheat board would be of great benefit and those who are opposed to this move could be brought face to face and that question be thoroughly threshed out. Messrs. Stewart and Riddell could be asked to make it clear why they did not think the plan of last year could be made effective and why accordingly they refused to undertake to direct it. President Wood of the U.F.O. could throw light on his refusal to head the board while at the same time continuing his advocacy of the idea.

The great bulk of citizens, both those who are farmers and those who are not, must be anxious to see grain marketing conditions improved, so that the farmer will obtain the maximum advantage from the sale of his product. Every avenue that might lead to this result should be explored.

Such a conference might force a thorough investigation of the present grain system such as was begun by the Hyndman commission. The present government virtually pledged itself to resume this, only to announce later that it had decided against doin so. The handling of grain is a very complicated matter and the average person finds it difficult to follow the discussions that are arising all the time in connection with it. But he more than suspects that the farmer is not being treated with absolute fairness and that further measures for his protection are required.

Quite apart from the methods of handling farm products, is full advantage being taken of the opportunities to get these to the world's markets. Much has already appeared in these columns as to the improvement in the grain grower's position in this province at least which should follow the development of the route by the way of Vauncouver.

Within the past year he has been given very considerate relief in the way of transportation charges, but the conference should address itself to the question of whether this cannot be extended. It will not do the farmer or anybody else any good to have rates reduced to such an extent as to demoralise the country's railways. But those in charge of the latter ought to realize how much they stand to gain by a better general agricultural outlook. If they do, they will stand in the way of any reasonable proposals with this end in view.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"The last awful week" is nearly over.

Any candidate is on safe ground in wishing the electors a Happy New Year.

That peace has its heroes as well as war will be demonstrated next week when hundreds of Peterborough men will wear the ties their wives presented them with at Christmas.

Candidates "who wears no man's collar" will likely be found in the local list.

With the nominations over today the handshaking campaign is next in order.

The man who bought his wife a fur coat for Chirstman is likely to find himself presented with a new pair of lace curtains for the living room window, again proving that it is more blessed—and also more usual—to give than to receive.

An aldermanic candidate who would promise a jail sentence for any person with a month's supply of fuel found in a queue at a coal dealer's office ought to be elected at the head of the polls.

Yesterday was the shortest day in the year, but most people will find themselves pretty short after tomorrow night.

No better demonstration of the Santa Claus spirit is given than is contained in the answer, "No thank you, I'll carry this home."

APPLY SULPHUR ON YOUR ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night.

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation ,soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

"Peace on Earth Good Will Toward Men"

OUT of the darkness of the past, through recurring storms of war, revolution and turmoil, of trade rivalry and business struggle—piercing the mists of doubt and despair and disappointment, comes the everlasting message of hope to mankind—"Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

As clear, as true, and as welcome to-day as nineteen hundred and twenty-two years ago, the Christmas message of peace falls upon the world like the beam of a radiant star from a sky too often troubled and overcast.

To all Mutualists and to all others likewise, a Merry Christmas and a happy, prosperous New Year.

Funeral of C. E. Thorndyke—Christmas Tree in the Primary School — News Events.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 22—The sincere sympathy of the entire community is extended to Mr and Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke whose eldest son, Charles Edwin, aged seventeen years and four months, passed away after a lingering illness on the early morning hours of Sunday, December 17th.)The funeral took place on Tuesday at 2 p.m. from Grace Presbyterian church which was filled to capacity not only with relatives and intimate friends of the family, many of who were present from a distance but also with the teachers and pupils, of the school which was not called until 3 o'clock, as Edwin had been a student of the Continuation Department and with a large number of the citizens generally, whose heartfelt grief and sympathy found expression in thus showing their last respects to the memory of the deceased boy.

The illness of the late Edie Thorndyke, which had extended over a period of at least eighteen months an probably began with a motor accident one year ago last summer, was relieved for a few months this year by some hopes of his ultimate recovery; but these were finally shattered as it became increasingly evident, during the last few weeks, that the waning vitality could not possibly be renewed. His pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, had charge of the funeral services, Rev. J. Wilks and Rev S T. Tucker also being present at the church. The hymns used, which included "Dare to be Daniel" "Stand up, Stand up for Jesus", and "He Leadeth me", were favorites of the deceased sung in the home before his death, and, at his special request, at the service in the church, during which Mr. G. S. Gervan and M. H. W. Johnston, also sang the duet. "He Knows" the beautiful sentiment of the latter selection being particularly comforting to the sorrowing parents and family. The pall-bearers, Messrs. Frank Alcorn Arnold Raper, Charlie Dean, David Fowler Howard Lancashire and William Needler, were school friends of the deceased and were personally selected by him previous to his death his pastor in his address, referring to the fact that, Eddie, though called away just on the threshold of his young manhood, had yet shown no spirit of rebellion, or complaint, but when he realized that from his prolonged weakness and suffering there was to be no recovery, had developed a beautiful spirit of resignation to the Divine Will. Interment took place at the Presbyterian cemetery.

Christmas Tree

A most enjoyable time was spent in the primary room of the public school on Wednesday afternoon when the children had their annual Christmas Tree their teacher, Miss A. McConnachie, having invited the little ones to bring their parents with them for the occasion. Over fifty of the pupils were present and their singing of a couple of Christmas carols at the opening and closing of the afternoon's program was one of the most pleasing features of the proceedings. The Christmas Tree was well laden with gifts and beautifully decorated Master Russell Gervan dressed to suit the part, acting as "Santa Claus", handing the presents to the teacher as they were cut down from the Tree by Miss Kathleen Isbister who informed "Santa Claus' of the name of the recipient Miss McConnachie distributed the gifts, the children being scarcely able to keep their seats in the excitement and pleasure of the occasion.

Brief address were made by Rev. A. H. McConnachie and Rev. G. S. Gervan, expressing their pleasure in being present and leaving some appropriate Christmas thought with the little ones, who were furthered entertained with a "peanut scramble" and by trying their skill at biting an apple suspended from a cord. Before dismissal Miss McConnachie wished to express her personal appreciation of the interest taken by the parents who were present and her desire that they would frequently visit her room and see how the children were progressing under her care and tuition. Those present on Wednesday included: Rev. A. H. and Mrs. McConnachie, Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan, Mrs. Rose Edmunds, Mrs. B. R. Raper Mrs. J. A. Vance, Mrs. G. E. Burnham, Mrs E. and Mrs. (Dr.) B. C. Whyte Mrs J R. Eakins Mrs. T. Weeks Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. P. Stinson.

Business Sold

Mr. J. L. Byam has sold out his business at the station store, and the entire building, dwelling as well as stores to Mr. John McBride, who will now remove his stock of musical instruments where it is at present.. the building just purchased and will also keep up the grocery business where it is at present. Mr. Byam intends occupying the house when Mr. McBride resides when the latter takes possession of the Byam building but the exchange of residence will probably not be carried out until the spring.

First Skating

The first skating of the season on the rink was enjoyed on Wednesday evening the ice being in very good condition. It is intended that the rink shall be open for skaters every evening this week and quite a number of season tickets have already been disposed of Mrs. J. Perrin of Peterboro, was the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jas. Dawson for a day or two this week.

Mr. B. Dawson of Indian River, arrived home for the Christmas holidays on Wednesday of this week.

Miss May O'Brien was a visitor in Peterboro on Wednesday.

Miss A. Hampton with her sister Mrs Armstrong, of Lethbridge, Alta, and the latter's grand-daughter Elizabeth Shearer, were visitors with friends in Peterboro on Tuesday.

To Audit Town's Books Semi-Annually—Steamer Ran Aground.

COBOURG, Dec. 22.—(Special)—The amount which the Provincial Department of Highways is expected to contribute to the cost of the new pavements on King street amounts to .23,62.. The total cost of Jersey King Division and George streets is estimated ot $210,000. Work on George street will begin early next spring.

Audit Books

The Town Council has decided to have the books of the town audited semi-annually by a chartered accountant.

Steamer Aground

When coming into this port a couple of days ago Ontario No. 14" ran aground. She was carrying her usual cargo and was compelled to remain in her stranded position all night The following day her sister boat "Ontario No. 2" went to her assistance and pulled her off. Lashed side by side to each other, the big steamers then rode triumphantly into the harbor.

Health Nurse

The rush of a public health nurse in Cobourg and of the Child Welfare Committee has been brought into prominence by a visit of Dr Bell of Provincial Health Department to this town. On Tuesday Dr. Bell assisted at the weekly baby clinic and gave an address. On Wednesday evening he addressed a public meeting in the Opera House, where he gave a very informative address on health topics, and the important work that a Public Health Nurse is capable of doing in a community.

Real Estate Transfer

The residence on James Street here, belonging to the estate of the late Reuben May of Hamilton Township was sold by public auction at the town hall for $2,450. The purchaser was John Westington of Hope Township, who it is expected will eventually make it his home. In the meantime his sister, Mrs. Reuben May, will continue to occupy it.

On the other hand the hikers from Dundee passed a vote of thanks to the poor law authorities for the treatment received.

The Alexandria hikers seemingly repented for the conduct of some of their members for subsequently they expressed regret at what had happened and hoped that the fact would not be used against them in their further journey.

The Manchester poor law authorities disgusted with the whole lot, resolved that in future hikers shall be treated as ordinary casuals, receiving no special consideration except that they will be permitted to proceed on their journey without doing the usual task work before their release.

Some members of the poor law board have pointed out that the poorer Manchester citizens who do not go hunger hiking are in almost as desperate straits as those who do, but nevertheless have not grudged their help towards the less generous fellows passing their way.

TURKEYS FLOOD THE WESTERN MARKETS.

CALGARY, December 22 (Canadian Press). — As a result of the record shipment of turkeys into Calgary for the holiday season, a new low mark in price has been set, according to wholesale figures secured yesterday. Reasons given for the big influx of turkeys is that the past dry summer and fall has been ideal for their breeding, with the result that the market at the present time is practically flooded.

A week ago this price dropped to 28 cents a pound, while yesterday it had fallen to 20 cents wholesale.

TODAY AND THE NEW YEAR.

The best thing you have in this is Today. Here it is, a wonderful treasure, a marvelous jewel. It's yours, all yours. What are you going to do with it?

Today is your savior; it is often crucified between two thieves, Yesterday and Tomorrow.

If you're bereaved, betrayed, heartbroken, why take a day off. One day will not matter. Today put away your festering thoughts. Today take some simple joys. Today be a little happy in the sunshine. You can do it. It's the burden of the coming days, weeks, years, that crushes us. The Present is always tolerable.

Whoever planned this life of ours did well in giving it to us one day at a time. We don't have to live it all at once, thanks be! We've only got to get through until bedtime.

And at the end of every day we are bathed in death. In sleep we go back to our original nothingness. Every morning we are born again.

Why let life oppress you? You don't have to live your life. Only a day of it. Come, let's finish our small task manfully. It's not long.

Don't let life mass against you. Attack it in detail and you can easily triumph.

"Oh, but I can't help thinking of the Past. And one must plan for the future."

To be sure. Only forget not that it is not the Past that determines the Present; it is the Present that determines the Past.

The Past is what we make of it. It is the temper of the present that qualifies it. It all depends upon how you now consider it, whether it will bring you despair or discouragement.

Suck out its wisdom, keep its lessons, utilize its experience, make of all those things elements of present power. But forget its septic qualities. Don't let the Past unman you, benumb you with remorse, weaken you with self-contempt.

The poet says we rise by stepping on our dead selves. And as for the Future, the best preparation for it is an unafraid Today.

Whatever hills you haveto climb, whatever bridges you have to cross, whatever enemies are lying in wait for you, whatever crises are to be met, you can be no better equipped for them than by living this day soundly, cheerfully, and free from fear.

Apprehensions, premonitions, worries, all these are the poison gases of our foe, the Future.

If you are to die tomorrow the best way to be ready is to discharge faithfully Today's duties, and to obey fully Today's duties, and to enjoy heartily Today's simple pleasures.

Today is yours. God has given it to you. All your Yesterdays He has taken back. All your Tomorrows are still in His hands.

Today is yours. Take its pleasures and be glad. Take its pains and play the man.

Today is yours. Use it so that at its close you can say:

"I have lived and loved Today!"
—Dr. Frank Crane in Pictorial Review.

THE NEW YEAR.

A friend stood at the door;
In either tight-closed hand
Hiding rich gifts, three hundred and three score;
Waiting to strew them daily o'er the land,
Each drop he treads in it, and passes by,
Even as the sower.
It cannot be made fruitful until it die.
Friend, come thou like a friend,
And whether bright thy face,
Or dim with clouds we cannot comprehend,
We'll hold our patient hands, each in his place,
And trust thee to the end;
Knowing thou leadest onward to those spheres
Where there are neither days, nor months, nor years.

Miss Mullock in this beautiful poem gives our ideas better than we can express them. The idea of each day being a gift, hidden from us until its hour comes, is a pretty thought. So many gifts, so much time to use for either profit or loss, and so many hands are held out eagerly for the coming days, looking for them to bring happiness or gain of some kind. The spirit sometimes grows faint before the unknown future, consequently it is enough to take one day at a time and try to make that good. It is hard enough to get even then and sometimes it is best to go hour by hour.

UNUSUAL APPEAL TO KIND HEARTED PEOPLE FOR HELP

For the First Time the Salvation Army Seeks Help for Their Annual Christmas Tree.

For years Mr. R. C. Braund as superintendent of the Salvation Army's Sunday school, has been the moving spirit not only in its general work but also in the annual 'Christmas tree' festival at the Temple for the little folks. Heretofore he has been able to provide for this event, with the help of his assistants, by entertainments and other means of raising a small special fund. This year, however, the new building has taken up all his time for months and has also required every effort to meet expenses. The 'Christmas Tree' fund had to give way to the urgent demands of the financing of the new annex on Simcoe street, and with the great festival only a few days away, the prospect appears gloomy for hundreds of children who have met Santa Claus at the Salvation Army Temple in other years.

Believing that many good friends throughout the city would be glad to help the Army this year, Mr. Braund is appealing to them through the Examiner, for little gifts for distribution from the Christmas tree. The fact that the new building has been put into commission to assist in the developing boys and girls along the lines of good citizenship, that this improvement has exhausted the Army's funds, and further that the members of the local Corps have given to the limit of their means, Mr. Braund feels confident that the people of Peterborough will generously contribute to the Christmas tree which is the big event for Wednesday, December 27.

The list of articles needed, as prepared by Sergeant Major Braund, is as follows: 100 pair of stockings for boys or girls, 75 pair mitts for boys or girls; 35 pair boys' boots; 35 pair girls' boots; 50 pair boys' and girls' rubbers ;200 handkerchiefs; 50 sweaters for boys or girls; 40 pair boys' bloomer pants; 30 girls' overcoats ;30 boys' coats; 50 neck ties; 75 pair rubbers; 100 lbs. candy and nuts; 150 small toys and dolls; 100 small story books; 500 oranges; some winter underwear for boys girls and babies.

If you can give any part of this list or anything else useful, communicate please with Adjt. Smith, 'phone 1929, or Sgt.-Major Braund, 'phone 2129. Your help will be appreciated.

I JES' P'TEND.

I jes' p'tend my Dad's alive.
'At Mama doesn't have to work.
'At she can stay at home all day,
An' doesn't have to go an' clerk
In 'at ol' store—I jes' p'tend!

An' I p'tend 'at we all live
In a b-i-g house in a fine street,
An' 'at we have a dra' big car,
An' lots of 'licious things to eat,
An' lots of close—I jes' p'tend!

I jes' p'tend the kids at school
Don't laugh at my ol' close and shoes,
An' 'at they all like me—a lot—
'At sometimes in the games they choose
Me, too, to play—I jes' p'tend!

An' after school, I jes' p'tend
When I go home again an' cook
An' sweep an 'dust till Mama comes,
'At I'm a princess in a book!
It's lots of fun jes' to p'tend!

An' me an' Mama, we p'tend
'At we are eatin' off gold plates,
'At we have turkey an' ice cream,
An' cakes an' raisins, nuts an' dates—
An', oh, yes—butter!—we p'tend!

An when I go to bed at night
I jes' p'tend 'at I am not
So awful cold. I snuggle down
An' make believe 'at I'm too hot—
Sometimes all night, I jes' p'tend!

An' when I hear the kids all talk
'Bout Santa Claus an' his reindeer,
An' all the things he's goin' to bring
I jes' p'tend 'at he'll stop here!—
I wisht he knew how I p'tend!

GETTING RID OF A STUBBORN COUGH IS CHILD'S PLAY NOW

Make the Medicine Yourself at Home, It's Cheap—but you Can't Beat It.

If you want to take care of that bad, hangon cough and do it in a few hours, better get one ounce of Parmint (double strength) and mix a half pint at home.

You can do this in two minutes by adding a little sugar and enough water to fill a half pint bottle.

You'll travel the world over before you get a medicine that will act so surely and quickly on the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. It halts the inflammation, the tickling sensation stops with the first spoonful, the heavy breathing goes and clean membrance, free from irritation and mucous follows.

For Catarrhal conditions such as mucus droppings, clogged nostrils and watery eyes, it won't disappoint— ask for Parmint (double strenth). Speak plainly so that the druggist will know exactly what you want.

RECIPES

KIDNEY STEW

Beef kidney is not used as much for food in this country as in England. If from a good, healthy animal, well prepared and well cooked, it makes an appetizing dish.

A kidney should be soaked in cold water for an hour, or from the time of purchase, and then scalded for two or three minutes. It should then be placed in cold water for a short time and then the thin skin removed. The following quantities will make a stew for six people:

2 beef kidneys, cut in pieces
3 tablespoons flour
3 potatoes, washed, pared and cut in quarters.
1 large onion, thinly sliced
3 tablespoons suet or drippings
½ cup celery, cut in small pieces
½ carrot, cut in strips
2 quarts water
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup tomato

In the suet or drippings fry the onion until slightly brown. Roll the kidney pieces in flour and fry with the onion. Add celery, carrot, water, tomato and seasonings. Cover and cook slowly one hour. Then add potatoes and cook half an hour. If the liquid cooks away too much, add more—but there is little danger of cooking a stew too much. Add dumplings, cover closely, and cook 20 minutes.

CHEESE CROQUETTES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh
Of Columbia University

Cheese croquettes may be served with a cream sauce, as the main dish for luncheon or supper. Or made much smaller they are an excellent accompaniment to salad.

Two tablespoons butter, 6 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, yolks 2 eggs, 1 pound cheese cut into dice, salt and cayenne pepper to taste, fine dried bread crumbs, white of eggs.

Melt butter, add flour, and cook without browning for two minutes. Add milk and cook until smooth and thick. Beat eggs slightly, and add to the above with the cheese and seasonings. Cook until cheese melts, then spread on a plate to cool. Shape into balls or cylinders; dip in egg whites diluted with a little water, roll in crumbs, and fry one minute in fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 40 seconds. Drain.

In Prohibition Times.

Some of us miss the added flavor of sherry in our fruit cups. Try using a little grapejuice as a substitute, putting it in when the fruit is prepared and allowing it to mellow with the mixture.

ASK U.S. EXPLOIT THEIR OIL FIELDS.

Turks Believe That American Control Would Prevent Political Aggression

BY EDWARD J. BING

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(United Press.)—"There is no truth in the statement that Great Britain or, for that matter any other power has a legitimate claim to the oil fields in Mosul,' was the statement made to the United Press by Mahmoud Pasha, Turkish ex-Minister of Public Works and the most competent with the Mousul oil question.

Mahmoud Pasha was a member of the Turkish cabinet until the outbreak of the World War, when he resigned because he objected to fight ing the Allies. He acted for the Turkish government during the negotiations with the British about the oil of Mosul and therefore nobody is more competent to give an authoritative statement about that subject.

"It is true", the Pasha said, "that some time before the World War the so-called Turkish Petroleum Company approached the Turkish government for concession to exploit the oil wells of the region of Mosul in northern Mesopotamia to run shipping on the Tigris river, and for other privileges. Fifty per cent. of the shares of the company were held by the British the rest being split up in equal parts between Dutch and German interests. I understand that the British allotted the shares formerly held by Germans to French interests in the agreement of San Remo last year.

"Our government sent Hakki Pasha then Turkish ambassador to Germany to London where he represented us at the negotiations. The oupbreak of the war however, interrupted the conversations, before any decision had been reached or concession granted.

"It is, therefore, evident that neither England nor Germany, Holland or France, or any other country or group has any legal claim or concession of any kind pertaining to the oil fields in question. Turkey is absolutely free to dispose of them and it is my conviction, which is shared by many competent Turks, that in the question of their exploitation business should be done with the United States.

"The business activity of America in this connection would be of mutual benefit to Turkey and America and it would remove the menace of political aggression which is often connected with the economic activities of other Western powers in our country."

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

Under the ancient rulers' regime, no member of a Japanese farmer's family might wear silk.

If a farmer's daughter married a man entitled to apparel himself thus, he was requested not to do so at the wedding.

But three kinds of viands were to be served at a wedding, the quantity as well as quality being regulated by law.

JOLLY EVENING FOR SCHOLARS

Christmas Tree and Concert in S.S. No. 1, North Monaghan, Much Enjoyed.

BROWNTON, Dec. 22.—The pupils of S. S. No. 1, North Monaghan, held their annual entertainment in Brailey's S. S. Hall, Tuesday evening, December 19th, with the Rev. Mr. Mackenzie occupying the chair.

The following programme was much enjoyed by a large number of parents and friends. Their pleasure was shown in the hearty encores given to a great many of the numbers:

Chairman's Address.
Recittaion, An Opening Address—By Ralph Hanbridge.
Chorus, 'Dear Canada, to Thee — By the school.
Recitation, 'How to Forget'— By Helen Ward.
Vocal Duet, —By Gracie and Amy Thompson.
A motion exercise by four pupils.
Dialogue, 'The Train to Brailey's'
Solo—By Miss E. Northcott.
Recitation—By Walter Vassie.
Violin selection—By Mr. G. Fowler.
Recitation, 'How Butterflies Grow' —By Norman Lillico.
Vocal dlet—By Gertrude and Byron Leggott.
Some very famous people— By nine juniors.
Recitation, 'Random Shots' — By Willie Ster.
Motion song, Jack Frost— By six pupils.
Recitation, 'The Curate and the Mulberry Tree—By Margry Thompson.
Solo by Rev. Mr. Mackenzie.
Recitation 'Going Fishing'— By Carl Hanbridge.
Star drill—By seven girls.
Monologue, Easy Christmas Shopping—By Byron Leggott.
Solo—By Ross Lillico.
Dialogue— The Coming of Santa Claus.
Recitation—A Lady Satna Claus.
Solo—By Marion Deyell.
Dialogue—Two Sides to a Question.
Solo—By Rev. Mr. Mackenzie.
Violin selection—By Mr. G. Fowler.
Motion song — Sing a Song of Christmas—By six boys.
Dialogue—Buying Eggs.
Chorus—The Bells Are Ringing—By the school.

Then Santa appeared to relieve the Christmas tree of its heavy burden of gifts.

A hearty vote of thanks was given to the teacher, Miss Clara Dobbin, to Miss E. Webber and Mr. B. Williamson, the accompanists, and all those who so kindly took part in the occasion.

God Save the King.

"DAY BY DAY, IN EVERY WAY,

I'm growing better and better," is the formula being taught thousands of persons who come to Dr. Coue for a cure for their illnesses, mental and physical. In this picture is shown a typical group, some sixty of his patients young and old, in the garden of his place in Nancy. In the centre, a step to the left of the young fruit trees, is Dr. Coue himself. The tall building in the background, it is suggested by a veteran, is built of American lumber sent to France to aid in its restoration.

A "KID PARTY"

One often finds it hard to entertain a crowd of "girls only." I solved the problem recently when I entertained the members of a young ladies' Sunday-school class by giving a "kid" party. The invitations read as follows:

If for childhood's days once more you long,
Come over to B——'s, and join the gay throng
Friday night at eight Father Time has consented
To turn back life's wheel and make you contented.
So meet us in dresses that come to the knees
And pigtails that dangle and sway in the breeze.

Below were the date and street number, and on the reverse side of the invitation was the quotation:

Backward, turn backward, O Time, in thy flight;
Make me a child again, just for to-night.

At eight o'clock on the prescribed night curiously coated figures appeared at our door and were admitted by my sister, who was attired in true "kid" style. When the wraps had been laid aside and the pigtails patted into "company" stiffness, the guests were taken into the parlor, where loud was the laughter over the rejuvenation of each one. The tall ones and the short ones, the fat ones and the "skinny" ones, all came in for their share of inspection and jesting.

When all had arrived I passed around tiny baskets containing a card which bore this instruction,

The house a wild jungle is;
If you would win a prize
Go hunt the animals in it;
For weapons, use your eyes.

The hunt was on In a half-hour every corner and crevice had been made to yield its animal—a cooky. When no more could be found the "wild creatures" were counted and the "child" capturing the most was presented with a copy of Kipling's "Jungle Book."

The guests were then taken to the kitchen, where bowls of soap-suds had been prepared and placed on the kitchen table. Each guest was provided with a clay pipe, and an hour was spent in the old-fashioned game of "blowing bubbles." The pipes, which were tied with red ribbons, were kept as favors.

When every one had "blown" herself tired, we repaired to the living-room, where the command, "Be seated on the floor" was given. Each received a needle and thimble and a piece of white muslin eighteen inches square and was told to make a rag doll. Old newspapers were provided for the filling, and for the clothes and hats there were piled in the middle of the room scraps of silk and cotton goods and colored tissue and crepe paper. Shears, pins, etc., were handy, and for an hour dolls grew rapidly into form, and were garbed in raiment of many colors. The features, which strayed far from ideal beauty, were added by means of colored crayons. When all were finished and placed in a row, a beauty contest was held. The professor of the winning doll received as a prize a hairpin-holder, made by crocheting loose chains of yarn around a small doll.

Then came the refreshments. Partners were secured by matching cut sections of paper dolls. The menu was in keeping with the "kid" idea, and consisted of sandwiches cut in small fancy shapes, fruit salad, tiny cakes, home-made candy, and milk.

Early in the evening each guest had been requested to "think up some contribution to a program. These "stunts" were now called for, and readings, "kid" pieces, songs, and jokes provided amusement until a late hour. The guests departed declaring that this had been one of the pleasantest evenings they had ever spent.—Ora Blackmun.

Mailing Packages.

When sending parcels a distance through the mail, it is wise to wrap them in several papers, each one addressed and tied, so if the outer wrappings come off the destination will still be known.

Faith makes the grocer send the bill; hope keeps the account on the books; charity at last closes the incident.

NEWS COBOURG AND DISTRICT

Call to Omemee Pastor.

At a meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of the Cobourg Methodist church, it was unanimously decided to extend an invitation to Rev. W. F. Stillman, Omemee, to succeed Rev. J. S. T. Wilson, B.A., B.D., in the pastorate here at the close of the present conference year. Mr. Stillman came back east from British Columbia some three or four years ago and is a former president of the British Columbia Methodist conference. He has occupied pastorates at Fernie, Chilliwack, Vancouver and other places in the west. Rev. J. S. T. Wilson, the present pastor, is concluding four years of faithful service in this town.

Civic Business.

The corporation of Cobourg has temporarily appointed A. W. Young clerk of the town. Mr. Young assumed the treasurership temporarily a couple of weeks ago.

Tax collctor W. H. Smith reports that taxes are coming in well, payments being practically up to other years at this season.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage took place here on Monday at the Methodist parsonage, of Edith Beatrice, daughter of Mr. William P. Catlin, Barrie to Edgar Frederick, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell of this town. Rev. J. S. T. Wilson, B.A., B.D., performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside in Oshawa.

THE REAL JOHN DOE IN COURT AT LAST

Said He Hailed From Sudbury, and Paid $200 Fine.

OTTAWA, Dec. 22. — (Canadian Press.)—John Dge made his appearance in police court yesterday—not the same John Doe whose name is so often heard in police courts throughout the entire country, but the real John Doe, in flesh and blood.

"That's my name and I'm going to stick to it," he told the Judge when paying a fine of $200 for having liquor unlawfully. "And my address is Sudbury. Look me up some time," he added. The police didn't goa ny further to investigate his identity. They merely recorded his name along with the thousand and one other John Doe's who had changed their names.

MRS. BARRYMORE GETS A DECREE OF DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.— (Canadian Press.) — An interloutory decree of divorce has been obtained by Mrs. Doris Rankin Barrymore, from Lionel Barryomre, motion picture star, dramatic actor and member of an illustrious theatrical family.

EMPIRE WAISTLINE.

Long, slender draped dresses with high waistlines, obviously fashioned after Directoire and First Empire models, have been put forward by one or two designers. They declare that the radically high waistline will be the next "move" from the extremely low one, now dominant.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, December 22. Canadian Press. — The demand for cash coarse grains in the local market yesterday showed some improvement and the tone of the spot market for spot supplies was very firm. Prices were fully maintained in the flour market. The tone of the millfeed market was very firm and the demand for rolled oats was steady. There is nothing new in the baled hay market.

A feature of the local egg market was the strength and activity in new laid eggs which advanced 2c a dozen to 80c. There was no change in other grades. The condition of the potato market was unchanged. A very firm feeling under an increased demand prevailed in the butter market. There is very little doing in cheese.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, December 22. Canadian Press. — Receipts were 160 cattle and calves, 900 hogs and 335 sheep and lambs.

Light offerings and slow trading. There were a few fair to good steers on offer from $30 to $40 while the remainder consisted largely of medium to good at $2 to $3.

The hog market was unchanged. Thick smooths 9.25, selected 10.17.

Good killing lambs sold at 10.00 and mutton sheep from 5.50 to 6.50.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, December 22. Canadian Press. — Further shipments of British Columbia eggs and prairie province turkeys are arriving in the east. The market remains firm however and prices practically unchanged. It is reported that 1000 cases of Chinese fresh eggs arrived in Vancouver yesterday for shipment in bond to Glasgow.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics there were 183,655 cases of eggs in storage in Canada December 1. The movement out of storage during the month of November was 149,959 cases.

Toronto fresh unchanged, storage firsts firmer at 39 to 40.

Poultry unchanged.

Montreal firm. Eggs in good demand; storage extras 47 to 48; firsts, 41 to 42. All fresh specials and extras arriving are clearing daily at 75 to 85c. Fresh killed turkeys wholesale 47c; frozen 42c.

Eastern markets unchanged.

St. John, N.B., to 1 and states storage jobbing 39 to 40. Prince Edward Island storage 45. A few fresh retailing at 80. Fresh killed turkeys 62 to 65; geese and ducks 45, chicks 35, fowl 25.

Chicago fresh lower, 48 to 49; refrigerators higher 30½ to 31 1-2.

New York unchanged.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, December 22. Canadian Press. — Assertions that more than 1,000,000 bushels had been bought for shipment to Europe did a great deal yesterday to lift prices in the wheat market here. The close was strong ½c to 1 5-8c net higher, with May $1.25½ to $1.25 5-8, and July $1.14 1-2 to $1.14 5-9. Corn finished at 7-8c off to 3-8c advance; oats up ¼ to 5-8 and provisions varying from 20c decline to 5c gain.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, December 22. — Canadian Press. — Cattle receipts 9000; active; beef steers strong to 25c higher; mostly 15c to 25c up; better grades weighty steers suitable for shipping purposes reflecting most of the advance. Top matured steers 13.00; few odd lots prime yearlings 13.00; desirable long yearlings 11.00; bulk native beef steers 8.00 to 9.75; medium grade yearlings generally in light demand; beef cows and heifers, veal calves, stockers and feeders steady to strong; canners, cutters and bulls strong to 10c higher.

Hogs, receipts 45,000; generally steady; closed firm; bulk all weights 8.25; top 8.30; packing sows 7.30 to 7.85; pigs dull around 8.00; holdover liberal at noon.

Sheep receipts 12,000; fat lambs 25 to 40c higher; top 15.15 to packers; bulk fat wooled lambs 14.75 to 15.10; bulls mostly 11.50 to 12.50; fresh shorn lambs 12,85; summer clipped 84 pound fed lambs 14.00; feeders and sheep fully steady; heavy feeding lambs 14.00; heavy fat ewes 5.00 6.00 mostly; lighter weights up to 7.50.

ANOTHER CHURCH RAZED BY FIRE

Basilica, the Pride of Quebec, Victim of Incendiarism, it is Thought.

QUEBEC, Dec. 22. — (Canadian Press.)— A heap of smoking ruins amidst scorched walls, was all that was left this morning of the fine old Basilica which has been the pride of this district because of its age and the beauty of its interior. The fire, which broke out in the early hours this morning in the roof, defied all efforts of the firemen to control it and destroyed the church in a few hours.

With the sacred edifice there was burned the presbytery adjacent, while this morning the fire department was deluging the ruins to prevent the escape of sparks to the Cardinal's palace, which had a narrow escape.

The damage done is estimated by Monsignor Laflamme, Cure of Basilica, at $1,000,000, though the contents of the church, which dates back to 1674, including many fine pictures, cannot be valued in money and are irreplacable.

Incendiarism is believed to have been responsible for the outbreak, as Daniel Lorrain, chief of the Provincial police force, received a letter, telling him the Basilica was to be burned on the twenty-eighth of this month.

A number of sacred subjects by Vandyke and Lebrun are included in the burned contents. The seminary, part of a group of buildings around the Basilica was threatened and during the night the students were marched out. Firemen were greatly hampered in their efforts by poor water pressure. Hose was noticed to be sending water only a few feet and very soon after the outbreak it was obvious to onlookers that the church was doomed.

The flames jumped across the narrow street which separates the church from the business section of old Quebec. The firemen checked the progress of the fire in this direction, though not before heavy damage had been done by smoke and water. Offices of the Telegraph and Chroncile, English newspapers of Quebec, were slightly damaged.

NEWS HASTINGS AND DISTRICT

Preparations for Annual Christmas Entertainments—News Nuggets.

HASTINGS, December 22. — The local merchants have spared no pains on Christmas decorations, and some of the store windows are veritable Santa Claus headquarters.

Mrs. McMillan has returned after spending the summer months in Western Canada.

The pupils of the Public School will hold their annual Christmas entertainment in the school room.

The plan of the Town Hall for the annual Christmas entertainment is now open at Coughlan's drug store, and already the best seats are sold. Lithographs of the reader for the evening, Miss Dorothy Ryan, of Toronto, are on display in several public places, and a good programme is assured.

Dr. J. H. Hess was in Oshawa on Wednesday.

Dr. J. H. Hess has disposed of his garage business to Mr. Wellman, of Keene.

Mr. Welman needs no introduction to the citizens of Hastings and the surrounding district, as he has been conducting the same line of business in Keene.

Miss Nellie Fife, of Peterborough, is visiting at the home of Mrs. Duncan Fife.

Dr. J. H. Hess spent Thursday in Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Armstrong, of Havelock, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamey.

Mr. Bruce Richardson, teller in the Union Bank of Canada, has received a transfer to Oshawa, and left on Friday.

Mrs. E. Radford was a visitor to Campbellford on Thursday.

Misses Helen Chapman and Queenie Runnels were in Peterboro Thursday.

Mrs. A. Lynn of Maple Creek is the guest of her mother, Mrs. B. Shaw.

F. McDonald left on Friday for Toronto on a business trip.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before eating more food.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

A PRESENTATION CAMPBELLFORD

Interesting Entertainment Held Last Evening in the Methodist Church

CAMPBELLFORD, December 22. —The entertainment "Santa Claus and his Friends," given last evening in the Methodist church under the auspices of the Sunday school, drew a crowded house, and was under the efficient direction of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell, and was an unqualified success, and conceded by all to be the best yet. The choruses were bright and lively, the back ground with a cosy fireplace most effective, and the costumes were most appropriate. The following took the leading parts:

Dr. Bills—Miss Cherrie Turner.
Little Jiff—Howard Shapter.
Fairy Queen—Miss Francis Dingman.
Grandmother — Miss Hazel Labrash.
Jack Frost—Harry Boyd.
Detective—Jim Diamond.
Santa Claus—Willie Hore
Susie, Cora, Jean, Mary and Judith—Misses Essie Gassan, Katharine Irwin, Mary McGregor, Nellie Haig.
Mail Carrier—Murray Free.
Chief of Police—Bernard Ibey.

A. B and C Fairies — Little Misses Florence Bibby, Mary Smith and Irene Jeffs.

In addition there were numberless fairies with flowing wings, Red Cross nurses with regulation uniforms, all of whom performed their parts exceptionally well. The opening numbers by the Primary Department revealed careful training and were much appreciated.

Before the final tableau, when all the lights were turned off save the background light, and when the four seasons, Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, were most charmingly acted by a number of young girls in a most effective costume and setting, Rev. H. B. Kenny, the pastor, and Mr. Alex. Winters came forward and requested the superintendent, Mr. G. A. Kingston, for for twenty years most faithfully has acted as capable superintendent of the school to come forward. Both speakers paid glowing tributes to the faithfulness and interest Mr. Kingston has displayed in the above capacity and also to the exemplary example set by him to the pupils. On behalf of the school, Mr. Kingston was then presented with a purse of money, and although taken entirely by surprise, replied in a most fitting manner, asserting that the pleasure of serving the school was ample reward.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell were then asked to come forward, and the following address, read by Harry Boyd and the presentation of a purse of money to Mrs. Cowell, was made by Miss Frances Dingman. Mr. Cowell, who was also taken quite by surprise replied in a charming manner on behalf of himself and Mrs. Cowell, thanking the friends for their kind remembrance. Much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. Cowell, who so thoroughly trained the children, all of whom acquitted themselves most creditably.

To Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell,—

On behalf of the Methodist Sunday school we wish to express our appreciation of the interest you have taken in our work and the time you have spent in preparing us for our entertainment. This is not only beneficial to the school from a financial standpoint but it is of great educational value to us.

We realize that it has meant a great deal of energy and patience on your part and we are anxious in some way to give tangible expression to our deep sense of gratitude and appreciation of your willingness to further the work of our school.

We ask you to accept this purse as a slight recognition of our esteem for you. We feel how insignificant is its value in comparison to your labours in our school but we feel certain that you will accept it for the spirit it represents.

We trust that the Christmas season will bring joy and gladness to you and yours and that the year 1923 may be a happy and prosperous one.

Signed on behalf of the school.
G. A. Kingston, Supt.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable. Relief is sure.

COUE DISPELS FEAR OF REAL DANGER IN AUTO-SUGGESTIONS

The Moral Aspects of Its Practice Weigh As Advocate Says "You Must Know How to Use It!"—The Question of Right and Wrong.

By DR. EMILE COUE.

Perhaps my statement that, imprudently used, Suggestion, is a dangerous thing will be recalled and it be said that it can be used for evil purposes.

This is no valid objection; first, because the practice of suggestion would be confided only to reliable and honest peopie,—to the reformatory doctors, for instance; and in the second hand, those who seek to use suggestion for evil ask no one's permission

But even admitting that it offers some danger I should like to ask whoever proffers the objection, to tell me what thing we use that is not dangerous?

Is it steam? Gunpowder? Railways? Ships? Electricity? Automobiles? Aeroplanes?

Are the poisons not dangerous which we, doctors and chemists, use daily in minute doses, and which might easily destroy the patient if, in a moment's carelessness, we unfortunately made a mistake in weighing them out?

Autosuggestion is an instrument which you have to learn how to use just as you must learn how to use any other instrument.

An excellent gun in inexperienced hands gives only disappointing results, but the more skilled the same hands become, the more easily they place the bullets in the target.

"If you formerly allowed yourself to make bad autosuggestions because you did it unconsciously, now that you know what I have just taught you, you must no longer let this happen," I told one disciple. "And if in spite of all, you still do it, you must only accuse yourself, and say 'Mea culpa, mea maxima culpa."

The means employed by all healers go back to autosuggestion. That is to say that these methods, whatever they are—words, incantations, gestures, staging—all produce in the patient the autosuggestion of recovery.

Let me quote here—for it sets forth succinctly and truly what I may call the ethical surrounding of our principle—the following paragraph from "Culture de la Force Morale," by C. Baudouin."

"To have and to inspire unalterable confidence, one must walk with the assurance of perfect sincerity, and in order to possess this assurance and sincerity, one must wish for the good of others more than one's own."

With pride in the method, and not from any personal point of view, I quote here some excerpts bearing, I think, effectively on the moral aspect of the practice. These quotations are designed for Good which autosuggestion is. The "danger" of its use for evil is as nothing

From The Description of a 'Seance'

"The town thrills at his name, (Coue) for from every rank of society, people come to him and everyone is welcomed with the same benevolence, which already goes for a good deal.

"But what is extremely poignant is, at the end of the seance, to see the people who came in gloomy, bent, almost hostile (they were in pain), go away like everybody else; unconstrained, cheerful, sometimes radiant (they are no longer in pain)

"With a strong and smiling goodness of which he has the secret, M. Coue, as it were, holds the hearts of those who consult him in his hand; he addresses himself in turn to the numerous persons who come to consult him, and, speaks to them in these terms:

" "Well, Madame, and what is your trouble? . . .

" "Oh, you are looking for two many whys and wherefores; what does the cause of your pain matter to you? You are in pain, that is enough. . . I will teach you to get rid of that. . ."

"For The Good of Humanity"

"Your lecture interested us very much. It would be desirable for the good of humanity, that your words should be published in several languages, so that they might penetrate to every race and country. Thus they might reach a greater number of unfortunate people who suffer from the wrong use of that all-powerful (and almost divine) faculty—the most important to man, as you affirm and prove so luminously and judiciously —which we call the imagination.

"I had already read many books on the will, and had quite an arsenal of formulae, thoughts, aphorisms, etc.

"Your phrases are conclusive. I do not think that ever before have "compressed tablets of self-confidence,"—as I call your healing phrases—been condensed into typical formulae in such an intelligent manner.

" Don Enrique C.....,

"Madrid."

A dedication to M. Coue by the author of a medical treatise

"To M. Coue who knew how to dissect the human soul and to extract from it a psychologic method founded on conscious autosuggestion.

"The master is entitled to the thanks of all; he has cleverly succeeded in disciplining the vagrant (Imagination) and in associating it usefully with the will. Thus he has given man the means of increasing tenfold his moral force by giving him confidence in himself.

" Docteur P. R., Francfort."

"It is difficult to speak of the profound influence exercised on me by your so kindly allowing me to view so often your work. Seeing it day by day, as I have done, it has impressed me more and more, and as you yourself said, there seems no limits to the possibilities and future scope of the principles you enunciate, not only in the physical life of children but also in possibilities for changing the ideas now prevalent in punishment of crime, in goverarment, in fact, in all the relations of life. . . .

Miss Josaphine M. Richardson.

Life insurance people say men's waists are getting larger. They've probably been measuring over the hips.

Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, former Foreign Minister of Great Britain.

He declared, according to cable dispatches, that his recovery from illness that threatened to force ihm out of the Cabinet was due to treatment by auto suggestion under Dr. Coue.

THE VIRGIN'S BABE

This week once more the world thrills with its annual joy. The skies may be murky, the frost king stern, but in a million homes the fires of love are glowing, the lights of peace and charity shine bright, and a warmth of gladness shines in young and old. And all because one night long centuries ago, while the festive crowds were gathering in the Inn a little Baby Boy was born in a lowly manger in the City of David which is called Bethlehem.

The mystery and glory of life have ever centered in the child, and as they circle round the little life that lies so puny in the cradle, strong men grow tender, rough youth seems strangely softened, the children gaze with gladness, while maidens and mothers bend with awe and sacrificial joy. Yes. The great American was right when he said that a baby was better for the heart than a whole academy of philosophers, and so we are not surprised to read that a young missionary Madonna wrote home of her first-born babe, "I had no idea being a mother was so wonderful." But most wonderful is the thought of Bethlehem's Babe. "Why do we keep Christmas?" said the teacher to a lot of scholars in a school in England, and a dear little mite piped out with a sweet little voice: "Please, sir, it's God's birthday."

"God's birthday" Ah, that explains it all. For the Baby born that day was the Hope expected a thousand years. He was the Sign the Lord Himself had promised centuries before: "Behold a virgin shlll conceive, and bear a Son, and they shall call His name Immanuel," that is, being translated, God with us." And since that glorious morn the day that changed the world, disecting it, so that all before is B. C. (the year of Our Lord) a million million in every age have said or sung with gladness: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given." (Isa. ix:6). "Oh, come, let us adore Him; with joyful and triumphant gladness, let us greet the Virgin-born." Oh, mothers, think and thank the Giver of all joy, that the tender mirth and sacred love of every mother has found its culmination in the Sweet and Holy Virgin Mother. Oh, fathers, forget not that all the merry happiness of a myriad British homes has its rise and reason in the helpless Baby Boy that God gave for us men and our salvation. O, children, shout for gladness as you open the stockings, and dance round the Christmas tree, but remember, as you do, the poor and the sick, the friendless and the orphan. Be like the little girl that said: "Mother, may I send that money uncle gave me to the poor little cripple we were told about the other day. You see," she added, "now daddy's well again, and hard times are over, I feel like wanting to make somebody else happy, too." And, O you busy ones, and strong, in this good Christian land of ours, this Canada of ours, disdain to spend this season as men without God, and without Christ. Let it not be spent as the revelry of a heathen festival, or in the giving of luxuries to those who have too many now, while the poor and hungry stand wondering, forgotten and perhaps desperate. O be still amidst the strife and selfishness of this bad world, to hear the voice of the angelic gospel: "Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day, a Saviour," and go and touch with kindly hands the brother for whom Christ died as he stands in need. A pound of good news is worth a ton of good advice; and an ounce of real help a pound of saoft talk. Thus, and thus only will you and they and all of us realize the everlasting Christmas joy of Him who gave all, and became all, and taught us that it is more blessed to give than to receive

Hail, happy Christmas Usher in once more with glorious songs Garland it with peace and joy Crown and greatest gift And, above all bring to Him the gold and frankincense and myrrh of a consecrated and adoring heart.

CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE WHILE MOTHER VISITS

Parent Returns to Find the Bed Smouldering and the Small Victims Unconscious.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—A 21-year-old mother, Mrs. Charlotte McGowan, left her three children on a bed in her flat and went visiting. When she came back she found them on the floor, unconscious. The mattress was smouldering. They died ten minutes after they had been taken to Bellevue Hospital, three blocks away.

The children were Joseph Jr., 5 years old; Rose, 3, and Anna, 7 months. When Mrs. McGowan went to call on her brother-in-law, James McGowan, and his wife, at 606 Second Avenue, she thought the children would be safe alone. A small gas jet on the wall near the bed was burning. It is conjectured that one of the older children stood on the edge of the bed and lighted a piece of paper or a matchstick and set fire to the bed. Just how the fire started was not ascertained definitely.

Mrs. McGowan screamed for help and other tenants aided her to carry the children to the roof. Patrolman Darcy of the East Twenty-second Street Station, summoned by a neighbor, ran up and took them to the street. They were taken to Bellevue in a passing automobile. Efforts to resuscitate them failed.

Members of Engine Company 16, near the McGowan home, ran in and extinguished the slight fire.

Mrs. McGowan is the wife of Joseph McGowan, 29 years old, an electrician, employed by the New York Edison Company. McGowan said last night that he just had finished opening the fireplace in the children's bedroom and installing gilded logs, because the youngsters had feared that Santa Claus would not be able to get down the chimney.

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A. A. MILNE

"I could not stop Mark drinking," Cayley's letter went on, "but I kept him within certain bounds. Yes, I kept him outwardly decent; and perhaps now I was becoming like the cannibal who keeps his victim in good condition for his own ends. I used to gloat over Mark, thinking how utterly he was mine to ruin as I pleased, financially, morally, whatever way would give me most satisfaction. I had but to take my hand away from him and he sank. But again I was in no hurry.

"Then he killed himself. That futile little drunkard, eaten up with his own selfishness and vanity, offered his beastliness to the truest and purest woman on this earth. You have seen her, Mr. Gillingham, but you never knew Mark Ablett. Even if he had not been a drunkard, there was no chance for her of happiness with him.

"I had known him for many years, but never once had I seen him moved by any generous emotion. To have lived with that shriveled little soul would have been hell for her; and a thousand times worse hell when he began to drink.

"So he had to be killed. I was the only one left to protect her, for her mother was in league with Mark to bring about her ruin. I would have shot him openly for her sake, and with what gladness, but I had no mind to sacrifice myself needlessly. He was in my power; I could persuade him to almost anything by flattery; surely it would not be difficult to give his death the appearance of an accident.

"I need not take up your time by telling you of the many plans I made and rejected. For some days I inclined toward an unfortunate boating accident in the pond—Mark, a very indifferent swimmer, myself almost exhausted in a gallant attempt to hold him up.

And then he himself gave me the idea, he and Miss Norris between them, and so put himself in my hands; without risk of discovery, I should have said, had you not discovered me.

"We were talking about ghosts. Mark had been even more vain, pompous and absurd than usual, and I could see that Miss Norris was irritated by it. After dinner she suggested dressing up as a ghost and frightening him. I thought it my duty to warn her that Mark took any joke against himself badly, but she was determined to do it. I gave way reluctantly. Reluctantly, also, I told her the secret of the passage.

"There is an underground passage from the library to the bowling-green. You should exercise your ingenuity, Mr. Gillingham, in trying to discover it. Mark came upon it by accident a year ago. It was a godsend to him; he could drink there in greater secrecy. But he had to tell me about it. He wanted an audience, even for his vices.

"I told Miss Norris, then, because it was necessary for my plan that Mark should be thoroughly frightened. Without the passage she could never have got close enough to the bowling-green to alarm him properly, but as I arranged it with her she made the most effective appearance, and Mark was in just the state of rage and vindictiveness which I required. Miss Norris, you understand, is a professional actress. I need not say that to her I appeared to be animated by no other feeling than a boyish desire to bring off a good joke—a joke directed as much against the others as against Mark.

"He came to me that night, as I expected, still quivering with indignation. Miss Norris must never be asked to the house again; I was to make a special note of it; never again. It was outrageous. Had he not a reputation as a host to keep up, he would pack her off next morning.

"I comforted him, I smoothed down his ruffled feathers. She had behaved very badly, but he was quite right; he must try not to show how much he disapproved of her. And of course she would never come again—that was obvious. And then suddenly I began to laugh. He looked up at me indignantly.

"Is there a joke?" he said coldly.

I laughed gently again.

"'I was just thinking,' I said, 'that it would be rather amusing if you—well, had your revenge.'

"'My revenge? How do you mean?'

"'Well, paid her back in her own coin.'

"'Do you mean try and frighten her?'

"'No, no; but dressed up and pulled her leg a bit. Made her look a fool in front of the others.' I

"IS THERE A JOKE?" HE ASKED, COLDLY.

laughed to myself again. 'Serve her jolly well right.'

"He jumped up excitedly.

"'By jove, Cay!' he cried. 'If I could! How? You must think of a way.'

"I don't know if Beverley has told you about Mark's acting. He was an amateur of all the arts, and vain of his little talents, but as an actor he seemed to himself most wonderful. Certainly he had some ability for the stage, so long as he had the stage to himself and was playing to an admiring audience. As a professional actor in a small part he would have been hopeless; as an amateur playing the leading part, he deserved all that the local papers had ever said about him.

"And so the idea of giving us a private performance, directed against a professional actress who had made fun of him, appealed equally to his vanity and his desire for retaliation. If he, Mark Ablett, by his wonderful acting could make Ruth Norris look a fool in front of the others, could take her in, and then join in the laugh at her afterward, he would indeed have had a worthy revenge!

"'How Cay, how?' he said eagerly.

"'Well, I haven't really thought it out,' I protested 'It was just an idea.'

"He began to think it out for himself.

"'I might pretend to be a manager, come down to see her—but I suppose she knows them all. What about an interviewer?'

"'It's going to be difficult,' I said thoughtfully. 'You've got rather a characteristic face, you know. And your beard—'

"'I'd shave it off,' he snapped.

"'My dear Mark!'

"He looked away, and mumbled, 'I've been thinking of taking it off, anyhow. And besides, if I'm going to do the thing, I'm going to do it properly.'

"'Yes, you always were an artist,' I said, looking at him admiringly.

"He purred. To be called an artist was what he longed for most. Now I knew that I had him.

"'All the same,' I went on, 'even without your beard and mustache you might be recognizable. Unless, of course—' I broke off.

"'Unless what?'

"'You pretend to be Robert.' I began to laugh to myself again. 'By Jove!' I said, 'that's not a bad idea. Pretend to be Robert, the wastrel brother, and make yourself objectionable to Miss Norris. Borrow money from her, and that sort of thing.'

"'Robert,' he said. 'Yes. How shall we work it?'

"There was really a Robert, Mr. Gillingham, as I have no doubt you and the Inspector both discovered. And he was a wastrel and he went to Australia. But he never came to the Red House on Tuesday afternoon. He couldn't have, because he died (unlamented) three years ago. But there was nobody who knew this, save Mark and myself, for Mark was the only one of the family left, his sister having died last year. Though I doubt, anyhow, if she knew whether Robert was alive or dead. He was not talked about.

"For the next two days Mark and I worked out our plans. You understand by now that our aims were not identical. Mark's endeavor was that his deception should last for, say, a couple of hours; mine that it should go to the grave with him. He had only to deceive Miss Norris and the other guests; I had to deceive the world.

"When he was dressed up as Robert, I was going to kill him. Robert would then be dead, Mark (of course) missing. What could anybody think but that Mark had killed Robert? But you see how important it was for Mark to enter fully into his latest (and last) impersonation. Half-measures would be fatal.

"You will say that it was impossible to do the thing thoroughly enough. I answer again that you never knew Mark. He was being what he wished most to be—an artist. No Othello ever blacked himself all over with such enthusiasm as did Mark. His beard was going anyhow—possibly a chance remark of Miss Norbury's helped here. She did not like beards. But it was important for me that the dead man's hands should not be the hands of a manicured gentleman. Five minutes playing upon the vanity of the artist settled his hands. He let the nails grow and then cut them raggedly. 'Miss Norris would notice your hands at once,' I had said. 'Besides, as an artist—'

"So with his underclothes. It was hardly necessary to warn him that his pants might show above the edge of his socks; as an artist he had already decided upon Robertian pants. I bought them, and other things, in London for him. Even if I had not cut out all trace of the maker's name, he would have instinctively have done it. As an Australian and an artist, he could not have an East London address on his underclothes. Yes, we were doing the thing thoroughly, both of us; he as an artist, I as a—well, you may say murderer, if you like. I shall not mind now.

"Our plans were settled. I went to London on the Monday and wrote him a letter from Robert. (The artistic touch again.) I also bought a revolver. On the Tuesday morning he announced the arrival of Robert at the breakfast-table. Robert was now alive—we had six witnesses to prove it; six witnesses who knew that he was coming that afternoon. Our private plan was that Robert should present himself at three o'clock, in readiness for the return of the golfing-party shortly afterward.

"The maid would go to look for Mark, and having failed to find him, come back to the office to find me entertaining Robert in Mark's absence. I would explain that Mark must have gone out somewhere, and would myself introduce the wastrel brother to the tea-table. Mark's absence would not excite any comment, for it would be generally felt—indeed Robert would suggest it—that he had been afraid of meeting his brother. Then Robert would make himself amusingly offensive to the guests, particularly, of course, Miss Norris, until he thought that the joke had gone far enough.

"That was our private plan. Perhaps I should say that it was Mark's private plan. My own was different.

DENVER TRAFFIC COPS WILL BE ALL LIT UP

DENVER, Col., Dec. 22.—(United Press.)— Denver traffic officers are to be illuminated—not "lit up" in the general sense of the word, but at the same time lighted.

A new system for controlling traffic at crowded corners in Denver will be put into effect. The invention that of A. G. Paine, automobile man, consists of a large leather belt with a red light teries will be carried.

Wenever a traffic officer signals traffic to proceed east and west, for instance, his "fore and aft" will flash out red lights to warn all motorists.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir—Couldn't any man with a glass eye see that Peterborough is short of power. Any man working in a mill would know that for summers this dead town was tied up for want of power and how are you going to make a town without power? Who wants to hear people who don't seem to know even that much ailin' against Mr. Hall, why sure he'd make candy of them. Wester Ontario is humming, Eastern O rio is all dead, thanks to Hydro There isn't half the power needed Can't ye learn anything in this town but parks and bridges?

If we don't get our own power we'll have to divide up with other places and we're fast getting to be like Port Hope and Lindsay and other dead towns and the whole continent knows it and when we say to come here they say for what? Sure, ye have no power. Ye must be crazy.

Citizen.

MEMORIAL PARK.

To the Editor, Examiner:

Armour's Hill is the highest point near the city of Peterborough. To stand on the top of this hill an unparelleled view can be obtained of the City of Peterborough and the country for miles around. Situated near the world's largest lift lock, with the King George School built upon it, opposite this school is the modern Western Clock Co'y factory. This Hill promises to be either an eyesore to the city, or the city's greatest asset in the form of a Park. This site of 37 acres can now be purchased approximately speaking for Three Thousand Dollars, or, in other words, One Dollar tax in 30 years for each ratepayer. This opportunity should not be missed. The chance of obtaining it at so reasonable a price may not occur again. Should the people of Peterborough buy this ground to turn it into a Memorial Park the Ontario Government will supply all the trees necessary and send a man to supervise the planting of same. It is an ideal place for a natural toboggan slide for winter sports, which from a revenue may be derived by rental of toboggans, which should more than pay for its upkeep. The trees planted in clusters on the side of the hill have a splendid effect, and will make an ideal Memorial Park.

The cost is only $3,000, not $30,000, in fact less cost than one small residence, to take over a period of 30 years to pay it. This cost for a 37-acre park is negligible, considering that in a few years it will be in thriving part of the city. To secure this ground for the city would be good business, to neglect it will bring reproach upon our lack of vision. I would suggest, anyone not acquainted with Armour's Hill should take a trip over it, get on the top, and see as nice a view of this country as can be seen anywhere.

Thos. Tooms, M.L.A.

RIGHTEOUS MAN.

Mr. Editor:

There does not seem to be very much enthusiasm among the people concerning the coming election for mayor and council.

May I suggest a remedy or, at least, be a help we are told in "Holy Scripture," when the Righteous are in authority the people rejoice, so we may say when that Righteous man is absent from authority, the very opposite is sure to be the result, and such a condition is a calamity.

Now, sir, if on nomination night a man (not a politician), a man, of character, a man who lives above the fog of earth in the clear atmosphere of Righteousness, one who loves Honor and will not lie, one who rejects flattery and the bribe, who's conscience is not seared by association with evil, who is a terror to evildoers, if such a one is presented, not by his own choice, but by the people, I will support him. If not, I, with many others, will refuse to exercise our franchise and leave the old ship to float.

CHRISTMAS SNOW PUZZLES A CHILD FROM ARGENTINA

"Where Are These Fireworks and Warm Days?" Asks This Returned American.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 22.—What makes Christmas come in winter here?

It always came in summer before—the hottest part.

I can remember quite a while, for I'm 6 years old.

Last year, in La Argentina, where I was born, I saw Santa Claus. He was walking in the Plaza Mayor, in Buenos Aires, with a sign. He looked so hot, in a red coat, and a fur. I had on my summer dress. The asphalt was all soft.

ALICE STEWART.

I asked him, "Es usted San Nicolas?"

"Si, muchachita," he said, "que quiere usted?"

So I told him all the things I wanted and he promised — "Muy bien, hasta la natividad."

And the night before Christmas he brought the things. I found them in my stockings the next morning when I waked up, only some were so big they wouldn't go inside, so he piled them in a corner of the patio, and we shot firecrackers in the afternoon. My, but it was a hot day—the hottest that summer, people said. I don't see why it's so cold here the time Christmas comes.

Genevieve—she lives across the street from me—and Kenny, they think there are two Santa Clauses, and one goes to La Argentina and one comes here, but I think there's only one. Only I don't see how he gets so far so fast. It took us days and days.

ANCIENT ABUSES ARE DISCLOSED IN AUSTRIA

Debates Reform Bills Brings to Light Curious Practices.

VIENNA, Dec. 22.—(Associated Press).—Some curious abuses, survivals of ancient as well as modern outgrowths, have been disclosed in the parliamentary debates on the Reform bills. These measures are designed to fulfill the conditions on which the League of Nations is to undertake to find Austria foreign credits.

For instance it is asserted that some 20,000 institutions, both religious and secular, as well as many individuals enjoy salt doles, that is, free salt from the government monopoly. These are of very ancient oigin and bear curious titles, such as the "Salt of Grace," the "Dust Salt," the "Salt of Alms," the "Salt of God's Healing" and so on.

Then it has been disclosed that great numbers of free doles of wood or other fuel exist, also dating olden days of the monarchy.

The Minister for War confessed that obvious economies could reduce the army cost by 21 billion crowns a year without material reduction of personnel. The debates showed a superfluous number of officers in the army. In the Tyrol for instance, there are nearly two officers to each soldier, counting sergeants as officers.

The most serious disclosure, however, was the overmanned railway administration, Dr. Odehnal, the railway minister, admitting there were 19.4 employees for every kilometer, or five eighths of a mile.

A modern scandal also was revealed when it became known that the director general of the government map and lithographing bureau, who is also an owner or director in six other similar establishments privately owned, had closed down his shops and was doing private work in the government establishment, with government labor, and paying nothing in return.

A THOUGHT

Fear not thou; for I am with thee: Be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee, yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.—Isaiah 41:10.

No consecrated absurdity would have stood its ground in this world if the man had not silenced the objection of the child.—Mischelet.

JAPAN SEES DANGER IN THE FRENCH DELAY

Statesmen and Officials Are Daily Becoming More and More Worried Over Situation.

By Clarence Dubose
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

TOKYO (By Mail to the United Press.)—Japanese statesmen and officials are daily becoming more worried over France's delay in ratifying the naval reduction pacts of the Washington Conference.

Some say frankly that they were afraid the once seemingly great results of the conference might become a mockery, and the race for naval strength commence all over again, because of the course France has pursued.

Thirteen hulks of Japanese warships, dismantled partially and in some cases completely, are anchored in naval yards ready to be sunk or junked as soon as the treaty is ratified.

Construction upon four other great fighting ships was suspended by Japan months ago.

But the thirteen hulks could be remantled with guns and construction could be resumed upon the four uncompleted super-dreadnaughts.

It all depends upon what France does about the naval treaty.

The United Press has been told by responsible officials here that Japan would be very sympathetic to a proposal that America, Britain and Japan make a new agreement and carry out their original naval reduction commitments, in the event France rejects the treaty. But there is considerable fear here that if France does that England may not care to "carry on."

Meanwhile Japan is sitting tight, and wondering — and seeing that good care is taken of the thirteen dismantled and semi-dismantled hulks.

HER MARRIED LIFE

be kindly — Mr. Ryerson I mean — polite, always a gentleman, offering no advances that a father would not make to a daughter. I was lonely, friendless, practically an orphan as my own father had gone to the Canadian West. Mr. Ryerson was lonely too he said. Why he even introduced me as his daughter at a dinner party at the Fellowcraft Club.

"At the end of a month or so he suggested that the world might misconstrue my living there, and suggested we be married. He was not insistent at that time, but two months later he did, become insistent. He pointed out that he spent a great deal of money, although never at my solicitation or request, and that I owed to him everything I had. I did not love him. I married him. I do not know now how I brought myself to such a point.

"29 Days of Horror

"Our married life was 29 days, in length. It was 29 days of horror, of revelations that shook me to the very depth of my being. I emerged from that 29 days of hell bruised in body and soul. My arm and my back bore the marks of his blows, my mind the marks of his bitter, hateful words, and my soul the blackness that I cannot tell until the court hears the evidence in the action.

"Almost from the first he was jealous of everyone. If a man looked at me he would fly into a rage. At the time he was upbralding, he was teaching me to smoke and drink. I never knew the taste of liquor nor had smoked a cigaret until he taught me. Then came the O.T.A. that dreadful cult of love. He was a disciple of it he told me. He said I was the reincarnation of Cleopatra, and that he was the reincarnation of King Solomon. He talked by the hour of such madness. In between the attempts to force the teachings of the O.T.A. on me he beat me. He threw me across the room. He beat me once before my sister, until in terror, I ran into the street and slept all night beneath a porch.

Charges Frame-up

"Then came his attempts to frame me and make it appear I was more than interested in various people He used no discretion to these attempts even attempting to declare I was interested in Marwin Jamsed, a chauffeur employed by him, also a Hindu. Anyone who know him or ever talked to myself or the chauffeur instantly would know that such charge was nonsense. It would be as baesless as the hints I was interested in Maneck a student of journalism, formerly of the University of Michigan, a lecturer of repute and a man who has the friendship of many of the best-known educators and business men in the city who can stand for his honesty and integrity and sound character, which Ryerson tried his utmost to shatter.

"Since I left Mr. Ryerson he has been tireless in threatening me, in threatening my friends. I do not want his money— if he has any. I just want to be left alone, and to secure my freedom in peace. I am sorry all these things must come out, but what I have said is but a hint of revelations that will be made if he insists on trying to fight me. I am working now as a model, working long hours and I am continuing my usual life.

That is the story of Mazie Ryerson as told by herself.

Ryerson's Story

Ryerson, on the other hand, told how, through a spirit of philanthropy, he had reached to lift up a struggling artists model, who, after being placed on a pedestal of luxury and position as his wife, discarded him.

Mr. Ryerson declares his Hindu chauffeur, Marwen Jamshed, began to use a hypnotic influence over the girl even before marriage.

Many evenings, when we were at home this Hindu would ask to demonstrate this skill as a charmer," he said. "Some of the feats that he performed were marvelous and both Mazie and I were very much interested in him During many of these performances, he would make mysterious passes with his hands and say weird things, which made me suspicious he was trying to hypnotize Mazie.

"He later boasted to me that he had hypnotized her away from me and would keep up the hypnotic spell until I paid a certain price for her realese."

LITTLE THOUGHT FROM CANADIAN MINISTERS.

Not Consulted on Project to Change Name of the British Empire.

OTTAWA, December 22, Canadian Press — The Canadian ministers thus far appear to have given little thought to any proposal to change the name of the "British Empire," to "The British Commonwealth of Nations," a step which it was indicated in last night's despatch from New York was about to be formally taken.

That a proclamation making this change in name would be issued within ten days" was considered by them to be rather unlikely from the fact that the Dominions would be consulted before such a step was taken by the Home government.

BOOTLEGGERS' LIQUOR IS UNFIT TO DRINK.

WASHINGTON, December 22 (Special to The Examiner). — Prohibition Commissioner Haynes warns the people against the purchase of Christmas cheer from the bootleggers, and declares that 90 per cent. of such liquor is unfit to drink.

MR. J. J. MORRISON AND PROHIBITION

Mr. J. H. Burnham Congratulates the U. F. O. Secretary — Letter in Reply.

The following letter from Mr. J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U. F. O., expressed his opinion as a prohibitionist some days ago before the Templars of Toronto at their annual gathering. Mr. J. H. Burnham wrote him, congratulating him upon grasping what he regarded as the fundamental and dangerous principle underlying measures of force (prohibition) in matters that owe their innate strength to the educated good will of the people. "A nation that adopts force to inculcate morals or religion has faith in itself but not in God," Mr. Burnham contends. To the letter of congratulation, Mr. Morrison writes in answer as follows:

December 20th, 1922.

Mr. J. H. Burnham,
Peterborought, Ontario,
(188 Smith St. E.)

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your letter of the 7th instant and I am very grateful to you for your words of commendation concerning my remarks on the Temperance question. After speaking I expected severe criticism but it has not materialized and I have been surprised at the number of letters of approval I have received. When I made the remarks I earnestly felt that it was necessary; now I am more convinced than ever that it was. If we are to proceed as we are doing with the enforcement of legislation without the sword of public opinion there is nothing ahead but trouble and the falling down of the laws that are being imposed upon the people in this way. Temperance sentiment in the country was an evolution and made wonderful progress so long as we observed the laws of natural progress, but when once we leave these laws and resort to force and allow the sentiment of natural progress to lapse in the rising generation who are to enforce the law that they are not in sympathy with, then a revolution of principle is at hand and the system breaks down.

I thank you for your letter. It is well for people to understand one another and find out how closely they agree on these issues that are besetting everyday life.

Yours very truly,
J. J. MORRISON.

DR. H. P. WHIDDEN IS CHANCELLOR McMASTER.

Will Succeed Dr. McCrimmon, Who Resigned Some Months Ago.

TORONTO, December 22. Canadian Press. — The Senate and Board of Governors of McMaster University, yesterday selected Dr. Howard P. Whidden, LL.D., for the past ten years president of Brandon, Man., to fill the vacancy in the Chancellorship of the University due to the resignation some months ago of Dr. McCrimmon. He is a well known Canadian who has had a wide experience in ministerial educational and public affairs.

LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS

The following pathetic little letter was found in J. C. Turnbull Co.'s Santa Claus box this morning:

"Dec. 19, 1922.

"Dear Old Santy Claus—I don't expect to have you come to me this Xmas as my dear daddy is sick and mamma says she has enough to do to keep us in things to eat with what money she is making, so if you will be kind enough to put something in my stocking and not charge us, I would like it very much, and if not we will have to go without anything. I got your letter you rote us and thank you very much. It made us think you were right here, but I couldn't go up to see you, for it was too cold and my boots are not very good.

hiding behind the organ. The man got away and could not be traced when search was made for him.

A profesosr of the seminary also stated this morning that he had seen a man in the corridor between the church and seminary last night. The man seemed to try to hide and finally walked out.

Threatening letters were received recently by several members of the Quebec clergy, stating that the church would be set on fire and these letters will be produced at the enquiry which is to be started tomorrow morning.

HUGE FIRE LOSSES.

MONTREAL, Dec. 22.— (Canadian Press.) — Roman Catholic churchesm in the Province of Quebec have suffered fire losses in the last year conservatively estimated at $2,275,000. Roman Catholic institutions other than churches have been damaged to the extent of an additional $2,000,000 in the same riod.

In three instances at least church fires are suspected to h been of incendiary origin, and others they are unknown. Am the institutions the claim is fi advanced that three were bur through incendiarism, while eight the cause of fire is unkno

NORANT OF GOLD LACE, BUT COULD BUILD ROADS

Colonel MacKendrick Said What He Thought and Said It With Vigor —He Had His Way at Last.

By W. L. E.

COL. W. G. MacKendrick, who recently tendered his services as road expert with the British forces in the Near East, had to cut lot of red tape and override a great deal of opposition before he was able to put into operation those revolutionary methods of building military roads behind the lines during the great war which earned for him a colonelcy and the Distinguished Service Medal.

First of all, he had to convert the coterie of officers comprising the staff to the methods he had employed in road-building in Canada. For instance, it was the rule of the army engineers, when preparing the foundation for a road, to place the underlying large, flat stones in a vertical, instead of in a horizontal, position, as was Col. MacKendrick's practice in road-building. This might have been perfectly proper in a dry climate, but it didn't work in "Flanders Field," as was proved by the fact that the vertically-placed stones, under pressure of the heavily-laden military trucks, were driven deeply into the soft, moist soil, while the slush beneath was forced to the surface, thus destroying the roads. Military regulations not permitting Col. MacKendrick to change the system, he obtained the consent of the staff of the high command to appear before it for the purpose of discussing the matter. Now if there is one outstanding characteristic about Col. MacKendrick, it is his penchant for plain speaking. He says what he thinks, and says it with vigor. So when he faced the staff he introduced the subject something after this manner, according to the version of one who was present:

Col. W. MacKendrick.

"Gentlemen, I don't know what rank you occupy, for not being a military man I don't know one darned piece of gold lace from another. But having built roads from Halifax to Vancouver, I do know something about road-building. Furthermore, I know that your road-building methods behind these lines are wrong, and absolutely so."

As among the gold-laced officers present—although the outspoken colonel was unaware of it at the time—there were engineers of repute, his expressions of opinion were not altogether received with open arms. But before the conference closed all except two or three of the dozen officers present gave their concurrence to Col. MacKendrick's recommendations.

On another occasion he was ordered to construct a new road to circumvent one that was made impassable by the persistency with which it was being shelled by the enemy. Part of the proposed road ran through an extensive swamp, which he was instructed to make passable by filling in with material brought by motor trucks to the site. After surveying the site, Col. MacKendrick came to the conclusion that the method ordered was not only too costly—for the material would cost about a cent a pound laid down—but that a solid roadway could never be built in that way, while speed in construction was essential.

"Let me put in a foundation of planks," he urged the higher command, "and then I'll soon have a roadway for you."

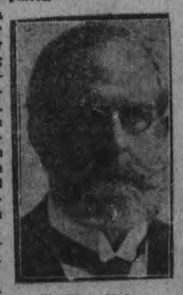
This being denied, filling operations began, but almost as fast as the material was dumped it was absorbed by the quicksand of the swamp. Just then, owing to the death of his son on the field of battle, Col. MacKendrick obtained a week's furlough, which he took advantage of to visit London and present his difficulty in respect to this particular piece of road-building to the authorities there. But even there his efforts were abortive until one day, meeting Sir Joseph Flavelle on the street, the latter, after listening to the burden of his complaint, took him direct to Sir Eric Geddes. That solved the problem. In a few days Col. MacKendrick had the desired planks, and the road was built in scheduled time.

Sir William's Trousers Made His Election Sure

Electorate Could Not Resist Sir William's Whimsical Acknowledgment of an Old Scotch Lady's Care.

IT was in 1882, just forty years ago, that Sir Wm. Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, in the interest of the Liberal party in North York, contested his first election. His opponent was Mr. Anderson.

Upon the eve of the election, excitement ran high throughout the riding, and, although there were then no automobiles or mor. modern means of conveyance, great crowds gathered in the various meeting places.



Sir Wm. Mulock.

It was just such a gathering that Sir William, then a very popular and a rising young barrister, addressed in the village of Bradford. He appeared upon the balcony of Bingham's hotel, which has since been burned. The initial cheering had scarcely subsided when an old Scotch lady, who could no longer restrain her enthusiasm, shouted: "Many a time have I mended your trousers, Mr. Mulock."

"Many a time I would have gone without any, had you not mended them, my dear woman," was Sir William's quick response. Needless to state he won the election.

CONCERNING CONCEIT.

A man who is completely wrapped up in himself is a bundle of conceit.

Once Mr. Burnaby's Hat Represented the Moon

Whether it Was Inhabited or Not Was a Question That Made Him Blush.

WITH the sleigh-bells jingling out a merry yuletide note, the snow sifting down in great soft flakes, and the jolly face of Santa Claus figuratively peeking around every corner like a giant elf, the setting was well adapted to put Mr. R. W. E. Burnaby, of U. F. O. fame, in his kindliest mood. Of course it was quite a long time ago, how long no one is supposed to enquire, and just where makes no difference, for Mr. Burnaby himself has been heard to tell the story in the same breath as he declares he has taught Sunday school more than once and is proud of it. Sufficient that it was the last day before the Christmas holidays, and that in front of him was a small class of kiddies to whom he was trying to teach a lesson in geography.

R. W. E. Burnaby.

"Now here is the globe," said Mr. Burnaby, pointing to the big ball revolving on its axis before the very eyes of the youngsters, "This, as you know, represents the world with its oceans and continents, its longitude and latitude. That ink bottle there . . . we'll take that to be the sun. It doesn't look just like a sun, does it? Of course not. But it will do for the purposes of my illustration."

By this time the seriousness of the children indicated that they were becoming deeply interested in the treatment which was to be given of the earth and its distant relatives. Mr. Burnaby proceeded to complete the trio of examples. Picking up a friendly old fedora which he wore he placed it in proper position and said:

"Now we'll take my hat for the third object. Suppose we say, just for the sake of vizualising things, that it represents the moon . . ."

Just then a hand shot up in the air and a freckled, straight-haired boy who generally washed most of his face every Sunday caught the teacher's eye.

"Yes, Teddy, what is it?" enquired Mr. Burnaby.

"Please, sir," asked the lad, "is it inhabited?"

It is said that Teddy found a huge bag of candy at the foot of his bed Christmas morning with the initials "R. W. E. B." on a card. The joke was worth it.

Five Hundred Suitors

IF the number of proposals a woman receives are any indication of her popularity, then Dr. Amy Kaukonen is the most popular woman in the United States, for 500 men have asked her to marry them since she became mayor of Fairport, Ohio, last January. Miss Kaukonen is only 24 years old, and the photograph shows how she looked in her hotel when she arrived at New York this week. She was elected on a dry ticket, and she has kept Fairport bone-dry ever since. She also acts as police judge, and all bootleggers brought before her are sent out of the country.

A POET'S SCHOOL BOOKS

DURING his school days at Westward Ho, Mr. Rudyard Kipling often sold some of his school books to an old dame, then keeping a kind of curiosity shop at Bideford. She related that many people had been to her shop in after years to try to buy Kipling's old books, hoping to find rhymes scribbled in the margins—"and how put out they were to hear I had rubbed all his scribbling out!"

"No," I says, "Master Kipling was always fair to me, and he may have written things not so good as those he has sold since. I wasn't going to have 'em poking their fun at him."

CLOTHES AND THE MAN

"LLOYD GEORGE needs a new press," remarks the "Tailor and Cutter" in one of its recent leaders. Of course, the reference is to his notoriously shabby trousers:

"Mr. Bonar Law is not much better, and as for Mr. Churchill," continues the writer, "it would be unfair to drag him from his room and discuss his dressing-gown or pyjamas. We cannot, however, resist a surmise whether he has added a nightcap to his list of head-gear."

Only Labor ranges from rags to riches.

A Blasted Romance

The Link Between the Home Rulers and the Sinn Fein.

THIS is the latest photograph of Governor-General Timothy Healy of Ireland. It was taken in the garden of his home in Dublin a few hours after his appointment to his high office, while he was chatting amiably with a Free State trooper. In the last few years Healy has been a sort of link between the old constitutional methods of the Home Rulers and the revolutionary Sinn Feiners.

Many a Citizen of Toronto Owes His First Attack of the Colic to R. J.'s Generosity

There Was the Case of a Green Street Car Conductor Who Was Promoted Because He Refused to Let Nobody Travel "on His Face."

POPULAR, jovial, R. J., better known as "Bob" Fleming, four times and possibly five times mayor of Toronto, has for more years than it is polite to mention been the city's Falstaff. He has been the centre of gravity for innumerable jests. Whenever there was a good joke unclaimed, it naturally gravitated to Mr. Fleming. Probably he himself at this date cannot tell truth from fiction in the mass of merry legend that has accumulated around him.

Some of the early stories about him show his quickness of judgment and kindness of heart. The late Controller Hubbard delighted to tell of his first glimpse of "Bob." He was bargaining with a farmer for a load of hay, in the slow and leisurely manner of the early days of barter and chaffer, when up came a young stripling, who in a twinkling went him a dollar a ton better and secured the coveted prize, the only load on the market. "Who is that?" said he, turning sadly away. "That's Bob Fleming," was a bystander's reply. "There is a young man who will make his mark," added Mr. Hubbard, little thinking how true a prophet he was.

R. J. Fleming.

Later on, Mr. Fleming turned the profit from that load of hay into an apple orchard. Every autumn, he flung the gate wide open and said to all the urchins of "Cabbage Town": "Boys, have all the apples you want." They may have got less romance than if they had been allowed to "hook" them, but they certainly got more apples. Many a now prominent citizen of Toronto owes his first attack of colic to the generosity of Bob Fleming.

Somewhere back in the same period, Mr. Peter Ryan states that "Bob" used often to return home with nothing between his jacket and skin, so often did he give away his shirt to friends in difficulties.

He never gave away a friend either. Once, when he was alderman, a certain newspaper now unfriendly to him was boosting him vigorously for mayor. Mr. H. S. Howland, mayor at that time, was far from pleased with this, and suspected R. J. of being responsible for certain leakages of city hall state secrets to this same newspaper. Once he thought he "had the goods" on Bob and taxed him openly with it before witnesses. "It is perfectly natural that a newspaper should want to support me," said Mr. Fleming, with his famous smile. "It is also perfectly natural that I should give them a little news in return for their good will." Mayor Howland snatched eagerly at this implied confession. "Then you admit," said he, angrily, "that you gave information to ——?" (here he named the newspaper). "Oh, no," said Bob, in meek surprise. "I was referring to the Christian Guardian."

R. J. has always been an unruffled man, slow to take offense. Once, when manager of the street railway, he tried to beat his way with a green conductor who did not know him. The conductor shoved the box belligerently under his nose. "I never pay a fare," said R. J. "I always travel on my face." "Your face isn't 'fare' enough for me," said the conductor. "Come across." So R. J. solemnly came across, but the next day sent for him and promoted him.

WONDERFUL VITALITY AT EIGHTY-FOUR,

President of E. B. Eddy Company Goes to Bed With the Hens, Gets Up With the Roosters, and Begins Work at 7 a.m.—Lives in His Work.

IF you were eighty-four years old and bountifully blessed with this world's goods would you go to work at seven every morning and stay on the job until the whistle blows at five in the evening?

Praps not, but George H. Millen, the octogenarian president and general manager of the E. B. Eddy Co., Hull, and thereby the incumbent of one of the biggest executive positions in Canadian industry, makes such a day's work a rule of his business activities.

As the supreme head of the gigantic concern and various other industries still associated with the name of the late E. B. Eddy, Mr. Millen sets a practical example in application to work to the thousands of his employes, who are turning out one hundred and twenty million matches, as well as considerably over one hundred tons of paper, including one million paper bags every working day.

G. H. Millen.

It seems safe to venture that Mr. Millen is the only man in Canada of his age and position, who almost vies with the milkman in starting his day's duties early and puts in a full day, as he does.

Why does he do it? Because loves his labor and the association with the twenty-five hundred or more workers under his control.

Despite his four score and four years Mr. Millen enjoys wonderful vitality which he attributes in a large degree to "going to bed with the hens and getting up with the "roosters" for he retires at about nine-thirty o'clock every night.

Mr. Millen has been with the company for fifty-six years and attained his present exalted position nine years ago.

ANOTHER ONE FOR MARGOT

THOUGH Mr. Asquith was receiving congratulations on his seventieth birthday last week, it is difficult to think of him among the septuagenarians. He is telling all his friends that he never felt better or stronger in his life. All the same, he has aged a bit in appearance of late. The wicked are saying that the change began to be noticeable just about the time that "Margot's" first book of reminiscences came out!—London Opinion.

The Insult Indirect

"MARTHA, you'll have to do better, or I shall give you notice," said the mistress to her new maid.

"But I'm doing my best, mum," Martha protested.

"Yesterday afternoon you insulted a friend of mine."

"Why, mum——!"

"When Mr. Greening called for me with his golf clubs, you slammed the door in his face."

"Golf clubs, mum?" said Martha. "Why, I thought he was an umbrella mender!"—London Opinion.

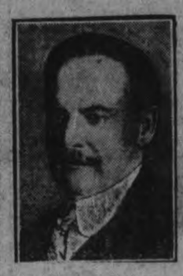
Sir George's Christmas Wishes to Operator "A"

Canadian Pacific Chief Overlooked the Breach of Regulations in Respect to the Sentiment.

THE day before Christmas it is the usual custom for railway officials to receive and send complimentary telegrams, containing the season's greetings and good wishes for the coming year.

A telegraph operator whose mind ran from the sublime to the ridiculous was receiving a number of these "well wishing and congratulatory telegrams" addressed to G. J. Bury (now Sir George), who was at that time vice-president and general manager of western lines Canadian Pacific Railway.

The operator turned over the corner of the telegram and wrote with a lead pencil, "These are my sentiments, too, Operator 'A'." The vice-president's office was located in the same building, and in a short time the door to the telegraph room darkened and there stood Sir George himself looking around the room. He went over to the chief in charge, and said, "Which is Operator 'A'?"



Sir Geo. Bury.

The chief, pointing to the guilty operator, replied, "There he is, Mr. M——."

The operator could hear every word that was spoken, and now realized that he had broken one of the rules of privacy of telegrams, as well as taken liberties with one of the biggest officials on western lines, one who would tolerate no "monkey business." He almost collapsed; and, if there had been any way of getting out, would have made a run for it.

But Sir George went over to him and said: "I want to shake hands with you, Mr. M—. Thank you for your kind wishes, and I hope you will have a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year."

Sir George lived up to his reputation that no detail ever escaped him, no odds how trivial. He was a great railroad man, and will never be forgotten out west, and especially by Operator "A."

Two Old Friends Meet Again

DR. JAMES L. HUGHES, Canadian educationalist and former chief inspector of Toronto public schools, who has his back partly turned here, is talking to his friend, Sir Henry Gamley, the great Scottish sculptor, in Edinburgh. Sir Henry's name was in the news recently when his statue of the late King Edward VII. was unveiled at Edinburgh. Every time that Dr. Hughes leads his party of teachers to Europe, he takes them to visit Sir Henry's studio. This is a picture taken just outside the studio this fall before 136 teachers and Dr. Hughes bade good-bye.

SHAW'S WITTY REPLY

SO many stories are current concerning Mr. Bernard Shaw's alleged curtness in declining dinner invitations—he is, of course, a vegetarian—that the following comes as a welcome change.

Recently a great London lady asked him rather suddenly to her house to dine, and added an apology begging him to excuse her for giving so short a notice "to the most engaged man in London."

"The most engaged man in London is very glad to dine with the most engaging woman," was the witty reply of the author of "Blanco Posnet."

A PRIMA DONNA'S BATH SONG

A GOOD story is told by a reporter who went to interview Mme. Tetrazzini one morning. He was informed that the prima donna was in her bath. The servant went to tell her mistress of the reporter's arrival and received this reply: "It is very good of him to come, but it is too early. I am in my bath. But if he will stand there I will sing to him."

And to the accompaniment of splashing Mme. Tetrazzini entertained the caller with a ballad!

ONE TIME MR. ROWELL JUST TOUCHED THE BELL

But Former President of the Council Is an Orator Whose Gifted Tongue Never Fails.

SOMETIMES praise, no matter how well directed, fails to ring the bell.

Hon. Newton Rowell is one of those orators whose gifted tongue can invariably be relied upon to extricate its owner from trying situations. But once upon a time—and not so long ago, either—it was nip and tuck whether or not that gifted tongue would take the count, and all because certain laudatory remarks of the minister's, though ably put and well aimed, failed to draw the "bull's eye" signal.

The time was the summer of 1918, the place, a Witley reserve mess, and the occasion, a farewell dinner to a prominent Canadian general who was retiring from the service to engage in business in old London. Hon. Newton Rowell, who had just returned from a visit to the Canadian corps sports, at Tinques, in France, was a distinguished guest at the general's table. Eventually, as anticipated, he rose to his feet to address the gathering, the spirit of which, by this time, had been elevated to dizzy altitudes through the application, generally, of treatment since branded by the O.T.A. as obsolete—"peut etre."

Hon. N. W. Rowell.

At one table sat a little Cockney captain—not Cockney in the sense of being attached to an English regiment (for, quite the contrary, he had been one of two surviving officers of a western Ontario unit, that day at Courcelette), but thoroughly Cockney in the sense of belief that the Guards ranked heads and shoulders above all other fighting representations on the front. This little captain was doing his best to give conscientious audience to Hon. Mr. Rowell's address, but someone was constantly pushing those tall, spindly glasses his way—and—well——

Hon. Mr. Rowell, with reference to his recent trip to France, was saying (something of this order):

"And I said to this British general: 'How do the Guards and Canadians compare?' And he, thinking it over, replied: 'Well, for a hard, rearguard action, like the retreat from Mons, I'd take the Guards because of the splendid discipline and traditions they have inherited. But for a deadly, paralyzing blow, give me the Canadians because of their greater resourcefulness and initiative.'

"And later on (Mr. Rowell talking) I heard this British general talking to a companion in rank. And he said: 'I had a rather pertinent question put me a while back.' Said the second general: 'What was it?' Whereupon No. 1 explained the particular question in detail, summing up by enquiring No. 2's frank opinion.

"'Why, I'd take the Canadians in both cases,' said the second British general.

A perfect storm of applause! Hon. Newton Rowell smiled broadly. He had registered. But had he?

Far down the room the little Cockney captain had sprung to his feet, cheeks flaming. His Guards ridiculed like that? Eh, what? He'd say not. Then like whip cracks his words stung that crowded room to quiet.

"It's all d——d rot. You don't know what you're talking about, man!"

Silence! And a lot more silence.

Hon. Mr. Rowell brought to his command all the diplomacy and tact he could muster. Very gracefully he smoothed over and ironed out the kinks of this very trying situation. And everyone breathed freely. But not until the fiery Cockney captain had been "shown the air."

The Canadian statesman went on talking. And over their cups the diners soon forgot the incident. But out in one of the alleyways between the huts, one of the two surviving officers of a famous fighting unit, that day, at Courcelette, gnashed his teeth and tore his hair and spat contemptuously toward a brilliantly lighted mess room, and alternately wept and sang something about "The Guards—God bless 'em."

A SAINT IN THE SLUMS

NO romance of fiction is more wonderful than the story of Alice Hughes, the daughter of Thomas Hughes, who wrote "Tom Brown's Schooldays."

She has given up a life of comfort and luxury to go and live in Whitechapel, where she devotes her time and fortune to the London poor. A frail, delicate woman, she has made every possible sacrifice for those less fortunate than herself.

She has been called "The Saint in the Slums," and she has certainly earned the title. Everyone within miles of her humble dwelling in Blackwall Buildings loves and respects her, as indeed they have cause to do. She never wears a hat because she says so many of her friends cannot afford one. In the same spirit she does everything. Her clothes are so shabby that people often press alms upon her, to be astonished at her reply: "Thank you, I am rich and don't need them."

The Heart of Lothair

THE late Marquis of Bute—the "Lothair" of Disraeli—had his heart conveyed by sea, in the custody of his eldest and favorite daughter, from Scotland to the Mount of Olives, at Jerusalem, for entombment.

The heart of King Robert Bruce—Scotland's national hero—after the strangest vicissitudes in connection with a vain attempt of his knight, Black Douglas, to convey it to the Holy Land, in fulfilment of a vow by that monarch, to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, was brought back from Spain, and lies buried in the now ruined abbey of Melrose, the "Kennequhair" of Sir Walter Scott's story of "The Abbot."—Answers.

Certainly a Dear Friend

THE junior clerk sought out his employer and timidly addressed him.

"Could I have a fortnight's leave of absence, sir, to attend the wedding of a friend?"

"It must be a dear friend for you to want all that time?" inquired the "boss," sarcastically.

"Well, after the wedding, sir, she—she'll be my wife!"—Pearson's.

TOMMY GIBBONS MAY HAVE GO AT JACK DEMPSEY

Tommy Says There Will Be No Trouble About Terms—Just Get Dempsey to Sign.

N.Y. PROMOTER.

ST. PAUL, December 22 (Canadian Press). — Tommy Gibbons, the local heavyweight, who recently outpointed Billy Miske in ten rounds, has received an offer from a New York promoter for a match with Jack Dempsey, it became known here yesterday. Gibbons was asked to state the terms he would ask.

"If Dempsey can be induced to enter the ring with me, there will be no squabble over terms, so far as I am concerned," Gibbons said. "Any date suits me. All that is necessary is to get Dempsey's signature."

EIGHT TEAMS ENTERED IN CITY BILLIARD LEAGUE

Eight teams have already been entered in the City Billiard League and an interesting contest is anticipated for the Gordon Cup. This trophy was won last year and is now held by the Sons of England who will have two teams in the running for this winter's schedule. The following teams have entered: G.W.V.A. (two teams); Sons of England, (two teams); C.P.R. (one team); Quaker Oats, (one team); A.O.F., (one team); DeLaval, (one team).

LIVELY CORPSE IS BACK IN THE RING

Jack Wolfe Was Given Up For Dead and Became a World's Champion Six Months Later.

TORONTO, Dec. 22. — Junior featherweight champion Jack Wolfe, who will swap polthogues with Benny Gold at the Coliseum next Tuesday night, is a living testimonial to the fallacy of the adage, "They never come back." Wolfe is a veteran of twelve years of ring campaigning, and has won some of the most important victories of his career after physicians had said that he was doomed to spend his life in an arm-chair.

Last December Wolfe was run down by an automobile. Specialists who examined him said his death could be expected momentarily. Later they declared that he might live, but he would be a helpless cripple for life.

Three months after he left the hospital, however, Wolfe started training. In six short months Jack has worked his way from the pugilistic graveyard to the very top of the bantamweight and featherweight heaps. He is recognized as champion of the 122-pound class by virtue of a fifteen-round victory over Joe Lynch, earned at the Madison Square Garden a month or so ago. His victories over Lynch, Pete Herman, Kid Williams, Joe Burman, Danny Brush, Charlie Beecher, Pal Moore, Midget Smith and Frankie Jerome have made him the leading bantamweight contender, too.

And this is the boy Benny Gold has his chance for a championship against.

TORONTO GIRL WILL DEFEND HER TITLE

Miss Gladys Robinson Entered For Middle-Atlantic Skating Championships.

NEWBURGH, N.Y., Dec. 22.— Entries for the Middle Atlantic amateur outdoor speed skating championships here New Year's day closed yesterday. Sufficient entries are in to indicate that the meet will bring together the greatest galaxy of exponents of the steel blade ever competing in this country. More than a dozen title holders will participate, among them: Joe Moore, of New York City, international indoor champion; Eddie Gloster of Toronto, for four years Ontario champion; Charles Jewstraw, of Lake Placid, New York state champion; Duke Donovan of St. Paul, winner of the silver skates derby at Lake Placid last year; Al. Neufer, Cleveland champion; William Steinmetz of Chicago, internationa champion; Paul Frosman of New York city, eastern and metropolitan champion. Two of the leading title holders will compete in the ladies' events namely, Miss Gladys Robinson of Toronto, international champion, and Miss Elsie Muller of Hastings-on-Hudson, national champion. Fully one hundred speed skaters of this country and Canada will be entered in the races. The meet will include the second Joseph F. Donoghue memorial race, a three-mile event, the winner of which is awarded a diamond medal and in addition has his name inscribed on the $500 Donoghue memorial placque. Joe Moore of New York last year won this coveted honor.

PEACE BETWEEN MINORS AND MAJORS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(United Press).—Most, if not all of the points at issue now between the major and the minor leagues ought to be settled next winter.

If the major leagues hold a joint meeting in Chicago, the minors have agreed to hold their annual session there at the same time.

Commissioner Landis said at the Louisville meeting that he intended to alternate the annual joint meetings of the National and American League meetings between New York and Chicago, which would give it to Chicago next year.

Several points are at issue now, the draft, of course, being of most moment to the major leagues and the players and option limit interesting to most of the little fellows.

"If the major leagues would only come to us and talk real business instead of trying to bluff and bully us, it could be all settled," a prominent American Association Club owner said at Louisville.

"We are firm in the stand for what we think are our rights and we are going to stick to them as long as the major talks of boycott, black lists and other silly threats. However, if the majors would give in a little, so would we."

If Commissioner Landis ever gets them in session together, it's a cinch they will both be reasonable and they ought to be in session next winter.

The bigger clubs of the minors do not want the option limit increased. They are finding fault now with the present system which they claim allows too many players scattered throughout the bush leagues with major league strings on them.

"We were going along for the pennant into the last quarter last season, when a major league club grabbed two of our best players that we had under option and we finished third instead of first," a manager said.

Other owners and managers take the stand that the majors might as well be allowed to have two hundred out under option if they want them, because they'll get around any limit that is placed upon them.

One major league scout, who does a great deal of travelling, said that the St. Louis Cardinals, with three minor league farms, had access to about 200 players—so many that the club didn't have time to devote sufficient attention to the Cards.

* * *

Meeting of the salary question is another matter in which the minors are looking to the majors for help. Independent leagues, three or four of which are flourishing around the middle-west, offering salaries that most of the minors can't afford to pay, are hardest problem the minors have to face.

Walter Hapgood, of the Rochester-International League Club, suggested at Louisville that organized baseball take back all the ineligible players in the independent leagues and that the leagues themselves would then be willing to come in and operate under the rules of organized baseball.

WINNIPEG DECLINES CHAMPIONSHIP MEET

WINNIPEG, December 22 (Canadian Press).—Deciding that the time was not opportune, Manitoba Golf Association, after considering the proposal from every angle, has declined the invitation from the Canadian Golf Association to hold the Dominion open championship in Winnipeg next summer, according to announcement made here yesterday.

Owing to the small attendance from the East at the championship tournament here in 1920, it was felt that it would be even more difficult to secure representatives from among the Eastern Canadian professionals for 1923.

TROPHIES PRESENTED TO THE BASEBALL CHAMPIONS

Banquet Held Last Evening For Members of the C.G.E. and Maple Leaf Players.

A GOOD SEASON.

About sixty baseball fans and leaders in athletic activities for this city gathered at the Empress hotel last evening to do honour to Peterborough's two O.B.A.A. championship teams. Both the C.G.E. team, Intermediate champions, and the Maple Leafs Midget champions, were present in full force.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, president of the P.A.A.A., presided and acted as toast master for the occasion. After a banquet fitting to be set before champions, the toast master introduced the various speakers. In his opening remarks he said that the gathering had been called to do honor to Peterborough's two championship teams and that it was the first time in the history of the city that two provincial championships had been won in one branch of sport. The fact that they had won two titles of the four they went after showed that Peterborough was producing some of the best baseball players in the country. In fact, he said, he believed Peterborough was the best baseball town in Ontario, for with every village and town taking part in some baseball activity, two championships had been brought here, a bid had been made for the third that scared the wits out of the ultimate winners and in the fourth case the Toronto team had been put out of the running and some pretty strong teams have been developed in the Queen city.

He said he felt that the whole of Peterborough was behind the boys and girls of the city in their efforts for clean and wholesome sports. He was sorry the council had not seen fit to chip in and help give the winners a good time, but when that body had failed to take any action in the case the U.A.A.A. had taken up the question and the banquet of last evening resulted.

He admonished the present champions to do all in their power to keep all lines of sport clean and honest for those who will follow. The players of to-day have had the support of the players of yesterday, and it is up to them to hand this support on to the players of to-morrow. In conclusion he congratulated both the teams and their managements for the work which had been done during the season and which had resulted in championships.

Toast to C.G.E.

R. M. Glover in proposing the toast to the Intermediate Champions, told of some of the obstacles that the C. G. E. team had had to overcome in the early part of their schedule. Efforts had been made to have them disrupt part of their playing machine and he was glad that these efforts had not succeeded. He felt that the citizens of Peterborough and the sporting public generally gave great credit to the C.G.E. team for coming out victorious in the Intermediate section after having made numerous attempts to gain the senior honours. Their conduct had, he said, been exemplary, both on and off the field and had been a distinct encouragement to the youngsters of the city to play a clean and manly game.

He expressed a hope that all the sports of the city should ultimately come under one head, but said he realized this could not be accomplished in one day.

McFadden Replies.

H. T. McFadden, in replying to the toast proposed by Mr. Glover, expressed his thanks to the P.A.A.A. for the aid that organization had given during the season, especially in the matter of financial aid. He said that some other revenues had since been received and the C.G.E. team would now be able to pay back the P. A. A. A. a little of what had been freely given at a time when it was needed. He also thanked the officers and executive of the Y.M.C.A. team for the assistance rendered during the city league schedule and had a word of praise for the officers of the city league.

Toast to Midgets.

In proposing the toast to the Midget champions, Joseph Picard said that he wished Alex Kay could have been present to perform that pleasant duty. He paid a great tribute to the manner in which the boys had conducted themselves throughout the whole schedule and designated them as "all good little sports."

Charles Curtis, manager of the team, replied on their behalf. He said that nearly all the players had taken part in the school league games before the midget series opened and had consequently gone right into the series without training. The team had gone through the whole season without using a single signal. In the pinches they had to use their heads and their baseball sense and had as a result come out on top. From his experience he could say that without a single exception they were a good gentlemanly bunch of lads. A great measure of their success, he said, was due to the aid received from many of the citizens, including Lou LeBarr, Jake Solomon, Al Heckman, Ward Patterson and many others.

Trophies Presented.

The Fowler Cup, for the city league championship in the intermediate series was then presented to the C.G.E. team by Jack Sullivan. As this is the third year in succession that the cup has been won by the Electricians, it now becomes their property. Each member of the team was also presented with a medal donated by the Spaulding company.

The Warne Cup for the city Midget championship was also presented by Mr. Sullivan and with it also went individual medals for each player from the Spaulding company.

The presentation of the O.B.A.A. trophies were made jointly by Jake Solomon and Ward Patterson. It was explained that the individual medals for the Midget O. B. A. A. champions had not arrived and would have to be presented at a later date.

In presenting the cup to the Intermediate champions, Mr. Solomon expressed his regrets that the president and secretary of the Provincial organization could not be present, but the holiday season had made it impossible for them to get off for the occasion.

He spoke of the great boost the two championship had been to the city for it had not only brought the name of the city well to the fore, but had shown that the young men and boys of the city were a good live aggregation and the older members who had looked after the management and matters of organization were right on the job. The Intermediate champions, he said, had a hard fight to gain their honours, for there are more intermediate teams playing in the province than there are senior. It was hard work and good playing he said, that enabled them to defeat the Toronto team on their own grounds.

The individual medals were presented by Ward Patterson, who told of some of the difficulties that had been overcome to obtain these trophies and said that this was the third time he had been present at the presentation of this cup to the championship team. He complimented the members of the team both on their playing ability and for their conduct both on and off the field. He said that he regretted that some member of the sub-committee was not presetn to explain some of the obstacles that had been thrown in the way of the Peterborough team espceially in the number of long trips that had been ordered and urged that every effort be made to see that the teams east of Toronto had a member on this committee next season.

Doug Loomis, Frank Convery and Don Loucks also spoke briefly, congratulating the two championship teams. Mr. Loucks expressed his appreciation of the work done by the umpires in the city league series and their efforts to make the city baseball a success.

During the evening a number of radio selections were heard from Schenectady, N.Y.

The Champions.

The members of the championship teams were:

C.G.E.—P. Gorham, manager; R. Ross, M. Frost, C. McElroy, H. Corrin, F. Barrie, W. A. Jackson, G. Helson, L. Rose, E. Legon, J. McCarney, A. Primeau and F. Campbell.

Maple Leafs — Charles Curtis, manager; Charles Bradley, Albert Delahaye, Arthur Sowden, Raymond Hunter, Harold Franks, Harold Delahaye, Fred Thirnbeck, Norman Elliott, James Johnson, Jerry McGill, Jack Hall, Oswald Bannon, Fred Wolff, Gordon Pogue and Melville McCall.

Sisler Robs Cobb of His High Honor

NEW YORK, December 22 (Canadian Press). — George Sisler, of the St. Louis Americans, and not Ty Cobb, is entitled to recognition as holder of the highest batting average in the history of the American League, examination yesterday of official statistics revealed.

The Detroit manager's mark of .420, made in 1911, has been accepted generally as the League's high mark, while official records for 1922 credited Sisler with an average of .419.

Analysis of the two records, however, shows that Cobb's actual percentage in 1911 was .41962, whereas Sisler's mark for the past season, carried out the same number of decimal places, was .41979, thus giving the Browns' first-sacker a margin of .00017.

RULES FOR TENNIS SLIGHTLY CHANGED

Action is Taken at London Conference to Standardize Rules and Regulations.

REST PERIODS.

LONDON, December 22 (Canadian Press). — Representatives of all the principal tennis-playing nations meeting here, agreed yesterday to the standardisation of the rules of the games.

The American standard of required resiliency in the balls was also adopted. Heretofore the governing body of no other nation has made a specific rule as to resiliency, but only as to size and weight.

The U.S. provision for a rest period after the third set in men's matches and after the second set in women's, it was decided, shall hereafter be universally followed in international contests. The various nations may, however, modify this rule for purely domestic matches.

Up to the present the British have not allowed rest periods, and critics have complained that this resulted in stamina being more important than skill in long and close court battles.

A new international foot fault rule was adopted, and this, also, is substantially the same as that effective in the United States.

The unified rules agreed upon yesterday must be ratified by the individual governing bodies of the various nations.

The delegate adopted the British standard of size and weight, which varies but slightly from that obtaining in the United States.

Wish them Merry Christmas
by Long Distance

More prized than any Christmas gift—yet costing no more than a Christmas card—Long Distance will carry the very warmth and personality of your Christmas greetings into the most distant homes.

The farther away good friends are, the more they will appreciate the surprise of hearing the well-remembered voice.

Obey that impulse! On this Day of Days, draw near to those who are distant. If only for a few minutes, be actually with them where they live—in the very room with them—wishing them "Merry Christmas."

Long Distance alone makes it possible!

After 8.30 p.m. the evening rate on Station-to-Station calls is about one-half the day rate.

ORPHANS WERE GUESTS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Pupils of Sacred Heart Church Gave Two Successful Christmas Entertainments.

The children of St. Vincent's Orphanage were the guests of the pupils of the Sacred Heart school at a Christmas tree party in the basement of the church of the Sacred Heart yesterday afternoon. Santa Claus had a gift for every one of the 450 children, hosts and guests, who were in high glee at the visitation of their old friend and his thoughtfulness for every last one of his gleeful admirers. The arrangements included a short programme, and the details of the reception to the children from the orphanage did not overlook the supplying of taxis for the trip from the north end of the city to the south and return.

On Wednesday evening the pupils of the Sacred Heart school gave a Christmas concert which was largely attended by their parents and other friends. The children contributed the main programme, assisted by Ethel and Harold Armstrong in a duet, Miss Louise Letellier piano solo, vocal solo by Miss Minnie Allen and piano solo by Miss Mary Halpin. The ladies who helped materially in the success of both events were Mrs. Herb Duffus, Mrs. Dennie, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Albina Gordon and Miss Mary Halpin.

PUBLICITY FOR THE TRENT CANAL ROUTE.

Five Hundred Boat Owners and Captains Will Receive an Illustrated Booklet.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., has obtained a list of all the boat owners and captains of the boats from the United States which went through the Chambly Canal during the navigation season of 1922. This is being used by the Chamber of Commerce to circularise all the owners in the hope of inducing these men who are on holiday trips to come through the Trent Canal next summer.

The list comprises nearly 500 names, and it is the intention of the Chamber of Commerce to send to each one of the boat owners illustrated booklets of the Trent Canal and Peterborough City in order to give Peterborough a personal interest to the boat-owning public.

WHY COPPER IS BEST

Copper wire is used on radio sets for the same reason that it is used in other electric systems. It is a good conductor of electricity and has less resistance than iron, steel or galvanized wire.

BRITISH EMPIRE CEASES TO EXIST

Substituted by a British Commonwealth of Nations.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(Canadian Press).—That the British Empire has ceased to be and that the British Commonwealth of Nations has taken its place, will be officially announced in London within the next ten days, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. News to that effect, he says, was learned in Washington last night. "This plan," continued the correspondent, "which has been under consideration between Downing Street and the Dominions for more than a year, has been brought to a head, according to information reaching here, by the Irish Free State, which will be part of the British Commonwealth of Nations, but not a Dominion as Canada and Australia have been Dominions.

"Intimations of a new status of the British Empire were given a year ago during the Armament Limitation Conference, but had been almost forgotten. It is announced now that the plan had been completed and all negotiations with the Dominions satisfactorily consummated."

TAYLOR, TURNER AND GAINEY

adding any expense that could be avoided. Business and industry had all the burdens they could carry at the present time, and this applied to the people's business in the affairs of the Council.

"It has always been the custom for the Mayor to have a second term," he concluded, "and I'm going to give them a chance to pass judgment on my record in the Council."

Ald. Gainey was not present, and neither were any of the proposed candidates for the Board of Education.

Mr. Robert Hicks.

Mr. Hicks said that the affairs of the Utilities Commission, of which he had been a member for the last nine years, had been prominently before the public during the past two or three years.

"During that time I believe I have acquired some knowledge of the workings of two of Peterborough's largest institutions. They were well founded by those who preceded us, and I believe we have successfully carried out the work that was so well laid. I don't think there is any public utility in any town or city of the country in better condition. The statement of the Waterworks Department shows profits of $4,700 for the first ten months of this year, and we expect that the total profit for the year will be about $7,000. The electrical department for ten months shows more than $6,000, and we hope that the final statement for the year will improve those figures."

Referring to the filtration plant, Mr. Hicks said that it had been ordered by the votes of the ratepayers. A few hundred had voted against it, and perhaps some of them still considered that it was not advisable to purify the city's drinking water.

"We have given you something unique in the history of Peterborough. We built a plant that is 100% efficient and 100% of what we contracted for, and it was finished within the estimates."

Rates Reduced.

When the new discount comes into effect on January 1st the water rates will be 51% more than the old rates before the water was filtered, and Mr. Hicks expressed his confidence that in three years the filtered water should cost not more than 40%, and perhaps only 35%, in excess of the old rates. The Commission was adopting a budget system for the purpose of laying out annual estimates which the engineer should follow.

Mr. Hicks referred to the economy that had marked the building of homes for employees of the Waterworks on the grounds of the plant, providing facilities the same as in the city and at less cost.

"We are glad to be able to have our employees feel that we are looking after their welfare, and for this the Waterworks rates do not pay one cent."

Saved $815,000.

Turning to the electric department under the Commission's control, Mr. Hicks asserted that the city had benefitted through the Hydro-Electric service to the amount of $815,000 in five years. "In other words, you have paid $815,000 less in the last five years for your power than you would have paid if you had not gone into that power contract. The question arises as to whether we are in this contract in the best way. The Council has taken up this matter, but the figure I have given you has never been challenged, and I don't think it ever will be."

Mr. Hicks said he had certain ideas regarding the development of power along this river, and some of his ideas had worked out very successfully. In 1909 and 1910, when it was proposed that the city generate power at the Waterworks dam, Mr. Hicks had opposed the project because it committed the city to a vague and inadequate policy, and the people were not told what the final cost would be. He hda contended that only 350 or 400 h.p. could be developed there, and his opponents' estimate was 1,200 h.p.

His Advice Followed.

"I was called the white hope of the capitalists," Mr. Hicks recalled, "but I was so convinced I was right that I had handbills printed condemning the scheme, and I am glad to tell you the ratepayers accepted my advice. That scheme was not in harmony with the bigger scheme I thought Peterborough should have. In a short time the C.G.E. got a report from an engineer, not from an ordinary business man, and they developed power at the Waterworks dam.

"I am not going to tell you what the results were, but I can say that they got something they wished they didn't have. If the city had gone into that policy they would have had barely enough power to light the streets and not reach the homes. Had we spent $125,000 on that scheme it would have given public ownership a black eye in Peterborough for all time."

Mr. Hicks said the Utilities Commission had promised that the water rates would be reduced as fast as it could be done, "and I ask you have I kept faith," he asked.

"If you see fit to elect me I'll stand on my record as a member of the Utilities Commission and promise to carry on as faithfully and efficiently as in the past."

Mr. A. G. Grier.

Mr. A. Gordon Grier, an engineer of the C.G.E. Company, said he hesitated to say anything after the discourse by Mr. Hicks. He acknowledged the honor of his nomination, and said he offered his services to the public as an engineer with both technical and commercial experience. If elected he promised to do all he could to investigate Peterborough's power situation, and to put a complete statement before the people. He had no connection with any private enterprise, and if elected would be able to devote ample time to the Commission's affairs.

"If I am elected my services will be available at any time, and if my friend Mr. Hicks is elected I shall be at his service just the same if needed at any time."

JUNIOR HOCKEY LEAGUE TO-NIGHT.

Teams interested in the proposed Junior Hockey League are requested to attend a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce to-night at 8.30 o'clock.

Hockey supporters appear to be very much in favour of a junior series as a means of providing good hockey and developing players for the O.H.A. teams. Such a league should be well patronized.

THEATRES

Capitol Entertainment

The title of the picture now showing at the Capitol, "Nice People," is misleading. The adjective does not imply that the idle butterflies of Broadway are respectable, but is applied in a spirit of sarcasm to denote that the people referred to are given to, to strain at gnats and to swallow camels when it comes to moral problems. Because a young girl who was the leader of her set, and for that reason the envy of her feminine comrades, found herself in a compromising position, this fact was made the excuse for sending her to Coventry. The heroine of the story, the part taken by Bebe Daniels, was a headstrong young girl who had been spoiled by overindulgence at home. When her father and aunt realized that she was transgressing the social code beyond all reason, and attempted to pull her up short, she rebelled and grew worse than ever. Her reformation was finally brought about by a young man, represented by Wallace Reid, not of her set, and who could not be made to consider the modern flapper as other than a freak of nature, to be dealt with as a stern parent would handle a wilful child. The moral of the story is supposed to be contained in the claim that modern society shows that the young people of the present day are slowly drifting into perdition. As an illustration of modern social degeneracy a picture is shown by way of contrast, the scene being a fancy dress ball, in which the costumes worn are exact copies of those of the upper classes at the time of the American Revolution. The dances of that period were also reproduced in striking contrast to the fox trots and two steps of the Broadway ball-room.

The Sherlock Holmes story, "A Case of Identity," depicts the famous detective in a new role in which he comes gallantly to the rescue of a young girl whose stepfather, anxious to keep her fortune in his own hands by preventing her marriage, devises a plot which it intended to shatter her faith in men. The plighted lover of the girl mysteriously disappears at the church door, and the bride-to-be is inconsolable over her loss, in her extremity applying to the detective for assistance in locating the missing swain, who turns out to be the stepfather in disguise.

ONLY $1523.05

pairs $489.97, heating $832.76 and other smaller expenses and sundries, leaving a bank balance for the year of $142.99.

In 1920 the payments amounted to $8,239.34 and of this sum $4,449.96 was for salaries and $1404.35 for new books. At the beginning of this year the board obtained $8,800 from the city, an increase of $800 over last year's appropriation, and the patrons will agree that the trustees of the library cannot be charged with extravagance in their administration.

It may be municipal heresy, but nevertheless it may be quite properly suggested that the board would be justified in making a larger demand upon the council next year for the specific purpose of increasing the proportionate outlay for books and the actual purchases.

At a price of from $2 to $3 a volume $1,500 would provide for somewhere between 500 and 750 new books, approximately, and from that number would have to be subtracted the discards that wear out from use and have to be taken out of circulation.

Taxpayers who do not frequent the public library, and that dereliction is their own loss, may feel that 700 new books in one year are sufficient, but those who are on the register must often regret, for various reasons, that may be mentioned later, the circumstances that restrain the library board from asking the city council for larger annual grants.

The affairs of the board meetings are seldom reported, but a glance at the auditor's statement for 1920 is convincing proof of economic management that is also highly satisfactory and successful considering the board's financial resources in the last few years. It might be proposed, however, that a little broader policy involving an increased appropriation should be endorsed by the ratepayers and approved by the council.

AVIATORS KILLED IN PLUNGE TO DEATH.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 22.—Canadian Press. — The charred bodies of the missing aviators, Col. Frances N. Marshall and Lieut Chas. Webber have been found in the Pablo Canyon reservation, about 75 miles west of Tuscon, Arizona, the Southern Pacific Railroad offices here were advised yesterday afternoon in despatches from Tuscon.

The message to the Southern Pacific said:

"Some comboy found those two aviators near Indian Oasis. Both apparently were burned to death. About 75 miles south of Tucson on the Papalo reservation. No railroad there. It is on a waggon track. Suppose airplane fell to ground, and aviators burned to death."

GERMAN BANKER HAS REPARATIONS PLAN.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. Theodore Melchior, banker of Hamburg and of Germany's delegates to the Versailles Peace Conference has gone to Paris where he will submit to the Government fresh reparations proposals, says a Central News despatch from Berlin quoting the Lokal Anzeiger as its authority. The proposals, the despatch adds, will include a project for the payment of twenty billion gold marks in a lump sum.

ANITA STEWART NEW SORT OF WESTERN GIRL IN "A QUESTION OF HONOR"

There is a new vision of the West in "A Question of Honor," the First National attraction starring Anita Stewart that opened an engagement at the Royal theatre yesterday. It is not the West of Bret Harte or of Remington; but it is still the West of big men, loyal women and big achievements. It is a West strangely transformed from the Indian fighting days of decades ago. The buffalo trails have been replaced by orchards and crops. The deadliness of bullets is matched in the clashing of minds. The upbuilding of the country is done by engineering and irrigation.

Anita Stewart has always had the reputation of being one of the screen's loveliest women and her present appearance bears up this title. She adorns the silver sheet in new charm encased in riding breeches, cowboy accoutrements and a brace of automatics.

Her performance of Anne Wilmot, the New York society girl who is brought west by her uncle as a bait for the mining engineer who seeks to save the property that the financial interests want, is charming and refreshing. Bill Shannon has fought a lone battle to put through his irrigation project. At the moment when success seems imminent the big Wall Street men decide that they need the land for a railroad right of way. Bill fights for the settlers in whose behalf he has constructed this dam that will solve their troubles.

Anne becomes the innocent tool of the financiers until she learns the trick they are playing and her part in it. Then she has to fight the problem out for herself and it becomes a question of honor to live up to her decision. The working out of the plot to a logical conclusion brings in enough action to satisfy anyone.

Edward Hearn as the mining engineer is very effective. Among the other characters Adele Farrington, well known screen favorite, works with her usual composed assurance. "A Question of Honor" was adapted by Josephine Quirk from the Ruth Cross novel of the same name and directed by Edward Carewe. It will be at the Royal Theatre all week.

SKATE GRINDING THAT CONTINUES UNEQUALLED.

Nothing is left to be desired in a pair of Skates Ground By Us. By a smooth finish and keen, lasting edge we merit the envied reputation — which we jealously guard. A trial will make you an enthusiast. Skates machine riveted to Boots, and Repaired. — White Bros., 174 Hunter Street W. Open every Evening. 3d-148

NOTICE TO HOCKEY PLAYERS AND OTHERS.

We have put in a special machine for grinding Tube and other thin-bladed skates, with a very small fine grained grindstone. The only one in Peterboro. It's a winner. Price the same, 15c pair. LAST WORD ON SKATE GRINDING AT TAYLOR'S.

Others use emery wheels and grind dry which drains the temper and leaves a coarse, unsatisfactory bottom. We use grindstones, imported from Sheffield, England, that run in water, hence our skate grinding is the Hollowest, Truest, Smoothest, Keenest and most lasting edge possible to put on a skate. Our special grinder for tubes and thin-bladed skates is a gem. Forty years' practical experience gives us superiority over all competitors at skate and other grinding. Wm. Taylor & Son, 219 Hunter Street West. Open evenings till 8.30; Saturdays, 10 p.m. 2d-148

OBITUARY

WILLIAM BERT DETCHER.

Mr. William Detcher of Water St. North, has received word of the death of his brother, William Bert, in Vancouver. The funeral will be private when the body arrives.

MRS. ANN WEIR

Last evening at 11.30 at the family residence, 474 Weller street, there passed away after a lingering illness an aged resident of the city in the person of Mrs. Ann Weir, aged 78 years. She was the wife of the late William Weir who predeceased her 32 years ago. She was born in the township of Douro and lived her whole life in this district. The deceased has resided at her late address for the last 61 years and has seen the growth of Peterborough from the early days when there was only one house between their home and St. Peters Cathedral, and when the west end of the town as it was then, was only pasture land and farms.

She leaves to mourn her loss one sister, Mrs. Sarah Menzie of the city and two brothers, Richard Bradfield of Douro and Thomas of Toledo, Ohio. She also leaves three daughters, Mrs. Thomas Wade, of Branton Miss Annie of Toronto and Miss Sophia of the city, one son James of the city, one niece Mary Moher, and one nephew, Gerrard Moher.

Funeral will take place from the late residence, 474 Weller street, Sunday afternoon at 2.15 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Audrey Pluard, who died Dec. 21st, 1921:
Of the sweetness and the zest,
Of they happy life possessed,
Thou last left us at thy best.
—Family.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Fern McClure, who departed her life Dec. 22, 1921:
I think of her in silence,
No eye may see me weep,
But treasured in my inmost heart
Her memory will I keep.
—Sadly Missed by Father, Mother, Brothers and Sisters.
